HOW MUCH TO MOVE

S SOON as we can, we'll bring to bear on A the Japs all the additional might we've been using against Germany.

What will it cost, this Moving Day of War? Estimate it in these terms: The job of moving millions of men from one front to another. Thousands of ships to carry the supplies of battle. Swarms of new-type aircraft to blast the path into enemy territory.

You can get an idea of the cost from the fact that Uncle Sam needs 7 billions from us in the mighty Seventh War Loan-now!

The Seventh War Loan will call for the greatest bond-buying we have ever done.

Stalingrad rocked under a murderous barrage. Late one night, a creaking ferryboat, piloted by a wheezened old boatman, smashed by a shell. The old man and a young lieutenant aboard were thrown into the river. The heavilypacked soldier started to go down. "Here," shouted the old man, "take this life preserver," looped it over the officer's shoulder. The lieutenant tried to push it away. "Stop, you fool," screamed the boatman. "I'm old-my arm is missing. I'm through. But you're young and can light. Take the preserver. Hold Stalingrad!"

Washington, D. C.

RUSSIA AND ALLIES SAN FRANCISCO. - To the average outsider, the most difficult thing to understand about this conference is the attitude of the Russians. Poor press relations, plus a few inept moves have melted down a large ountain of goodwill built up by the valor of the Red army. In a few days they have destroyed of the favorable sentiment in Latin America, and through no fault of ours, won us more friends below the Rio Grande than we ever had

One of the things Molotov did in San Francisco was to invite two prominent Latin - American delegates to dinner at the Russian consulate, along with a few carefully selected Europeans. Latin guests were Mexico's tall, handsome Foreign Minister Padilla, and Chile's aristocratic Foreign Minister Joaquin Fernandez Y Fernandez, who is rapidly assuming a new leadership in Latin America.

Molotov drank a toast to Chile and her new establishment of diplomatic relations with Russia.

"There are so many Chileans who want to become Ambassador to Moscow," joked Foreign Minister Fernandez in return, "that it is one of my greatest problems." Mexico's Padilla, apparently on excellent terms with Molotov, said: "All Latin America would be pleased if our sister republic, Argentina, was admitted to the conference."

Molotov, in mellow mood, seemed to register no objection.

Mood Changes. But a day later the mood was different. Padilla arose in secret session to propose Secretary Stettinius as permanent chairman of the conference. Molotov promptly objected. He pointed out that four countries had invited the other nations to attend this conference and that the representatives of all four host countries should rotate as chairman. Foreign Minister Padilla then delivered a recitation of previous precedents where the nation which served as host also acted as chairman. When he had finished, Molotov, who had already pointed out that four nations were hosts, got up and remarked:

"I am glad to be instructed in diplomatic procedure by the delegate of Mexico, but apparently he prepared his little speech before he heard my view."

Padilla, who had not read h speech, was taken aback. He mum led something about always being prepared when he attended a conference, and sat down. After a long, hot debate, Molotov won his point. on the Mexican lost him friends. A lot of Latins, jealous of Padilla's brilliant oratory, previously had been opposed to him. But Molotov veered them in the opposite direc-

Next day, in secret session, For-eign Minister Jan Masaryk of Czechoslovakia, a nation cooperating with Russia, pointed to the vacant chair of Poland and moved that the Lublin government be admitted. Foreign Minister Subasich of Yugoslavia, also close to Russia, seconded the motion. Whereupon, Anthony Eden, white-faced and prim, emphatically opposed. There followed more hot debate. Finally, to break the deadlock, Foreign Minister Spaak of Belgium proposed a compromise resolution expressing sympathy with Poland and hoping that she could be admitted soon. Genial, rotund Ambassador Caceres of Honduras, a great friend of the U.S.A., rose to second

Whereupon Molotov cracked back: "Notwithstanding the support of the Republic of Honduras, the Soviet Union stands by its position."

Delegates Startled.

A note of biting sarcasm rang brough Molotov's voice which startled the delegates. It sounded as if the powerful Soviet Union, representing the greatest land-mass in the world, was trying to put the tiniest republic in Latin America in its place. Again, Russia lost more friends. And later when the vote was taken on seating Lublin Poland, she lost that alco.

These are some of the things about the Russians that take a lot of understanding. On the other hand, when Molotov, after winning his point on rotating the chairmanship, finally sat in Stettinius' place, he did an excellent job. He got off a little gag about being glad the conference would now have an opportunity to hear Russian, and proceeded to handle the session in most expert manner.

OKINAWA.-Back nearly two years ago when I was with Oklahoma's 45th division in Sicily and later in Italy, I learned they had a number of Navajo Indians in communications.

When secret orders had to be given over the phone these boys gave them to one another in Navajo. Practically nobody in the world understands Navajo except another Navajo.

Well, my regiment of First division marines has the same thing. There are about eight Indians who do this special work. They are good marines and very proud of being so.

There are two brothers among them, both named Joe. Their last names are the ones that are different. I guess that's a Navajo custom, though I never knew of it be-

One brother, Pfc. Joe Gatewood, went to the Indian school in Albuquerque. In fact our house is on the very same street, and Joe said it sure was good to see somebody Joe has been out here three years. He is 34 and has five children back home whom he would like to see. He was wounded several months ago and got the Purple Heart.

Joe's brother is Joe Kellwood who has also been out here three years. A couple of the others are Pfc. Alex Williams of Winslow, Ariz., and Pvt. Oscar Carroll of Fort Defiance, Ariz., which is the capital of the Navajo reservation. Most of the boys are from around Fort Defiance and used to work for the Indian bureau.

Rainbow Good Sign to Braves

The Indian boys knew before we got to Okinawa that the invasion landing wasn't going to be very tough. They were the only ones in the convoy who did know it. For one thing they saw signs and for another they used their own influence.

Before the convoy left the far south tropical island where the Navajos had been training since the last campaign, the boys put on a ceremonial dance.

The Red Cross furnished some colored cloth and paint to stain their faces. They made up the rest of their Indian costumes from chicken feathers, sea shells, cocoanuts, empty ration cans and rifle car-

Then they did their own native ceremonial chants and dances out there under the tropical palm trees with several the grave audience.

In their chant they asked the great gods in the sky to sap the Japanese of their strength for this blitz. They put the finger of weakness on the Japs. And then they ended their ceremonial chant by singing the marine corps song in Navajo.

I asked Joe Gatewood if they really felt their dance had something to do with the ease of our landing and he said the boys did believe so and were very serious about it, himself included.

"I knew nothing was going to happen to us," Joe said, "for on the way up here there was a rainbow over the convoy and I knew then everything would be all right."

There is one very small marine who is as nice as he can be, always smiling and making some cfack. But the boys say that in battle he doesn't give a damn for anything.

The first afternoon I joined his company he didn't know who I was and as we passed, he said very respectfully, "Good evening, Colonel." I had to chuckle to myself. Later he mentioned it and we laughed about it and then he started calling me Ernie.

He was Corp. Charles Bradshaw of Indianapolis. He is only 19 but on his third campaign in the Pacific. He's had three pieces of shrapnel in him at various times and months later they would work out through the skin. Another one is just about to come out of his finger now.

In the marines Corporal Brad-shaw is called "Brady" for short. Before joining the marines he worked on a section gang for the Pennsylvania railroad. He usually wears one of those wide-brimmed green cloth hats instead of the regulation marine cap.

He always carries a .45 and it has a slightly curved 25-cent piece imbedded in the handle. As he says, "to make it worth something."

Marines Human Under Hard Crust

Marines may be killers, but they're also just as sentimental as anybody else.

There is one pleasant boy in our company that I had talked with but didn't have any little incident to write about him, so didn't put his name down. The morning I left the company and was saying goodby all around, I could sense that he wanted to tell me something, so I hung around until it came out. It was about his daughter.

This marine was Corp. Robert Kingan of Cuyahoga Fails, Ohio. He has been a marine for 13 months and over here 11 months. His daughter was born about six weeks ago. Naturally he has never seen her, but he's had a letter from her!

It was a V letter written in a childish scrawl and said: "Hello, Daddy, I am Karen Louise. I was born February 25 at four minutes after nine. weigh five pounds and eight nces. Your daughter, Karen.

And then there was a P.S. on the ottom which said: "Postmaster - Please rush. My daddy doesn't know I am here." Bob didn't know whether it was actually his wife or his mother-inlaw who wrote the letter. He thinks maybe it was his mother-in-law-Mrs. A. H. Morgan-since it had her return address on it.

So I put that down and then asked Bob what his mother-in-law's first name was. He looked off into space for a moment, and then started

"I don't know what her first name he said, "I always just called her Mrs. Morgan!"

A good many of the Okinawan civilians, while wandering along the roadside, bow low to every American they meet. Whether this is from fear or native courtesy I do not know, but anyhow they do it. And the Americans being Americans usually bow right back.

One of the marines I know got mixed up in one of these little howing incidents the other day. He is Pfc. Roy Sellers, a machine gunner from Amelia, Ohio, Roy is married and has a little girl two years old. He used to be a machinist at the Cincinnati Milling Machine company. He played semipro ball too.

When Roy has a beard he looks ust like a tramp in a stage play. He is only 27, but looks much older. In fact he goes by the nickname "Old Man."

Well, one day Old Man was trying to ride a Japanese bicycle along the bank of a little river where we camped. The ground was rough and the bicycle had only one pedal and Roy was having a struggle to keep his bike upright. Just then an old Okinawan, bareheaded and dressed in a black kimona and carrying a dirty sack, walked through our little camp. He wasn't supposed to be at large but it was none of our business and we didn't molest him.

He was bowing to everyone, right and left, as he passed. Then he met Machine Gunner Sellers on his onepedaled bicycle. Roy was already having his troubles.

As he came abreast of the Okinawan, Roy bowed deeply over the handle bars, hit a rut, lost his balance and over he went. The Okinawan, with Oriental inscrutability, returned the bow and never looked back.

We all laughed our heads off. 'Who's bowing to whom around here?" we asked. Roy denied he had bowed first. But we knew better. After that he decided to give Brady found two huge photograph his old bicycle away to somebody

THE DEFEAT OF THE SOUTHERN KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 18:1-10, 15a, 17a.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come, and let us return unto the Lord.—Hosea 6:1.

History repeats itself. Men never seem to learn from the experiences of others, whether they be personal or national. Judah, the southern part of the divided kingdom, saw the downward path of Israel and its ultimate captivity. The same process went on in Judah, although hindered now and then by good kings who brought about a partial return to Ultimately the day came when Jerusalem was destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar's troops and the people carried off to their long years of captivity in Babylon.

Jeremiah ministered as God's prophet during Judah's declining years, bringing them God's word of udgment for their sins and urging them to submit. His voice was unheeded and for his faithfulness he received only their hatred and persecution. God gave him the strength and grace to be true in a very diffi-

Our lesson for today tells how God in a graphic object lesson taught the prophet and the people that they were in the hands of a sympathetic but at the same time a sovereign God I. The Potter and His Work (vv.

The maker of pottery took the lump of clay, placed it on his wheel, and with his hand formed it into the kind of vessel he wanted. If it became misshapen or showed a defect, he could moisten and remold the clay into another vessel as it suited him. The clay was in his hand to meet his purpose and his

Dr. G. Campbell Morgan fittingly suggests that there are three things to be borne in mind here: a principle, a purpose, and a person. And as we apply the truth to ourselves as God's children, we spell the Person of the Potter with a capital "P," for He is none other than God Him-

The principle is that God is absolutely sovereign, that He does as He wills for His own glory. Until we recognize that principle, "life will be a failure. If, however, I have discovered this principle alone, then my soul will be filled with terror. I must also see the purpose.'

The purpose is the working out His will for each of us. He knows us, and He has a plan for our lives, and is able to make that plan come to pass if we permit Him to do so.

But, as Dr. Morgan says, "if I know principle and purpose only, I shall yet tremble and wonder, and be filled with a haunting foreboding. But as "I press through the principle and beyond the purpose and discover the Person of the Potter, then the purpose will flame with light, and the principle that appears so hard and severe will become the sweetest and tenderest thing in my life."

God spoke to Jeremiah through the scene in the potter's house, and He also wants to talk to our hearts.

II. God and Judah (vv. 5-10, 15a, The lesson is plain. God had for His people a high and glorious purpose. He wanted to bless them and use them for His glory. But they were a sinful and rebellious people, stiff-necked and stubborn in their unbelief, and the vessel of honor which God did not act in anger or in disregard of their rights. He was forced to bring judgment upon them because of their own sin. That sin is stated in verse 15-they had forgotten God.

God was trying to form was marred in His hand.

One trembles as he applies that test of God's requirement for blessing upon a nation to our own land. There is a haunting fear that while there are some who truly worship God, and a larger number who profess to worship Him, a great host of the people of America have forgot-

Does our nation remember Him and seek His counsel and blessing in its national affairs? Do we inquire after the ways of righteousness? Are we eager for spiritual revival and increasing grace even within the church?

Judah was to be scattered "as with an east wind"-and who does not know that it came to pass. Where are they today?

But even in the midst of judgment the Lord speaks of mercy. The Lord who will "pluck up, break down and destroy" (v. 7) the people who forget Him, is eager and ready "to build and to plant" the nation when it turns to Him.

The sure promise of God's future blessing upon a repentant Israel and Judah is written large in the messages of all the prophets.

The same God, eternally sovereign in His purpose, is our heavenly Father. The man or woman whose vessel of life has been marred by sin and failure need only yield anew to the Potter's blessed hand.

Today nearly 40 Oklahoma men and women use airplanes regularly in their farming operations. They founded the nation's first chapter of flying farmers, with Bomhoff as

The fliers scoffed at the idea that city folk will be quicker to adapt the flying machine to postwar liv-

They've already found the airplane a "must" piece of farm equipment invaluable in every phase of agriculture from inspecting fences and locating stray cattle to killing coyotes and marketing the produce.

They're already one up on the city owner, for wheat fields and pastures make ideal landing strips, and there's nothing wrong with using a hay barn for a hangar.

As dean of serial agriculture in Oklahoma, Bomhoff typifies the development of this phase of farming. He flew that first homemade plane for five years after he pieced it toeether out back of his farm house.

Tells of First Flight.

"I'd never had any flying instructions but the day my little puddlejumper was finished I climbed in at ence to test the motor and practice taxiing around the wheat field," Henry recalled to the Chicago Tribune.

The first thing I knew the tail of the plane was off the ground-then the whole thing took off. There I was in the air without any idea of how to get back on the ground. "I narrowly missed the fence as I eased over into a neighboring field and somehow managed to land.

"I pinched myself and discovered I was still alive, so I climbed back into the cockpit and spent the afternoon learning to fly.

Today Henry flies two factory-built ships. He has logged more than 3,000 hours as a pilot and is a licensed instructor. He has his own registered airport and a 12-plane hangar filled with ships owned by neighbors he taught to fly.

At least 10 farm boys who took their first lessons in Henry's "puddle-jumper" are army pilots now dropping bombs on Germany.

The entire Bomhoff family flies. The children, from the nine-year-old daughter up, have learned to handle the controls. Mrs. Bomhoff is an experienced pilot although she reuses to solo.

Find Plane Vital Cog.

Henry believes the airplane is as essential as an automobile in working his 320 acres of wheat and cattle land.

"If I had to let one of them go, I'm afraid it would be the cat," he said. The rest of Oklahoma's flying farmers have likewise found the airplane a vital cog in food production. Use of planes in seeding crops and applying insect poison is still in the experimental stage and ordinarily requires especially adapted planes, but Oklahoma farmers are planning now to get these practices established as soon as they can.

Impassable roads in bad weather no longer guarantee the children of Oklahoma's flying agriculturists an unscheduled holiday from school. Dad or mom can roll the airplane out of the barn and fly the youngsters there.

World War I Vet Knocks Out Nazi Anti-Tank Gun

SEVELEN, GERMANY. - With a bridge blown behind them, a Negro tank battalion task force staged a miniature "Bastogne" in Sevelen recently mauling Nazi parachute units in savage street fighting while cut off for 18 hours.

The 78ith tank battalion was fighting its first offensive action beside the 35th infantry division. The battalion won a place in the hearts of the men of the battle-hardened 35th division, who had fought from St. Lo to Venlo and beyond, by the battle it put up here and the spearhead fighting it did to get here. Sgt. Walter "Pop" Half, a 47-yearold veteran of the last war from Little York, Ill., who came back in this war as the commander of a tank bulldozer, was called out under fire to fill craters in a road. He went on to knock out a German 88-millimeter antitank gun.

He gallantly bowed her and his garter snapped. Picking it up, he held it in his hand and To the fairest lady of them I doff this little trinket sans which my hose will fall, with nothing there to link it." Handing the garter to his sister, he kissed her "You know, Ethel," said seriously, "of all the people I know, I'm proudest of you."

Rough Going: One of this department's fair feminine sentinels reports that a friend of hers recently took a position as a teacher in an uptown school which used a station wagon to pick up pupils at their homes and return them. A few days ago, the driver of the station wagon received his induction call and no replacement could be found. So to the new teacher was delegated the task of each morning finding a taxi and gathering the pupils. In no time at all, drivers in her neighborhood learned that to accept her as a fare meant eight or ten stops. So they avoid her to such an extent that now she has to arise at least an hour earlier each morning to get to school on time. And the worst of it is, the school allows her only 15 cents with which to tip the driver. Now she is looking about for another teaching

That's My Pop: Mrs. Perry Como, wife of the movie and radio singing star, the other afternoon took their five-year-old heir to see his dad's latest picture, "Something for the Boys," which was being shown at a neighborhood theater. In one of the scenes, Vivian Blaine embraces Perry. "Hey, you!" yelled the little lad, "let my dad alone!" And so excited was he that it took Mrs. Como several minutes to quiet him. Then all went well until about 10 minutes later Miss Blaine again embraced Como. That burned the oungster up completely. "Let my dad alone!" he shouted. "If you don't, I'll hit you." Mrs. Como tried to explain but to no avail, young Como ranting on and on so loudly that an usher was forced to order both to leave the theater.

Ballet Note: After the Ballet Russe finished at the New York Center of Drama and Music the other evening, Danilova, the dancer, hastily brushed off her make up and practically flew from her dressing room to the street. Crossing Sixth avenue on 55th street, she was alcontinued on down Sixth until she reached the Ziegfeld theater stage entrance. The doorman tried to stop her but without wasting a moment on him, she whizzed upstairs and almost onto the stage just before the final number of "The Seven Lively Arts." Danilova had almost broken her neck and arches to see a ballet sequence danced by her very good friend, Alicia Markova and partner, Anton Dolin.

Real Hunk of Man: Valets in New York hotels become accustomed to just about everything in the course of their daily work but one of our faithful sentinels reports that when he dropped into the Hotel Dixie a day of two ago, he found the valet, a friend of his, regarding with wonder a pair of uniform trousers that had been sent down to be pressed. The waist line was 66 inches and each leg contained almost enough cloth for a whole suit of clothes. Our sentinel made an investigation and found that the owner is a merchant marine officer who is six feet tall and weighs a mere 385 pounds. And that isn't the pay off-on his last voyage the mariner had lost 135 pounds!

End Piece: It is well known among cafe socialites that Sherman Billingsley, the Stork Club host, will not under any circumstances be heard on the radio. A few days ago, Arlene Francis, stage and radio actress, was being interviewed from the Stork by Shirley Eder, the network glamour girl. Throughout the informal, unrehearsed interview, Billingsley, sitting at a nearby table was an interested spectator. Suddenly acting on an impulse, Arlene, taking the portable mike with her, went over to him. "Come on, Sher-man," she said, "say something on the air." Billingsley shook his head vehemently. "But, Sherm," wheedled Arlene, "why not?" Tricked. the usually poised Billingsley blurted out the first (and quite probably the last) words he has ever spoken over the air, "I'm too scared."

mothers and sweethearts and friends who blood, didn't you?' with an embarrassed

By KATHLEEN NORRIS FEW days ago I was in a group of young women who were gathering wraps and parcels as they dispersed after a club luncheon. "How many of you," I asked them casually, "have been to the blood bank lately?

Lately! Out of 13 of them, only one had ever been, and that more than a year ago. These were healthy young women, busy, or course, burdened with responsibility for homes, kitchen, babies, school-age children, to be sure. But not so burdened, not so busy but what this confession of theirs constitutes the most terrible indictment that American women ever have had to face.

It constitutes the most shameful reproach that after-war memories will ever bring us, a shame never to be forgotten and never to be wiped out; that the Red Cross and the medical corps have to beg us for this life-giving blood, and that we refuse it.

My own blood burns when I think of it, and I wonder how we will explain it to the returned soldiers someday; how we can ever be happy again knowing that magnificent young lives have been sacrificed because we, safe and warm and well-fed and free from fear, just never gave a thought to the blood bank.

and I talked about it," these young women said cheerfully, "but it's so hard to get around these days. We were going to, remember, Jean? And then we didn't! Oh, yes, the blood bank. That's wonderful, isn't it? Mother says they didn't have it in the last war, and that thousands of lives were lost. Do let's try to get to it this week, or sometime.

Marines Attack.

The day before this conversation had happened to see a movie reel of our marines taking possession of a tropical beachhead, as they have done so often. Past the camera flashed the line of young faces, as the heavy boots squelched in the mud and fixed bayonets glinted in the fast-falling rain. Such fine, strong faces, earnest and trusting and hard with the desperate courage and resolution of the attack. And even as we looked this splendid vigorous body and that one fell in the swamp, never to walk again in the pride and confidence of youth!

Our boys have seen grim sights in these war years, they have suffered all the agonies to which human flesh is heir. They have seen children mad with hunger, and dead with hunger; seen homeless thousands of women and old people seeking despairingly for food and They have seen their own friends fall and die, or carried away on stretchers, moaning, bloody, inhuman wreckage. They have known homesickness more bitter than death; known months, not hours or days, of loneliness and doubt.

To have these men pick up a paper from home and read that the Red Cross must solicit donations of the life-giving stream that alone will bring some of them home, is intolerable, and we ought not to tolerate it! In every gathering of men and women — at men's luncheon clubs, women's club meetings, lecture halls, movie theaters, indeed in the actual churches, why doesn't the chairman or speaker ask those who have contributed life to our dying

THEY NEED YOUR BLOOD

We have all heard, over and over, that blood plasma, administered on the battlefield and in emergency hospitals, is saving thousands of lives. In this war less than three per cent of the wounded die-as compared with six or seven per cent in the last war. Blood plasma and whole blood administrations are responsible to a large degree for this great saving of young lives. But this blood has to come from healthy human beings. As the tempo of battle increases, greater and greater quantities are needed. The Red Cross is asking and pleading constantly for more donations-not of money, but of

After every victory there is a tendency on the home front to slow down. This is true of bond buying, of war plant production, of donations to the blood bank. On the far-flung fronts, however, there is still urgent need for blood plasma—and will be until the last battle is fought. Keep on giv-ter yet, ask those who have not given their blood to the whitefaced, bleeding boys in the servought to be the first topic of conversation wherever men and women gather together: "Have you been to the blood bank lately?"

'White Feather' Emblem.

And why not a white feather for the lapel of every man's and woman's suit who chooses to ignore this appeal? Surely if they are not shamed already the mere wearing of this sign of cowardice wouldn't hurt them? There isn't half enough fuss being made about all this. We have an emblem that means "I gave my blood" that hundreds are proud to wear. Why not another emblem meaning "I didn't pay the slightest attention to the fact that for the men who are shedding their blood for me-sometimes every drop of it, I didn't do anything in return. I knew what plasma is, I knew the miracles it works on the far-away battle stations, but we really haven't anything to be afraid of here, so why worry?"

Remember, you American men and women, our boys are going to come home an embittered and disillusioned lot. What they have had to endure is cruelly upsetting to mind and morale. For many months after honorable discharge we will have to give them special treatment; comforting, bracing, re-building souls and bodies. There is going to be a bad time then for the mothers and sweethearts and friends who have to answer their question, "You gave blood, didn't you?" with an embarrassed "Well, no, I didn't, darling. I thought that there would be so many others that my poor little pint wouldn't mean much, and somehow I never got around to it."

There is still time to save yourself that shame. For God's sake, and for the sake of humanity, do it today. Don't ever let anyone feel again the sting I felt when a young naval doctor wrote me from Guadalcanal to ask the caustic question: "Do you suppose that if they offered two red points a pint some of the men and women at home would get busy at the blood bank?"

Decorating with Pictures Hang pictures at eye level, if possible without cords showing and flat against the wall. Under an important picture place a substantial piece of furniture. Assemble your family photographs, simply framed, in large groups in your bedroom. Be sure the store you've chosen to do your framing knows its job, for the value of a signed picture can be ruined by too close trimming. Choose simple frames so that the frames will not compete in interest with the pictures themselves.

L AURA was in a hurry. Having war plant some months before, she really had to hustle when she planned to be away all day. And now she was due at the hospital.

She made a last-minute checkup before pulling on her gloves. The table was set for dinner though it was only nine o'clock in the morning; salad greens were crisping in the refrigerator; the casserole and biscuits were ready to be popped into the oven when she returned.

Laura locked up, glanced at her watch and wished her big, oldfashioned house were a bit nearer the bus line. As near as—as Mrs. Farnham's modern bungalow.

Mrs. Farnham hadn't come to the hospital on her regular day last week and Laura wondered why. As she passed the bungalow, a mere half block from the bus, she instinctively glanced toward the porch -just in time to see Mrs. Farnham skid on a bar of soap and upset a pail of water.

Laura repressed a wicked urge to laugh. There was something funny about the stout matron's dignity being diluted in the puddle. But maybe she was hurt. Laura dashed up the steps and was relieved to find that the lady's pride had suffered most.

"You'll be all right when you've changed into something dry," Laura consoled as she helped the sputtering woman into the house. here, I've just missed my bus anyway, so why don't you take off those wet clothes while I hunt up your "Robe!" Mrs. Farnham snorted.

"I've got to get into another house-dress and finish scrubbing that darned porch." "Oh. Is your cleaning woman on vacation? "Vacation!" the indignant woman barked. "It'll be a permanent one to far as I'm concerned. She took advantage of the present shortage of domestics. I engaged her by the hour and she slowed down until I was paying her more for less work." She tossed the dripping garment on a chair and finished ex-plosively, "I fired her!" 'You'll find someone else," Laura said soothingly. "Not a chance. By the way, Laura, tell the hospital I won't be in for my weekly stint any more. I'll be too busy at home.' "Nonsense," Laura said a trifle sharply. "I've been without help for months and I manage to do my bit, Of course there won't be much spare time when the children get back from camp and I have fall cleaning

"Exactly, Laura. Simply tell Miss Tully you can't make it any more or you'll regret it.' Laura enjoyed waiting on people.

Consequently she had a field day at the hospital. Sick people needed a certain amount of pampering and she was just the one to serve it up —in big gobs. Today Miss Tully assigned her to the second floor. Fresh water for the feverish lady in 204; plumped pillows for that restless young patient in Ward 3; and that woman in the corner seemed to need attention of some sort. She was middleaged and her soft brown eyes were "You're lucky to be near the window," Laura said cheerfully as she smoothed the cotton spread. "Are you well enough to sit up?"

The woman nodded her graying head and smiled faintly. "Oh, yes. I'm just about as good as new, the doctor says. I'll be leaving in a few days." The smile disappeared and she bit her lip.

"I suppose your family can't wait till you're home again."

The woman's brooding eyes lifted to meet Laura's interested gaze. "My family is-my son." Her voice broke and then she said proudly, "Jim's a paratrooper, he is. He don't know I'm here; didn't want to worry him. But-" she reached into the drawer of her bedside stand and took out a telegram. "It says here he's coming home on furlough.

"Jim's coming home tonight and I can't bear to think he'll be alone, getting his own meals out of cans when he was counting so much on home-cooked food. Those things mean so much to a boy, you know-Laura did know. Moreover, she knew what to do about it. With the children away there was plenty of room. Jim would be welcome at her home. Her husband would enjoy swapping yarns with a paratrooper who had seen action in France.

"And that's not all," Laura finished. "When you leave here I want you to stay with us until you are strong again. It'll boost Jim's morale to know you're having good A few weeks later Laura was hailed by Mrs. Farnham, who was on the porch brushing sofa cushions. She waved the brush with a condescending gesture. "On your way to the hospital again, Laura?" she sang out. "How do you ever manage?"

Laura waved back airily. "Simple, my dear. I met a very nice person named Mrs. Murphy at the hospital. After she recovered from her operation she needed a job to replace the one from which you fired her. Now that she's well, she accom-plishes a lot-"

Ken stood listening to Howard's retreating steps. He heard the rasp of the corral gate being opened and closed again. Now they were alone, the mare, foal and himself. In the stable was a sweet quietness and the smell of hay and horses. Ken sat on the manger rail close to the feed box in which he had placed the bucket of mash, and the mare dipped her muzzle into it, ate hungrily, then lifted her head and chewed, looking at Ken, her long ears pointed forward. She had gentle golden-brown eyes with a seeing expression in them. Looking at Ken, her intelligent face was not a foot from his. He straightened the flaxen forelock that hung between her eyes, murmuring her name now and then. She swurz her head around to look at the sleeping foal. The lantern, hung on the corner post, only half lit the stall, Ken too looked at the foal. Now that he had it safely in the •table, the surprise and worry that he had felt when he first saw it took pos-session of him again. What a to-do this was going to make! A white foal out of Flicka! A white foal on the Goose Bar ranch where every-one knew Banner, the big golden sorrel stud that sired the yearly crop of colts.

Ken's uneasiness was linked to a series of nearly disastrous events of past years in which he and a certain line of horses had been involved. This train of events led directly to the small white foal lying there so innocently on the clean hay, and it had begun long before, when a wild stallion of the plains, called the Albino because of his white color, had stolen a mare from the Goose Bar ranch. She was the Thoroughbred, Gypsy, one of Rob Mc-Laughlin's foundation mares. He had bought her when he was a cadet at West Point and used her for polo. When he graduated and then resigned from the Army in order to go over him and smelled and licked gether and settled down on the Goose Bar ranch, Rob McLaughlin, Nell, his young New England wife, and the black mare, Gypsy. Rob bought more mares and built up his foundation stock. Then, one spring, Gypsy disappeared.

The McLaughlin ranch was not the only one in that section of Wyoming from which a fine mare disappeared. There began to be talk of a white stallion, "a big ugly devil but a lotta horse," who had formerly ranged the open land of Montana, had come across the border during a drought, and had gathered a band of mares in the open land of Wyoming, stealing from ranchers, tearing down fences, fighting and even killing other stallions.

He reigned for six years. Then a number of ranchers banded together, held a round-up, and caught the Albino and his mares, finding brands from all over the state on the hides of the stolen mares.

Gypsy of the Goose Bar ranch was there with four beautiful colts. Rob McLaughlin was delighted with their looks and speed and outstanding personalities, and took them home with him, feeling that Gypsy's philandering might contribute valuable qualities to his polo stock.

But he found it impossible to break and train the colts. Even though the fillies were bred by Banner, the Goose Bar stud, than whom no horse could be more intelligent or better mannered, yet the offspring showed the outlaw strain.

He explained it to his boys. "Colts learn from their mothers. They copy them. That's why it's practically impossible to raise a good-tempered colt from a bad-tempered dam. The colts are corrupted from birth. That is the rule. There are, of course, exceptions-we have some very striking exceptions among our own horses. Here is Gypsy, the best-mannered mare in the world-with a bunch of wild hoodlum colts-absolutely unbreakable."

"Is it because they were born and brought up with that gang of wild horses?" asked Howard.

"It's because of the prepotency of the stallion," said Rob grimly. "His wildness outweighs all her gentleness and that of her long line of aristocratic forbears. Some stal-

But all of this was an old story to Howard and Ken. They had grown up on the Goose Bar ranch, familiar with talk and speculation about the near-mythical personage, the Albino, and witnessing their father's struggles with the outlaw strain which, through Gypsy, had been introduced into the breeding stock.

tangle was of more recent date. On a day a little more than three years ago he and Gus had been working new-born foal and its dam. "Luk at de little flicka!" exclaimed the Swedish ranch hand. "What does flicka mean, Gus?" asked Ken.

Ken's actual involvement in this

"Swedish fur leetle gurl," explained Gus.

And when a year after that, Rob McLaughlin told Ken he could have for his own any colt on the ranch up to one year of age, Ken chose that same little golden filly and named her Flicka.

Flicka was out of Rocket by Banner. And Rocket was, by common consent, the wildest of the offspring brought home by Gypsy from her sojourn with the Albino.

Rob McLaughlin was exasperated. "I was hoping you'd make a wise choice, son," he said, "You know what I think of Rocket, of that whole line of horses-it's the worst I've got. There has never been one amongst them with real sense. The mares are hellions and the stallions outlaws. I'd have got rid of this whole line of stock if they weren't so damned fast that I've had the fool idea that some day there might turn out one gentle one in the lot and I'd have a race horse. But it's not going to be Flicka."

But Ken had fallen in love with her and could not give her up. That summer one nightmare disaster followed the other, Flicka, as wild as her wicked black mother, fought beyond all reason when she was roped and brought in. When she could escape no other way, she made a suicidal leap into the high barbed-wire fence, and there ensued her long illness from the infected wire-cuts, terminating in McLaughlin's command that, next day, she would be shot and put out of her misery. Ken spent that night with her, sitting in the stream where she had fallen, holding her head in his arms. Gus came looking for them in the morning, and carried Ken, helpless with cold and exhaustion, up to the house. This caused Ken's long and severe attack of pneumonia, during which, miraculously, the filly recovered. At the end of the summer, there was one triumph which made up for everything. The filly loved Ken as dearly as he loved her, and he was able to say to his father, "She did get gentled, didn't she, dad?"

And Rob McLaughlin answered, with a softer note than usual in his voice, "Gentle as a kitten, son." And now here she stood in the stall, a husky three-year-old, docile, gentle, beautifully trained, resting her liquid, trusting eyes on the face of her young master. (TO BE CONTINUED)

Wickard on Food

WNU Washington Burea 621 Union Trust Buildin HOOSIER - BORN, dirt - farmer Claude F. Wickard, secretary of agriculture, sat in his huge office on the second floor of the department of agriculture main building over-looking the Mall, and, gazing out of his window through the trees onto the shrubbery - studded lawn, drew a word picture to me describing his vision of a postwar agriculture . . . an agriculture different from any we have known in this country. It was as though he could see the broad acres of his Carroll county farm in Indiana, as he spoke, for spring was in the air, and he was itching to get back there, to get the feel of the soil he loves . . . to get into a pair of overalls . . . to go look at a boar pig he has a hankering to

First, he sees in the years to come a nation of family sized farms, owner operated, and to make this come true he cites the record of his Farm Security administration which has made more than 36,000 loans to farm tenants, share croppers and farm workers enabling them to buy family-type farms of their own. And more and more loans are being made

He sees food as looming more and more in importance in the conduct of world affairs with the American farmer having a vital stake in the world peace organization and playing a most important part in the economic reconstruction of the world. This will come about, Mr. Wickard believes, through the Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations, the framework of which was adopted at Hot Springs, Va., in May, 1943. Since that time 18 nations have approved the organization and a joint resolution is pending in the house of representatives as this is written, authorizing the President to accept membership in the organization for the United States. He sees the American farmer producing to full capacity both food and non-food agricultural products and receiving for his work parity or above, prices . . . a prosperous

He pictures a postwar age of farmers who have learned how to use their precious land wisely and efficiently, through recognized conservation and land-use practices . . . an age which will -recognizing new and important responsibilities to the community, living on the land from choice rather than from compulsion and the creation of a new concept of the dignity of farm life.

Included in this picture is an American agriculture freed from most of its drudgery with new conveniences, and new horizons for farm life brought to rural areas throughout the land through electricity on a new and broader scale than ever conceived by the Rural Electrification administration. As of June, 1944, a little more than a million farm homes had been electrified through REA; however, it is the dream of the secretary of agriculture to bring

REA service to every farm home in America and to make electricity available to some 3,665,000 farms and rural establishments in the immediate five-year period following the war. To carry out this program a measure has been introduced in the senate by Senator Scott Lueas (D., Ill.) to supplement the REA act and the Agricultural Appropriations act calling for appropriations of more than a half billion dollars to be loaned to REA by the Reconstruction Finance corporation to facilitate and expedite electrification of rural areas "to improve the standard of living and the economic condition of persons re-siding in rural areas." The bill, now before the senate agriculture and forestry committee, would provide for 35 million dollars for fiscal year ending June 30, 1945; 150 million for 1946, 200 million for 1947 and 200 million for 1948.

Instead of the present practice of building short electric lines to serve a certain number of customers, the REA program envisions a survey of a whole area of 20 or more counties at a time, or even larger areas the construction of lines to reach all farmers in the area and the construction of electric plants, or purchase of electricity, if available, to supply the whole area. And last, but not least, there is social security not only for farm workers but for farm owners . . community health centers and rural hospitals are a part of this picture. SEWING CIRCLE PATTERNS

Toast to Good Health . . . Raw Vegetables!

Vitamins for Health

When Mother Earth is bountiful in her output, there's no good reason for stinting on mineral and vitamin-rich protective foods. This is the time to plan meals mainly of vegetables, first, from necessity because rationed foods are high in point value and scarce; and secondly, because we should try to build up our health as much as possible to reap personal and community benefits.

Vitamin A. No one should lack for this familfar vitamin that comes at the beginning of the alphabet because it is easily obtained in dairy foods, carrots, greens, liver, butter, apricots, prunes and tomatoes. It is especially essential for growth and the main-

Vitamin B1.

If the children or adult members of the family show signs of losing their appetite, check into these sources for vitamin B1 or thiamin: dried beans and peas, lean pork, whole grain cereals, yeast, milk, cauliflower, chicken, peanuts and egg yolk. In addition to being necessary to maintain appetite, this vidigestive organs and nervous sys-

Vitamin C.

One of our basic nutrition rules definitely states that we should eat at least one citrus fruit a day. We need this fruit for assuring enough vitamin C for well-nourished gums and teeth as well as to maintain 3 hard-cooked eggs, chopped normal bone structure, the normal strength of capillary walls and the prevention of scurvy. You'll find it plentiful in oranges, lemons, grapefruit, pineapples, strawberries, to-matoes, raw cabbage and greens, liver, green pepper and peas.

Vitamin D. Vitamin D has to do exclusively with bone and teeth building-sound bones, strong teeth and the prevention of rickets. Vitamin D is as hard to find as vitamin A is easy. Its sources are few: fish liver oils (cod, halibut), fortified milk and cream, egg yolks and liver. If your doses of these foods are small, then get a big dose of sunshine-that's vitamin D, too.

Vitamin G. This vitamin, also called riboflavin, is found in many of the same

Lynn Says:

Handy Hints: To keep food warm when serving and eating, make certain both serving dishes and plates are as hot as possible. Place a teaspoon of salt in water in which eggs are cooked. This helps prevent shells from crack-

Serve asparagus as a main dish by topping with cream sauce and hard-cooked eggs, sliced and dusted with paprika.

Use only slow ovens (225-250 degrees) for baking fruit whips. Young spring rhubarb does not have to be peeled when baking for pies, canning or making sauces and puddings. For a delicious pudding topping, mix two tablespoons of orange marmalade into one cup whipped

To save time in making fruity desserts, add sugar or honey to fruit or berries (strawberries, raspberries, rhubarb, etc.) and place in a shallow baking dish. In place of pie crust or biscuit topping use a crumbling of flour, sugar, a little butter and cin-foods as vitamin B1. In addition to the part it plays in normal nutrition, it is also essential to growh, cell respiration, and good nervous

Most of us are more familiar with nicotinic acid, which is just another name for this vitamin. You'll get your share if you eat lean meats and liver, salmon, wheat germ, yeast, tomatoes, greens and buttermilk. It's responsible for good, tenance of normal resistance to inclear healthy skin and the normal functioning of the gastro-intestinal

Now, how do we go about getting all these vitamins into our diet? We will have to include foods from each of the groups mentioned daily. This is especially important with the B and C vitamins because they cannot be stored in the body as is vitamin A.

The following recipes will give you tamin aids in growth and helps good health as well as good eating.
maintain the normal function of the If vegetables are eaten raw, they are more valuable:

Tomato Stuffed Salad. (Serves 4)

4 medium-sized tomatoes ounces cream cheese tablespoons green onion, chopped

14 cup salad dressing Peel tomatoes. Cut slices from top and scoop out centers. Sprinkle with salt; invert to chill. Blend cream cheese with enough cream to soften. Line tomato cups with this mixture. Combine remaining ingredients; fill tomato cups. Chill thoroughly. Serve with additional salad dressing in lettuce cups. Jellied Perfection Salad. (Serves 6)

1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
14 cup cold water
114 cups hot water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup diced cucumber
14 cup sliced green onions

1/2 cup sliced green onions 14 cup sliced radishes 1 cup chopped celery Soften gelatin in cold water. Dissolve in hot water. Add lemon juice, vinegar and salt. Chill until partially set; add remaining ingredients. Chill until firm. Serve on crisp lettuce with mayonnaise Cabbage Pepper Slaw. (Serves 6)

4 cups finely shredded cabbage 4 cup chopped green pepper 1 teaspoon salt 4 teaspoon white pepper tablespoons vinegar tablespoons tarragon vinegar 1 teaspoon prepared mustard 1/2 cup salad dressing Combine vegetables, salt, pepper, sugar and celery seed. Combine vinegar, mustard and salad dressing. Add to vegetables and mix thoroughly. *Ambrosia Salad. (Serves 4 to 6) 2 bananas, sliced 34 cup diced orange teaspoon celery seed

14 cup seedless grapes 14 cup chopped dates 3 tablespoons lemon juice 14 cup moist coconut, grated Combine fruits; sprinkle with lemon juice; chill. Add creamy mayonnaise dressing which has been blended with sour cream. Serve on crisp lettuce and garnish with coco-

Their "Quota" may be DEATH Your Quota is Bigger Bonds

AS THE tempo of the war increases . . . as the lines of communication grow longer . . . as the need for new guns, new tanks, new planes grows more urgent . . . the cost of the war is at an all-time high.

That is reason Number 1 why every true American must back this MIGHTY 7TH War Loan Drive beyond all limits of what he thinks he can afford.

Reason Number 2 is that this drive is really two drives in one. By this time last year, you had subscribed to two War Loans.

Yes, the need is greater than ever before. And YOU . . . everybody . . . must invest a greater portion of your income . . . of your cash reserves . . . in War Bonds Now! Study the chart on this page. Figure out your personal quota -and make it!

BUY MORE AND BIGGER BONDS

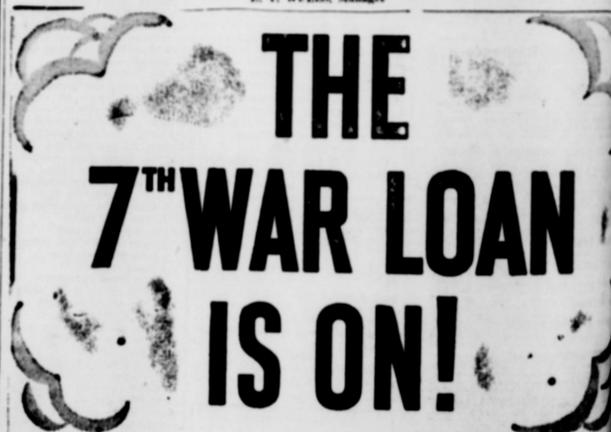

You already know that War Bonds are the best and safest investment in the world . . . that you get back at maturity $4 for every $3 you invest . . . that they safeguard your future seeurity . . . and that you can cash them in on a moment's notice in case of emergency. So let's go, Americans! Let's back those gallant boys who are fighting and dying for us on far-flung battlefields the world over. Let's all buy bigger bonds and more of them, right now!

*People's Quota: Seven Billion Dollars

More-MORE-MORE!

Higginbotham-Bartlett Lumber (

Yes, the Seventh War Lean is on right now!

There are new planes to be built . . . new tanks . . . new ships. All to bring the war to an earlier close.

Our fighting men will do their job. But we must do ours!

And right now, the most important job we have is to meet our personal quotas in the Seventh War Loan drive!

Those quotas are big. Uncle Sam needs $7,000,000,000 from individuals. For this loan is really 2 in 1there had been 2 drives in 1944, by this time. So now-we've got to do a two-loan job in one.

But Americans have never failed to met a War Bond quota yet-and we won't fall now! So find out what your quota ismeet it!
