Area youth participate in Jr Rodeo here Friday and Saturday

by Perry Smith

Many area youth will participate here this weekend in the Post High Plains Jr Rodeo Association rodeo. Events begin at 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the rodeo grounds.

The HPJRA was organized several years ago and continues to grow with participants throughout Texas and New Mexico.

A number of area boys and girls are involved in the association. Contestants accumulate points toward the year-end finals, which will be held in Lovington, NM in July. Saddles, buckles and tack are awarded at the finals.

Post area youth involved in the HPJRA include Casey Short, eight and under barrels, poles, goat tying and breakaway roping; Cassie Short, nine to 12 barrels, poles, breakaway and goat tying; Lori Hudman, 13-15 barrels, poles and goat tying; Sam Gomez, 16-19 bull riding; Heather Dickson, 16-19 barrels and poles;

Russ Bird, 13-15 calf roping, breakaway and ribbon roping; Talina Bird, 13-15 barrels, poles, breakaway, ribbon roping and goat tying; Ryan Hart, 16-19 team roping; Casey Hart, 13-15 team roping; Stephanie Palmer, 16-19 barrels; Robby Palmer, 13-15 team roping; Emily Smith, eight and under barrels, poles and goat tying;

Bobbie Jo Davis, 9-12 barrels, poles and goat tying; Kerry Zachary, 13-15 barrels and poles; Cody Zachary, eight and under barrels and poles; Clay Johnson 13-15 team roping; Jeremy King, 13-15 team roping; Wacy Moore, 9-12 calf touching, ribbon and breakaway roping and Sky Moore, 13-15 calf roping, ribbon, breakaway and team roping.

Heather Dickson placed eighth out of 140 barrel racers and won a saddle at the Josey Jr World Barrel race last month. Her horses Special and Easy are carrying her to the Texas High School Finals in June. She is also active in High Plains Jr Rodeo Association and the AJRA.

Lori Hudman and her family are grateful to be rodeoing this spring and summer. After a bad accident when another horse fell on her last July, Lori has been training to compete and make the finals in 1992.

Lori's doctor kept her on crutches until early last November, when he released her in mid-November and she entered a C-T rodeo in Lubbock later in the month.

Parents Curtis and Julie Hudman were very relieved and encouraged that "it didn't hurt" and that Lori and her barrel horse Zipper were able to make a good run.

Lori worked out Zipper and Trigger early in 1992. They are members of the Lea County Barrel Racing Association, where they placed third in the 13-15 age group. Other associations in which Lori and her horses are currently competing are the AJRA and the High Plains Jr Rodeo Association.

She enters barrels, pole bending and goat tying. Lori also enjoys being involved in 4-H district horse show in Lubbock.

Lori began riding in 4-H shows when she was five years old as an honorary member. Her mom and Lori could be seen pulling up in a borrowed cattle trailer with her little horse Sparky, who was all heart, to many surrounding towns for 4-H shows during the summers.

The Hudman family has been inspired by many friends who share a love for horses, especially R.E. and Martha Josey and Jaynie and Heather Dickson. A highlight this year for Lori and Zipper was winning reserve champion barrel racer at the Josey Barrel Racing Clinic during Easter at Marshall, Texas.

Council approves 'bounty hunter', June 15 work session

by Wes Burnett

The Post City Council, meeting in regular session Monday evening, approved the hiring of a "bounty hunter" under a contract to catch stray dogs, paying at the rate of $10 per animal. Details of the contract were not released at the meeting, although Mayor Jim Jackson said he had someone in mind for the position.

Council members also approved the first step in attempting to extend the current landfill by authorizing the advertising of bids for engineering services to bore and test at the 32 acre site adjacent to the current landfill.

Previous councils had rejected the engineering studies on the grounds that the estimated $85,000 for the study would probably be a waste of money because of the new restrictions and regulations being placed on municipal landfills.

The council also clarified the policy of contractors' use of the landfill for remodeling and roofing waste. Early in the discussion council members leaned toward allowing only local contractors to dispose of wastes at the landfill. A citizen suggested that homeowners here should not be penalized for using out of town contractors and council members then approved a policy that contractors doing residential remodeling or roofing of any Garza County residential building would be allowed to use the landfill. No commercial property waste will be allowed at the landfill. Contractors will be expected to show proof of location of the job through the city permit.

At the request of Mayor Jackson, the council approved a "work session" to "talk about problems and hash out these situations." Jackson said the meeting should be "informal and let's just talk about things and general structure of the community."

Council member Larry Mills pointed out that any meeting would have to follow the Texas Open Meetings Act, and attorney Harvey Morton reminded the council that the law requires an agenda and it must abide by the regular meeting procedures, including proper public notice.

The Texas Open Meetings Act requires that any meeting of publicly elected officials, boards or committees must comply with the law, including public notice of the meeting, a published agenda and if executive session is planned, the specific subject of the executive session, including the naming of personnel to be discussed. Those personnel must also be notified in advance to be offered the opportunity to request a public meeting.

Any elected officials who meet, even casually on the sidewalk, to discuss issues pertaining to the government to which they are elected, are in violation of the Texas Open Meetings Act and may be removed from office or fined or both if found guilty.

Council members were treated to a Texas Municipal League produced video tape concerning their duties, which recommended that all members study appropriate laws concerning their duties, specifically mentioning the often violated Texas Open Meetings Act.

The council approved a request by Sheriff Kenny Ratke for the purchase of bullet proof vests and portable voice activated tape recorders and assured the council that deputies will wear the vests while on duty. The city will split the cost of $3,162.09 with the county.

No action was taken on a proposal by a group of citizens for a curfew ordinance. Chris Wyatt, representing the committee, recommended the use of the Dallas curfew ordinance with minor revisions. He said that although the ordinance is currently being challenged in federal court, "we need to decide how serious we are about this problem."

The council agreed to study the proposal and consider the ordinance at a later meeting. The potential cost of litigation, which could be in the hundreds of thousands of dollars, was one factor for the delay. City attorney Harvey Morton pointed out that when all the exceptions are written into ordinances of this type to meet the constitutional guarantees, "there isn't enough teeth for law enforcement to do its job."

An example is the Dallas ordinance which exempts people traveling through town, or young people on errands for their parents or guardians.

Sheriff Ratke assured the council that laws will be enforced and violators will be stopped, and added, "I am sure we are going to make some people unhappy, but we are going to put a stop to these problems."

Council members appointed Marion Cruse to serve on the newly named redistricting committee. Morton informed the council that the committee has met once, will meet again this month and again in July, with public hearings scheduled later in the summer. "We expect to present a proposal in September or October," he added.

Preston Poole was appointed to serve on the library board, replacing Betty Boren.

Jim Voss, Marion Cruse, Johnie Johnson and Karla Schooler were named to serve on the Planning and Zoning Board. Schooler is a reappointment, the others are replacing Robert Cox, Tom Power and Jimmy Norman whose terms have expired.

Mayor Jackson pointed out that chips from the newly acquired chipper are available for residential use. Citizens interested in a delivery of the chips should contact city hall for details.

Mills reported that the floor at the community center is in bad shape and will eventually have to be replaced. He said that the main problem is finding three weeks or more when the center isn't being used to shut down for the repairs.

Attending the meeting were council members Maxine Conoly, Jimmy Holleman, Dan Lamb, Mills, Mayor Jackson, city manager Bob Turner, city secretary Wanda Wilkerson and attorney Morton.

Wet weather creates problems for area farmers 'Too wet to plow... or much anything else'

by John Senter, CEA-AG

We've all heard the old sayin'... "to wet to plow." However, with the rash of cool, wet weather recently, we can safely say it's too wet to plow, hoe, mow, cut, dig or most other things that require one to be outdoors.

The biggest question on folks' minds has got to be the cotton crop.

The moisture may be wonderful and we'll wish it back in August, but right now it needs to stop. Most cotton in Garza County was planted and up to good stands, but, that has changed.

The crop status now is very mixed. Some fields that received very heavy rains and hail are disasters. Once beautiful cotton is now flat beds, powdery and blank. A large amount of our stands were lost to flooding, others to hail and still more to heavy, heavy rains.

On top of that, the fields that do have cotton left, either by planting date or

Audit finalizes transfer of sheriff duties

by Wes Burnett

A final audit of the Garza County Sheriff's Department was approved by the Garza County Commissioners' Court at its regular meeting Wednesday, June 8.

The audit by Steve Sawyers found no problems and finalized the transfer of duties from former Sheriff Freddy Cockrell to Sheriff Kenny Ratke.

In other action commissioners heard a request from Richard E. Boyd of Metropolitan Life to bid on the county's health insurance. The court suggested Boyd prepare a proposal to be presented at the next meeting.

A report from Texas Association of Counties concerning a series of potential violations of the Occupational Safety and Health Agency (OSHA) was distributed to commissioners. The alert from TAC listed a number of federal regulations which if violated could cost the county thousands of dollars in fines.

The TAC report used an example of the University of Texas which estimates its cost to comply with the regulations at $10 million the first year and several million for each succeeding year. Cost of compliance to counties have not been estimated.

Attending the meeting were commissioners Sammy Ellis, Albert Stone, John Valdez and Herb Walls, Judge Giles Dalby and clerk Sonny Gossett.

The next regularly scheduled meeting will be Monday, June 8 at 9 a.m.

How many of you are avid label readers? I am. I recently rediscovered that food products may not be what you think they are. Food labels can be complicated and the rules which food processors must follow come from the Food and Drug Administration as well as from the United States Department of Agriculture. Some foods are allowed to be labeled by either agency.

Some foods list all ingredients in the food. Others do not. Ingredients lists are required by FDA for all foods which are not considered "standardized foods." Foods which have a "standard of identity" must by law contain certain ingredients to be labeled as that particular food. Among these are peanut butter, cheddar cheese, margarine, ice cream, catsup, fruit cocktail and 294 others.

All other foods which are regulated by FDA must list ingredients. These are listed in descending order by weight. So if you purchase a food product which lists water as the first ingredient, there is more water by weight in that product than any other ingredient. USDA requires that even "standardized" products list ingredients.

Nutrition labels are frequently seen on food products. The standard format includes serving size, servings per container, calories per serving, grams of protein, carbohydrate, and fat per serving, milligrams sodium per serving, percentage of Recommended Daily Allowance per serving of nutrients. The thing which is most often confusing to the consumer is the serving size. Sometimes the serving size is given in a measured amount such as 1/2 cup and sometimes it is given in servings per container. It is difficult to determine serving size for those products.

Consumers and health professionals are interested in clear labeling information which is not misleading. In 1989 FDA began to consider changes in food labeling regulations. Some revisions are already in place, but more are coming. Changes will continue to come for some time. The best advice is to read labels carefully. You may have to be sure to take your reading glasses to the store with you! Only by careful label reading will you be sure you are buying foods with the ingredients which you want in them.

I will have Home Economics Information Center at United Supermarket Friday, June 5, which will display some information on food labeling and I will be there to answer questions. Please stop at the center and let me know if you like it.

He doubly benefits the needy who gives quickly.

Citizens award painting awarded to CCA

by JoAnn Mock

The Caprock Cultural Association was the grateful recipient of the "Citizens Award," an oil painting by Ginnie Seifert of Clovis, N.M., selected from the Spring Art Show of the Post Art Guild.

The painting depicted a young girl in a pink dress swinging from a tire swing. The CCA is especially pleased with the work as it is symbolic of a recent project involving children.

The painting is hung in the CCA office at 127 East Main. The CCA wishes to publicly express their appreciation to the Post Art Guild, especially to the Awards Committee, Mr David King, Ms Glenda Morrow, and Ms Jane Mason for collecting the funds and to the following citizens for their support: Mr and Mrs Kay Kirkpatrick, Mr and Mrs Jack Kirkpatrick, Bryan Williams, Mrs Minnie Williams, Mr and Mrs Tim Tatum, Mr and Mrs Jim Wells, Mr and Mrs Will Morrow, Mr and Mrs Charles Morrow, Mr and Mrs Charles Williams, Jr., BJB Construction, PDQ Deli, Mr and Mrs Jim Pollard, KPOS Radio, Mr and Mrs Lewis Mason, Mr and Mrs Corky Ammons, Mr and Mrs Jack Alexander, Mrs Francis Camp, Mr and Mrs Wesley Burnett, Mr and Mrs Sonny Gossett, Kidstuf of Post, Mr and Mrs Robert Mock, Mr and Mrs Pat Pennell, Mr and Mrs Johnny Davenport, Mr and Mrs Tommy Puckett, Mr and Mrs Bobby Cowdrey, Mr and Mrs Jerry Bush, Dr and Mrs Harry Tubbs, Mr and Mrs J.C. Stelzer, Mrs Sue Shyles, Mr and Mrs Ed Neff, Mr and Mrs Stanley Butler, Mr and Mrs Jerry Taylor, David King, Mr and Mrs Frank Thomas and Mr and Mrs Mike Stearns.

The Citizens Award project by the Post Art Guild assures that fine art is gracing the walls of the public buildings in Post and reflects a caring image by Post citizens.

Thank you all again.

Report gives guidelines for property tax appeals

Property taxes are a prime revenue source for counties, cities and school districts. Tax assessors assign property taxes based on market value, hence the name ad valorem. Various administrative requirements, exemptions and special valuation measures, however, have complicated the property tax system, says Charles E. Gilliland, associate research economist with the Real Estate Center at Texas A&M University.

"The Texas Property Tax Code establishes a specific procedure to resolve disputes," says Gilliland. "But before filing a protest, a taxpayer first should try to reach an agreement with the appropriate central appraisal district. A formal protest with the Appraisal Review Board is the next step. Failure to exhaust these available remedies could result in denial of rights to appeal through the courts."

"In an appeal to the district court, the taxpayer usually bears the burden of proof. And, appeals involve trade-offs. Legal expenses may exceed the tax savings achieved."

Gilliland is the author of 'Guide to the Texas Property Tax System,' recently revised for 1992. The 18-page report analyzes elements of all exemptions and special valuation provisions, and discusses factors involved in a successful property tax appeal. This publication is for information only and is not a substitute for legal counsel or tax advice.

'Guide to the Texas Property Tax System' is available for $1.50 in Texas, $3 out of state, from the Real Estate Center, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843-2115. MasterCard or Visa orders can be placed by calling 409-845-2031. Add $1 handling charge per order. Request publication NR-678.

REVELATION SINGERS of Lubbock will present a program of contemporary Christian music at the First Christian Church, 806 W. 13th St. Sunday, June 7 at 6 p.m. The program is free and the public is invited to attend.

Sherry and Paul Jones honored

Sherry and Paul D. Jones were guests of honor at a special "ice cream" supper on May 17 in the fellowship hall of the Church of Christ. The couple was presented a king size "friendship quilt" by the members as an expression of love and gratitude for the ten years Paul D. has spent preaching in Post.

about the love Sherry and he have for the church and for the community. He mentioned the joy of living in Post and the hope of being here a long time. The quilt is a treasure and a memorial to the church family.

Sherry and Paul D. began their 11th year in Post on June 2.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:
Drugs and drug users are the two biggest problems in America. The two most abused drugs are legal (alcohol - over 21 and tobacco - over 17). The most used illegal drug is marijuana, not cocaine or heroin.

The only sure cure for drug abuse, legal or illegal, is random drug testing and detox centers. The government wants jails, prisons and fines. Taxpayers cannot afford more jails and prisons.

Who uses alcohol, marijuana and cocaine to excess (abusers)? Lawyers, doctors, truck drivers, government workers, students, and many more. How many schools test teachers for drugs? Very few. How many governments test employees on a regular, random basis? Very few. How many employers test workers for drugs? Very few.

Drug abuse is responsible for lower grades, lower productivity and higher crime, its that simple. The only way to get more people to "Say No" to all dope (alcohol, tobacco, cocaine and pot) is to give them a real incentive, random drug testing. If a student can be expelled from school or a worker can be suspended from work for failing a drug test then "Saying No" becomes easier.

Random drug testing is the only real tool that can be effective against drug abuse, like it or not.

UPS driver Price recognized

Lanny Price, a package car driver for United Parcel Service, was recently recognized by the company for completing 15 years of safe driving without an accident.

Price works out of the Lubbock UPS facility located at 515 East 44th, Lubbock, Texas.

Price presently provides UPS service in the Post area. "Without safe work methods and a quality safety attitude these awards could not be attained," commented Safety Manager Scott Barker.

Price was presented the 15-year safe driving award at a ceremony honoring his achievement.

In last week's edition of the Post Dispatch a name was incorrectly listed on the honor awards for Post High School.

Labeth Jones was incorrectly listed as Elizabeth Jones in the Sophomore standings for perfect attendance.

A student really puts in alot of effort to have perfect attendance for the entire school year.

We would also like to correct an omission in the story about the awards ceremony. In the story and in the cut line for the picture, credit should have been given to RJD Enterprises for supplying the plaques for the PHS Honor Graduates.

We wish to recognize this company for their support of the high school students in their academic achievement.

We offer our sincere apologies for these mistakes.

Balanced budget amendment to the constitution

Opinion editorial by Congressman Charles Stenholm

Our federal deficit is about to set yet another record: more than $400 billion for the current year, easily surpassing the $320 billion deficit of 1991. When adjusted for inflation, this year's deficit will be equal to the total federal budget in 1965. This year will be the 23rd consecutive year and the 53rd out of the last 61 that the government spends more than it takes in.

Fifty-three years out of 61 does not make a short-term trend. It does mean that by the end of this year the national debt will top $4 trillion dollars. That means that the federal government has charged $45,000 in debt on the account of each and every household in America. We have borrowed half a trillion of that from foreigners. The U.S. is now the largest debtor nation in history. This long-term, institutional problem requires a long-term, constitutional solution: an amendment to the Constitution that requires the President and Congress to operate under a balanced budget.

Congress will have an opportunity later this year to take the historic step of sending a balanced budget amendment to the states for ratification. The Senate is expected to vote on a version introduced by Senator Paul Simon in June. I have introduced a similar amendment, known as H.J. Res 290, which has been cosponsored by nearly two-thirds of the House members. We need 67 votes in the Senate and 290 votes in the House to pass this legislation so that it can be sent to the states for ratification.

A Balanced Budget Amendment will not solve our deficit problem by itself. That is not what it was intended to do. This amendment will, however, give us a necessary tool for fiscal responsibility -- the very same tool which Thomas Jefferson recommended to us more than 200 years ago. It will give us a constitutional reason to find the guts to make the tough choices necessary to balance the budget. Too often, when faced from all sides with demands for more spending we have taken the easy way out by borrowing more money. By raising the threshold of difficulty for deficit spending, this amendment would prevent anyone in the executive branch or in Congress from ducking responsibility for the deficit. Under the amendment, spending may not exceed revenues unless Congress authorizes the excess by a three-fifths vote. Just as importantly, the President must submit a balanced budget every year.

The American people are understandably frustrated with a budget process that can't stop record deficits, year after year. Believe it or not, this frustration has been growing within Congress as well. That is why dozens of members has been growing within Congress as well. That is why dozens of members who had opposed a balanced budget amendment in the past are now supporters. Support for a balanced budget amendment is bi-partisan, and has received support from liberals such as Paul Simon and Joe Kennedy as well as conservatives like Phil Gramm and Newt Gingrich.

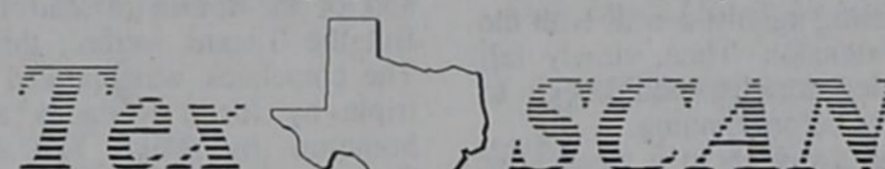

and procedural requirements have failed. Congress has voted over 500 times to waive the Budget Act since 1978. We passed a statute in 1978 when our debt was $776 billion. We tried again in 1979 when the debt was $828 billion and in 1982 when the debt was $1.1 trillion. The debt was $1.8 trillion when we passed Gramm-Rudman in 1985, and had increased to $2.3 trillion when we passed Gramm-Rudman II in 1987.

Amending the Constitution is a very serious step that should never be taken lightly. But a process that politically rewards such deficit spending can not be tolerated any longer. Deficit spending has become an intractable, ingrained problem. Nothing short of a change of Constitutional dimensions will change the government's attitude toward spending.

Y.E.S. gets presidential recognition

President George Bush declared recently the Youth Exchanging with Seniors (Y.E.S.) Project as the 775th Daily Point of Light for the nation.

Although the declaration specifically mentioned the Lubbock project, the Y.E.S. in Garza County is a major participant in the pilot project.

The Y.E.S. program is designed to enhance the independence of rural senior citizens while closing the generation gap between the elderly and the young.

The Y.E.S. program provides support throughout a 20 county area of rural Texas, including Garza County.

Since its inception in 1990, approximately 450 high school youth have undergone training to be providers and companions for senior citizens.

During a six hour orientation session, the youth are taught constructive citizenship skills and how to communicate with elderly friends. To date, 250 youth providers have devoted more than 2,500 volunteer hours to assist more than 200 senior citizens in their communities.

"The president salutes the young people and senior citizens of Youth Exchanging with Seniors Program for exemplifying his belief that 'from now on in America, any definition of a successful life must include serving others,'" the letter to Texas Tech University's Y.E.S. project office stated.

Shin splints can be prevented by Baylor College of Medicine

Shin splints, a common leg injury among joggers and other weekend athletes, can be prevented with proper stretching and cross-training says an orthopedic surgeon at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

Although shin splints can refer to a variety of injuries, the most common pain familiar to many runners occurs along the edge of the tibia bone just below the knee.

The pain is often the result of a series of small stress fractures and muscle pulling away from the bone because of overuse.

"The muscle in the shin area might not offer the necessary support when it is forced to expand too quickly through jogging or other heavy use. The tibia bone in the leg is forced to absorb more shock than it should," said Baxter, a professor of orthopedic surgery at Baylor.

Even though some people are able to continue working out with the pain, Baxter advises against it.

"The pain will force the athlete to compensate with other muscles. Those muscles then risk becoming overused and another injury can occur," he said.

The first sign of muscle pain signals it is time to stop exercising. Overall fitness does not have to cease however, since other exercises can replace the one that led to injury.

Many athletes cross-train, participating in a variety of sports, to maintain overall fitness and avoid an overuse injury.

"Cross-training allows you to continue exercising while giving the injury time to heal," said Baxter. "Cycling or swimming can maintain aerobic fitness without putting stress on the affected leg muscles."

Runners who train frequently on paved or other hard surfaces are most likely to fall victim to shin splints because of the shock of the feet pounding on a hard surface. Aerobics enthusiasts should avoid concrete surfaces for the same reason.

Anyone exercising to lose weight should take extra care to avoid overuse of the leg muscles when beginning a training or exercise program.

"If a person is already carrying more weight than their frame should support, sudden running or jogging will stress the leg muscles," said Baxter. "Careful stretching of the legs before exercise will prepare the muscle for the strain."

The muscles can be stretched easily by leaning against a wall with the palms of the hands flat, the arms at full extension. Then, slowly fall forward so the chest moves to the wall. The leg muscles should begin to feel tension. Hold and repeat this 10 to 20 times before running.

If the pain from a shin splint does not go away about a week after exercise has been reduced or stopped, a physician should be consulted. The pain could signal a more serious fracture or muscle tear.

T-Ball season in full swing

by Mike Stearns

The T-Ball division of the Post Little League is off to a successful start. Seven games have been played throughout May. Only one of the scheduled games has been cancelled due to rain.

Four teams make up the T-Ball division. They are the Mets, Tigers, Astros, and Rangers. Since T-Ball is for the beginning players age five to seven, scores are not announced and standings are not kept. The winner of each game is announced after the contest is completed.

The season, so far, has been dominated by high scores and plenty of hitting. There is no pitcher in T-Ball. The ball is placed on a freestanding tee, waist high, for the youngsters to hit.

The Tigers won the first game of the season over the Mets. Alejandro Moreno hit the first homerun of the season in guiding the Tigers to victory. The Astros then beat the Mets in a very close game. Eric Alaniz and Mitchell Mills each hit homeruns for the Astros. John Eilenburger hit three homeruns in the game for the Mets.

The Astros downed the Rangers in a close game. The Rangers then got back on the winning track by beating the Tigers. The Rangers scored nine runs in the third inning to seal the victory. The Astros downed the Tigers despite the hitting performance of Brian Looney. Looney went 3 for 3 hitting a triple and two doubles. Mitchell Mills and Eric Alaniz both homered for the Astros. The Rangers downed the Mets twice to close out the month of May.

The Astros and Rangers each have three wins in the league. All of the teams have seen a lot of runs. The Rangers have scored 100 runs through their four games, the Astros have scored 78 times in their three contests, the Mets have posted 61 runs through four games, and the Tigers have tallied 43 in their three contests.

Minor League season nearing midpoint

by Mike Stearns

The Minor League division of the Post Little League is one game shy of the half way point. The play between the three teams has been marked by good hitting and close competition among the three teams. The Texans and the Yankees are tied for first place with the Dodgers only one game off the pace.

The season started with the Dodgers beating the Yankees 14-9 behind the pitching performance of Allen Bell and the hitting of Mike Gonzales. Bell registered 11 strikeouts and Gonzales went 4 for 4 at the plate with two triples.

The Yankees responded by downing the Texans the next weekend 15-5. Justin Greer turned in a fabulous pitching performance recording 11 strikeouts while holding the Texans to only 6 hits.

The Texans then tied the league up by holding off the Dodger's frantic come from behind bid. The game was tight in the early going with the Dodgers leading 5-4 after 2 innings. The teams were tied at 11 after the third inning. The Dodgers scored five in the top half of the fourth to lead 16-11. But the Texans weren't through. The comeback was sparked by a triple by Justin Kennedy and a homerun by Mike Huff. The Texans won the hard fought affair by one, 17-16.

Justin Greer turned another good pitching performance, striking out nine in the Yankees 23-9 win over the Dodgers. The Texans used the strong hitting of Wesley Jarrett (3 for 4, two singles, one triple), and Ross Babb who went 3 for 4 with two doubles to beat the Yankees 23-14. The Yankees then defeated the Dodgers 18-12 to bring the three teams into the final week of the season.

Texas organic cotton capturing European interest

International demand for Texas agricultural products continues to grow, says Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry, noting that a German organic clothing retailer recently toured Texas, while European fabric mills are seeking organic cotton supplies. "Texas is America's top producer of organic and 'transitional' cotton with about 5,000 planted acres," Perry said. Transitional cotton refers to cotton that is undergoing review for organic certification by the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Other states producing organic and transitional cotton are California with 2,500 acres, Tennessee with 2,000 acres and Arizona with 800 acres.

Organic cotton is one of the things that brought Jurgen Hack of Nordloh, Germany to Texas. In April, the clothing retailer visited Texas Tech University's International Textile Research Center and toured a Lubbock area organic cotton farm. He also attended an April 14 new conference in Littlefield when Perry launched "Naturally TEXAS," the department's Texas natural fibers marketing campaign.

Hack was on a buying tour to find organic cotton apparel for the German company, Sodasan, which sells clothing such as T-shirts, tank tops and sweats through retail stores. Hack buys apparel from Daniel Sanders' Eco-Sport company based in Hackensack, N.J. Eco-Sport uses Texas organic cotton in its fabric and clothing.

Too wet to do much of anything luck, have the potential for seedling disease infestation.

Even though the seed may have been treated for disease, the residual of the treatments is pretty limited and our time of cool, wet weather has been long enough to outlast even the best seed treatments - time will tell.

To compound the problem even more, we have about a week of drying out to allow field work to begin and the planting time is running out in a hurry.

Weather forecasts still haven't shown much sign of big changes and we seem to have fallen into a stale weather pattern for at least a couple more days.

Perhaps the thing that would do county farmers a lot of good is a run of dry weather, with no wind, and a large supply of early maturing cotton seed - let's hope for a break.

Livestock producers are not being spared the brunt of weather problems either. If washed out water gaps and cold, wet baby calves weren't bad enough, a new problem may be surfacing that cattlemen may need to watch for.

Livestock poisoning has become a problem in the state and right here at home. The long run of wet, cool weather has prolonged the life and growth of cool season weeds that should have been long gone by now.

Through contact with the Texas A&M Diagnostic lab, confirmed cattle death, due to Larkspur poisoning has surfaced. Normally, Larkspur is not considered lethal to cattle, but, unusual conditions have reversed that thinking. Confirmed cases of Larkspur poisoning have been found in ranglands in the panhandle in Bailey County and near Lubbock.

Larkspur poisoning in cattle is evidenced by uneasiness, stiff gaits or straddled stance and even abdominal pain. Death can also occur due to alkaloid poisoning, produced by the plant.

Death in sheep is also a real possibility, especially if you graze land with a large amount of careless weed. In favorable conditions, these weeds can, and will, produce nitrate poisoning. This problem has been witnessed and identified right here in Garza County, so use caution in grazing careless weeds with sheep.

Pastures with large amounts of toxic weeds should be avoided until mother nature has a chance to run her course and allow grasses and weeds to return to normal for this time of year.

Identification of weeds and proper poisoning symptoms are often times difficult but very important to treatment. If you experience toxic weed poisoning in livestock, timing and proper ID is critical. In some cases exact identification of poisoning must be identified by rumen contents and post-mortem examinations.

In order to allow you to head off problems, stay on top of your particular situation, watch for possible problems, take time to look for potential poisonous plants and monitor progress of your livestock until the weather gives us a break.

If you have questions or concerns, feel free to call our office. In the mean time, let's hope for better weather.

Stenholm will get vote on balanced budget constitutional amendment

Congressman Charles Stenholm (D-Tx) announced that he and other supporters of H.J. Res. 290, the Balanced Budget Amendment to the Constitution, has succeeded in a difficult parliamentary maneuver to bring the issue to the floor of the House of Representatives for a vote the week of June 8.

In less than nine hours the amendment was "discharged," meaning that 218 members of Congress signed the petition which brings the amendment directly to the floor, bypassing any committee in which the legislation was being considered. This is only the second time in the history of the U.S. House of Representatives that a discharge petition has been completed in one day.

"A majority of my colleagues have begun to sense the urgency of gaining some control of a federal debt which is reaching frightening proportions," said Stenholm. "The American public is fed up with having 60 percent of its personal income taxes going to make interest payments rather than providing valuable services. We cannot continue to lay this burden on our children and grandchildren."

There are currently 278 cosponsors of the legislation which requires 290 votes or 2/3 of the House to pass. The principal sponsors of the measure are Representative Stenholm, Bob Smith (r-Or), Tom Carper (D-De) and Olympia Snowe (R-Me).

H.J. Res. 290 would require the President to propose a balanced budget and the Congress to adopt a balanced budget, unless 3/5 of both the House and the Senate agree to unbalance the budget for a particular year.

Stenholm added that by raising the threshold of difficulty for deficit spending and requiring House members to go on record to raise taxes, this amendment will level the playing field by forcing the President and Congress to set priorities rather than allowing them to postpone tough budget decisions from one year into the next.

Rain plays havoc with League schedule

by Mike Stearns

The Post Little League got underway in early May with the hopes of being more than half way through the season by the first week of June. Someone forgot to let Mother Nature know the schedule as 10 games have had to be rescheduled due to the down-pour of the past two weeks.

"The rains have sure made things tough on us, but we've been able to reschedule the games," commented Little League President Ron Halford. "We've been able to keep the fields in good shape by sweeping the water off in the mornings (of the games) and letting the sun dry them out."

By this time in the season, most of the teams would have been through eight or nine of the scheduled thirteen games. But, because of the weather, the teams have only completed four or five games of their schedule.

The weather has caused other problems with the league. The league records were all kept in the press box at Nichols Park. The rains have completely soaked the score books and other records. The score books have been recovered but are requiring a lot of drying to be readable. "We hope to have an updated standings and scores by next week's paper", commented Halford.

A lot of baseball still remains to be played in the Little League season and all six teams are preparing for the race to the league championship. Weather permitting, of course.
