Broiler outlook is brighter for 1960

COLLEGE STATION—Total pullet chick placements by 10 of the primary United States breeders during the first 11 months of 1959 amounted to 27,267,000, 12 per cent below the same period in 1958. Placements in November 1959 were 17 per cent below the same month of 1958.

Broiler prices well into 1960 will probably be lower than in 1959, is the prediction of Marshall Miller, associate extension poultry marketing specialist. If prices should increase because of the reduced broiler supply, production later in 1960 may rise enough so that the years total could equal or slightly exceed 1959. Since mid-May 1959 weekly broiler chick placements have been below those of 1958 by about five per cent.

The decline in broiler production has been brought about by lower broiler prices and restricted credit, pointed out Miller. However, this decline in production can be reversed rather rapidly if the industry becomes overly encouraged as a result of recent broiler price increases.

Johnson attends lumber meeting held in Austin

Walter Lee Johnson, manager of the Forrest Lumber Co. here, has just returned from Austin where he attended the fifth Management Workshop conducted by the Lumbermen's Association of Texas.

Johnson was one of the 80 selected top management lumber executives who participated in its intensive five-day conference on modern management techniques.

"A good deal of our time," Johnson said, "was devoted to a thorough study of the methods used by successful lumber and building material dealers throughout the United States, Canada, England, and Australia to give the people in their communities better values and better service."

"We learned through the study of the experience of leading dealers how we can help more families own homes of their own and how we can help others make the necessary improvements for better, more comfortable living."

The Management Clinic was under the direction of Arthur Hood, chairman of the Editorial Board of the American Lumberman, Chicago, Ill., and Gene Ebersole, executive vice president of the Lumbermen's Association of Texas.

Adapted varieties can boost cotton yields

COLLEGE STATION — Selection of adapted varieties of cotton can boost cotton yields, grade and profit. Cotton variety recommendations for Texas vary with soil types, climatic conditions and farming practices, points out Glenn Black, associate extension cotton specialist.

The increase in mechanical harvesting should cause producers to give consideration to varieties best suited to the type of machine they plan to use. The picker varieties have open-type bolls and the stripper types have storm-resistant or storm-proof bolls. In line with mechanization practices, Black says cotton should be planted in 40 inch rows with three to four plants to the row foot. Grass and weeds should be controlled for efficient machine operation and for the production of good quality cotton.

Black suggests that Rio Grande Valley and Coastal Bend farmers use Deltapine, Empire or Stoneville types for picker varieties. Storm-resistant varieties such as Northern Star, Lankart, Stormking and others are adapted for stripper use. He says farmers interested in cotton yield performance should ask the local county agent for a copy of Bulletin 877, "Performance of Cotton Varieties in Texas, 1954-56."

Upper Gulf Coast and East Texas farmers will find Deltapine, Stoneville, Empire or similar types adapted to their areas. These include Deltapine 15, DIPL Fox, Stoneville 7, Empire WR and others. All are suitable for mechanical picking.

North Central and Central Texas growers will find that bottomlands or irrigated fields should produce best when planted to Deltapine, Empire, Stoneville and similar types. Upland farmers in these areas should consider D&PL Fox 4, Austin, Lankhart, Blightmaster, Lockett 88, Stormking and others. Rolling Plains and High Plains producers will find storm-resistant and storm-proof types such as Western Stormproof, Stormking, Blightmaster, Lankart, Paymaster 101, Northern Star and Lockett 88 suitable for stripper use while Deltapine types, Paymaster 54B and others are adapted open-boll varieties. High Plains growers might also consider Empire and Acala types if spindle picking is desired. For stripper harvesting the storm-resistant or storm-proof types are popular.

Upper Rio Grande and Trans-Pecos growers will probably prefer the Upland varieties such as Acala 1517C, Acala 1517 BR-1 and other Acala types as they are developed. In this area American-Egyptian cotton of the Pima strains could be planted under special allotment.

Black urges cotton producers to plant only seed of varieties known to be adaptable to their area and that have been tested for germination and purity. He also recommends that the seed be treated for seedling disease control.

Better prices for egg producer seen

COLLEGE STATION — Egg prices for the first three months in 1960 are likely to be lower than those in 1959, but because of the prospective smaller supply of eggs, prices are expected to be higher in April-June than in the same months of 1959. This is likely to react favorably upon egg prices later in 1960, in consequence of the seasonal rise starting from a higher base.

A smaller hatch is expected for 1960 replacements because of a difficult year in 1959, according to F. Z. Beanblossom, extension poultry marketing specialist. However, he noted, if hatchery reports indicate substantial evidence of cutbacks, storer's will become more avid buyers of eggs. The consequent bidding up of prices would then tend to limit a reduction in the replacement hatch. Prices received during the first half of 1960 will to a large extent determine the 1960 replacement flock size, the specialist continued.

Garza County rangeland makes comeback

VIRGIL MIDDLETON
Soil Conservation Service Garza County rangeland has an astonishing recovery from the drought of a few years ago. Improved moisture conditions have been chiefly responsible, and conservation measures such as fencing and rangeland have helped up the process to a great degree. Seeding is recommended for areas which for various reasons are short on protective cover and do not have enough desirable grass plants to provide a suitable seed source, which is the first necessity for vegetation. With a limited seed source, revegetation of range-land is a slow process, even with desirable moisture conditions.

Acres which usually are in need of reseeding are fields which have previously been in cropland.

Even after having been out of cultivation for several years, these fields are usually occupied by weeds and inferior grasses which have little or no grazing value. In cases like this and in instances where drouth and over-grazing have resulted in a short seed supply, nature needs help in growing a lush grass cover.
Garza County ranchers are scheduled to reseed 3,064 acres this year under the Great Plains Conservation Program. A similar amount was reseeded last year with successful results. Under the Great Plains Conservation Program, the government pays 80 per cent of the cost of the grass seed and the seeding operation.

Operators will be starting their reseeding operations in February in order to get the plants established as early as possible.

Applications for Great Plains assistance are still being taken at the local SCS office.
