Final Chapter

How Far Would Military Go In Obeying Orders

On the third day of the alert there was, buried in a tiny headline somewhere inside the huge L. A. Times, a short, three-paragraph Associated Press story about a U. S. Navy carrier which had left port unexpectedly, leaving approximately 300 crew members at shore.

The story explained that the carrier left the Spanish port without notice and the crew members on shore leave were not notified of the ship's departure.

"The Pentagon would only say that the ship was involved in an exercise," the article concluded.

This was our first clue that the alert was not limited to our base or to the Air Force. We, by then were able to piece together that navy installations around southern California were also in the alert, but still there was absolutely no information which could explain the reason.

Going into the third week of the alert, we were notified that our base would be closed . . . and I started getting busy answering calls.

All the major television networks sent crews out from Los Angeles to shoot film about the base closure and to what TV crews do.

They spend a lot of time driving around looking for interesting places to shoot their video . . . then spruce up the announcer.

None of them . . . not a single one . . . ever asked or even seemed suspicious that our base was under an unusual alert.

Even the sign at the main gate didn't arouse any real attention from the "hot-shot" network newsmen.

The one time that I got a little nervous as I was escorting them on the base was the moment that the NBC newsman asked to go down to the flightline and get some shots of the aircraft . . .

I stuttered something about we couldn't get very close due to a practice exercise.

"What kind of exercise are you in," he asked casually.

"Oh, it's just one of those regular practice things we do," I lied convincingly.

The subject was closed, we went to the main gate for the shot.

They left . . . we went back to business getting ready to go to war . . . so we thought . . . or whatever.

After 29 days, the alert was cancelled. We wondered, dared to ask each other . . . then went into the hectic business of closing the base and getting ready to move.

EPILOGUE - In 1972, just before I was due to be separated from active duty, I encountered the former fighter squadron commander, who had by then been promoted to colonel and was serving at the Pentagon.

"Colonel, I'm really curious about that October alert . . ." I began to ask, "can you tell me anything about it?"

"No one really wants to talk about that at the Pentagon," the fighter pilot-commander answered, "but the scuttle-butt around the halls is that . . . you may not believe this . . . President Nixon wanted to know how far the military would go in obeying an order . . . even if it meant violating the law."

I stammered for a moment . . . "You mean all we were doing was proving to the president that the military would do what he ordered?"

"That's about the size of it," the colonel responded, "he just wanted to know which commanders would refuse to obey and which ones would go along."

I was glad at that time that I had submitted my resignation as an officer in the Air Force.

I was proud of my service and what I had done . . . but I was very ashamed of how we, as professional military people, obediently followed orders to gear up for armed nuclear attack . . . in direct violation of law and military regulations without a whimper.

It made me realize in a shattering moment, how fragile freedom really is.

Carried to its limits, I could see the President ordering an armed guard around the capitol building in Washington, to prevent the Congress from proceeding on impeachment hearings.

I could envision the Army commander . . . maybe hesitate at first . . . and then repeat what our commander had said that first day we were ordered to load up nuclear bombs . . . "But sir, . . . uh, yes sir."

It should be no surprise to those of us who lived through that experience, that the German people were dragged into killing millions of innocent people in the holocaust.

After all, as our wing commander admitted, "we were only following orders."

Jerry Moore, Maintenance Construction Supervisor III, of Post, stands beside the markers in the roadside park north of Post.

Post Recognized for Roadside Park

A site at the top of the cap, a landmark, an outlook, a former battleground, just north of what is now the city of Post, became a beautiful park for the residents of Post and passersby when N. C. Outlaw donated this park to the state for that purpose a few years ago.

Situated at the top of the cap, the park provides the traveling public a chance to survey the surrounding country, as did the Indian tribes when coming to that point in former days.

N. C. Outlaw, a citizen of Post, donated this property in honor of his wife, Mildred, and the park was dedicated in 1969 in her honor.

A plaque erected in her memory in the park reads, "The Texas Highway Department proudly dedicates this park in memory of Mildred T. Outlaw, 1969."

Two historical markers in the park commemorate to history some of the former uses of the site. One marker commemorates the "C. W. Post Rain Battles," and reads as follows:

"Site of 1911-1914 dynamiting to produce rain carried on by C. W. Post, Texas farm colonizer and cereal foods millionaire.

"After reading that rain often accompanies cannonading in war, Post planned battles to relieve droughts. He thought vertical air currents would condense vapor in atmosphere and cause rain. He first used dynamite airborne by kites, but soon replaced this dangerous method by setting off explosions on the edge of the caprock.

"Post's experiments were said to have been 40 percent effective, and cost $50,000. He battled drought on farms until his death, 1914. (1967)"

Another historical marker commemorates the "Twin Chimneys (100 yards north)":

"Used as a landmark in the 19th century by surveyors sighting from Duffy's Peak, located 10 miles northeast, Jasper Hays,

Stolen Vehicles Top Crime List

Two stolen vehicles topped the crime list for the Garza County Sheriff's Department this week.

On June 9 at 11:47, officers received a call that a car had been stolen off a parking lot at a local bar.

On June 10 at 12:50, officers received another report of another stolen car off the same parking lot. The first car was found at another local bar but the second car, belonging to a Canyon man has yet to be located and is still under investigation by local officers.

William Parker was arrested by officers here June 9 on a revocation of probation issued from Lubbock County. He was released to Lubbock officers.

On June 7 at 8:24 p.m., sheriff's officers were called to Garza Memorial Hospital due to a man being hit in the head with a shovel in the Northeast part of town. The subject refused to file charges.

A burglary of a residence on Henry Street was also reported but after investigation, nothing was reported missing.

Harmon's Hamburger Hut was also reported broken into June 9 and an undetermined amount of money taken from five video machines. The incident is presently under investigation.

COOL WATER ON A HOT DAY - The local city-county swimming pool opened for the summer season here last Sunday and has been busy with young and old alike enjoying the facility. Shown is Mary Ann Cooper visiting here with friends going off the diving board for a dip in the pool.

California 'wateriest'
California used more water than any other state in 1980, the latest year for which statistics are available — about 54 billion gallons per day. That was twice as much as either Florida or Texas, the next largest users.

Pakistan peaks scaled Forty-three mountaineering expeditions visited Pakistan from foreign countries in 1982, including four from the United States. In all, 17 peaks were scaled.

CCC accomplished a lot
The major accomplishments of the Civilian Conservation Corps, established 50 years ago during the Great Depression, included installation of 89,000 miles of telephone line, construction of 126,000 miles of roads and trails and 6,660,000 erosion-control check dams, planting of 2.35 million trees, and expenditure of 6,459,000 man-days to fight fires.

PRESENTS FLAG — Matt Matthews, left, VFW commander and Nick Vukad, right, present an American flag to Little League president, Leon Gibbs, center and players, Matt Holly, and Chad Davis. The flag was presented as a result of someone stealing the flag usually flown over the Little League park. This picture was run in the Sunday Dispatch and erred on the name of Chad Davis.

We had our monthly fellowship Sunday night after church. We honored the birthdays - Laurie Greathouse and Brother Brown - and Don and Sherry Eilenberger had an anniversary which we celebrated. Everyone had a great time in the Lord.

Our member of the Month for May was Christine Wood. earliest recorded surveyor of this area, used the peaks during 1877-78 for charting the Llano Ranch, later bought by C. W. Post, the cereal king. Hays established, in addition, lines from which section surveys were made.

"Civil engineer A. L. Marhoff, using the original field notes and book of Hays, surveyed the land bought by Post, 1906. This included the section on which the town of Post was founded, 1907, as well as other property. (1972)".

Jerry Moore, Maintenance Construction Supervisor III, of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, supervises the maintenance of the park. The actual work of mowing and keeping the park in the summer time is done by a contractor. The public is invited to go by and see this unusual roadside park on the top of the cap as leaving Post on U. S. 84 going North, and on the right side of U. S. 84 when entering Post from U. S. 84 from Lubbock.

Richardson Invited to TIP Ceremony

Texas seventh graders in Duke University's third annual search for mathematically and verbally brilliant students were honored at a ceremony held at the University of Texas on June 4. Among those honored was Jill Richardson.

The students invited to the ceremony had obtained scores on at least one of the three sections of the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) which were equal to or greater than the average score obtained by college-bound high school students.

These very capable seventh graders or 12-year olds took the college-level SAT as participants in Duke's Talent Identification Program (TIP).

"TIP was initiated in 1980 to identify bright young students, to help develop their special abilities, and to direct them toward special academic programs for the gifted and talented.

The 1983 Talent Search involved more than 23,000 students and covered 16 of the southern, southwestern United States and is the largest search of its type in the country," said Dr. Robert Sawyer, Director of the Program.

The 728 students invited to the Texas Awards Ceremony had to score at least 450 out of 800 points on the mathematics portion of the SAT (500 for boys), or 430 out of 800 points on the verbal portion, or 52 out of 60 points on the Test of Standard Written English.

All participants received certificates of merit in recognition of their achievement and the very highest scorers also received scholarships and book awards. Almost 3200 students took the SAT in Texas.

Also attending the ceremony were Jill's parents, Danny and Linda Richardson and her sister, Amanda.

People International. He called a conference of Americans who would be interested in launching such a program in 1956 and he foresaw the tremendous amount of international goodwill and friendship resulting from many Americans visiting citizens of other countries in their homes and getting to know them as individuals, getting to realize their hopes and sharing their dreams of peace.

The primary aim of the program is to promote better international understanding; to exchange ideas with people of other countries and to develop real and lasting friendships between countries.

It offers the US of A high school students the opportunity to meet their peers of other lands in a family living situation. The student ambassador spends four or five days in three different countries living with homestay families. These families are selected by program representatives for their keen interest in student ambassadors and for their warm-hearted openness.

The individual contact — being a real part of the family, enjoying pleasure, getting to know different family customs and letting the family learn what a "real" American youth is as contrasted with a movie or TV character is the most vital part of the adventure.

The program experience also complements the educational experience that takes place year round in the local high school and it also internationalizes the school.

Under the guidance of the Educational Travel Institute groups visit over 30 foreign countries.

This is the 20th annual People-to-People program and has involved nearly 17,000 students from around the United States.

Students participating in the program are initially recommended by a principal, teacher or other responsible adult. A local screening committee interviews students who wish to serve as Ambassadors and makes a final recommendation.

Sincerity and maturity are important factors.

Students will leave for Washington D. C. this month in groups of 10 accompanied by a teacher-leader. There, they will be housed for two days on the campus of George Washington University. During that time they receive a special state department briefing, meet members of Congress and visit Capitol Hill.

Other area students participating in the program are Pam Brown of Cooper, Pauleta Brownfield of Tahoka, Paul Dobbins of Plainview and Thelma Maxey of Lorenzo.

Post Public Library to Show Movies

Movies set for the Post Public Library Friday, June 17, include "Mouse on the Mayflower", a 54 minute film and is an animated fantasy telling the story of Willum Mouse who helped the Pilgrims survive both a dangerous sea voyage and the first cold New England winter.

The second film "Paddington Goes Underground" is six minutes long about Paddington Bear meets an angry dog on his way to the subway station, where he then makes an inspector irate with continual escalator rides. Only innocent, lovable Paddington could wander into these predicaments.

"Patrick", seven minute film, will be the third of the day and is the story of Patrick, who buys a fiddle from a junk man and with it's joyous music imbues every leaf and creating with color and movement.

A 26 minute film "Yonder Comes Day" will conclude the afternoon movies and documents the efforts of 72 year old Bessie Jones to pass along to new generations the rich heritage of black slave songs and is a very lively film.

The movies begin at 3 p. m. in the library and the public is invited to each showing.

At the conclusion of the movies a name is drawn for a juvenile book and last weeks' winners were Chris Sanchez and Kyle Glidewell.

The Sox scored four runs in the bottom of the first on two hits. Blair Didway popped a single and Steve Price ripped a double.

The Indians left two men on base in the top of the second. Simon Salinas had a single in the White Sox half of the second as they added another run to the tally.

The Sox kept pouring it on in their half of the fourth as they scored four runs on a pair of hits, one a Didway double, the other a homerun shot by Tracy Price. The score stood at 9-0.

The Indians got on the scoreboard in the sixth as the bases were loaded on walks and one run scored without a hit.

The next hit came in the top of the third, but the Indians were unable to capitalize on it and the score stood at 1-0 after three complete.

Two men reached base via the walk in the Braves' half of the fourth. They were stranded, however, as the White Sox defense stiffened.

Marvin Lee got an RBI in the bottom of the fourth on a sacrifice fly to up the score to 2-0.

Blair Didway blast-

One for the Books

Allan Prieston's roommate, Gregory Trouvinsky, is heir to a fabulous fortune, though his parents live near-poverty in exile from Imperial Russia. Their lives are all complicated by the theft of a diamond in John Knowles' novel, "A Stolen Past."

If America's best run companies would tell their secrets, what would those secrets divulge? Are the best companies profitable because of cold-hearted rationalism, or a human relations model of concern for customer and employee? Thomas Peters and Robert Waterman share what they have discovered about the most successful American companies in a book called "In Search of Excellence."

Tom Dalton was born in a small whitewashed cottage, the son of an Irish peasant and her aristocratic lover. As a poor Irish immigrant with a sorrowful childhood in his past, Tom makes his way to America, where he is befriended by the founders of the Long-shoremen's Union, and rises to political power and life in a glittering Fifth Avenue Mansion. Only when he has made peace with himself can Tom return to Ireland to claim his rightful legacy for future generations. Cathy Cash Spellman writes "So Many Partings."

"The Kings in the Counting House" is one of those horror tales frighteningly possible. At a "time close to now," international press magnates and intelligence agencies fight for control of the un-manned skies of satellite broadcasting. Once-great trans-Atlantic newspapers are overpowered by the broadcasting networks, except for one man and woman with integrity and dreams. Herbert Mitgang writes a novel of love, betrayal, and commitment above and beyond the call.

Another King, Henry VI, came to power, though obviously more suited for the monastic life. Margaret of Anjou came to England, bringing with her dainty looks but a dominating nature, and married the King, giving birth to a prince before the King lapses into madness. After King Henry meets a mysterious death in the Wakefield Tower, Queen Margaret schemes recklessly for her son as she dashes headlong into disaster. Jean Plaidy writes "Red Rose of Anjou."

Andrew M. Greeley has done it again. After two great novels, "The Cardinal Sins" and "Thy Brother's Wife," this priest has captured passion and piety, and all kinds of devotion between the covers of a third novel, "Ascent into Hell". Father Greeley knows the tragedy and frustration, the power and glory of a priest's role in modern life. He gives Hugh Donlon a choice: a definite calling to the priesthood, or love for the beautiful, senseous Maria Manfredy. This is a parable of Grace, an epic tale of a priest's spiritual pilgrimage, the story of two strong women contending twice for the man they both love, though only one of them can win the struggle.

Sad, Tragic Times Test Goodness of God

Steve McMeans
Associate Pastor
First Baptist Church

Mutual of Omaha
Hospital — Group
Disability — Life
DON RIEGEL
495-3069

There are sad and tragic times in the lives of men when they are tempted to doubt the goodness of God. Perhaps after the death of a loved one or during the midst of a serious problem it is easy to think that God is not really good. He wouldn't allow these terrible things to happen to us. Despite what we think, however, the Bible repeatedly affirms that God is good and benevolent in numerous ways. In James 1: 17-18, this fact is again made clear and some proofs of God's goodness are listed. This Scripture says; "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning. Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth, that we should be a kind of first fruits of his creatures." This passage tells us first of all that God is good in His giving. In fact, everything good that we have comes from Him. If the Lord God were to cease to be active in this day and time, we would never again experience anything good. As it is, however, the good things of God flow down to us in a ceaseless stream. We might think that we have worked hard to obtain them or that we merit them because of who we are, but in truth God gives us all good things out of His grace.

James goes on to tell us that God is good in His creation, calling Him "the Father of lights." The term "lights" here refers to the stars and other heavenly bodies that God has created and declared to be good (Gen. 1: 14-18).

Of these "lights" our own sun is only 1 of many billions of stars which make up the Milky Way galaxy. And our own galaxy is only one of billions that scientists say exist. The goodness of God is evidenced by the fact that despite the immensity of His creation He is still concerned about tiny little creatures called men on an insignificant little planet called Earth.

But that is not all. God is also good in His dependability because verse 17 tells us that in Him there is no variableness or shadow of turning. That simply means that we can count and depend on God. He is not fickle or moody. His character is constant and it is constantly good.

Finally, God is good in salvation as we see in verse 18. There the Bible tells us that of His own will God, through the Gospel of Jesus Christ, brings men into spiritual existence. He gives them life in Christ which is salvation. And notice that no one made Him do this. He did it of His own will because He is so good.

All these things prove to us the benevolence of God.

It is a fact, that we should write indelibly on our minds so that in times of trouble, pain and death we can praise and thank God rather than criticize and question Him.

Father's Mark

Pastor Steve Traw
First Christian Church

Near the river bridge in the eastern Kansas town where I was reared stood a special tree. In a shady spot on the northeast corner of the crossing was a tree to which generations had used it to carve their initials on the broad trunk. The many old scars attested that others through the years had tried to leave their mark as well. This seems to be a distinguishing trait of the human race.

One of our young men, Ed, once commented: "Do not carve your name on a tree or wall, write it on the heart of a little for an eternity." It is true. Material things soon pass. Even that old tree you leave behind you. Your words, your witness, as well as your work can return a dividend or leave a mark on the heart of a little for an eternity. What you leave IN your child, is more important than what you leave TO him.

By Annie V. Gilbert
Sunday, June 12, His theme "Thirsting for God". Sister Gilbert read before his message, Psalms Number 77, verses 1 through 7 and offered prayer also.

Sisters Delores Harper, Callie Harper and Annie Gilbert rendered song service. We all had a glorious hallelujah time. The Soul Seekers and Spiritual Wonders will be in a financial drive June 18 and we are asking our many friends to please help us in their drive and bring a friend. We appreciate your support.

Rev. James read Isaiah the entire chapter 35.

Everyone was at their post of duty with the senior choir singing to the honor and glory of God. During the 11 a.m. worship our pastor delivered a wonderful sermon from I Timothy chapter 2 verses 1 thru 8 and talked from the fifth verse these words: "There is one God."

God was truly here in the midst as always and spiritually moving. Praise the Lord.

We rendered service for the residents of United Convalescent Nursing Home Sunday and the Holy Spirit really was in the midst and was loved by all in attendance.

I would like to thank everyone who attended my surprise graduation party. You all are great friends and made the party very special to me.

I would also like to thank Dr. Ricardo Rodriguez, Danny Shaw (who drove all the way from Monahans), Dwight Funk and Danny Gonzales for providing the wonderful music, which we enjoyed.

It's people like you that makes me happy to know as friends.

A very special thanks goes to Connie Jones, Brenda Angerer, Margie Pennell and Larry Hair for helping Ronny make the party a success. And to my husband, Ronny, for being supporting, encouraging and for making it possible for me to go to RN school, plus arranging the party, then sweating, hoping I would not find out. And despite all of Lina's clues, it was a great surprise that I'll always treasure.

Thanks

Maddox Pleased by Order

Attorney General
Jim Maddox said Wednesday he is pleased with a federal judge's
order to temporarily
block a federal quarantine of Texas breeder cattle.

Federal judge James Nowlin of Austin Tuesday issued a temporary restraining order against the U.S.
Department of Agriculture, which had planned to implement the quarantine June 1.

The federal government threatened the quarantine, claiming Texas had no effective plan for control of brucellosis, a contagious disease that causes
cattle to miscarry
and produce less milk.
The disease poses no
danger to consumers
of meat or pasteurized
dairy products.

Maddox and his executive assistant for litigation, Dave Richards, argued before Nowlin that the federal government's threatened quarantine
would "mislabel the
some 162,000 herds of cattle in Texas as infected with brucellosis when, in fact,
only 2,000 herds have been so designated."

Maddox also said
Texas is enforcing
regulations to control
and eradicate brucellosis and that the
incidences of brucellosis in Texas are lower than in some
other nearby states,
including Mississippi,
Louisiana and Florida, none of which have been placed under quarantine.

He charged that the agriculture department's action "is little more than an attempt to bring pressure upon the Texas legislature
to enact legislation to the choosing the federal government."

The Attorney General said state officials hope to reach a solution of the problems between the state and federal government over the issue soon. Also, he said, the legislature
could take up the
issue in a special session this summer.

Social Security Discussed

Many Americans
think of Social Security only as a retirement program. While it is true that Social Security started as a retirement program—
and a limited one at that—it is much more today.

Today, more than nine of every 10 jobs
in paid employment
and self-employment
are covered or eligible for coverage under the program.

Ninety-four percent
of individuals who
were 65 years of age
and older at the beginning of 1982
were receiving benefits or would be able to receive benefits
when they or their spouses retire.

Ninety-five percent
of children under 18 years of age and
their mothers and fathers (with children under 16) can count
on monthly benefits
if the wage earner dies.

Eighty percent of men and women between 21 and 64 years
of age can count off
monthly cash benefits.
In the event the wage earner suffers a severe and prolonged disability.

Mr. and Mrs. James Stone will be honored at a 50th wedding anniversary by their son and daughters on Sunday, June 19 from 3 to 5 p.m. at the First National Bank Community Room. All friends and family are cordially invited to the reception.

Wildlife Income

Wildlife may be the most overlooked, if not underrated, source of income available to southwestern ranchers.

Hunters now travel great distances and spend tidy sums of money for their occasional adventurous trips to the great outdoors.

Many ranchers are beginning to capitalize
on this resource, but countless others haven't as yet.

There are many ways to make hefty
sums in the "wildlife
market" as specialists
and ranchers will point out during wildlife concurrent sessions that are part of the International Ranchers Roundup (IRR).

It will be in the Convention Center in this West Texas ranching hub August 1-5.
Ranchers can obtain
program and registration details from their county Extension agent or by writing to IRR, P.O. Drawer

portance of Marketing

Bagworms Infest Area

Bagworms are one of the major pests of junipers and other trees and shrubs in Texas. Spring hatch usually begins the first week of May on the South Plains. Insecticide control is most effective in early June when the bagworms are small.

In the spring, bagworm larvae emerge from hatching eggs low label instructions inside last year's bags and begin feeding on leaves.

Insecticides which can be used to control bagworms include sevin, dursban, diazinon, malathion, dylox and orthene. The biological insecticide Bacillus thuringiensis can also be used. To obtain effective control, thorough coverage of the foliage is important. Always read and follow label instructions when applying insecticides.
