At a meeting last Tuesday evening, the group planned a Christmas Opening Sale December 1, complete with the installation of a Christmas tree downtown and the arrival of Santa Claus.

Participating stores also plan to remain open until 8 p. m. all Thursdays in December.

Wednesday Edition Wins Survey

Beginning Wednesday, November 30, The Post Dispatch will return to a mid-week publication date, according to publisher Wesley W. Burnett.

"When we decided to publish once a week," Burnett explains, "we felt that Sunday was the best day for our advertisers and subscribers.

"However, in the past month we have frequently been asked to return to Wednesday as a publication date," the publisher adds.

"It is our policy to provide a service which best fits the needs of our subscribers and advertisers," he continues, "and this change reflects what we believe fulfills the majority wishes of our customers."

"This community can best be served with a semi-weekly newspaper," Burnett emphasizes, "but we are faced with the reality that advertising support for a twice-weekly publication is inadequate at this time."

"Many of our readers will miss the popular Sunday edition," the publisher concludes, "but economic conditions here are just not strong enough."

Those readers who want a localized television listing should be aware of the fact that without proper advertising support, the publication can not be produced.

By Wesley W. Burnett Publisher

This week we were bombarded with television reminders of President John Kennedy's assassination November 22, 1963. Most of the media hype was just that . .

and I tuned it out as much as possible. But like many Texans and Americans, the memories of that tragedy couldn't completely be stiffled.

I remember the shock when the office secretary came bursting into the newspaper room screaming . . . "JUST LOOK WHAT YOU TEXANS HAVE DONE! YOU'VE KILLED OUR PRESIDENT!!"

The lady was so distraught she didn't make any sense, and those three of us in the room all jumped her . . . "what do you mean? You're kidding, right?"

She wasn't.

And what really hurt was the smear on any of us who were identified as Texans . . for a while I thought Texas might be invaded.

I was in the Air Force, coincidentally, editing a weekly newspaper at McCord AFB, Washington, which is located near Tacoma. It was a frightful two-three days.

The base was put on full alert . . nobody knew for sure what was happening . all work came to a standstill.

In Tacoma it was a cool, bright Pacific Northwest autumn Friday morning.

The base newspaper had just been distributed to the various stops, and the editor was relaxing a little, surveying what mistakes might be called to his attention

Millions of people around the world this week are retelling this same kind of story for it was a day not unlike the surprise attack on Pearl Harbor of another generation . . . a turning point in the history of our nation. What hurt and still hurts the most is the attack people made on Texas and Texans . .

Lee Harvey Oswald, whether you believe he was alone in the act or not, was not a Texan! And even if he was, a single demented man certainly doesn't reflect the entire state.

Former Texas Governor John Connally said it best on the Today Show Tuesday "Robert Kennedy was killed in Los Angeles, but somehow that city never got the stigma that Dallas got . . .yes, I think Dallas and Texas got a bum rap."

Whatever we felt about President Kennedy, politically or personally, the assassination in Dallas left Texans wishing it would have happened somewhere else.

And if you were a Texan not living in Texas then, you know that it was not a time to wave the Lone Star Flag.

Those words ring in my ear and sting my heart . . . "JUST LOOK WHAT YOU TEXANS HAVE DONE . . . YOU'VE KILLED OUR PRESIDENT!"

I'l get over it . . .but it still hurts.

Town Meeting

Guest speakers at the town meeting include Gerre Sears, executive director of the Lubbock Council on Alcoholism; Bonnie Barton, assistant to the director; and Ron Stubblefield, a certified alcoholism and drug abuse counselor.

Jim Kimmel was scheduled to be here for the program but is unable to attend due to illness.

Cherries, it is said, were brought to Rome in 70 B.C. by Lucullus, a Roman general. When the Romans invaded what is now England, 120 years later, they took cherries with them.

The students were divided into their four homeroom groups, then rotated to four different stations along the river.

The Fossil Hunt was led by Mrs. Su Hasselmeier and Fred Postell. The students dug along the edge of the river and found many unusual fossils. Some will be kept on display in the science department of the Animal Investigations had two different activities. Mrs. Willa Didway, assisted by parents, identified and made plaster molds of animal tracks. Mrs. Kathie Rankin did activities on protective coloration and natural habitat.

The students brought a sack lunch and after eating, they had a few minutes of free time before the activities began again. At the end of the group activities, the students had homeroom challenges with a Tug-of-War on the river. The losers got their feet wet but everyone had fun doing this. Mrs. Tannehill's home room was the winners.

Just before loading up to return home, the trash bags from each homeroom were judged and winners received a candy bar for collecting the most trash during the day. Mrs. Tannehill's room won this event also.

Parents assisting with this trip were: Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Cash, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Sapp, Ray Bagby, Jo Ann Williams, Sherri Bassinger, Socorro Storie, Anna Guiterrez, Sue Traw, Joyce Overton, Nancy Kemp, Mary Nell Holly and Jean Morris.

The Post Middle School has been conducting outdoor education trips for six years. Thirteen teachers are members of the Texas Outdoor Education Association. The T.O.E.A. has held two, three day, workshops this year with five P.M.S. teachers attending. The Hill Country Workshop at Leakey, Texas was attended by Mrs. Linda Woods and Mrs. Lynn Borah. Applications for assistance in the disaster stricken counties will be accepted by Farmers Home Administration until May 18, 1984, for physical and production losses.

Pleasant Home Church News

By Annie Gilbert First on the agenda the Pleasant Home Brotherhood Annual was a great success.

Our Sunday School lesson subject was "God's Called Out People" Colossians 3: 1-3, Colossians 4: 5, 6-1 and Peter 2: 9-17.

A very, very good and beautiful lesson. Thank God for Jesus.

Worship hour devotion conducted by Deacon Jim Osby, Sister Fisher Wynn and Sister Annie Gil-Sister Wynn read I John, chapter 3, verses 1-5. Altar call truly spiritually prayed by our pastor as he really prayed from his heart and soul to our Loving Saviour and Master. Rev. James read 2 Corinthians chapter 6,

During the 11 a. m. General Worship hour, our pastor delivered a wonderful sermon from the book of number 103 Psalms verses 1-10. His theme was "Thanking God at Thanksgiving"

The choir sung praises to the honor and glory of God at their Post of Duty.

Thought: Courage is necessary to survive in this world God has given me plenty of that. Always be ready in giving good measure. Please continue to pray everyday at all times for the sick and shutins of God's churches, hospitals, nursing homes and residents of our community.

For spiritual help you may call or write Rev. Arthur Kelly (806) 495-3192 or 415 N. Ave. F. Post.

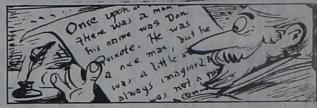

This reporter says Happy Thanksgiving to you one and all and may God bless you all.

Advertisers Need Frequent Reminders from Customers

The interesting thing about advertising is that no matter how successful a business might be, if the advertiser doesn't hear frequently from customers that they saw the ad, faith in advertising slips away.

We want the readers of The Post Dispatch to clearly understand the importance of their patronage to our advertisers...and the critical need for our advertisers to hear from our readers that "we saw your ad in the Dispatch."

Those few little words are reminders to the merchants that advertising does

Newspapers survive or thrive in direct relation to advertising volume.

And advertising volume is in direct relation to the response merchants get from their customers as a result of advertising in the Dispatch.

We are asking our readers to be aware of the fact that their community newspaper can only serve as well as its advertising volume allows.

It may sound silly, but if you want to say thanks to us for producing a good newspaper, we'd much rather have you tell our advertisers...they are the ones who pay the bills.

 A Study in the Word

Where's My t.v. listing?

A lot of folks called earlier in the week...wanting to know what happened to their television schedule which was not included in last Sunday's editon.

We were overwhelmed with response...we suspected the t.v. listing was popular, but we underestimated how

NOADS...NO SCHEDULE

We know there is a need for a local television listing schedule. But, folks, the simple facts are that it costs $$ to produce such a service.

There is only one way to provide this service...and that is through the support of local businesses with advertising.

In the past year, that support has been minimal, and recently went to zero. The hard, cold economic fact, stated simply...NO ADS. NO T.V. LISTING. We are ready, willing, eager and capable of providing a localized service for Post with a t.v. schedule. All we need is advertising commitment to make it work.

The one frustration we face is that the enthusiasm of our readers had not reached potential advertisers.

We're open to suggestions on how to make that happen.

Before You Buy, Sell or Lease . . . Know the Potential Hidden Wealth Under Your Land.

Remote Sensing.

From 570 miles in space and NASA technology comes the answer... is there Oil, Natural Gas, Sand/Gravel or other valuable resources under my land?

Geoscience and Services, Inc. and Geo-Marketing, Inc. of Fort Worth, Texas, bring the high technology of satellite remote sensing to landowners throughout the country. By using remote-sensing technology, it is now possible to provide a customized analysis of the potential mineral and petroleum resources of your land at a minimal cost.

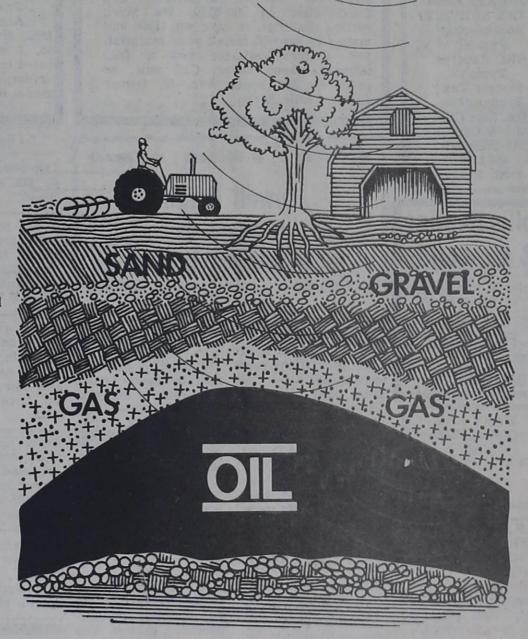

From 570 miles in space, sophisticated electronic-sensing satellites, orbited by the National Aeronautic and Space Administration, have made thousands of images of the earth—including your land. The resulting images, processed by Geoscience, are interpreted by expert geologists to determine geologic features.

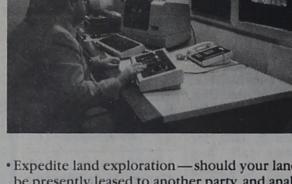

NASA's four Landsat satellites electronically record signals from the earth's surface which, when processed through sophisticated computer systems, permit a highly trained specialist to interpret the nature and distribution of materials on the land's surface. In addition, these signals allow the interpretation of features thousands of feet beneath the surface, where mineral or petroleum resources may accumulate.

While this new technology previously has been available only to large corporations, major oil companies, government agencies and the military community, it is now available to the individual landowner at an affordable cost. Geoscience has begun to survey large selected portions of Texas using satellite technology and conventional exploration techniques.

The advantages of this new satellite technology to you, the landowner, are numerous. To list a few:

 A better understanding of the potential value of your land, particularly with respect to companies attempting to lease it.

• Expedite land exploration — should your land be presently leased to another party, and analysis reveals possible minerals, gas or oil; it might encourage more active exploration.

 Exploration for aggregate materials, like sand, gravel and crushed rock. You may not own the minerals under your land, but sand and gravel generally belong to the surface owner in Texas and most other states.

 A clearer perspective on the potential value of your mineral resources. A fuller knowledge of the potential value of your land with respect to impending sale.

Based upon your property description, your report — including maps and satellite images — will be prepared under the direction of Dr. Velon Minshew, president of Geoscience and Service, Inc., and former chairman of the geology department at the University of Mississippi. Each report will address the resources of your individual acreage.

Your exclusive, detailed analysis will be delivered within 45 to 60 days.
