

Water crisis arrives with heat wave; turn off your sprinkler, Mayor urges

Mayor Harold Lucas today called for voluntary cooperation of all Post citizens to conserve water as Post's water situation suddenly hit the "critical stage."

The last three days the city has been using water much more rapidly than Post's crippled water field could produce it.

The reservoir has been dropping fast.

Lucas urged citizens on a voluntary basis to turn off their lawn sprinklers, at least until the weekend when the mill will be down and the reservoir can be pumped full again.

"If people don't cooperate," Lucas said, "the city will be out of water before the weekend."

He said it was "the same old problem" Post has been living with for a long time and that "that time of year is here again." "We're going to have to get along with it at least for this year, after which we hope to have all the White River water we need," he added.

THE VOLUNTARY water conservation request applies, Lucas said, for as long as the current heat wave holds without relief from showers.

"We'll make it all right on water if people will cooperate," Mayor Lucas predicted this morning after receiving the report that water consumption had soared well above the 1,000,000-gallon mark yesterday for the second day in a row.

E. A. Warren, acting city superintendent, reported that 1,248,000 gallons of water were used yesterday after consumption had mounted to 1,230,000 gallons Tuesday to go over the million-gallon mark for the first time this summer.

THAT MEANS THAT the city reservoir went down 322,000 gallons Tuesday, or about three feet from its level that morning.

"Our water supply won't stand three days in a row of exceeding more than a million gallons a day," Mayor Lucas said.

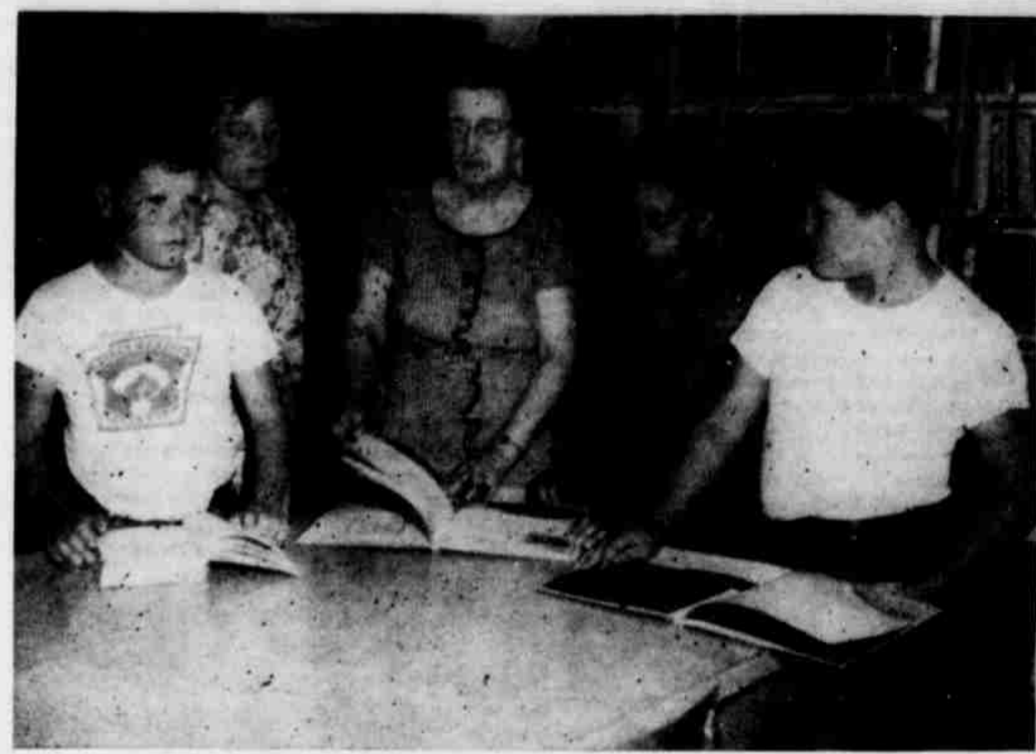

Adding to the "normal" hot weather water problem here is the fact that ten wells were put out of commission by the heavy rains of a few weeks ago, including some of the best ones on the Storie lease. Seven of these wells were in a wet-weather lake, which put them out of commission.

The result is that the water field supply is far below normal.

Several of these wells were being tested yesterday to see if they could be put back to work to replenish the fast-dwindling water supply.

POSTEX MILLS, which resumed operations Monday after being shut down a week for the annual July 4th vacation period, still is getting all the water it needs and there has been no curtailment of operations.

NEW PASTOR AND WIFE

Presbyterian pastor, wife are newcomers

The new pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Edgar Graham Jr., and his wife, Anne, moved to Post last week with the Rev. Graham beginning his neworate here at the church's Sunday service.

They reside at the manse at 1017 Sunset Drive.

Ed Graham was born in Austin in 1931 while his father father, a Presbyterian minister, was attending Austin Seminary. Since that time he has moved around the country as a minister's family is apt to do. He graduated from Breckenridge High School in 1949 and attended Trinity University in San Antonio until 1953 when he received his B. A. degree. Following graduation came his time with Uncle Sam in which he received his basic training at Ft. Bliss, and was assigned to Brooke Army Medical Center in Fort Sam Houston. Overseas duty followed when he was assigned to the 6th Armoured Cavalry Regiment patrolling the Iron Curtain on the Czechoslovakian border.

After his time in the military, he attended Trinity University while working on a graduate degree in sociology. In 1956 he went to San Anselmo, Calif., where he attended San Francisco Theological Seminary. During the summers before graduation in 1959, Ed served the Dauffman-Vanzandt larger parish in 1957 and the First Presbyterian Church in Ballinger in 1958.

Upon his Ordination in his home church at Childress, he was called to Grace Presbyterian Church in Houston, while in Houston he met Anne McLeod during a Junior High Church Camp where they were both counselors. They were married Feb. 28, 1961. Anne Graham was born in Louisville, Ky., and was reared in Houston where she graduated from Reagan High School, and attended Trinity University. Her father, William S. McLeod, works with Oilwell Supply and her mother is a registered nurse.

On Jan. 1, 1962, the Grahams moved to Fort Worth where Ed served under a Special Judicial Commission of Brazos Presbytery as Interim Supply to Saint Timothy United Presbyterian Church. Fort Worth was their home until July 1 when they arrived in Post to become assimilated into this West Texas community.

Faculty vacancies vanish

Board elects 7 teachers

The teacher situation for the coming school year is decidedly better, following Monday night's July meeting of the school board, at which seven new teachers were elected upon the recommendation of Supt. Barry B. Thompson.

Since the board meeting, the superintendent has filled another vacancy, subject, however, to approval of the board.

Besides the election of teachers, the board Monday night adopted a school calendar for 1963-64, heard reports from the superintendent on the beautification project now under way on the school grounds, and upon the schools' plan for Southern Assn. Accreditation, for which it will begin preparation during the coming school year.

The board also voted to accept the bid of Wolf Nursery of Lubbock for trees and shrubs for the school grounds.

ALSO DISCUSSED at the meeting was the upcoming sale of season football tickets and improvements to be made at Antelope Stadium before the arrival of the football season.

Employment of the seven teachers at Monday night's meeting was a direct result of a trip by Supt. Thompson of more than 2,200 miles during a 10-day period recently to seek outstanding teachers.

The new superintendent interviewed approximately 50 people at Southeastern State College, Durant, Okla.; East Central State College, Ada, Okla.; Henderson State Teachers College, Arkadelphia, Ark.; East Texas State College, Commerce, and Texas Christian University and Texas Wesleyan College in Fort Worth.

Only a few vacancies remain to be filled on the faculty. They include a girls' physical education teacher and basketball coach, a physics-chemistry teacher, a fifth grade teacher and a junior high mathematics teacher.

The superintendent informed The Dispatch yesterday that Arthur Robertson of Fort Worth has been employed, subject to board approval, as foreign languages teacher in the high school.

THIS POSITION had been made vacant with the resignation of Miss Linda Reed, who had been elected to the post only May 18. In accepting Miss Reed's resignation Monday night, the board was told that she has accepted a position with the Peace Corps in Bogota, Colombia.

Robertson, whose parents teach in Fort Worth, has a BA degree from East Texas State College with a double major in Spanish and French, and has completed work at Texas Christian University toward his MA degree, except for three hours' work on his thesis.

Among the seven teachers elected by the board Monday night was Glyndol L. Snodgrass, who will teach senior English in high school. He holds a BA degree from Sul Ross State College with a major in English.

Season tickets to go on sale soon
Season tickets to the Post Antelopes' six home football games will go on sale the last week in July, Supt. Barry B. Thompson announced today.

The superintendent told the school board at Monday night's meeting that the home side of the football stadium is being scraped and repainted.

He said plans are to increase the number of reserved seats to about $19, extending from one 35-yard line to the other on the home side of the field.

The board also discussed Monday night the setting up and repairing of the concession stand on the home side, which was blown over by one of this spring's high winds.

SNYDER CONCERNED OVER LOOSE BEES
Been any strange bees buzzing about your place?
Police Dispatcher Kenny Poole got a call from the Snyder Police Department at 9:02 a. m. Sunday saying that two bob-tail trucks that had stopped in Snyder that morning were "losing some of the bees they are hauling."

The Snyder police informed the local dispatcher that the truck had left there traveling toward Post on U. S. Highway 84. Officers were unable to locate the truck in this vicinity.

The Snyder police here that "if you locate the trucks, tell the drivers to get back to Snyder and do something about their bees."

County purchases new equipment
The county commissioners court Monday purchased a used caterpillar D6 tractor with new bulldozer for the joint use of precincts 2 and 3.

The purchase for $16,500 less $2,500 for trade-in of used TD14 tractor, was made from the West Texas Equipment Company of Lubbock, low bidder for $1,000.

The court also voted for precinct 4 to furnish right-of-way for the 3.7 mile extension of FM Road 3245 east from US-84 at Justiceburg. The first 2.7 miles of this road is already approved and will be built later this year.

Flies and mosquitoes appear to be losing
The city is making headway in its campaign against flies and mosquitoes, E. A. Warren, acting city superintendent, said this morning.

The city sprayed twice last week, including the dump grounds, in its battle against mosquitoes after having dusted against flies twice earlier in the week.

Warren said the city had ordered an additional 60 sacks of the solution being used to combat flies.

Accident victim's funeral is held

Funeral services for Mrs. Hazel Marie Williams, who died late last Thursday night in a Lubbock hospital of injuries suffered June 26 in an automobile accident near Snyder, were held at 2:40 p. m. Saturday in the Church of Christ here.

Mrs. Williams had been hospitalized since the night of the accident, in which her husband, Joe Williams, was killed. The couple was on route to Post from their home near Ballinger to visit relatives.

Mrs. Williams was born Hazel Marie Jenkins on April 19, 1923, at Prague, Okla. She and Mr. Williams were married Feb. 23, 1943.

The Rev. D. W. Copeland, pastor of a Snyder Baptist church, officiated at the funeral services, assisted by Leonard Tittle, Church of Christ minister of Post.

Burial was in Terrace Cemetery here under the direction of Hudson Funeral Home. Pallbearers were Henry Wheatley, W. H. Childs, Marshall Tipton, Jack Morris, Jake Heiskill and Bob Thomas.

Mrs. Williams is survived by five sisters, Mmes. Iva Sedberry of Blackwell, Polly Medlin of Lamesa, Becky Romine of O'Donnell, Sylvia Wheatley of Ruidoso, N. M., and Nora Autry of Tahoka, and three brothers, Gus Jenkins of Lovington, N. M., Don Jenkins of Brownfield and Raymond Jenkins of Snyder.

New trees, shrubbery

School grounds are getting 'new look'

An extensive "face lifting" job is under way on the grounds of Post's four school buildings and is expected to be far enough along by fall to have eliminated some of the present "eyesores," the school board was told Monday night by Supt. Barry B. Thompson.

After hearing the report, the board gave its endorsement to the beautification program by voting to accept the bid of Wolf Nursery of Lubbock for the planting of 70 trees and 100 wood shrubs on the school grounds.

Four of the five members present at Monday night's meeting voted for the bid acceptance. The other trustee present, Russell Wilks Jr., said he is strongly in favor of the beautification program, but that he does not believe now is the time to plant trees and shrubs.

Wilks said he thinks it will be better to wait until next spring because of the threatened water shortage and because of the better growing season.

It was explained, however, that the nursery guarantees growth of the trees and shrubs and will replace any that die. It was a 150 brought out that enough water can be hauled in to water the trees and shrubbery until any water shortage threat is over.

The Lubbock nursery firm's bid on the trees and shrubs was $585, the lowest of two bids submitted.

The accepted bid provides for 50 non-bearing mulberry trees, 20 honey-locust trees and 100 wood shrubs, split evenly between purple honeysuckle, nandinas and tamarix juniper.

Supt. Thompson told the board that the city and county "are being most generous with both men and equipment" in the current beautification program.

Rotarians will help sponsor new foreign student

The Post Rotary Club is planning to raise funds to assist the high school student council in bringing another foreign student to the local high school for the 1964-65 school year, if students want to repeat the project in another year.

Dr. B. E. Young, the club's foreign exchange student chairman, told Rotarians at their Tuesday luncheon that due to the cost involved it is not advisable to try to have a foreign student here more often than every other year.

He reported $700 would have to be raised locally before next March to bring a foreign student here for the following school year. The students are sponsored through the American Field Service.

Miss Susanne Krause of Denmark was Post's first foreign exchange student here during the past school year. She is now touring the country and soon will be on her way home.

The Rotarians helped the high school student council raise funds for Miss Krause's year of study here by playing a benefit basketball game with the high school girls' basketball team.

At the luncheon Tuesday, Rotarians also heard reports of committee plans for the new club year in the field of international service and vocational service.

Wesley Scott heads the international service phase of the program and Dave Sanford is vocational service chairman.

Committee chairmen reporting besides Dr. Young in international service were Giles McCrary, Irbey Metcalf and Tom Bouchier. Marvin Hudman and Lee Ward reported on vocational service plans.

Result of crash

Damage suit for $40,625 is filed

Nicholas Barro and P. E. Romo, both of Post, this week filed a $40,625 damage suit in Garza district court here against Melvin Eugene Smith of Pasadena, Tex., and Ryder Trucks, Inc., of Houston.

The suit was the result of a car-truck crash at 12-15 p. m. Sept. 14, 1962, at a dirt road intersection with US-380, five miles west of Post.

Romo's part in the suit was on behalf of his wife, Martha, and his 13-year-old daughter, Ophelia.

Plaintiff's allege Smith, driver of a Ryder Trucks, Inc., tank truck was at fault when his truck hit the side of the Romo car. The suit alleges Mrs. Romo, who was driving, had stopped on the dirt road intersection with the highway and then drove onto the highway where the engine of the car died. Before she could start it, the petition read, the Romo car was hit by the truck.

Romo, on behalf of his wife, asks $7,500 for disability as the result of injuries, $3,500 for pain and suffering, and $1,000 for hospital, doctor and medical bills. On behalf of his daughter, he seeks $10,000 disability for injuries received, $5,000 for pain and suffering, $2,000 for hospital, doctor and medical bills. He also asks $375 for damage to the 1955 automobile which was a total loss.

Barro, who was a passenger in the car, asks $8,000 for disability, $2,500 for pain and suffering, and $750 for hospital, doctor and medical bills.

Injured man is returned home

George Childers was returned to his home here yesterday from a Lubbock hospital, where he had been a patient since being crushed under his pickup truck early last Friday night.

Childers, who lives off the Rails road just north of town, was under the pickup draining oil from it when the vehicle slipped off a jack and fell on him.

Mrs. Childers went for help and Dennis Eubank and some unidentified Latin-Americans extricated Childers from under the vehicle.

He was treated at Garza Memorial Hospital before being transferred to Lubbock.

Mrs. Childers said yesterday that her husband probably will be confined to his bed for two more weeks.

Building through June is $152,950

Building permits issued here through the first six months of 1963 were for construction totaling an estimated $152,950, according to records at the City Hall.

The only two permits in June were for two new homes, both issued to Bill Edwards of General Builders.

One of the homes, costing $14,400, is being constructed at 408 Mohawk Drive, and the other, costing $13,500, is being built at 307 Mohawk Drive, both in the Westgate Terrace Addition.

We must pay "parking price"

Chances are the next time the City Council meets it will vote to give the state highway department the left turn space off Broadway onto Main it seeks at the town's No. 1 intersection.

This will mean the loss of approximately 24 center street parking spaces in the 100 blocks of East and West Main. It also will mean the loss of a few on Broadway, but without particular hardship.

The city's record of close cooperation with the highway department is good. It will remain so.

Like most smaller cities, Post has its downtown parking problem. But primarily it is not in the particular area that will be affected by the proposed change. It is in the 200 block on East Main.

If we face up to current highway trends we all well know the policy in road building to speed traffic flow is to bypass the towns and cities to give the passing through motorist a faster and less dangerous move.

Construction of a bypass around Slaton will begin within the next three or four weeks. The bypass around Snyder should be completed sometime this year. It has been under way for a year now.

If Post is to avoid a similar by-pass within the next few years, it is going to have to make the highway's path through Post as safe and trouble-free as possible.

The left-turn room at the Main Street and Broadway intersection—sought for two years by the highway department—is one step in this direction.

It won't be hard to guess that there will be others.

The city council was reluctant to act last week—in our opinion at least—because they could anticipate an adverse reaction from local business folks.

The Dispatch believes the business community is already prepared for the compromises which must be made for highway safety through Post. Giving up some customer parking is not a happy thought, but loss of the highway is not either.

One thing the business community will need to tackle is the parking of employe cars off Main Street to give the customers all available parking facilities.

If this were carried out with real cooperation on the part of both employers and employees the parking spaces lost to highway safety would not be felt at all.

We believe our business community knows the problem and is willing to work together. Let's get after it!—JC

Water situation "on verge"

Post's water situation is "on the verge" again. That means with a lot of hot dry weather the call may come from City Hall for voluntary restriction of lawn watering.

With a little cooperation from the weatherman, of course, that type of thing can be avoided. A few showers will save the necessity for a large amount of lawn watering.

The heavy June rains have brought so many lawns along so well that residents will hate to give them up. But it's a Post tradition now that they will do so—if it becomes necessary.

The recent June rains put a small string of leased wells out of operation for the city. They were flooded. Whether they can be returned to use in the next few weeks, or will have to be abandoned, has not yet been determined.

City officials are making every effort to boost the water supply as much as possible.

Meanwhile, Post residents, who have cooperated so well in the past, can feel well about one thing. The White River dam will be ready to provide all the water the city wants next summer, providing of course we don't have a prolonged drought that keeps the lake behind the dam from filling up in the next few months.

Next year it will be something else though for grass lovers. There should be all the water you want, but White River water is going to cost more.

Most of the city's current municipal debt was incurred in maintaining its water supply in the face of all kinds of difficulties. That old debt must be paid off as well as the start of a new one on the White River water supply complex next year, and the years which follow.

White River water in itself would cost about the same as current water rates. But with the present water debt added atop White River water costs, the rates will be going up.

But one thing about it. Given the choice of paying more for a sure water supply, we are convinced every Post resident would choose White River water every time.—JC

Let's try research next

Cotton lost almost a million and a half bales in the domestic market during 1961 and 1962. Exports have declined from a five-year level of six million bales annually to an average of 4.5 million for last year and this year.

Cotton is simply not competitive in price. That's the big reason for these losses.

With markets declining, surpluses are mounting and a drastic acreage cut looms ahead. American cotton must compete in price if it is to survive.

Dropping the support price by 8.5 cents a pound, to the world level, might seem the answer. But this extreme "cure" would kill the patient. At this time, high production costs make it impossible for farmers, on their own, to be fully competitive in price. A drastic slash in supports would have a serious effect not only on the cotton belt's economy but on that of the entire nation.

The only real answer lies in rapidly reducing production costs to the point where farmers can stand on their own feet in meeting price competition—without government help. Fortunately, there are real possibilities for cutting costs up to 11 cents per pound within a few years. Top scientists say this can be done—if a crash research program is mounted with all possible speed.

The cotton industry is asking the government for a $10 million outlay to get this research moving—less than two per cent of the government's annual expenditures on its cotton program.

If the government's subsidy program can be done away with in time and a lasting solution to cotton's problems found, this indeed will be a small price to pay.

The solution for other costly farm subsidies is not so easy. But research may be the answer for cotton. Certainly we are in favor of giving it a try.—JC

Keep Post on air maps

The City of Post needs an airport. Few people will argue the point.

For many years now, a private airport here has served local flyers. That airport is about to be closed because of financing and maintenance problems.

Steps to close the private landing strip, Morrow Field, located on the Ralls highway north of Post, will be taken soon now that Spencer Kuykendall has moved from Post.

City councilmen recognize the municipal airport need but want a better location if the city gets into the business. A committee of three councilmen has been named to check locations.

Suitable land is hard to find at any price. It won't be a quick or easy problem to solve.

The city might do well to continue operation of Morrow Field and put it in better condition through the cooperation of the county with its road equipment—until such time as a true municipal airport becomes reality.

But in the meantime we hate to see Post taken off every flyer's air map.—JC

A crisis exists for cotton

The problem of attaining a competitive price for cotton is important to all of us because it's impossible to divorce cotton from our general economy. For that reason, how Congress acts on the problem, which is now before it, could affect almost everyone of us here in Garza County and elsewhere throughout the cotton producing states.

The cotton farmer's woes, as his markets dry up, cause a chain reaction. The impact shakes not only ginners, merchants and those immediately concerned, but also fertilizer dealers, banks, machinery manufacturers, and all in the far-flung complex supplying the cotton farmer with goods and services.

Over the past two years, and mostly because of its price, cotton has suffered a loss of almost a million and a half bales to rayon and other synthetics. A government program saved the export market at least temporarily. But the difference in the cost of cotton in the United States and abroad created serious problems in our domestic markets.

The cotton industry is urging immediate action to eliminate the raw cotton cost disadvantage suffered by U. S. mills, and to provide the improvement in cotton's competitive position that is desperately needed in the domestic market.

It is also calling for a vastly stepped-up research program to reduce production costs so that farmers can meet price competition without relying on subsidies.

Many people besides cotton farmers are vitally concerned with finding the right answer and finding it quickly.—CD

What our contemporaries are saying

As usual, Vacation Bible School yielded some real gems. One little girl reading memory verses aloud for the first time didn't realize how many people practice what she preached when she solemnly read, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel."—Marvin Tomme in The Ralls Banner.

I'VE JUST FINISHED a 10-minute or so telephone conversation with a Dispatch reader who is dissatisfied with the way we are covering the Little League baseball results, this particular reader having one team in mind as catching the "cob-end" of the weekly baseball reports. There isn't a reason in the world why The Dispatch should favor any one of the six Little League teams over the others, and, as we told the complaining reader, if he thinks we have been intentionally doing so, then he is laboring under a delusion and wasting his time as well as ours in a complaining telephone call. It is immaterial to us who wins the Little League championship this season, and if we seem to give a little more space in one issue to one team than we do to another, it is more than likely because we were able to tell more about the score sheet involving that particular team—since the score book is all we have to go by. As long as we get the scores and the standings right, we don't see where any "beef" is justified.

One thing that is hurting the Little League program is that the grown-ups are trying to take it away from the kids with their criticism of umpires, coaches, newspapers, and, on occasion, even criticism of the players as well.

MY FAVORITE column of the month was Ray Erwin's in Editor & Publisher, in which he quoted from The Gossiper, house journal of the Worcester (Massachusetts) Telegram and Gazette. The quotation concerned a reader's responses about what he wants to see in his newspaper:

- 3) My wife's name.
- 4) A feature article showing 23 ways on how to cheat on income tax forms.
- 5) My kids' names.
- 6) A local news item about the affairs my neighbor is having.
- 7) A classified offering a new home for sale for $4,000.

IN TEXAS
BEER IS A NATURAL

From nature's light grain comes sparkling, light beer... Texas' traditional beverage of moderation—it's light, sparkling, delicious.

And naturally, the brewing industry in Texas considers it noteworthy that it contributes more than twenty million dollars to the state in excise taxes each year plus additional millions in licenses and permit fees. These millions of dollars help support our public schools, farm roads, old age pensions, teacher retirement funds and help needy children and blind citizens.

2 Post soldiers help in display for JFK's visit

HANAU, Germany (AHTNC) — Two soldiers from Post, Texas, Pfc. Connie R. Martin and Melvin D. Britton, participated in a massive display of missiles, artillery and engineer equipment in honor of President John F. Kennedy's visit in Hanau, Germany, June 25.

The men are regularly stationed in Germany.

Martin, a driver in Service Battery, 2d Howitzer Battalion, 73d Artillery, 3d Armored Division, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Barney Martin, 609 West Sixth St. The 24-year-old soldier entered the Army in October, 1962, completed basic training at Fort Carson, Colo., and arrived overseas in April, 1963. He is a 1957 graduate of Post High School.

Britton, a driver in Battery C, 2d Howitzer Battalion, 3d Artillery, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Britton, 415 Ave. N. The 19-year-old soldier entered the Army in December, 1960, completed basic training at Fort Sill, Okla., and arrived overseas in June, 1961. He attended Post High School.

CHRIS COPY

Before I went to lunch I put a piece of paper in my typewriter and typed "Chris's Copy" across the top. I had hopes that when I went to lunch this avalanche of ideas would hit me and when I came back I would just start typing away. Very funny. Here I am sitting in front of my typewriter just as blank as I was an hour ago. I sorta suspected that I would be. My family's not a very big help when it comes to column ideas. They're scarce enough as it is.

All you boys that patronize the local recreation club (that means every boy in town) will have the satisfaction of knowing that on Aug. 23 you'll become law-abiding citizens because on Aug. 23, pool halls become legal. I bet ya'll didn't even know they weren't. I sure hope this doesn't ruin the sport for some of you. We girls have always been against them. We just can't figure out why you'd want to spend your time in a pool hall when you could spend it with us. I'm cutting my own throat when I typed that last sentence. I can just imagine some of the answers I'm going to get. Tell you boys what. If you can come up with some pretty good answers I'll put them in my column for the female population of Post to read.

And as long as I'm asking for answers and making enemies I think it only fair for the boys to have a gripe. I was talking to Mr. X during a Coke break one morning and he asked me why girls always waited till after Christmas, Valentine's Day or their birthdays to break up? I'll have to go along with Mr. X on that one because that is a pretty dirty deal. So if you girls have an answer besides the obvious one I'll put it in too. Of course to protect the weaker sex I answered Mr. X with this one. Why do boys always break up before Christmas, Valentine's Day and birthdays and then always want to make up a couple of days later? So boys here's another chance to let us girls know what your thoughts on the matter are besides being broke.

with, with all his different jobs. I saw Donnie Hays working at Hays' Texaco Sunday but I don't know if it's a permanent job or a little brotherly love. Gary Brewer is working for Cox Lumber Co. and that's about all I know, besides that Ronald Simpson peroxidized his hair. Wait, one more thing, Becky Thompson is spending her days now in Alabama.

Brenda Richards was home from Andrews over the weekend so I guess G. T. Mason was happy, and David McCampbell's girlfriend, Betsy Koerselman, of Tulsa and her family spent the night with the McCampbells Sunday night so that must have started David's week off right. I'm glad to know the sugar ants are still hard at work, but it looks like an awfully lonesome week for Cheri Moore with Phil Foster up in Oklahoma.

And one last bit of valuable information. If you ever work at the Post Dispatch, don't wear white sneakers.

The hardest part about parking a Corvair is finding a nickel

That may be a slight overstatement, but such jauntiness comes easily when you're a Corvair owner.

And you can usually back it up—as easily as you can back up a Corvair. You'll find yourself doing that occasionally, if only to adjust the brakes—they're self-adjusting. That's all there is to it, and that's a good example of how delightfully easy Corvair is to own, drive and maintain.

But since we began by talking about driving, let's stick with that awhile. A large factor in the fun of driving a Corvair is the location of its engine in the rear. Why the rear? It gives Corvair extra traction on any road surface. It provides a nearly flat floor for more usable interior space. Best of all, it produces steering so light, so responsive, you wonder why no other American-made car thought of it.

Corvair's engine is also air cooled, we might add, which means there's no antifreeze or water for you to add. Ever.

All that pleasure from something so practical almost makes you think Corvair is unique among American cars. Which isn't surprising, because it is!

I don't care if firecrackers are dangerous the Fourth of July is just not the same any more with that good ole gun powder smell that used to hang in the air from early dawn till late, late night. I even got in some late morning shut-eye that morning and that I wouldn't have been possible back in the "olden days".

Miss C, the younger, and I just returned from a quick errand in the country and I got a bit homesick for "ye old home state" when we saw a big pheasant cock strutting down the road. That is the one that I've seen in a long time. When we lived in Garden City, Kans. they were quite a common sight—that is until the hunting season opened. Then every year without fail one of two of the boys would come into town and stroll up and down the streets seemingly quite aware that they were safe there.

I have little respect for the brain of a fowl as a general rule. This stems from the fact that the Coopers owned a duck. One might think that since we had once owned a rabbit (Benjamin), that we might have learned a lesson about pets, but Mr. C showed off at the State Fair for the Misses Cs and we came home with a duckling about four inches tall that cost exactly 15 cents.

Well it was the same old story. Peep lived in the house with us for awhile but we didn't have such luck with toilet training and he followed us all over the house and we knew someone would eventually step on "it".

The next step was wire fencing, box for sleeping and a tub set in the ground for frequent swims. Here we went again with a trip a week to the feed store for duck food and that duck had quite an appetite.

Peep had passed from the duck-cute stage through the awkward stage and now was just an ordinary looking white duck that stood much trouble standing on her own two feet. I was sure it was a tom over-eating but finally gave a look to the veterinarian. He said I found out that Peep needed vitamins. Wouldn't you now? Then every day it was an out to the pen, put in fresh water, feed the duck and try to member to give her vitamins.

The only intelligent thing that Peep ever did was talk to us while we were in the yard. The rest of the time she was quiet as a mouse. That is till the morning "it" laid an egg. She certainly wanted everyone in the neighborhood to know about that. We were pleased to find out the sex of this egg and treasured the egg for several months. (I hate to think about the odor if any of the children had dropped that egg when we thought it out to show what our duck had done).

Peep did know enough to stay out of the rain. She would go to her box under the eaves and sit. This we thought was rather intelligent even though we thought she liked water. Her poor old mind couldn't cope with the fact that even though the rain dripped, water would keep dripping from the eaves in front of her house the sun would shine for hours before she would waddle out.

None of us will ever forget the Community Room is scene recent shower

Fourteen hostesses entertained with a layette shower honoring Mrs. Charles Propst a week ago Tuesday in the Community Room. Twenty guests called from 3 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon. A pink color theme was carried out. The table was laid with an orange cloth over pink and centered with a pink floral arrangement. White candles completed the decor. Crystal appointments were used. Ginger ale punch, cookies, nuts and nuts were served. The hostesses, who presented Mrs. Propst with a personal gift of a gift for the baby-to-be were: Mrs. Janet Hall, Jerry Hesler, Myrtle Aiken, Glenda Stevens, Lois Boyd, Mabelle Rogers, Ruby Wood, Pearl Polk, Lorene Gordon, Lucille Bush, Isabelle Stelzer, Eva Kennedy, Exa Faye Gilmore and Betty Norman.

morning that we awakened to our first hard freeze of the winter. Cries of anguish came from the Misses Cs bedroom (naturally the pen was outside their window, they didn't mind the smell—they loved her). We rushed in and looked out and there was that dumb duck sitting in the tub of water (or what had been water but had now turned to ice). So out with the ice pick and to the rescue we flew.

This was the most wretched looking duck that anyone could imagine by the time we chipped her out. Into the house we went and held her in towels till the rest of the ice melted from her feet, wings and bill. Somehow or other she lived through this, so back to the pen she went. But no more water in the tub till spring came. Her only trouble then was with her drunken gait (the vitamins didn't really help much) she occasionally fell into the tub and couldn't get out. Everyone in the neighborhood ran to the rescue when Peep started peeping.

Early spring came and we began to feel terribly sorry for this duck. She mostly stood in one spot all day looking most pathetic. Having decided to acquire a dog (this is where Molly enters the picture in a short while) we talked the Misses Cs into taking her to the country to live with friends (human and otherwise).

Ruby Osborn who was then working with Mr. C at the newspaper in Pratt and is now the woman's editor of the Lubbock A-J, came to our rescue and invited Peep to live in the country with them. This was fine with the C girls cause they occasionally spent the weekend with the Osborns and knew they could visit her often.

Peep lasted exactly two weeks in the country. All that wide open space was just too much for her and she just keeled over one day with her feet straight in the air and that was that. Ruby had put her in their fenced yard till she got used to the dogs and other farm animals and that duck was so stupid that she still just stood in one small spot like she was still fenced up. We've always thought that she died of pure fright with a little bit of a broken heart.

Molly had taken over at our house by this time and the Misses Cs weren't too upset over Peep's passing. We still get just a touch of sentiment when we think of her and feel like her life wasn't a total flop—she did have that one splendid moment when she laid her one and only egg and moved from the "it" class to a something.

Art Guild members and guests display paintings at hospital

Members of the Post Art Guild and two guest artists are displaying pictures during the months of July and August in Lubbock Methodist Hospital.

Thirty-nine pictures were hung in the hospital cafeteria and office by Mrs. Leah Mock, Marie Neff, Johnnie Rogers, Mildred Outlaw and Juanice Robinson on July 2.

The pictures are originals and representative of Garza County. They range in size from 38 by 46 inches to 12 by 14. Mediums are in oils, watercolor and salt and oil. Techniques used in oils were monochrome, painting knife, wet on wet and brush strokes.

The invitation to exhibit was sent by Mrs. Elsie Willbanks of Lubbock to Mrs. Robinson who is a member of the South Plains Art Guild.

Program on seat belts scheduled for July 17

The Texas Home Demonstration Association is sponsoring a program on "Seat Belts" Wednesday, July 17, in the Community Room at 2 p. m.

C. A. Dempsey, public relations representative of the Texas Department of Public Safety, will present the program. Following his talk, Pat N. Walker, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce community center committee, will talk to the organization on this subject.

The public is cordially invited to of Lubbock, and member and area representative of the Texas Fine Arts Association. All such exhibits at the hospital are sponsored by the Methodist Hospital Auxiliary.

Those displaying pictures are Mrs. I. N. McCrary and Mrs. Linda Bouchier, guests artists, and Mrs. Gladys Presson, Johnnie Rogers, Leah Mock, Evelyn Neff, Marie Neff, LaVerta Lovell, Iris Power, Eleanor Cooke, Juanice Robinson and Mildred Outlaw.

Because of the time element, the pictures by Mrs. McCrary and Mrs. Presson are of significant interest. Mrs. McCrary's three watercolors were done at the turn of the century, 1901-02. Two are flowers from her mother's garden and the other is of a Civil War soldier.

Mrs. Presson's are two large oil canvases, one of "Old Two Draw" painted in 1932, and one of "Harvest Under the Cap" painted in 1940. All others are more recent paintings.

drowsy afternoon

It is good to lie down on the grass and look up into the sky. Your mind starts to wander — the way it always does when you take the time really to look at it. The heaven is so immense that you can't find a word big enough for it. Those thunderheads, building up in the west — they are so huge that they dwarf the work of man into total insignificance.

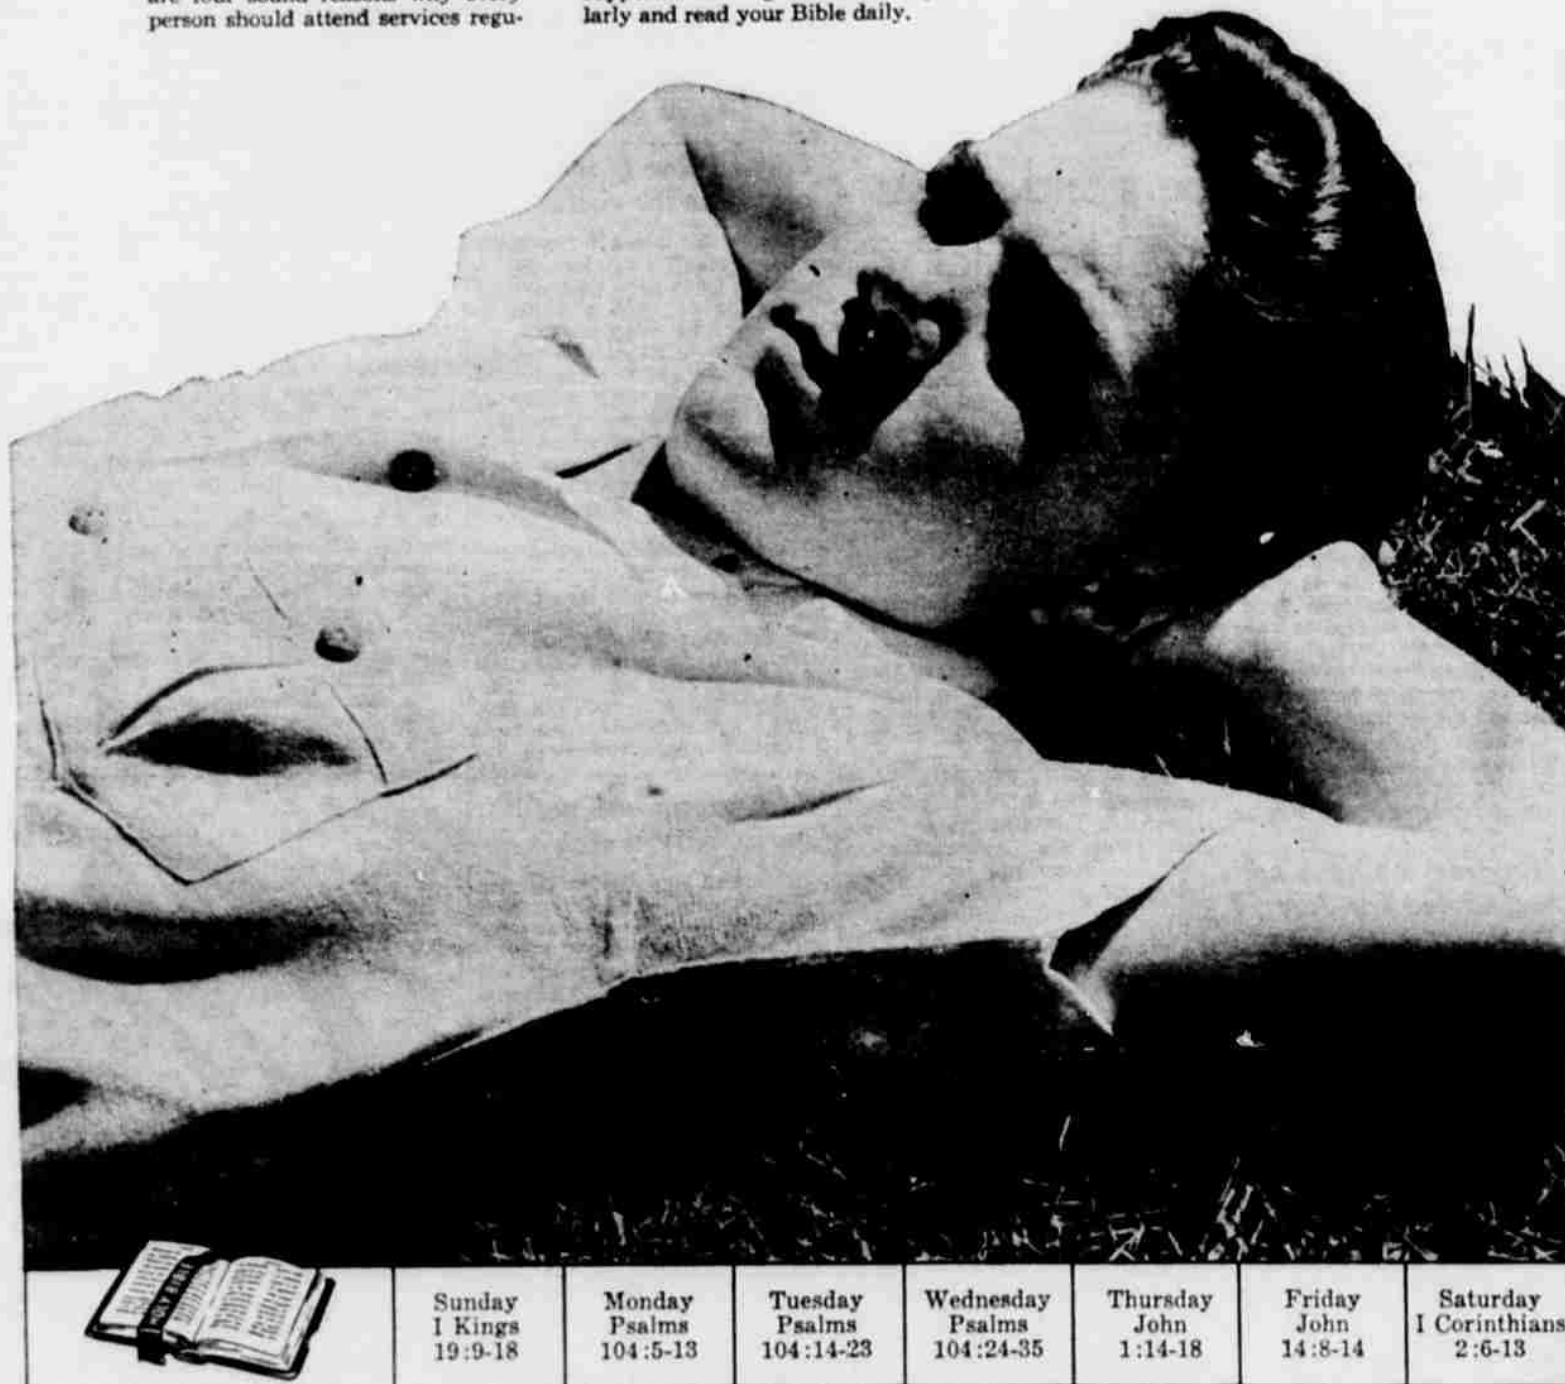

The stars are still up there too. We can't see them in the daytime and always this seems strange. But they are just as much there as they are at night — and you don't have to see them to know it.

You don't have to see God either, to know that He's there — though some people seem to feel it's something that has to be proved. They couldn't be more wrong. God's evidence is everywhere. Just walk into a church on Sunday and sit down and listen awhile, and then you will know for sure.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL • ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Portuguese colony of Macau hints intrigue

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Rev. Bill Hogue, pastor of the First Baptist Church, this week continues his series of articles on the trip he and his wife took to the Far East in the Japan New Life Movement.)

One of the less mentioned places for tourists in the Hong Kong area is Macao or Macau. It is some 40 miles from Hong Kong, and can be visited by ferry or by airplane. We chose our visit to this Portuguese colony by ferry. Friends told us the thrill of a visit to this small six square miles of soil owned and operated by Portugal. We left at approximately 10:30 or 11 in the evening. On board we were shown our small stateroom with single bunks, and told our arrival in Macau would be approximately 3 in the morning, but not be wakened until 7. There we were to pass customs and get our visas since we had not obtained them before coming to this city.

We awoke from a fair night's sleep, made our way down the gangplank after freshening up a bit, achieved our visa, and were prepared for the day. The smell of fish and the general smells that had been so evident in Hong Kong had apparently not left us. In the small harbor the constant chattering of boat people greeted our ears along with their presentations of fish for sale and their waste systems. Boat houses and junks were aplenty. I was impressed if one can't find a home on the land, the best thing nearest is a home in the water, where little upkeep and care is necessary, and it is a place to call "home."

The day was magnificently full. We were greeted by pedicabs and their peddlers; these are rickshaws put to bicycle fronts and peddling gears. Though we did not take a pedicab at first, we did use one a bit later when we came out of the Macau Inn where a friend was staying for the week. We found the pedicabs to be the leisure way of really seeing the city away from the hurry and bustle we had experienced in Japan and Hong Kong. It seemed a fascinatingly different world. Autos were few, and they were slow. Rickshaws and pedicabs, with a few bicycles were the chief means of transportation.

In the years that have passed, this colony was known as a den of Oriental iniquity where cloak and dagger intrigues were very common before the war. Where the fishing junks used to smuggle oil and gold, or thrived on slavery, there is quiet fishing and other sorts of industry. The most famous of industries for the tourist is gambling (which I dared not partake, especially from my pilgrim background). However, where there used to be fan tan dens on every corner, legitimate businesses take their place. One large casino does operate under the very watchful eye of the law, with another in the making by a plush European concern. People from over the world frequent these particular places, listening to the Chinese rattle and click of ivory squares and other gambling devices.

Yet Macau has a true simplicity about it I liked. It was not a city in a hurry. Riding down the tidy, narrow streets through squares of oleander and bamboo, one got the feeling there was an air of life and let live. For centuries the Portuguese has held control, except for brief periods when pirates had conquered the colony. Yet, though the European mark had been left by the kind of houses that were there and the pitiful amount of European language used, the sing-song chant of the Orient took the tune to tell this was still almost entirely Oriental. So the slow pace of this semi-tropical climate had infested this better than 250,000 population with a pace that would allow one to live and let live.

The reason may be from the realization that if Red China so wished to raise or break the bamboo curtain, that nation could do so. The only thing that separates the Macau peninsula is the Barrier Gate at the end of a sandy road lined with flame trees and a few soldiers. In and out this gate pour card-carrying people who sell in Macau or have special dealings in the interior. We stood at a distance from this gate and watched people coming in and going out with packs on their backs, such as matches, firecrackers, or food-stuffs raised by the people in the Communes. Our guide said that many people came in and out that gate, few to stay, but most wanting to.

The gate reminded us of the communes across the small body of water that separated Macau from the mainland. We saw the bunkers, the soldier guards, and their gunboats. This told us tales of death and slavery. Some time before we arrived, we were told a group of people were lined up on the beach before the communes in plain view of the people of Macau and shot down before a firing squad. A Portuguese sentry told of the gate closing at night. It is closed always at sundown. Said the sentry, "We do not recognize Red China, so technically, the Gate leads to nowhere."

Macau in the same situation as Hong Kong regarding Red China. Without firing a shot, the peninsula could be taken, meaning this quarter of a million people who are mostly refugees from China on six square miles would not be refugees at all, but prisoners once again. Among the narrow downtown streets one sees laundry hanging out over the street to dry, hears Buddhist prayers and sees their flags; and watches as the vendors cry out to sell their noodles and lotus roots. One can buy most any ancient remedy to drive away demons and cure supposed diseases—such as dried snakeskins, powdered tusks, shark's fin, and laquered duck. Yet amid these are monasteries, convents and chapels, dating back to the beginning reign of the Portuguese. Most are still adherents to primitive Chinese religious beliefs. To these we saw the possibility of sharing the joy of our mission work.

"Minute Men" was the name given to companies of militia organized at the time of the Revolution.

Farmers Home Administration in full support Operation BIG move

LUBBOCK — With almost half or approximately one million acres of this year's High Plains cotton crop being planted in June, good management decisions and proper production practices could well mean the difference between a cotton crop or no crop at all for many farmers this fall. One of the major decisions which must be made at this time is whether or not to fertilize and if so when and how much.

Realizing the importance of this problem, the Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. contacted the Extension Service, the Texas Experiment Station, and the High Plains Research Foundation, Halfway, for information on this subject which might be helpful to area farmers.

Harvey Walker, agronomist, T.A.E.S. No. 8, stressed that fertilizer cannot be used to gain time or hasten maturity. He further stated that on heavier soils such as those found north of Lubbock, where a good fertilizer program has been followed in previous years and the nutrient level is high, profitable returns from the use of additional fertilizer would be highly unlikely. In the lighter soils south of Lubbock and especially in those areas which have experienced torrential rains, 30 to 50 pounds per acre of Nitrogen could possibly be used to good advantage. Response from the use of Phosphorus is highly doubtful except in cases where the level of this nutrient is known to be low.

In considering the use of additional fertilizer it should be remembered that the plants highest nutrient requirements come before the first bloom and that fertilizer should be applied before squaring if at all possible. This is especially important in working with a late crop which could run into serious difficulties such as increased vegetative growth and a large percentage of green bolls and immature cotton at frost if certain conditions such as low night temperatures and excess water, are combined with a high nutrient level. The end result would be decreased yields and a high per cent of wasty cotton which carries a discount in the market place and in the government loan.

Delbert Langford, High Plains Research Foundation stated that cotton in the Halfway area and surrounding territory which was planted after June 10 would probably not benefit from the application of additional fertilizer. Earlier planting of cotton could possibly benefit from the use of Nitrogen depending on the stage of growth and the nutrient level of the soil. He cautioned however that careful consideration should be given to the growth pattern and size of the plant, along with the planting date.

GOLF CHAMPION RECEIVES HIS PRIZE

Roger Camp winner of Caprock Golf Tourney

Young Roger Camp proved here for the home folks over the weekend he had learned his "golf lessons" well at the New Mexico Military Institute at Roswell this last year.

The honor student jumped out to a big lead Saturday in the first annual Caprock Golf Course Tournament and then coasted home to a four stroke triumph in the championship flight in Sunday's final round.

Roger won a set of four woods as he carded a net of 63-72 for a 135 stroke total. The former Post High golfer, who took up the game five years ago on the same course, had an eight stroke handicap on each of the two 18 hole rounds.

At Roswell, he was elected captain of the institute's collegiate golf team and was the leading shooter in its collegiate ranks.

His card showed a one-over-par 71 for Saturday's round, one of his best rounds of the year.

Sunday in the same foursome with his three closest pursuers, Camp played steadily to grab top honors.

Post golfers, who dominated the 51-player field with 30 entrants, also won both the first and second flight titles.

Glenn Potts of Post took the first flight honors with a six stroke bulge with a net of 128 and Jack Kennedy grabbed the second flight by a one stroke margin with a net of 129.

Each also won a set of four woods.

Runnerup in the championship flight was Auvy McBride of Post with a 139 stroke net for the 36 holes. Charles Hopkins and Walter B. Holland, both of Post, tied for third and split the dozen golf balls which was the prize. McBride won a set of three woods as runnerup.

Jimmy Bragg of Tahoka was runnerup in the first flight with a net of 134 strokes and Jim Durbin won a playoff for third after tying with 140 strokes with Jackie Hays of Post, Jack Robertson of Tahoka, and Jim Hundley Sr. of Post.

Jim Stinnett of Floydada was runnerup in the second flight after winning a playoff with Bob Sinner of Post. Both had tied at 130 each.

Charles Hopkins, who along with Jimmy Hundley received no handicap strokes, shot an even par 140 for the lowest gross score of the tourney. He had a two under 68 Sunday after going two over par with a 72 Saturday. Hundley was a stroke behind and a stroke out of the prize class with a 68-73 for a 141 when he three-putted the final green Sunday going for a birdie putt.

Visiting players from Lamesa, Floydada, Slaton, Lubbock, Tahoka, Grassland, and Ralls participated in the tourney and expressed themselves well pleased with the sporty nine-hole course and the efficient way the Chamber of Commerce-sponsored event was handled.

Other results in the three flights, listing only the net score for each player for the 36 holes:

Hundley 141, George Sturdivant of Lamesa 142, T. W. Baitley of Floydada 144, Oscar Garner 145, Martin Burnham of Slaton 145, Max Dvess of Floydada 146, Julius Stelzer 147, Jim Brewer of Lubbock 149, Leo Acker 149, Wilki McNeil of Tahoka 151, and Leslie Acker 152.

First Flight: W. O. Newberry of Floydada 141, Wade Hollifield of Tahoka 141, B. R. Foster 142, Bill Griffin of Tahoka 142, Mike Mitchell 143, Oscar Bruce 144, Walton Terry of Tahoka 147, Jake Watson of Floydada 151, Melvin Garner of Lubbock 152, Earl Chanman 153, T. I. Holland of Floydada 154.

Twenty Post Little League players, from among whom an all-star squad of 14 players will be picked by the manager, have been selected by managers of the six teams in the Little League.

Post's All-Stars will compete July 18-20 in the district tournament at Tahoka. The team has drawn a first-round bye and will see its first action at 7:30 p. m. Friday, July 19, against the winner of the Tahoka-Lamesa game.

Jimmy McElroy, whose Red Sox, sponsored by Brown Bros. et al, won this season's Little League championship, is manager of the all-star squad and will pick its 14 players Friday from among the 20 boys selected by the team managers.

Pat N. Walker, whose Dodgers finished in second place, will assist McElroy as coach of the all-star aggregation.

The champion Red Sox placed five boys on the 20-player group selected by the managers. They are Frank Hernandez, James Stone, Steve Colazzo, Jay Bird and Butch Heaton.

Dodger players are Terry Cross, Neff Walker, Richard Puergel, Bill Alexander and Larry Holland.

The Yankees furnished Jackie Hair, Randy Levens, Mike Levens and Mike Scott.

Representing the Corvairs are Terry Moreau and Darrell Odum. The Cardinals are represented by Malzone Johnson III and Jimmy Ammons and the Tigers by Carl Hall and Victor Vargas.

CASH GETS 'REST'

WITH NO CHANCES

One of the rarities of baseball occurred June 27 in a game between the Detroit Tigers and Minnesota Twins and involved Tiger first baseman Norm Cash.

Cash had no fielding chances at first base in the game, duplicating a rarity experienced in the majors since 1900 only by John Clancy of the White Sox in 1930 and Rip Collins of the Cubs in 1937.

The "rest" at first base may have been one of the reasons for the former Garza County boy's bat to start booming again. Over the weekend, Cash slugged a three-run homer to give Detroit a win over Kansas City, and Sunday got four hits in six official trips to the plate in a doubleheader against the Athletics. One of the hits was a four-bagger.

Bowling tourney

winds up in tie

G. L. Rinker of Post and Ronnie Kennedy of Slaton tied for first place in the Fourth of July double elimination men's singles bowling tournament held at the Tangerine Bowl here last Thursday.

Rinker went into the finals with one defeat and then defeated Kennedy in the first series to leave them all even. They bowled another series for the title and wound up in a 568 pin tie.

That's when they decided to call it a tie instead of bowling more. By that time Rinker already had bowled 24 lines for the day.

Each won $101.35 for the split triumph.

Twenty men bowlers competed in the holiday event.

Post's Legion

pitching duel

David Nichols lost a pitching duel to Barrett of the Lubbock Bull Cheeks, 1-0, here last Thursday night with the Lubbock hurler spinning a no-hit, no-run game.

It was the final game of the season for the Post American Legion Junior team, which managed only one victory in league play.

Nichols struck out 15 Lubbock batters and gave up only four hits, but his performance was eclipsed by that of the Lubbock chucker, who struck out 17 in hurling a no-hitter.

The game's only run came in the fifth inning when Barrett was hit by the pitcher and scored on Foster's double.

Post had men on base in six of the seven innings, but couldn't bring them around. Nichols Beginning with one store in 1953, by Jan. 1, 1956, Shop Rite Foods was operating nine Piggly Wiggly stores, and at that time three more stores and the Piggly Wiggly franchise were purchased in Amarillo from the Boston Family. These three stores have since then been replaced with new, large, modern stores. Fantastic growth sprang from this small beginning, and soon Piggly Wiggly customers in other large areas of Texas began enjoying savings gained by volume buying, and Piggly Wiggly began to be recognized as THE place to save on nationally famous brands. These facts, coupled with the fast, friendly service within the stores, made the Piggly Wiggly famous in the west. Help us celebrate our 10th Anniversary by registering daily for these valuable prizes. No purchase is necessary and you need not be present to win. Only residents of Texas, New Mexico, and Oklahoma, 18 years or older, may participate. Employees of Piggly Wiggly, its subsidiaries and their immediate families are not eligible.
