Emergency repairs, building projects get Post ISD trustees' attention

by Wes Burnett

Roof repairs, painting, the completion of the workout facility and air conditioning of the middle school and high school took up a major portion of the Post ISD board of trustee meeting Tuesday, July 14.

The estimated cost of all roof repairs was set at $350,000, which will include the installation of a sloped roof using modified bitumen. ISD engineer Bill Stracener explained that the material is the best available and the five inch slope would correct the flat roof problems.

Stracener also reported on the science and biology lab improvements, saying that the work is expected to be completed before school opens.

The board approved the bid of S&R Painting of Lubbock at $17,300 for various painting projects.

The contractor for repairing the tennis court and track surface is expected to begin work in September.

Board members quizzed Stracener about the revised plans for the new gymnasium and the engineer said the plans would be ready to review at the August meeting.

Trustee president Barbara Hardin reported on the AIDs committee meeting, which included the election of Paul Jones as chairman.

Borden's was chosen for low bid on milk products at the school, Handy Hardware got the bid for antifreeze and oil and Post Auto Service was chosen for bus maintenance.

Bids for gasoline and diesel fuel were rejected, pending a revision in the bid specifications.

The board entered into a discussion about ways to improve student performance on achievement tests. "I am really proud of this board," superintendent Bill Shiver emphasized, "you are bright, enthusiastic and positive!"

In other action the board approved renewal of certificates of deposit in the amounts of $588,797; $2,495,008 and $391,858 at rates between 3.29 to 3.34 percent for 30 and 31 days. Trustees also approved a resolution praising the volunteers who assist the school during the year and the publishing of the list in The Post Dispatch.

Trustees accepted the resignation of teachers Pam McCarty and Melinda Gunn.

The board agreed to bring all applications to each meeting and to jointly review applications to determine which would be recommended to principals. No vote was taken on a proposal by S. Rafe Foreman to set a minimum requirement that each teacher be certified in the field for which he or she is applying.

Attending the meeting were trustees Hardin, Foreman, Gary Workman, Jeff Lott, Mark Kirkpatrick, Rex Cash and Royce Hart.

Zoe Kirkpatrick's 'collection' of wildflower photos turns into book

Zoe Kirkpatrick, who started out 25 years ago "just for fun" taking photos of all the different wildflowers that grew on the ranch south of Post, has seen her hobby turn into a book, published by The University of Texas Press to be released July 24.

Zoe's "Wildflowers of the Western Plains" will be on sale locally at Danish Imports beginning July 24, and the author will be in the store from 2 to 7 p.m. through July 26 to autograph copies for patrons.

Since she began her hobby 25 years ago, "I have reared five sons, traveled innumerable miles, taken countless photographs and devoted many years to research and study, in the course of which this book has evolved."

"Wildflowers of the Western Plains" features 48 families of wildflowers and 186 species.

The idea for the book actually began to take shape seven years ago, and on a visit to The University of Texas Zoe presented her idea and a few of her photographs. "They liked the idea very much and we went from there," she says.

"There is not yet one book that adequately addresses the beautiful array of hardy wildflowers that bloom in that huge expanse called the Western Plains, Southern High Plains and Panhandle High Plains of Texas as well as the panhandle and western portions of Oklahoma, western Kansas, the plains of southeastern Colorado and the plains of eastern New Mexico," she adds.

In the book's introduction, Zoe says, "the purpose of this book, then, is to provide information on and photographs of the majority of the more common wildflowers that thrive in the relatively high elevations (with severe winters) and the semi-arid climate of these Western Plains."

Texans 'Don't Bag it' campaign opens

A statewide public education campaign to encourage Texans to compost, "Don't Bag It" and recycle everything they can has been launched across Texas to address the problem of bulging Texas landfills and growing environmental issues.

Billboards in 20 Texas cities and radio advertisements across the state will ask Texans to reduce the pollution they generate by recycling garbage and yard waste, decreasing their use of toxic products in the home and yard and ensuring the proper disposal of used motor oil, tires and batteries.

Built around the theme "Take Care of Texas, It's the Only One We've Got," the campaign represents the first public education phase of Clean Texas 2000, a statewide initiative to involve the entire state of Texas in pollution reduction.

"Clean Texas 2000 is about every Texan taking personal responsibility for the pollution they generate," said Texas Water Commission (TWC) Chairman John Hall. "If each of us will focus on that responsibility, we will protect our air, land and water, save

Public officials expected to meet in public

by Wesley W. Burnett
When I was finishing up my college degree at the University of Nebraska at Omaha in the fall of 1968, I was assigned an internship at a radio station in Council Bluffs, Iowa. One of my jobs there was to attend and report the Council Bluffs city council meetings. The meetings began one hour earlier than officially stated, in a back room at city hall, where council members discussed the agenda items and hashed out who was going to vote how on each item.

Amazingly the council opened the doors to the media for this "work session".

At 7 p.m. they would all file into the city council meeting room and take their places around the horseshoe shaped table.

The mayor would call the meeting to order and start through the agenda.

Citizens who attended to voice their opposition or support for this or that on the agenda sat quietly in the chairs, waiting for their opportunity to express their views on the various topics.

We in the media knew what was going to happen... having been allowed into the "inner circle", we were participating in a sham of democracy.

I am embarrassed and ashamed of my acquiescence in this fraud against the people.

After a few of these meetings my conscience got the best of me and I approached the radio station manager.

"You know," I said, "it's really a shame, all those people sitting out there and getting up saying what they feel, and knowing that it is all a waste of time and energy, those guys (they were all men) have already made up their mind. We ought to expose this and tell the people not to bother."

"Oh no," the beleaguered station manager replied, this is the way it's done here, and that would ruin me and the station if we let this out." Money talks.

Shortly afterward I left the station for another job in Omaha.

But I have often looked back at that as an example of what can happen to a democratic society when publicly elected officials are allowed to make decisions behind closed doors, with no media strong enough to expose their deeds.

Here were all these citizens in Council Bluffs crying out to be heard... and the pitiful shame of it was that all the head nodding and supposed attention from their elected officials was nothing more than a good job of acting.

Those guys had already made up their mind on how they were going to vote, no matter what any ordinary citizen had to say.

That kind of behavior by elected officials in Iowa has been repeated thousands of times over the year in Texas as well.

That's why the Texas legislature has written a very tough and demanding Open Meetings Act.

Violations of public trust have been so commonplace, that the people finally insisted on protection from secret meetings.

I have copies of the little pamphlet explaining the Open Meetings and Open Records Act, provided by the Texas Press Association.

It is available to any Garza County publicly elected official for the asking.

It should be mandatory reading for any elected official. Not only is it a violation of law for public officials to meet outside the regular or posted meetings, it is a violation of the trust of the citizens who elected them to office.

Every time I see our city council members gathered in twos and threes on the sidewalk, I remember those days in Council Bluffs and it makes me very suspicious.

It makes me wonder how many times those elected officials have called each other on the phone, or met in some private place to discuss an item on the agenda...

I worked for a really top notch West Point graduate in my Air Force career, who once pointed out to me this sage observation:

"Lieutenant," he said as we talked about some of the mundane rules, "if I see an airman working on one of our aircraft who is in violation of the uniform code, like long hair or sloppy dress, I have to ask myself, what other rules is he breaking?"

"It makes me wonder if he is taking short cuts on the maintenance of the supersonic machine that one of our pilots will be flying tomorrow, and whether or not that pilot will be killed as a result of that one little rule that wasn't followed."

I got the point. It's not the violations of laws that we see that bother me, it's all the things that are being done that I don't see that concern me.

As citizens we have the right to expect our elected officials to obey the law, even if they don't like it.

We hold them to a higher standard because we put our trust in them by their election.

Citizens have the right and obligation to insist on proper behavior and following the rules by their elected representatives.

And those elected to public office, if unable or unwilling to obey the law, should resign.

Although I have published this information several times, I will put it before you one more time:

Open Meetings Act:
Sec. 4(b) Any member or group of members of a governing body who knowingly conspires to circumvent the provisions of this Act by meeting in numbers of less than a quorum for the purpose of secret deliberations in contravention of this Act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction is punishable by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $500 or imprisonment in the county jail for not less than one month nor more than six months or both.

Clean rivers act provides water quality funding

The Brazos River Authority signed a contract last month with the Texas Water Commission to conduct a water quality assessment in the Brazos River Basin.

The TWC will provide $445,000 for the project. The Clean Rivers Act, passed by the legislature, mandates such assessments throughout the state.

Several criteria were used in determining the amount of funding, including the size of the basin, the population, and the potential for toxic and nonpoint source pollution. The Brazos River Basin is the largest in the state.

This will be the first time that all water quality data will be assessed and evaluated in one program.

Tom Conry, the Brazos River Authority water quality planner, said, "This is the best way to approach serious water quality actions. It will be a data-based approach to make rational decisions."

Part of the funds will be used for additional staff and offices to carry out the assessment plans.

Tom Ray, the Brazos River Authority planning and environmental manager, said, "The amount of work that needs to be done is massive. There is a tremendous amount of data to be compiled and reviewed and to be communicated to the public."

Post sees drop in rebate check

The City of Post received a check for $12,316.34 in its most recent sales rebate from the State Comptroller's Office.

The check is 23.89 percent less than the same period last year of $16,183.24.

The total for 1992 is $103,455.78 or 1.09 percent less than the same time for 1991 of $104,592.67.

This month's sales tax payment includes taxes collected on May sales and reported to the comptroller in June by businesses filing monthly tax returns.

Entered at U.S. Post Office, Post, Texas for transmission through the mails as Second Class matter, according to an Act of Congress, March 3, 1879.

Sponsored by the Lynn-Garza County Farm Bureau, they were among approximately 400 high school junior and senior students from 156 counties across the state.

Purpose of the seminar is to provide the students with a better understanding of their American heritage and the capitalistic free enterprise system, according to H. G. Franklin of Tahoka, county FB president.

Speakers at this year's seminar and their subjects were as follows: Jack Jackson of Fort Worth, president of Jackson Associates, "The Price of Free Enterprise"; Robert McBurney of Baylor University, "Free Enterprise"; Howard Phillips of Washington, D.C., of the Conservative Caucus, "Constitutional Government"; Basilio Bachor, a Polish immigrant, "Living the American Dream"; Michael Broome of Charlotte, N.C., a motivational speaker, "You and America -- Two Great Champions"; and Vernie Glasson, TFB executive director, "Farm Bureau -- Your Host".

Home Economics

Several times lately I've seen on TV a commercial for a food dehydrator which shows a man drying fruits, vegetables and meat for jerky in this dehydrator. Dried fruits are very popular now as fruit leathers and "roll-ups" and there are recipes in magazines which use dried vegetables. These foods are expensive to purchase and it would be great to be able to make them at home from garden produce that might otherwise be thrown away.

However, I would like to caution everyone about making beef or turkey jerky in the home dehydrator. This dehydrator does not appear to have a heat source to keep the food hot while it dries. Meats should not be held in what is considered the danger zone for food spoilage, 40-140 degrees, for more than two hours. It is not safe to keep meat in a food dehydrator in the danger zone for a day and a half while the food dries as this advertisement suggests.

A better way to make jerky is to season the meat as you desire, place it on shallow pans, or on the oven racks and cook it at an oven temperature of 200 degrees until it is dried. The heat will keep the meat safe from spoilage while it dries.

If you would like recipes for drying food, including jerky, please call the office and I will send them to you. Please do not risk illness by following recipes which do not provide for safe handling of food.

I also have other information available on food preservation. If you have not already picked up the information you need, please come by and do so or call and I'll mail it to you.

Low, moderate income Texans get help for home purchases

Governor Ann Richards announced today that the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs (TDHCA) has established a new Single Family Bond Program to help low and moderate income Texans buy a home.

The program offers mortgage financing at a 7.41 percent interest rate, one of the lowest in the nation.

"Home ownership has long been regarded as the equivalent of the American dream," Richards said.

Under the program, participating lenders must reserve 25 percent of their funds for low income persons during the first six months of the program. In addition, the department is also incorporating an extensive marketing campaign to reach these potential homebuyers.

The department identified areas of the state which traditionally have not participated in the Single Family Bond Program and campaigned to get representation in those areas. As a result, lenders are now participating in 17 counties that have not had past participation.

The department is also offering down payment assistance covering two-thirds of the downpayment for low and very low income persons. Through this program, the department hopes to assist Texans who are unable to make a down payment. The loans are available at zero percent interest and do not have to be paid back until the borrower sells the home.

The 72nd Texas Legislature created TDHCA by merging the former Texas Housing Agency and the former Texas Department of Community Affairs. The Community Development Block Grant was also transferred from the Texas Department of Commerce to TDHCA.

The TDHCA is dedicated to helping achieve an improved quality of life through the development of better Texas communities.

For more information on TDHCA programs, please call the agency's toll-free hotline number, 1-800-792-1119

Pointers For Parents

Teaching Gentleness in a Violent World

In a world where violence and cruelty seem to be common and almost acceptable, a lot of parents wonder what they can do to help their children develop a sense of caring and compassion for others. While parents can't completely control all of the things that affect their children's lives—and children have their own personalities and characteristics that parents can't change or control—there are some things a parent can do to help encourage children to become caring, just and responsible.

Here are some suggestions from the experts at the American Psychological Association:

- Let youngsters know how much it means to you that they behave with kindness and responsibility. When you catch your child doing something you think is thoughtless or cruel, let them know right away that you don't want them doing it.

- Actions speak louder than words. If you're consistently caring and compassionate, it's more likely your children will be, too.

- If you treat your children with respect for their dignity, you help them understand that all living creatures should be treated with dignity and concern.

- Give youngsters books that promote compassionate behavior and Actions speak louder than words. If you're caring and compassionate, your children are more likely to be that way.

limit their viewing of violent television programs and movies.

What most inspires a child to grow up caring about others is the caring that child receives. Experts point out that when children feel a secure base at home, they're more likely to venture out and pay attention to others; it's when they feel deprived of love and nurturing that they focus on themselves and their own needs.

Lubbock inhospitable for Post All-Stars

Senior League All-Stars fall to powerful Martin Luther King

by Mike Stearns

The Post senior All-Stars were fresh off their success of the past week. Home cooking was good for the White Sox against a tough Tahoka ballclub. But going out to eat gave the Sox a little indigestion. Post entered the District tournament with a lot of confidence coming off their win over Tahoka and the confidence showed in the early going.

Patrick Soto looked invincible on the mound in the first two innings against the Martin Luther King all-stars. Soto only faced eight batters in the first two frames, striking out three to spark the Post defense.

The Post bats got active early, also. The Sox scored three runs in the first inning on two walks and an error by the left fielder on a hard hit ball by Amando Ayala. A single by Tori Harper brought Ayala around to score giving Post a 3-0 advantage.

The tide started to turn Martin Luther King's way in the third inning.

MLK scored four runs in the stanza on a double, triple and a single. Post was unable to erase the baserunners for MLK due to some untimely throwing miscues.

The Lubbock ballclub increased their advantage to 9-3 by chasing both Soto and Ayala from the mound in the fourth inning. MLK scored five in the inning powered by the three run homer over the left field fence by Center fielder Scott.

Post made a gallant come back in the bottom of the inning. Chris Guerrero singled to open the stanza for the Sox. David Perez then reached first on a fielding error by the second baseman and the comeback was on.

Another error and a hit batter left the bases loaded and one run already in when Raymond Garza stepped to the plate. Garza smacked a ground rule double over the left field wall to score two for Post. He later scored in the inning to narrow the MLK lead to 9-7.

But that was as close as Post could get as Martin Luther King added eight runs in the top of the fifth to lead 17-7. MLK then retired Post one, two, three in the bottom of the inning to win by the ten run rule 17-7.

Post missed the services of standout second baseman Justin Terry. Terry was in Methodist Hospital recovering from a ruptured appendix. Remarkable as it may seem, Justin played with an inflamed appendix throughout the Area tournament and batted over .400 and had a fielding percentage of .938.

Martin Luther King advances to the Sectional tournament to be announced this week. As for the Post boys, they get to return home to some good home cooking and a warm feeling of a year full of great accomplishments.

Anthony Flores shines in only District Tournament win

by Mike Stearns

The week started off good for the Post Little League all-stars. Brownfield, winner of their Area tournament, came in showing a lot of offensive power.

But they hadn't met up with Anthony Flores yet. Flores pitched a spectacular game against Brownfield. If you have ever seen a Little League contest, you will know how impressive a feat Anthony turned in against Brownfield.

Flores threw a no-hitter in the opening game of the tournament. Anthony struckout eight in the performance and the team defense did the rest. Anthony only walked two in his six innings of the pitching gem.

In Little League, there is usually an error or two in such a performance. But not for the Post group. The played error free defense for six innings in posting the win 6-0.

Post could not carry the momentum into the next two contests against Lubbock Western.

The Lubbock bunch had also come through their tournament undefeated, so the winner would have to capture two victories to advance.

Lubbock Western scored a 17-3 win in the first game behind the hitting of Justin Compton and Todd Parchman.

Anthony took the mound in the second game against Western and pitched well.

But Flores could not overcome the great pitching and stingy defense of the Western bunch. Lubbock Pitcher Arron Greir posted 12 strikeouts and his teammates turned a double play on the way to a 5-2 victory.

Post only collected three hits against Western in the deciding game, all in the fifth inning.

Orlando Castillo led off with a single and scored on Steve Gonzales' triple. Russ Moore then hit a double to score Gonzales. The two runs were all Post could manage against the defense of Western.

Western now advances to Dumas to play in the Sectional tournament.

The Post all-stars return home having represented our city and our Little League program with distinction. The title and a trip to sectionals and the Little League World Series may be out of reach, but the team's performance in the no-hitter will long be remembered.

money and resources and guarantee an environmental quality of life for Texas that is second to none in this nation."

One of the first priorities of the campaign will be to halt the flow of almost 4 million tons of yard waste to Texas landfills each year. The Texas legislature has set a goal of reducing by 40 percent the amount of materials going to Texas landfills by 1995. Yard waste makes up almost 20 percent of what goes into landfills.

"If every Texan would compost their yard waste, we could extend the life of the landfills we have in the state right now by another 10 years," said TWC Commissioner Peggy Garner. "And the landfill space we're using now to bury grass clippings, leaves and brush is going to cost four times as much to replace in the future."

The TWC recently awarded over a million dollars in grants to cities and groups for composting projects and more grants are planned.

In addition, the TWC and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service (TAEX) will form an innovative partnership that will arm Clean Texas 2000 with the TWC's field staff resources, as well as the 800 county extension agents stationed across Texas.

Harley Sadler Show stirs memories

By Michael Stearns
The current Garza Theatre's production of a Harley Sadler Show beckons us back to the good old days of Vaudeville. The two plus hours of production contain a three piece vaudeville band, a magician, the world's best dressed fiddle player, and even an old fashioned barker.

The three act play that encompasses these wonderful vaudeville acts is Harley Sadler's "To Poor to Paint, To Proud to Whitewash". The play is directed by David Weaver, who portrays a typical Sadler character, the loud, obnoxious, and painfully true spoken 'Lunk'.

Weaver's portrayal, as with most vaudeville plays, is somewhat over exaggerated. But this is vaudeville. The classic physical comedy of the vaudeville stage is certainly recreated effectively in Weaver's performance of 'Lunk'. Weaver goes from line to line with a classic whole hearted laugh straight from the Ozark mountains of Arkansas.

Alison Hoefler has been remarkable in her dramatic and comedic performances in previous Garza productions. But in "To Poor to Paint, To Proud to Whitewash", Hoefler tackles a new type of character, a villain. Alison's performance as 'Adele' draws the audience into the play and is crucial to the plot.

'Adele' is a money grabbing hussie who is after John Slater's hard earned fortune. 'Adele' marries the successful lawyer in an effort to swindle him out of his wealth. Her down fall lies in her objection to his unrefined, 'hick', family. Their visit eventually exposes her plot and provides the promised happy ending.

The best performance of the Sunday's show was turned in by the lead character, 'John Slater', portrayed by David LeMaster. LeMaster makes the transition from farm boy to big city lawyer with ease and distinction. His subdued New York accent is a nice touch to the character. David puts the audience in touch with 'John's' increasing discomfort with his wife, 'Adele' as he struggles with keeping her happy while satisfying his devotion to his family.

Bill Lanier plays the part of 'Pa Slater' to perfection. The audience is actually drawn into the old time values of family and hard work through the slightly slouched, hard working 'Pa Slater'.

Like 'Pa Slater's' devotion and steady humor holds his family together, Lanier's portrayal holds this performance together.

Emily Hataway showcased many of her talents throughout the night. Not only did she play 'Ma Slater', dotting mother to hero 'John', but she performed two vaudeville singing numbers with Anna Wilson. The singing duets were very good as they provided some nice harmony to their renditions of "Good Old Summertime" and "Buttons and Bows". The play runs through August 8.

The rest of the cast included Cheri Brooks as 'Nan Slater', Mike Toombs as 'Cal Henderson', Keren Weaver as 'Flora Wilson', and Christy Morris as 'Bradley'. Michael Sommermeyer was very good in his villainous role of "Donald", 'Adele's' "brother" and partner in conspiracy.

TEXAS
It's Like A Whole Other Country.

The fast paced candy sale was certainly one of the bright spots of the evening. Barker Charles Somerville adds an atmosphere of good old fashioned fun to the event as he hocks tickets for the sale. The bags are filled with candy and even have extra goodies inside. Local merchants have donated prizes to be given away for the sale and some bags contain certificates for those prizes.

The vaudeville band of Bill Grey on drums, Dell Grey playing piano, and Doug Burns picking banjo and guitar was outstanding. Grey, of Floydada, played with the original Harley Sadler Show.

Other music was provided by the "world's best dressed fiddler", Cecil Caldwell. He and his partner, granddaughter Holly, played some old time favorites and had the crowd foot stomping and hand clapping.

Magician Peyton Fullingam was marvelous as he spellbound the audience with a variety of illusions and card tricks. Peyton is on loan to the Garza for the Harley Sadler Show by the 50th Street Caboose restaurant.

The support staff for the Harley Sadler Show provided their usual quality performance. Charles Wallace's sets were outstanding as they are always. The technical work done by Josh Hubble and Christy Morris was maybe the best this year. The front office staff Of Lena Johnston and Mona Williams made everyone feel welcome for the production.

This year's production of a Harley Sadler Show is fun for the entire family. If you like the old time vaudeville, then "To Poor to Paint, To Proud to Whitewash" might just be your cup of tea.

Landscape insects showing up

Just when you begin to feel comfortable with the idea that the monsoon season has come to an end, a new problem surfaces. The newest "thorn in the side" is aimed at local homeowners and has the form of tree problems. There are two main problems that folks should be on the lookout for. One is found, at least recently, in Pecan and Maple trees. It is the common symptoms of iron deficiency. This problem has been identified in trees in the city and is readily identifiable as yellowing of leaves with the veins of the leaf remaining dark green. Iron deficiency may show up in the entire tree or only in certain areas. Left untreated, this deficiency can lead to leaf drop and weakened conditions of affected trees. This problem is fairly easy to correct with foliar or ground applied chelated iron products. However, more than one treatment may be needed. We are into the season of the year when treating with iron can be tricky because extremely hot weather combined with iron applications can cause foliage burn. Make certain that you read product labels for possible foliage burn precautions, before you purchase a product.

Another problem that has surfaced in the past few days is the presence of tent caterpillars or web worms. These insects can be found in pecan, elm and maple trees and are characterized by their webs, usually built on the ends of limbs and smaller branches. Web worms found early are not difficult to control but can be trying. Early infestations are best controlled by simple pruning of infested limbs and then should be burned. When pruning becomes unfeasible, due to web size, branch size or height, the next logical control is a good application of a chemical for "chewing" insects, such as malathion, dursban or sevin. Any of these type of chemicals and your hose-on sprayer attachment can offer control. Keep in mind however, that these worms are only feeding within the confines of their web and to be effective, the chemical must be ingested by the feeding worms. When possible, break up the web before spray is applied and make certain that you spray the leaves around the web very well. This will help insure that the chemical is on the leaves most likely to be taken in the web next.

Don't think that one application of insecticide is going to rid you of your web worm problem! As with most insects more than one application is probably going to be needed. As with any pesticide, you are responsible to read and follow all label directions prior to use and, make certain that the chemical you plan to purchase is labeled for use in the situation you have.

This summer is just now starting to be what it should have been thirty days ago. To help you head off potential problems, you'll want to monitor your lawn and landscape closely for these and other problems that may occur. Feel free to call our office at 495-2050 should you have questions.

Producers need to check with local TDA office before applying 2,4-D

Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry said today that grain sorghum producers in the Lubbock area need to check with their county extension agents or Texas Department of Agriculture regional office before applying hormone-type herbicides such as 2,4-D or Dicamba for weed control.

"Some counties in the South Plains are regulated under Chapter 75 of the Texas Herbicide Law, and producers need to check with the TDA regional office to see if their fields are located in a regulated county," Perry said.

Counties are regulated under the Texas Herbicide Law, administered by TDA, to prevent damage to cotton or other susceptible plants through herbicide drift or other uncontrolled applications.

If 2,4-D drifts onto a nearby field, susceptible plants can be severely damaged or destroyed.

Because of adverse weather conditions earlier this year, many cotton producers across the South Plains were not able to get their fields planted. According to recent estimates released by the Texas Agricultural Statistics Service, cotton acreage in the region dropped 9 percent from last year to 2.5 million acres. Some cotton producers replanted washed out cotton fields to sorghum or soybeans.

Grain sorghum planted acreage in the South Plains is expected to reach 650,000 acres during 1992, compared with 290,000 acres last year.

Mission Cable cares about "Jerry's Kids"

Mission Cable will participate in a national industrywide cable TV campaign, "Cable Cares about Jerry's Kids," to benefit the local chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association, Jimmy Evans, Mission Cable system manager, announced today.

From August 3 through September 14, new subscribers to cable television have a chance to help people affected by neuromuscular diseases. Mission Cable will donate $5.00 to MDA to help fight against 40 diseases that affect more than a million American children and adults. The donation will be discounted from the subscriber's installation fee.

"We're proud to be a part of MDA's Cable Cares campaign," said Evans, "and we're looking forward to making a sizable contribution to the Muscular Dystrophy Association."
