Poison, Luxury, Necessity—the Tomato Evolves In Its Century of Edible Existence

Governor Ferguson of Texas, with Tomato Salad

HOW the tomato has evolved! Not so long ago it was regarded as poison, and, judging by its original name, "love apple," apparently a most insidious one. Then it became a luxury. Now the tomato enters into more dishes served on the American table than does any other fruit or vegetable.

For children, tomato juice is now recommended at any age over three months, but for adults probably the most familiar way of eating the tomato is in salads, with mayonnaise. If you fancy the tomato, perhaps you would like the special salad dedicated to Governor Ferguson.

Ma Ferguson Salad

- 6 medium tomatoes, peeled; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 2 tablespoons double-whipped mayonnaise; 2 tablespoons celery, diced; 2 tablespoons cucumber, finely diced; 1/8 canned asparagus tips.

Cut off thin slice from stem-end of each tomato, and remove seeds and part of pulp. Salt inside of tomatoes, invert, and chill 30 minutes. Blend mayonnaise, celery, and cucumber. Fill mixture in tomatoes. Place 2 asparagus tips (chilled and marinated) around each tomato on crisp lettuce. Serve with additional mayonnaise and garnish of green onion rings.

MAGNOLIA "TORTURE CAR" VISITS HERE WEDNESDAY

Considerable interest and attention was attracted here last Wednesday afternoon when the Magnolia "torture car" paused on its tour thru Magnolia land.

Piloted by K. L. Robbins, one of the engineers of the company, the car is being driven without a radiator or any other cooling medium other than a fan, for the purpose of demonstrating the efficiency of Magnolia Socony oil.

The car, a standard Plymouth, has been driven a total of 42,000 miles. The first ten thousand were in Death Valley before the radiator was removed, and the remaining distance has been traversed with the radiator entirely removed from the car. An instrument board registers the temperature of the cylinder walls, the engine block, etc.

The car halted at the Magnolia station for more than an hour so that everyone might thoroughly inspect the motor and question the operator, who explained just why and how the apparently impossible feat is being carried through. W. J. Shook, agent and the local dealers officially welcomed the visitors to O'Donnell and helped answer questions.

Save to Buy-- Buy to Save

Read this headline forwards or read it backwards—it gives you the same sound advice.

You have certain fixed living expenses; rent, food, clothing, light and other necessities. You save money every week so that these bills can be paid at the first of every month. Whatever else you buy must come from surplus savings, over and above those set apart to cover living costs. To make those savings buy the utmost value for the money is the essential of true economy.

Save to Buy—then Buy to Save. Know what you need to buy before going to the store. Know what you can afford to buy before you start out to make a purchase. That is one sure way to get the most for your money.

Make it a habit to read the advertisements in your Newspaper every week. By doing so you will learn where to buy the things you need and where your dollar will buy the greatest value. The advertisements will show you where to purchase better food, better clothes, and yet save you money. They will help you live better and enjoy the good things of life. They help you to buy in order to save.

Correction

Our information concerning the results of the Basking Beauty Revue at the American Legion Convention at Lamesa was not correct in all details. Miss Merle Miles, who represented the Fern Allen Post, placed second instead of fourth as was previously announced. The Index is very glad indeed to make this correction, because we had wondered where three young ladies more attractive than Merle could come from.

Federal Housing Bill Becomes Law Thurs.

Of primary interest to John G. Public and his wife was the signing of the Federal housing bill by President Roosevelt last Thursday. Because this is the one bill which will bring factual evidence to the general run of citizens that recovery efforts are intended to reach every class.

The bill is called a housing bill, but it is really a mortgage guaranty bill. Through its benefits, millions of small home owners in the United States will be enabled to improve their property through loans from banks and loan associations, with the Federal government underwriting or guaranteeing payment.

This bill has been considered for several weeks, was passed by both divisions of Congress and is now officially a law.

The plan was given a quick boost on the day it became legal, when the National Retail Lumber Dealers' Association ordered a ten per cent reduction in the price of lumber and building materials.

At least a score of home owners in an immediate territory have asked for more information concerning this plan, and as fast as the Index can secure it, it will be published.

It is hoped, however, that the rules and regulations set up to administer this law are more liberal and simple than those governing many of the relief plans. Red tape and technicalities have slowed up the national recovery program in no small extent, but when one considers the vast expansion plan, such inconveniences are only to be expected.

While the editor makes no claims to being an expert in political affairs nor even an economist except where it comes to stretching a dollar into the greatest number of beans and potatoes, it has seemed that the administration's plans so far have neglected the great middle class.

Those of us who are not classed as laborers, nor as destitute, nor, most emphatically as capitalists, have had to struggle along as best we could on gleanings. Not destitute enough to be placed on the relief rolls of the state, and not important enough to be helped by legislation for capital and industry, we're rather been on the outside looking in. Now perhaps we can put that new roof on the house, put in that bathroom, build that sleeping porch, and prop up that sagging porch roof.

This program will likely be watched more eagerly than any other by the above mentioned John G. Public and his family.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT TO USE LETTERS FOR WORDS

Austin, Texas, July 2.—The Texas State Department of Health has joined the Government and other organizations in the use of letters to designate phases of their work, according to Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer. The letters used at this time are FFF and they stand for fingers, flies, and food—the three most common methods of transmitting intestinal diseases.

The three Fs are generally responsible for the spread of typhoid fever, diarrhea, dysentery, and enteritis. Drinking water is considered a food and, as it is used by all ages, great care should be exercised to assure one that their supply is pure. If uncertain the water should be boiled before being used for drinking purposes. Surface water and shallow wells are always to be suspected unless proven otherwise. Your city or county health officer will be glad to advise you on the proper method to use in chlorinating your water supply.

It is during hot weather when the most complaints are received on account of diarrhea and dysentery, and parents should do their utmost to prevent it. The chief causes include impure milk, water, contaminated foods or wrosted diet. If diarrhea develops the feeding should be stopped or greatly diminished and a physician called. Carthartics should not be given unless the doctor prescribes them.

The three Fs are the three sources of danger to the baby. Flies carry disease germs to the baby and its food. Fingers and hands that are not thoroughly washed before preparing the babies food are likely to be germ carriers also. All milk and water intended for the baby should be boiled for five minutes and then carefully covered and kept in a cool place until used.

ACREAGE REDUCTION TEACHES ROTATION

Victoria.—The government cotton acreage reduction taught J. F. Ballard of Victoria county the value of legumes in a crop rotation plan. Last fall he planted 12 acres of cow peas on plowed-up cotton land and turned them under green. He now has this acres planted corn and states the corn where the peas were planted can be told to the row as it is still green while the other corn is stilling. "This corn is larger has a much healthier appearance, and will make a fair crop of corn without man while the other will not make anything without rain," Mr. Ballard says. He has planted all of his retired cotton acres in peas this year to add to the fertility of the soil.

TERRACING INCREASES YIELD OF OATS

Comanche.—At least 10 bushels more oats will be made on the 40-acre field of Tom Homsley of Comanche county than would have been made if the land had not been terraced, according to an estimate made for the county agent.

He also states that he finds that the road water is an aid to his place for he has well run and constructed terraces that catch the road water and spread it over a large flat area and let it remain until a good hot ton season is stored up.

A large number of grain men who have gone over the oats say that they will make at least 55 to 60 bushels average per acre, and along the where the extra road water was spread they will make from 80 to 90 bushels per acre," Mr. Homsley adds.

STRAWBERRIES PAY BIG DIVIDENDS

Mount Vernon.—A small plot slightly less than one-quarter of an acre planted in strawberries paid large dividends to J. B. Jagers of Franklin county, according to the county agent. From this plot he sold $88.15 worth of berries, and his actual expenses for marketing were $19.14. This left him a net profit of $69.01.

Many of the berries were sold locally by the bucket. The variety is Bakemore which was planted in February 1933. They withstood the dry summer of 1933 with less than 10 per cent loss.
