New Traffic Safety Law Is Just Horse Sense, Garrison Believes

Col. Homer Garrison, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, writes that there is no reason why anyone should be confused by the new traffic safety law which goes into effect tomorrow. The law itself, he explains, is long and legal-sounding, but it boils down to good, sound horse sense. He continues, in part:

We're just getting rid of the old regulations, passed back in 1917 in the Model T days, and bringing them up to date. Ninety per cent of the things required by the new law are already being done by the average good driver—and the other ten per cent are things he knows he ought to be doing but isn't.

In the fewest possible words, here are the highlights of the Uniform Traffic Code, as the law is called:

People walking are required to cross streets and highways at designated cross-walks where these are provided; to use sidewalks where they can, or to walk facing the traffic, on the left side of the road, where there is no sidewalk. A pedestrian in a cross-walk has the right-of-way over all vehicles. These are the first real pedestrian regulations we have ever had in Texas, and the observance of them will keep a lot of people from "walking themselves to death."

Drivers are required to stay on the right side of the road, with certain sensible exceptions; dangerous maneuvers in passing are outlawed; right-of-way rules are set out; teeth are put into the stop sign law; the safe manner of making turns and stops is designated, and uniform hand-and-arm signals are required for these maneuvers.

Racing Trains Forbidden

Following radiator-to-bumper is forbidden, and so is racing trains to crossings. Parking on a highway is outlawed except when the vehicle is out of order and can't be moved. Drivers are required to dim their lights 500 feet from an approaching vehicle at night.

Driving while under the influence of drugs is about the same as driving while drunk under the new law, even if the drugs were given by a dentist or doctor.

One part of the law that will make it rough on deliberately dangerous drivers is the new reckless driving clause. As it is now, a man can drive recklessly without violating any specific law, such as speeding, and the officers can't do anything with him. But under this new clause the reckless driver has a special nose to stick his head into.

The code requires every vehicle to have good lights and brakes and a horn. Trúcks and busses must also have mechanical signaling devices when they are so built that hand-and-arm signals can't readily be seen.

Reports Are Compulsory

Anyone who has a highway accident must stop and identify himself, give any help that is needed, and immediately notify the nearest Highway Patrol or Sheriff's office. The driver must also make a written report to the Department of Public Safety within 24 hours if anyone is killed or hurt or if damage amounts to $25 or more.

These accident reports are very important. They are confidential, and not used to get evidence against a driver but to help us figure out when and why accidents are happening, so that whatever is necessary can be done to prevent future accidents—whether the remedy be engineering, education, or enforcement.

All traffic control signs and signals put up hereafter by any city or county or the State Highway Department will have to be like those used in most other states. This is to make it so that a person driving from one city to another, or from one state to another, can find his way around without being confused.

daughters left Saturday night for Fort Worth to visit Mrs. Marsh's mother who suffered a stroke last Friday.

Mrs. Roy Williams left Saturday afternoon for Weatherford to visit her brother, who is ill.

Steers Gain On Irrigated Soil At Texas Tech

Steers grazed in rotation on five irrigated pastures seeded with various combinations of grasses at Texas Technological College in Lubbock showed average gains ranging from 1.03 to 1.61 pounds, according to the pasture, during a 76-day grazing period.

This grazing trial is the first of a series in which the animal husbandry and plant industry departments at Texas Tech are seeking to answer farmer inquiries relative to the value of various irrigated pasture mixtures for producing beef.

Twelve choice yearling steers are being used in the experiment. Pastures tested thus far include alfalfa with brome grass, alfalfa with perennial rye, alfalfa with brome grass and perennial rye, and native grass. A combination of native grass and white clover will also be tested.

Through the rotation system, steers were moved from a plot each time they had grazed it to the degree of most practical utilization. From May 1 to July 16 the steers had access to no supplementary feeds while on pasture. No bloat occurred when grazing alfalfa alone or in grass mixtures. Once placed on a particular pasture the steers were not removed until it had been grazed down and they were ready to rotate to another one.

In each plot being grazed, the steers had various combinations of salt, bone meal and ground limestone free choice.

West Texas Method of Pulling Cotton Preferred By Migrants

Enough cotton pickers are available to gather all of Texas' estimated 3,200,000-bale cotton crop, but sectional competition for workers will result in farmers in some areas not getting their cotton picked as rapidly as they like, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram quoted Caesar Hohn, state farm labor program supervisor, as saying this week.

The supervisor of the Texas A. and M. College Extension service's program for guiding farm labor migrations through the Texas cotton harvest declared that county agents' offices and the state farm labor office in College Station had received many unfillable requests for cotton pickers, but he emphasized the fact that all cotton pickers requested could not be supplied at once did not indicate any serious labor shortage.

Valley Has Workers

"Texas has never had enough cotton pickers available to pick all of the cotton just at the time the farmer wanted it picked," he explained.

The Lower Rio Grande valley area is the only section of the state in which enough pickers are available to gather the crop as rapidly as it matures he continued. Since valley cotton matures earlier than that of any other area, workers flock into the section from other parts of the state with the result that there usually is a surplus of labor there before picking is finished.

But as cotton begins maturing farther north, the extent of simultaneous picking areas fans out, and the workers are spread thinner over an ever-widening territory.

September Competition

But the big competition for the cotton pickers comes when the huge West Texas crop gets ready in early September. About the same time, farmers in the Mississippi Delta states of Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana open up their campaign to get Texas Latin Americans to that section.

At that stage of the game, the migrant worker considers three important factors in deciding where to go. Hohn pointed out. First and foremost is the question of wages; second, how much cotton there is to the acre; and, third, method of gathering.

The method of picking factor has become increasingly important in recent years with the expansion of cotton growing in West Texas where the practice is to pull rather than pick the white bolls. "Pulling" consists of jerking off the cotton, boll and all, together with any extraneous material which may come to hand. In "picking" the lint must be removed from the boll.

The average worker can easily pull more than twice as much as he can pick, but, generally speaking, the price for picking doesn't run double the price for pulling. What's more, it doesn't take much skill to pull while picking comes closer to being a skilled trade. So, other things being equal, the migrant is apt to choose a pulling job to a picking one. His whole family can work at it and the family income increases proportionately.

Picking Rates Hiked

As an offset to the West Texas attraction, Mississippi Delta farmers usually push picking rates up, an inducement they have to put forth in order to get the Texans to make the long trip even with transportation costs paid.

Although the extension service does not and cannot make up the migrants' minds for them, Hohn explained, it does follow the same system it has used effectively for the four years in which it has operated the program: giving the workers full information as to available jobs, cotton yields, and working conditions. If jobs are available, the workers are so informed; if they are not available, they are told so to avoid useless trips.

Grew into a $23,000,000 Business

One day about 10 years ago, a marvelous thing happened! A man we know found ONE STALK of growing sorghum in his drouth ridden field.

Seed carefully nurtured from that same stalk today is found in hundreds of profitable sorghum fields in the area we serve.

And today sorghums—never very profitable in the old days—are a $23,000,000 crop in the Panhandle-Plains-Pecos Valley area!

We have so much confidence in the sorghum industry—and all other industries we serve, that we are investing 35 million dollars in a building program. This expansion program in our territory will bring more dependable electric service to industry and better living—electrically—to everyone!

Thirty-Six Hopefuls Out For Post Antelope Places

By HANS HUDMAN
 Booster Club Sports Writer
 Football workouts got underway in earnest at Antelope field this week as thirty-six gridsters, including eight returning lettermen, reported Monday to Coach Bing Bingham for equipment and tryout scrimmages.

Sparked by the return of most of last season's backfield talent, and bolstered by a heavier line, the Bingham men are expected to make a strong bid for top honors in this season's clashes for district championship.

With the opening game only a few days away, the Antelopes started serious head-knocking sessions Tuesday in an intra-squad scrimmage which was high-lighted by the running and passing work of backs Malouf, Hester, Hill and Bouchier. The bulky figures of tackles Stelzer and Pierce loomed large in the forward wall, with letterman Smith doing a nice job at guard position. On temporary sick list were veteran ends Roy Williams and Hugh Ingram.

On the progress of his charges, Coach Bingham had this to say: "It's been too hot the past few days to risk injury to the boys by an all-out, full-length scrimmage; but the team is in good physical shape, and with some more polishing and possibly some night practice sessions, the boys should be rarin' to go when they meet Falls on September 12."

North Wins Oil Belt All-Star Game Tuesday

The North Oil Belt league team, comprised of Post, Levelland, and Slaton, and managed by Polly Duren, pilot of the Post Millers, won a loosely played all-star game from the South team, made up of players from Sundown, Seagraves, and Seminole.

Duren started Gist of Levelland on the mound, replaced him in the third by Altman of Post, who went three frames, then sent in Estes of Levelland for two innings, and wound up the last two innings with Presley of Slaton.

Pitchers for the South were Ater, Gentry and Reeves. A total of 13 errors were charged against the two teams. Bill Stone of Sundown led hitters with a triple and three singles for the South, while Roscoe Jarmon of Levelland led North hitters with a three-bagger and double.

Jarmon's triple in the seventh sparked the North's six-run winning rally. The South scored three runs in the ninth and had a runner on third when he, Tommy Thomas of Seagraves, was caught off the bag by Joe Boren of Post.

The North crew had the game, 9 to 5, until the first of the ninth inning when the South bunch started a hitting spree to score three runs. With two out and a

Millers Trip Refiners In Shaughnessy Opener

SPORTS

FROM A STRICTLY LOCAL ANGLE

Post Millers Will Journey Sunday To Levelland To Complete Playoff

The Post Millers, winner of the Shaughnessy opener here last Sunday will journey to Levelland next Sunday to complete the "win two out of three" game series with the Refiners to determine the finalist to play the winner of the Sundown-Seagraves series for the championship. The Sundown crew will go to Seagraves to complete their play-off.

Manager Polly Duren said this morning he would likely send Big Ed Altman to the mound against the Refiners, and that if the Millers lost the game and it became necessary to play a double-header, he would use Walter B. Holland to pitch the second game.

Winner of next Sunday's Post-Levelland series will play winner of the Sundown-Seagraves series the following Sunday for the championship.

Sundown won last Sunday's game 13 to 9.

Season Closed On Doves, Quail

County Clerk Ray N. Smith, who issues hunting licenses, has observed that many would-be dove hunters are not aware of the sad but true fact that doves cannot be shot legally in this county until September 1, 1948.

Beginning Sept. 1, this year, it is open season in many counties for a month and half on mourning doves—but not in Borden and Garza Counties.

The same law Smith said, applies to quail. The season is open for quail shooting in many counties from December 1 to January 16, but quail cannot be shot in Garza County until December 1, 1948.

Game wardens from both Lubbock and Lamesa keep an eye on this county and they do not accept ignorance of the law as an excuse, Smith pointed out.

Lubbock Teams Will Play Here

A softball game between the Baldrige Bakery, South Plains champion, and the Blue Bonnet Laundry, runner-up in the South Plains play-off, both Lubbock teams, will be played at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the Postex Park. Admission price will be 50 cents. Proceeds will benefit the Calvary Baptist Church.

man on third, the South threatened to tie the count, but the base runner was caught napping and was tagged out by Boren, Miller third-baseman, who pulled a hidden ball stunt.

Four Post players, Altman, Walter B. Holland, Joe Boren, and Dale Hester participated in the game.

"Khaki" is the Hindu word for dust—which explains how the well-known military shade got its name.

Humming birds often use spider threads in building their nests.

Boren Sacks Four Hits Out Of Four Trips To Plate

Lefty Altman pitched the Post Millers to a 5 to 1 victory over the Oil Belt league leading Levelland Refiners last Sunday in the first game of the Shaughnessy play off at Postex Park. At the same time the Sundown delegation mowed down the Seagraves Oilers, 13 to 9, in their first game of the playoff.

The first round pairings of the Shaughnessy pitted Post, fourth place winners of the loop, against Levelland, first place winner, and Seagraves, third place winner against Sundown, second place holder. The teams will battle out a two out of three win to complete the first round of play. Next Sunday the Millers go to Levelland, and if they should lose the nine-inning game, they will square-off with the Refiners in a seven-inning game to decide the finalist. Sundown goes to Seagraves for a similar performance. Winners of Sunday's games will play-off the Shaughnessy the following Sunday.

In last Sunday's game, Joe Boren, Miller third-baseman, collected four hits out of four trips to pace the batting. Altman gave up four hits, and the Millers collected 11 off of Dewey Estes.

In the Sundown-Seagraves game, the Sundown crew used Brown and Ater on the hill and the Oilers called up Reeve, Gentry and Graham to hurl.

GETTING OUT

On The LIMB

By

EDDIE the EDITOR

With an interesting baseball season practically a thing of the past, all sports-loving eyes are turning to football—it seems to me—more local enthusiasm than usual.

Coach Bing Bingham proved himself last year not only as an excellent coach, but as a real guy—a worthy model for the boys in our public schools, whether or not they play football.

Bingham has the respect and confidence of his students and of the town people. He has a much better than average bunch of talent, skill, brawn and intelligence from which to build a fine team this year.

Part of his good fortune in prospects for the coming season is coincidental. It just happens that he has this outstanding talent enrolled this year. Some years the boys are punier than others, and this just happens to be a year for the better calibre.

But, most of his good fortune arises out of the groundwork which Bingham's skillful coaching laid last season. Bing has accomplished much in preparing the winners that we are expecting to have this year, on his own hook. He hasn't produced his best in this respect, because he didn't have as much support as he needed.

He could have had a boy's club in operation here all summer had anybody wanted it. The members of this club would have been preparing themselves—unofficially, but morally and physically—not necessarily for the 1947-48 season, but for several years to come. Some of the club members would have been little fellows, who won't be far enough in school to play football until four or five years from now.

Bingham, who thinks ahead, was willing to operate such a club, but no individuals or organizations were sufficiently interested to back him this summer, and so we didn't have it.

But, the vacation's over for the townspeople now and they seem to be behind the football players almost 100 per cent.

The Antelope Booster Club, which has pledged itself to keeping the grandstands full of Garza boosters during both home and out-of-town games, is having no trouble at all with the public. Everybody seems interested, eager and extremely willing to boost the Antelopes.

With all these factors combined, we are liable to have the best season since 1927-28, when we beat Mineral Wells to win the bi-district under the tutelage of another good coach, Harry Taylor, who had some boys who looked as good as the Antelopes look to us this year.

Monk Gibson, the new president of the Booster Club, and N. C. Outlaw, his predecessor, deserve a big handclap for the time and energy—and, no doubt, the money they have spent—which they have given in the interest of local sports, particularly football. And so do the other officers and directors, including the comparative newcomers to Post who—also in other ways—have shown their interest in all affairs local. These are Dr. David H. Templeton, Jess Compiton, and Wallace Barnett.

Among the Booster Club officials this year, we here at the Post Dispatch are going to rely heavily on Hansford Hudman who will handle the football publicity if the school officials are willing. Hans, as readers of his advertising col-

Garza and the World

Editor's Note—The author of this column spent part of the war years as an overseas employee of the U. S. Government. Her opinions, based on personal observations and subsequent news developments, do not necessarily reflect the opinions or policies of the Post Dispatch. The column is carried in the interest of applying world news to the situation here at home.

While every American loves and respects the American dollar, few of us here in Garza County—and elsewhere over the nation—realize how extremely important our dollar is in this crisis which now faces the world.

Perhaps the following explanation clipped from the New York Times will illustrate what the money that we kick around so nonchalantly means from an international point of view:

The American dollar is a 2.16x6.14-inch piece of ribbed paper made by a secret process. It is worth one thirty-fifth of an ounce of gold—enough to fill a small dental cavity. Every day the United States Printing and Engraving Office prints $2,482,000 new dollars. Every day the U. S. Treasury destroys about as many old dollars. Every day Americans spend $437,000,000 to run their businesses and homes. And every day most Americans complain bitterly that the dollar isn't what it used to be. In terms of goods it will buy only 58 per cent as much as in 1939.

Nevertheless, the American dollar, bearing the authentic signatures of Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder and the Treasurer of the United States W. A. Julian or their predecessors, is today the most important printed document in international relations. It is the symbolic cornerstone of the "Marshall Plan" by which the United States hopes to bolster the economy and preserve the democratic way of life in Europe; it is a vital weapon in the American policy of "containing" Soviet Russia; it is—rather the lack of it—is a major factor in the economic crises in Britain and on the continent of Europe.

Last month the importance of the dollar was underlined in many phases of world relations. In London lack of dollars forced Britain to alter radically her foreign monetary policy; and in Washington British and American experts sought ways to modify the British loan agreement to ease Britain's dollar crisis.

In London and in Washington the prospect of more American dollars enhanced the possibility of an Anglo-American-French agreement on the tough problem of the future of the Ruhr and of future German production.

In Paris the prospect of American dollar help is the important factor in persuading the sixteen nations participating in the Committee of European Economic Co-operation to plan an integrated European program.

In Athens American dollars umn in the Post Dispatch each week long ago discovered, has the makings of a first rate writer.

burnt beans. People moreover, have to stand in line for hours to eat even these things with a loaf of black bread.

When I see the waste in hotels, restaurants and most U. S. homes, I feel very much ashamed.

What About France? While talking with those from France, I am told that its trouble is more one of distribution. Northern France has been heavily bombed; but there is a plenty of meat, milk and butter. The highways and railroads, however, are so bombed out, and gasoline trucks are so scarce that this food cannot get to Paris and the other large cities. There should be enough food in Southern France; but there the Communists are in control and they are doing all they can to cause trouble and unrest. Even when a Parisian gets out into the country to buy food, the farmer will not take francs in payment except at a big discount. He really wants either American dollars or English pounds. If gold or silver is not available for currency, he wants gold jewelry or silverware or something else which he can use as barter to buy clothes, blankets or machinery.

Germany Is Gripping

In England and France both the food and shelter problem is very serious but the people of these countries are not complaining. In Germany, however, everyone is gripping. They are mad now and blame all their troubles onto us. They hate our officers and our cornbread. Fats are very scarce as well as coffee, sugar and all imported products. Most farm homes are reported to be in good condition; but the cities are largely in ruins and the housing conditions are terrible. The Poland and Balkan representatives are terribly downhearted. These people believe that the Allies, the Germans and the Russians have all double-crossed them and stolen from them. Here even the farmers have been robbed of their cattle, horses, carts and what little machinery they had. Still worse, the people of these countries, are fast losing their character, morals and all sense of honesty.

Lying is now recognized throughout all Europe as being normal and right, but in Eastern Europe sexual restraint has been thrown aside and millions are running and mixing like wild animals. If a girl can sell her virtue to an Allied or even a Russian soldier for food or clothing the parents are being spent to bolster war-weakened Greece against Communist infiltration. Recently the rightist Greek Government of Premier Maximos resigned; largely, it is thought, as a result of America's insistence that the Government must be "liberalized."

The dollars importance comes not from the gold it will buy; few persons with the exception of jewelers, goldsmiths, chemists and dentists, are interested in exchanging it for the yellow metal. The importance comes from the goods the dollar will purchase—the machines and machine tools, the coal and the food, the materials and equipment for production. Europe and the world need these goods. The United States is the world's chief producer because the U. S. alone emerged from the war with an expanded rather than a wrecked production system.

But the foreign world supply of dollars is alarmingly small. Of overseas American expenditures, loans and grants totaling $20 billion since the war's end, only $4 billion remain unused, exclusive of uncommitted World Bank funds.

Moreover, the overseas supply is rapidly diminishing. Each month foreign nations sell the United States $800,000,000 worth of goods. Each month foreign nations buy from the United States $80,000,000 worth in goods.

In the long view the only way in which the dollar shortage can be remedied is to restore the economies and trade of foreign countries so that they will need to spend fewer dollars. In essence that is the objective of the "Marshall Plan." Last month, in a speech at the Pan-American Conference in Quitandinha, Brazil, Secretary of State George C. Marshall reiterated American determination to make the "Marshall Plan" work. He said:

The economic problems caused by the war have developed political and moral problems in Europe and the East which cannot be ignored. As a matter of fact, the economic rehabilitation of Europe is vital to the economy of this hemisphere.

Despite Mr. Marshall's words, a crucial question remains: Will the United States Congress put up the dollars to make the "Marshall Plan" effective?

As so ends the New York Times explanation. I believe everything it says is true, but honestly I am more worried about the supervision of those dollars after we put them up than whether or not we will put them up.

It will take money—plenty of it, from Garza County and the rest of the nation—to make the Marshall Plan effective. And Congress will put it up, whether you and I want to or not. I'm almost sure of this.

But unless one understands how thoroughly rotten and corrupt European politicians are in general and how easy it is for a racketeering, gold-bricking American type to get a job of administering the American funds in foreign ports, one wouldn't begin to understand why I worry about the possibility of our money falling into the hands of the enemy and coming back to us in the form of bullets and bombs.

These are critical times, I'm

What Our Contemporaries Are Saying:

EXPERIMENT—A metropolitan department store took a number of nationally advertised mattresses, changed the brand name to a fictitious one and lined them up alongside the familiar brand, scaled at the same price. The advertised brand outsold the "rival" brand by 15 to 1. The next week when the store cut the price on the fictitious brand to $3, the advertised brand outsold the "unknown" one 8 to 1. The following week, when the price difference was broadened to $10, the advertised brand still outsold the cut-priced article, but this time by a photo finish, 14 to 13—McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

HEMS FOR HIM—Some of our funny paragraphers have noted that when football starts this fall, instead of "hold that age," the cry will probably be, "hold that hem." Some of the male writers and a few of the fems seem to be all hot and bothered about the "wimmen" lengthening their skirts. Take it easy fellows. If gals want to hold the knee lengths they'll do so without any suggestions from you. Otherwise it would be as hard to keep 'em from letting 'em out, as it would to stop the Old 94 Cannon Ball passenger train with a feather. If they like the new styles, and think they can hold their "hems" by letting go their "hems," that's exactly what they will do, your opinion and desires to the contrary, notwithstanding. —Terry County Herald.

HOPE FOR CATTLEMEN—Forecast of an 11,886,000-bale cotton crop with Texas furnishing 3,200,000 bales of the total may seem an augury of lower prices for the staple and thus of smaller profits for the grower; but it certainly is pleasing to the cattlemen.

That big a cotton crop means 4,806,000 tons of cotton seed—at the usual ratio of seed to lint be maintained this year; and that means more cottonseed meal and hulls for the cattle of the United States.

Last year's cottonseed total was 3,513,000 tons. With a shortage of all kinds of cattle feed, the meal from 1946 cotton seed has sold around $80 a ton—when it was available. Most of the time it has been impossible for the feeder to get it at any price.

The additional million and a quarter tons of cottonseed feeds will prove a very welcome addition to next winter's supplies, even though the crop falls far short of the normal average of 5,143,000 tons. —Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

MORE JUNK FOR TEXAS—The Texan's passion for erecting monuments is getting well out of hand. Down at Houston a group is in the midst of a drive to raise $225,000 to buy a beat-up battleship to clutter up the Houston ship channel. We've been trying to find some excuse for such an expenditure; it escapes completely.

That kind of money would buy some town a swell school, in which kids can learn a heap more about the good things of life than they can in the skeleton of a battleship. —The Rails Banner.

Beavers are still reported in fairly large numbers in 42 Texas counties, being found mostly along the Pecos, Rio Grande, Colorado, and Llano Rivers and other streams in the Edward's Plateau.

NEWS NOTES FROM Duck Creek Soil- CONSERVATION DISTRICT OFFICE AT POST

Soil Conservation Pays
Weldon McGehee who lives nine miles west and four miles north of Post, says, "It took three years after I bought my farm for me to become convinced that terraces save moisture. I give terraces the credit for my cotton holding up so well, because the rainfall had been held on the land until it had time to soak into the soil." McGehee had a crop failure in 1946 on some land not terraced which was planted to feed. He believes he would have made 1,500 pounds of feed per acre on this land had it been terraced. McGehee believes this because on other land where the water did not run off he was able to get a stand and make a feed crop.

Weeping Lovegrass Ordered
Four cooperators of the Duck Creek Soil Conservation District this week ordered enough African weeping lovegrass seed to plant 200 acres this fall. If moisture conditions are favorable, the seed will be planted as soon as it arrives.

Included among those ordering seed are Rex and Ralph Welch who will plant 50 acres, Al Bird, 100 acres, and T. R. Greenfield, 50 acres on his farm east of the Grassburg School.

O. S. Ranch Mapped
This week the Duck Creek Soil Conservation District received an aerial photograph covering 30 sections of the O. S. Ranch. This map is clear enough in detail that cattle trails look like white lines, fence lines can be detected, and different types of plant growth can be recognized. Rivers and creeks wind their way across the map. This large aerial map of the ranch will be used in planning a coordinated conservation pasture management program for the ranch.

Ranch planners assigned to the district will go over the ranch with Giles McCrary, owner, and mark off on the map different pasture sites such as shinnery oak sites, short grass and mesquite sites, and river breaks sites. Since river beds do not produce grass, McCrary and the ranch planner will delineate river beds on the map. While making the survey of the ranch, an examination will be made of the plants on various sites to determine the type and quantity of grass present, percentage of undesirable weeds and plants present, and the condition of the grass on different sites such as poor, fair, good or excellent.

Compared To Inventory
Like business men who each year make inventories of their stock, the total acreage of each site marked off on the map will be

Strength Of Fertilizers Is Announced

Garza County Agricultural Agent D. F. Eaton calls attention to the fact that the strength of commercial mixed fertilizers is expressed, in accordance with Texas law, by three figures—such as 4-12-4—on the tag which is found on all fertilizer containers. The first of the figures stands for nitrogen, the second for available phosphoric acid and the third for water soluble potash. The same system applied throughout the nation; that's the way it's been for years.

It looks now as if something new may be added to the formula, at least in some parts of the country. In Florida, for instance, farmers have found some of the trace elements so important that they want them put in all fertilizers. So fertilizer manufacturers there are showing the amounts of trace elements by adding more figures. In the new formula the fourth figure would be for manganese and the sixth for copper. Life gets more complicated every day.

Most Florida soils respond to the trace elements, but tests carried out by the Texas A & M College Agricultural Experiment Station in cooperation with the U. S. Department of Agriculture have shown that almost all soils in Texas contain enough of the minor elements. Others are sulfur, zinc, boron, and calcium.

Dr. J. F. Fudge, the State Chemist, says research will be continued on the trace elements, but that on the basis of what has been found so far, it does not pay to apply them in Texas. There are minor exceptions, of course.

So Texas does not now require fertilizer manufacturers to use the six figure formula. If, however, a manufacturer makes claims as to trace element content in his product, he has to note the elements and amounts of each on his fertilizer tags.

RANGE GRASSES CAN DO 'UNBELIEVABLE THINGS' WHEN GIVEN A CHANCE

Old-time ranchmen of Archer County are saying that native West Texas range grasses do almost "unbelievable things" in grazing when given a chance.

The ranchmen are giving their grasses that chance by clearing mesquite growth off the range, and giving forage grasses room to grow. C. W. Wilhoit, Archer County agricultural agent, reported to D. F. Eaton, the Garza agent.

Wilhoit says that Wayne B. Ray, stockman in the county, has a certain track of land that would carry 40 head of cows 10 to 20 years ago, if the cattle were given extra feed three months out of the year. Seven years ago the measured. With the number of acres of grass and its condition in mind, McCrary and the ranch planner will determine the stocking rate per acre for one year. Then each following year technicians assisting the district will make an inventory of the pasture condition on several sites by means of what the ranch planner calls a line transect. This is done by placing two stakes 10 to 12 feet apart on several sites. A string is then stretched between the stakes and the kind and quantity of grass and weeds on the line recorded. Next year a similar inventory will be made so the ranch planner and McCrary can determine the improvement being made in the condition of the pasture.

quite was grubbed off the pasture, and for the past three years 100 to 120 stocker cattle have been sold off the same land.

Ray tells the county agent that this increase has come about without the extra feed bill and that his cows have been in even better flesh than when they were getting extra feed on the mesquite pasture.

Across the Tracks

By H. H. H.

Every year, as we watch groups of happy school children begin their annual trek to the classrooms, our memory carries us back almost a quarter-century to the day when we began our own happy, but somewhat dubious schoolday career. It seems only a short time ago that we strode fearfully into Mrs. McMillan's first grade classroom—wearing a brand new, button top cap with a long bill on it—and with a fine attempt at bravado, announced loudly that we wished to attend school. The kindly old teacher—understanding our fright—indicated the seat we should take, and suggested that we hang our cap in the cloakroom. The seat we took; but the suggestion as to the disposition of our cap, we rejected. In fact, we resisted all efforts to pry the cap loose from our head for even an instant. Several days passed before we acquired enough confidence in our fellow-students to allow our wonderful cap to hang unguarded in the cloakroom.

On Friday, our teacher—seeking to gain our confidence—sent us along with a classmate to fetch a scuttle of coal from the outside coalhouse. Upon our arrival at the coalhouse, our classmate produced a cigarette, which he had found that morning, and invited us to join him in a smoke—which we delightedly did. Our teacher—noting our long absence—peered out the window and observed smoke issuing from the coalhouse. Upon our return to class, she proceeded to whittle the daylight out of us, right in front of the other students. Our fellow transgressor took it calmly; but we were certain that our world had come to an end—our pride was shattered.

Our crowning shame, though, came several years later, after we had grown to be a big ignorant kid (we are now a big ignorant grown-up). Being a country boy, we were a complete stranger to a telephone. One day our teacher gave us a phone number and sent us to the principal's office to phone a classmate's mother and find out how said classmate's measles were progressing. Fearfully we entered the empty office and approached the horrible instrument. After several attempts to pick up the receiver, (we'd sooner have picked up a rattlesnake) we finally snatched it up and answered the operator's inquiry by blurt—"Say, how are Johnny's measles getting along?" The operator obviously sensed our predicament; for she made the call herself and relayed the information back to us. We mumbled our thanks and slunk back to the classroom, thoroughly crestfallen.

We've hated telephones ever since.

Sincerely,

HANS HUDMAN

RELIGION IN BUSINESS

AS president and spokesman for the great company which you and I represent, gentlemen, my words today shall be a little different to any ever spoken to you by me. There has been a change... a great change. As you know, we have just won a war of terrifying proportions. God was with us or else we would have failed in this the greatest of conflicts between armored men, yet, we are inclined to fan our pride by boasting of victory rather than thank God for it.

THERE has been a terrible breakdown in the moral philosophy and ethics of men and women since this accomplishment. Homes are being broken up; selfish and unfair methods of doing business set in operation, and a covetous attitude toward our friend and neighbor in general has been adopted. This is not a reprehensible lecture, rather, I should censor myself. You, probably, have been doing business in the same manner as I. With a profound conviction I declare that we, along with many other business men of this decade, have lost our PERSPECTIVE. Some of the greatest business executives we know HAVE DONE what we are NOW DOING... incorporate God's way of doing things into this firm. We have a new partner, men! My dealings with you as with our great list of representatives and customers shall be different from this day. Attend the church of your choice every Sunday.

YOU IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN YOU

Character is a by-product of the church. It is here that young and old alike are showered with benedictions that fortify and influence for a better citizenship and a stronger democracy. In the church the ministerial are molding religious character. State-men today declare that the church alone can furnish leadership to handle the affairs of state in these perilous times. Then we with our children should go to the church of our choice on Sunday. "You in the Church and the Church in you"—form a combination for good.

Know Your Churches

THE CHURCH OF CHRIST

There are few people who can say, "I remember when..." but H. F. Stevens and N. J. Lanotte, being among the first Post citizens, can. They, as well as Post's other "timers" have watched Post grow from a small building to what is now a busy West Texas town.

It was back in 1910 that the congregation of the Church of Christ was first started here. Some dozen people met in the Court House to worship God according to the New Testament directions. Among this group of that early congregation were Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Stovall, Mrs. Nancy Latham, and Mrs. J. W. White, Miss Anice White, Mr. and Mrs. J. White, Mrs. Dovie Davies, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Stevens, Miss Weston Ferguson and Mrs. O. D. Cardwell. The ones who served as elders were H. F. Stevens and J. W. White. Some of these are still among us—others have moved away, but all, whether still here or gone from us, have played their part in the beginning of the Church of Christ here in Post.

The early congregation continued to meet in the Court House from 1910 until 1916. Six years after the first meeting a church house was built where it still stands today. Seven years later, an addition of three class rooms and a baptistry was added to the main auditorium.

Claude McClung, still an outstanding preacher in the Church of Christ today, preached the first sermon in the building. J. T. Strickland held the first gospel meeting, and R. Lawrence served as the first local minister.

The Church of Christ here has grown to several times the number of its original membership. Today, L. H. Ingram, N. Lanotte, and H. F. Stevens serve as elders with Paul Jones and W. R. Young serving as deacons.

The present minister, who began regular work with the church here last week, is Paul R. Mayr.

Plans are being made for the construction of a house for the minister. It will be built behind the church house, facing North.

The Church of Christ is looking forward to the future with great hopes of further growth and spread of the borders of the kingdom which is unshakable.

SOUVENIRS OF PAST STATE FAIRS WANTED

Have you any souvenirs from the State Fair of Texas of bygone years? If so, shine them up and get them ready to enter in a souvenir contest to be sponsored this fall at the Fair. Announcement of the contest, as a feature of Souvenir Day, was made recently by David A. McMinn, director of special events for the State Fair.

Cash awards and ribbons will be given in three classes of souvenirs—documents, glass and metal and miscellaneous. Souvenirs must be received by the State Fair not later than Oct. 1.

The first step is to write the State Fair of Texas for souvenir entry form.

Souvenirs may be newspaper clippings, booklets, programs or posters to qualify under the category of documents. Spoons, glasses, jewelry and china come under the heading of glass and metal. Handkerchiefs, balloons, and so forth come under the category of miscellaneous. All souvenirs must bear the words State Fair of Texas and date they were obtained.

Souvenirs will be displayed throughout the Fair in an exhibit in the Hall of State, and returned to their owners after closing date of the Fair, October 19.

Medical Care Is Important After 40 Years

From a health standpoint, life after forty generally begins to be more complicated for the average individual, than it was in his earlier years. According to Dr. George W. Cox, state health officer, the principal health foes confronting people in middle life are heart disease, cancer, kidney disease, high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries, apoplexy, diabetes and arthritis.

Middle aged people of today are healthier than were those of preceding generations, and members of the present generation, when they reach middle age, should enjoy better health than their parents of today.

"Medical care in middle life has two important phases," Dr. Cox asserts. "The first is going to the doctor at regular intervals for a complete checkup, whether or not there have been symptoms that suggest the need for medical attention. The second is prompt attention to any illness, since this may mean the difference between complete recovery and prolonged individualism. It is difficult to say which of these phases is the more important."

It has been found that men and women who faithfully pursue the habit of regular health examinations and who follow their physician's advice arising from them, tend to live longer, more satisfactorily, and freer from disease than those who simply take a chance and go to the doctor only when pain or disability forces them to give up their normal activities.

It is also a fact according to the state health officer, that many diseases of middle age respond to treatment in early stages whereas if neglected until later, they often cause chronic invalidism or even death.

Yes, Frigidaire is full of conveniences, full of beauty, full of quality, dependability and value.

It's true of the Frigidaire refrigerator, electric range, automatic washer—or any of the nine household products that Frigidaire makes.

And it has been true ever since Frigidaire first began making refrigerators more than 25 years ago.

Today, more than 8 million Frigidaire's have been built and sold, and Frigidaire's great plants are working at top speed to meet the demand for new Frigidaire home appliances.

There's only one reason for this demand. It's the same reason why we sell Frigidaire.

It's because Frigidaire appliances are full of the things that count most.
