Battle of Coral Sea Termed First Big Defeat for Japan

Address_

In the battle of that island-studd d ocean known as the Coral sea, which is near the Solomon islands and about 1,000 miles northeast of Australia, America's first real victory of the war with Japan was scored. The action occurred on May 4, 1942, and called for deeds of valor as thrilling as any in all American history.

The Coral sea battle was the first great naval defeat ever dealt the imperial Japanese fleets. And yet this battle was fought entirely in the air, by the planes of opposing aircraft carriers.

The ships engaged in this battle

The ships engaged in this battle never got sight of each other. They slugged it out without firing a single gun at another ship—the first engagement of its kind in history. In this first great victory for the U. S. in this global war the Japs lost more than 15 ships sunk and at least 20 others severely damaged. The action perhaps saved Australia from invasion.

However, America paid a high price for her victory in the sultry Coral sea. In this engagement the aircraft carrier, Lexington, famed ship that laid the foundation of our modern navy's aircraft carrier operations, went to the bottom. This happened on May 7.

Don't Neglect Lunch If You Want to Stay Full of Pep, Health

ARE YOU ALONE at home for lunch so that you don't bother to prepare something for yourself? Or does the family come home, and you simply rummage around the refrigerator and don't know what to

These are frequent situations in many homes throughout the country. Lunches of this type-or none at all for the homemaker alone at home-don't help pep, vitality and health. If you get a'lag in the afternoon and wonder what's wrong with you, check your luncheon habits.

Physicians and nutritionists are of the opinion that if you skip a meal, it places too much of a load on another meal. Let's say you've skipped lunch and eat a very full and ample dinner. Do you feel like doing anything but flopping into bed and wasting the evening? And have

You may be busy, but you can prepare cottage cheese with oranges, grapefruit and berries in season with a buttered muffin and a glass of iced tea for a lunch that's healthy and balanced.

you ever thought of what it does to your digestive process to have it called upon suddenly to digest a big meal after having been lazy for many hours?

It's much better to try to distribute your calories evenly throughout three meals during the day. In over toast, top with a few stalks of between you won't feel an energy asparagus. Pour soup over all and lag and you will keep your system run under the broiler for a few in good working order. Don't give the excuse that you think lunch unimportant and simply don't feel like bothering with it. Even if you're alone at noon, it doesn't take much effort to prepare nice cottage cheese and fruit salad and a glass of milk with roll or toast. Or, if the youngsters are at home, it's simple enough to cream some leftover vegetables into a piecheese, serving it with fruit and cookies for dessert. Planning will give you plenty of the right foods on hand from which to choose a nutritious and well-balanced lunch. And if you value your health and well-being, you'll cersoon much to give up to it.

HERE ARE SOME HOT DISHES from which to choose for lunch if there are several of you at home. They are made from "planned" leftovers and are quick and easy to prepare.

Corn Scramble (Serves 6)

1 cup cubed leftover ham 2 tablespoons fat 2 beaten eggs

Salt and pepper No. 2 can cream style corn

1/4 cup green pepper, cubed Brown ham in fat and then mix with other ingredients. Mix thoroughly. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until the eggs are set.

Creamed Meat in Potato Nests (Serves 4 to 6)

Combine one 101/2-ounce can of condensed cream of mushroom soup with 1/2 cup milk. Blend and heat. Add 11/2 cups of diced, cooked turkey, chicken, roast veal or pork, ham, or fish and 1/2 cup of diced pimiento. Add some of this hot sauce to 1 egg yolk and stir into remaining sauce. Heat thoroughly and serve in nests of reheated, mashed potato.

Beef Rice Croquettes (Makes 12)

1/4 tablespoon chopped onion. Form into croquettes. Dip into beaten egg and water, then in bread crumbs. Fry in shallow fat.

*Cheese Vegetable Pie (Serves 6)

Pastry for 1 crust 1 cup freshly grated American cheese

1 cup milk, scalded 2 eggs 11/2 teaspoons salt

1/8 teaspoon paprika 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce 2 1/2 cups mixed, cooked vegetables

2 fresh tomatoes Blend 1/2 cup of cheese with dry ingredients when making the pastry. Roll out and place in pastry tin. Bake in a hot oven for 10 minutes. Meanwhile, add milk to beaten eggs; add seasonings and vegetables, except the tomatoes. Pour into pie shell. Cut tomatoes into eighths and arrange on top. Sprinkle with remaining 1/2 cup of cheese. Bake in a moderate (350 degree) oven for about 30 minutes or until a knife inserted in the center comes out

Salmon Macaroni Salad 1 8-ounce can of salmon 2 cups canned peas, drained 1 cup shell macaroni, cooked 1/3 cup mayonnaise

Drain salmon, removing bones and skin. Combine with remaining ingredients and season to taste. Serve on crisp lettuce. Garnish with slices of hard-cooked eggs.

Asparagus-Ham Luncheon (Serves 6 to 8)

20 stalks of canned or cooked asparagus

6 slices of cooked cold ham 1 can of mushroom soup 1/2 cup cream 6 slices buttered toast

Mix mushroom soup with cream. Heat thoroughly. Place ham slices

If the family is home for lunch, it doesn't take long to prepare delicious and nutritious cheese, vegetable pie and serve it along with fresh fruit and berries for a vitamin-rich lunch.

Stuffed Onions (Serves 6)

Cook 6 large Bermuda onions in boiling salted water for 30 minutes. Remove center and stuff with following: Combine 1 can of pork and beans with 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard, teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons chopped onion centers. Stuff onions, Sprinkle each with 1 teaspoon brown sugar and heat through.

Stuffed Baked Tomatoes (Serves 6)

Scoop out center of six large tomatoes. Brown 1 tablespoon of chopped onion, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper in 2 tablespoons of butter. Add 1 1/2 cups corn cut off the cob, 2 beaten eggs and 1/2 cup bread crumbs and season to taste. Stuff tomatoes and sprinkle with grated American cheese. Bake in a moderate oven for 25 minutes. Chopped leftover ham or crumbled bacon or cubed sausage may be added to the corn if so desired. Another good stuffing is canned macaroni or spaghetti. Stuff the tomato and bake until the tomato is

SCRIPTURE: Daniel 1. DEVOTIONAL READING: I Timothy 6:11

Daniel Stands By His Convictions

Lesson for May 30, 1948

"A picket frozen on duty-A mother starved for her brood-Socrates drinking the bemlock-And Jesus on the rood."

SUCH a picture we have before us in Sunday's lesson. All you need to do to get this dramatic picture is read the first chapter of Daniel. You will then feel anew the meaning of that cherished statement, "'Tis conviction that convinceth."

BRAVE TO DO LIGHT

WEGET the first draught of this tonic in verses 8-9, 14-15 and "But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the portion of the king's meat, nor with the wine which he drank . . .

He was brave enough to take a stand for what he knew was right. Which reminds me of the story told of Henry Ward Beecher, when yet a small boy.

Beecher was sure enough to stand his ground. I was simply trying to teach you the lesson that you must stand by what you know is right."

DARE TO STAND ALONE

DANIEL knew that he was taking an unpopular position, but he was willing to be alone so long as he knew he was right. He knew that the consequences would take care of themselves. That is the quality of character which America needs today in her youth.

It is easy enough to be popular, if you run with the gang; but remember this—the gang is always heading downhill. Daniel stood by his convictions when it was costly. In the final windup, he was the head

ENDURING INVESTMENTS

DANIEL, winning his point, made every hour count toward victory. He not only abstained from strong drink, but used his superior strength to serve the king in such way that his talents were sought out and brought into larger fields of opportunity.

Standing by his convictions, he had won over those who at first were disposed to poke fun at him. By superb performance, due to clear thinking and high purpose, Daniel made enduring investments that paid off in big dividends. He did not do right for reward, but because he did right, the reward was inevitable. And so it will be with every young man and woman who purposes in his or her heart to do right. . . .

GOD'S FAVOR

I WANT you to look carefully at verse 17. "God gave them knowledge and skill in all learning and wisdom; and Daniel had understanding in all visions and dreams.'

It is impossible to account for Daniel's fortitude apart from his implicit trust in God. Remember the incident of Daniel opening his window toward Jersualem in prayer?

God never fails those who stake their all on Him. He will not-cannot let them fail. It was because of God's favor that Daniel and his companions proved themselves ten times better than the young men who defiled themselves.

"Who sides with God must always

Organic Matter Will Aid Work of Soil Bacteria

A single ounce of soil contains 50 million living bacteria, according to R. C. Thomas of the Ohio agricultural experiment station.

These bacteria can help or harm the crops, depending on the kind of bacteria. The good kind rot the organic matter, release plant nutrients and help build soil structure. The harmful kind cause plant diseases.

The good kind can be aided and the harmful kind eliminated by adding organic matter to the soil. To get this organic matter, according to Middle West Soil Improvement committee, return all possible animal manures to the soil; put back all crop residues and grow deeprooted legumes regularly in the rotation and feed them generously with fertilizer carrying phosphate

Early Growth Stressed In Raising Baby Pigs

While the average weight of eightweek-old pigs is probably less than 30 pounds, a lot of pigs weigh 40 pounds or more at this age. On the contrary, many weigh as low as 20 pounds. These variations in weaning weights have a marked effect on the growth-rate of pigs up to the time they are baconers. The bigger pigs at eight weeks old are the first to reach 200 pounds liveweight.

True or False?

"American business doesn't enough profit." Do you think statement is true or false? people haven't the vaguest Some folks have been fed ganda which seems to show at ery turn that the main purpose of dustry is to exploit the poor m These persons are side-tracked the wrong answer. Why should ever forget that American but under our system of freedom of portunity has itself done more anything else to make the poor rich? That is industry's goal!

There is one group, however, is well acquainted with the fact business in general does not the profit it ought to make to b our system going ahead at This group is made up of commist and socialist agitators, as as fellow-travelers. They know system depends upon bonest incentives. The communist proin this country is planned around fact that the average American dustry does not make enough pro They are counting on that come back stronger than before It is unfortunate that the gen public sees industry as making orbitant profits. Actually, most ple do not know that industry's p level is as low as it is. Take a cific industry for example. Ac ing to surveys, many think the industry takes for profit as mud 5 cents out of every dollar of a This is wrong as can be. During five recent "boom" years, just cents out of each dollar takes in the steel industry was profit. much of this 3.5 cents was "pl back under.'

Profit Means Jobs We look upon steel as being leader of our manufacturing tries. Steel is basic. It supplies raw materials and semi-pr materials which are the chief of manufacturing plants today. daily lives are conditioned by place of steel in modern civil This is one reason why we sh be concerned about the declin profits shown by the steel ind on a long term basis.

Why would the agitators like a its to be less? They would like see the government "take over" of our major industries. That bring them a step nearer to "taking over." How has goal: profit of steel and other indi despite big increases in sales, kept so low? The main re enormous operating costs and h taxation. Only a very large and ciently managed industry operate successfully under conditions

Steel, like other industries quires constant reinvestment a funds. Moreover, a large por profits have to be returned to business. In 1946, when net in was about 5.5 cents per doll sales about 2.5 cents was put in the steel business. This left 3 cents to be given to the own investors. TOHNNY LISIK sat in the barber chair smiling as he fingered through the pages of the magazine, looking at the cartoons.

In the mirror in front of him he saw the two men peer through the store window. He expected that they would move on once they saw that Tony, the owner of the shop, wasn't there. Johnny's reputation as a barber wasn't too good, and he had had only one dissatisfied customer all night.

Suddenly it dawned on Johnny that these two men had appeared at the window a few minutes before. couldn't be mistaken. They both had several weeks' stubble on their faces, and hair was growing over their ears and down their necks.

The door opened and the men stepped inside. Johnny winced. It was almost eight o'clock. He'd have to work overtime.

Johnny pushed himself out of the chair and noticed that both men were as tall as he, but lean. He saw eyes that were alert, but could stand some sleep. Beneath the growth of whiskers were thin faces that needed a few square meals to help fill out the sunken jaws. And a good whiskbroom could be used to advantage to remove some of the dust from their clothing.

"You the only barber here?" one of the men snapped as he set a small valise on a chair.

Johnny didn't like the man's surly tone. He hunched his broad shoulders, stretched to his full six feet, and was tempted to toss the two haggard looking gents out of the shop, but decided that that might hurt Tony's business.

"Yeah," answered Johnny casually, realizing that he had never seen the men in town before, "the owner of the shop took his wife out tonight, and I'm filling in for him." "I'll go first, Ed," the spokesman for the two said as he began to remove his coat.

The man called Ed grunted, "I don't like takin' this chance, Dick," then he flopped on a chair near the wall and pulled the valise to him.

"Forget it," Dick grinned, "I feel lousy with all this hair on me. A good clean shave and haircut will pep us up."

Johnny walked to the door and started to pull down the shade. Ed jumped to his feet knocking the valise on the floor, his hand flashing to his coat pocket with the same movement. "What are you doin' that for?" he snapped menacingly.

Johnny was stunned by the sudden outburst. He found his voice and explained. "It's getting near closing time. I'm pulling the shades down so that no one else will come

anyone else to come in here, do

Suspicion arose in Johnny's mind. The men's names had a familiar ring. Ed and Dick! Where had he seen or heard these names linked together before? He went to the store window and pulled down the big shade, and the three men were hidden from the eyes of any passerby. He wished he hadn't thought about the shades.

He had an uneasy feeling now that he was alone with the two men. strides he reached the door and

"Nobody can come in now," he sneered. Then he went back, retrieved the valise, and sat down.

Johnny walked to the barber chair and adjusted the headrest. He had an inkling now of whom these two men might be, although it seemed fantastic that he could

Dick loosened his necktie and collar then eased into the barber chair. He looked at his fingernails, brushed them on his knees and said, "You ought to have a girl here to manicure my nails. They could stand a polishin' lie snapped, "I told you, Dick, that this idea of stoppin' at a barber shop was no good. You know those F.B.I. boys are smart, and I bet they figured that Dapper Dick Crane wouldn't be able to resist stoppin' somewhere for a trim."

The clippers poised above Dick's head, Johnny looked in the mirror and said nothing although a wild thought was running through his

Dick straightened in the chair, "You've got the jitters," he said, "what harm was there in comin" here?"

"If this guy's a barber, then I'm Santa Claus," Ed snarled, "I think this guy's been planted here and we've walked into a trap! Pullin' them shades down was a signal!"

Dick ran his hand over the back of his neck, and Johnny forced a smile.

Johnny said, "It doesn't look so man near the wall who was staring at him with cold piercing eyes was his twin brother, Ed.

Johnny took a long linen cloth, spread it in front of Dick, then pinned it around his neck. So these were the kidnappers who had made the headlines two weeks before! They were 700 miles from the coast where they had collected $50,000 in ransom money, and the F.B.I. was supposed to be hot on their trail.

"Don't cut it too short," Dick said, "just give me a good quick trim, and make a neat job."

After picking up the clippers, Johnny turned his back on Ed. He had a good view of him in the mirror. "Been in these parts long?" Ed asked behind him.

"Lived on a farm outside of town neck

"You don't look like a farmer to me," Ed growled, his voice full of suspicion.

"What's eatin' you Ed?" Dick grunted.

Johnny became shaky when he saw Ed's hand grip something in his coat pocket again. He began to work faster and the back of Dick's head didn't look so good. "After all," Johnny thought, "a

Amid the crash of glass, Johnny backed around to the door, and as he unbolted it, he could hear running feet on the pavement.

Sheriff Ike Williard was among the crowd that hurried to investigate the noise caused by the breaking window.

After Johnny explained who the brothers were, Ike smiled and said, "Local boy captures big city slickers."

Dick giggled and said, "You've all my life, except when I was in got the jitters, Ed. We don't want the army," Johnny said as he ran back of his neck, Dick mused, "then the clippers up the back of Dick's you ain't a Fed, heh?" He looked at his brother and added, "Why

'Lay-Away' Plan

THIS congress has come to be known as the "lay-away" congress. It is a name taken from the retail store practice of laying away articles until they are called for.

The congressional lay-away plan first was noted when month after month congress refused to approve the nomination of hundreds of postmasters, laying this legislative act away until after the election when it is possible a Republican president can make new nominations. The same action has been taken on nominations for the federal courts.

During the past few months the law-away plan has been adopted for domestic legislation without regard to the public welfare. An example is universal military training.

Despite polls showing up to 77 per cent of the rank and file of the people favor UMT, the plan has been laid away in a house committee indefinitely. The same plan was tried on the oleomargarine tax repeal measures. It is being used on a full time longrange farm program, using extension of the Steagall act as a substitute. It is being used on the reciprocal trade act.

It was used for a long time on rent control, extensions being granted until rent control no longer could be bottled up.

It is being used on the national health bill. It was used on the national housing act. It was used on the senate approval of nominations to the atomic energy commission. Whereas the law provides appointments up to five years, the senate attempted to approve only a yearly extension.

A number of other measures on the domestic front, such as the President's program to fight inflation, have been given the lay-away treatment. And GOP leadership has been quite frank about putting off action under the guise that even if the nation has to wait a year or so, and when a GOP president is elected and a greater majority can be elected in the senate, better legislation can be written for the country. It is possible, however, that this very lay-away maneuver will defeat the purpose the GOP steering committee has in mind.

As of the first of this year, REA had 67 million dollars available for REA loans. It had on file applications from REA co-ops in 45 states amounting to $296,380,000 and applications being received average about 24 million dollars per month. So with a deficit of 229 million dollars and an estimated 150 million dollars additional for fiscal 1948 and 300 million dollars necessary for fiscal 1949, need amounted to approximately 660 million dollars. The house appropriations committee gave the agency 400 million dollars, or 260 million dollars short of estimated needs.

Advice to Democrats

In warning Virginia Democrats against splitting the Democratic party over the civil rights issue, as it was split over the religious issue in 1928, Sen. Spessard Holland of Florida gave Virginia and all southern states some sound advice. Said Senator Holland:

"I well remember that in 1928 when last we faced a confusing situation in our party at its national level, we were too prone to become involved as individuals and as state leaders in the national controversy and that as a result our party and our party program suffered woefully in various of the southern states."

Just Misguided

"A 'sap' is a 'misguided crea-ture' says vitriolic Congressman Harold Knutson. During the oleo debate in the house and referring to Republicans who voted for tax repeal, Knutson said: "As for you poor saps who pulled the chestnuts out of the fire for the southern min-ority . . . " The next day Knutson changed his remarks in the congressional record to read: "As for you poor misguided creatures . . .

Senators Morse of Oregon and Thomas of Utah and Congressmen Tollefson of Washington and Madden of Indiana think workers need a broader understanding of today's problems about production, bargaining, the labor law and democracy. So they want to start a labor extension service somewhat similar to the agricultural extension service in land grant colleges. Farm organizations oppose it.

Reciprocity

All farm organizations find themselves aligned in favor of extension of the reciprocal trade act. So does the national manufacturers association and the U.S. chamber of commerce. But some farmers, such as southern cotton, tung oil, California almond growers and a few others, want special concessions for themselves. So do the wool growers. And so do the glass monopoly, the vitrified china association and a few other industrialists.

PHARES and WILKINS 2209 Ave H. Lubbock, Texas A WORKER'S SOCIETY?

If you are a tradesman, or skilled or unskilled laborer who works with his hands-if you call yourself a "worker"-you must indeed be thankful that you live in America. Not that you should be any more or less thankful being a doctor, lawyer, teacher, or whatever you are. But somebody has called this nation a "workers' Republic", and I consider that phrase a good way to describe what we enjoy in this land of plenty.

Indeed there is no other country, whether socialized, partly socialized, or even communistic, that has given its workers more. A capitalistic America has enabled even "common" laborers to live like .$2.00 kings were accustomed to live not many years ago. We produce and enjoy the fruits of production. We must never forget that this has come about because the American way of life makes it possible.

Glorious Future Do you know of a better and happier workers' nation? Have the "isms" and ideologies of the experimenters produced anything better? Certainly they have not. No worker in the world comes anywhere close to drawing the pay or enjoying the comforts of the average person right here in America. There is hardly a nation today that is not begging us to send them goods, or to bolster up their lagging economy in some way.

Possibly there are shortcomings in the American method. But judging from the achievements of the past, and viewing the possibilities ahead-I can think of nothing more foolish than to discard any part of our American way.

We can have a future fully as glorious as our past. We have new worlds of atomic energy, jet propulsion, and electronics to explore. I can think of no other economic system, besides the kind we have in America, as being equal to the opportunities ahead.

Your Own Way

We have immediate needs, too. Our people could use perhaps five million new and improved homes in which to live. Millions of farm homes need electricity and running water. We need more automobiles, and our capacity for them seems never to diminish. More cars mean more roads. One advancement calls for many more. Friend, let me say that I know of no system that wil bring these things to us-except that American way of initiative and enterprise.

In this workers' America, there are other things of great importance. As a worker, you are not told what you may do or how to do it. You are not the mere chattel EYE, EAR, NOSE & THROAD choose your job and your career, and so can your son. You can make your own decisions. Whether you work for an employer, or decide to work for yourself, you have a right to serve the world your own way. These things are important to you, and you are important to your nation.

Cover Crops Reduce Soil Erosion Losses Research Tests Show Four Main Advantages

How cover crops seeded in corn and other row crops could help farmers fight erosion, build up the soil's organic matter and add to the nitrogen supply, is indicated in studies by research men in Iowa agricultural experiment station.

Four major advantages are cited: Cover crops protect the soil 1. from August to May. Onefourth of the annual soil loss occurs during this period.

OUR POLICIES PROVIDE 2. Well-fertilized legumes and grasses add organic matter to the soil that helps resist erosion during the May and June period. This is the time when one-half of the annual soil losses occur.

Cover crops add nitrogen to the 3. soil, especially when legumes are a part of all the mixture.

 The yield of corn will be slightly increased in the year following the seeding of cover crops.

Research workers have developed a plan that licks the problem of seeding the cover crops. Just before laying by the corn, they broadcast the seed with an endgate seeder. Weeders are attached to the cultivator to help cover the seed and better growth results.

New Strain of Corn Withstands Drouth Guatemala Crossbreed Also Resists Root Rot

Possibility of producing corn that would withstand root rot and other diseases as well as prolonged dry spells appealed to Earl E. May and Iowa State college officials.

Knowing that Guatemala had been producing corn for more than 2,000 years in an isolated region, which had resulted in a highly inbred strain which could withstand dry spells as well as certain diseases and pests, lowa research workers collected

New Guatemala - U. S. crossbred corn has been tested at Ames, Iowa. The new corn outyielded three commonly used U.S. hybrids as much as 25 bushels to the acre. While the Midwest varieties withered and died during hot weather, the Guatemala-U.S. crossbreed remain in full ears.

The tests are to be continued, but college officials believe that early results give promise of a new strain that will withstand long dry and hot spells in any part of the United States. James Moore, K.M.A. station, reports that work in Guatemala has proven entirely successful and he believes that the new corn soon will be grown on many farms in the United States.

OVERTURE: Peaceful

All of a sudden the air between Washington and Moscow was filled with talk of peace and desire for co-

Exactly what had happened to bring about the quick flow of the milk of human kindness between the U. S. and Russia was not clear. Certainly there had occurred no basic change in the potentially explosive relationship.

It began with a U. S. statement of position, voiced by Bedell Smith, ambassador to Russia, in the presence of Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

Smith, apparently speaking officially, suggested that the way is clear for a discussion of differences with Russia. Said the U.S. am-

"The present state of U. S.-Soviet relations is a source of grievous disappointment to the American people. As far as the United States is concerned, the door is always wide open for full discussion and the composing of our differences."

Russia's reply, as broadcast by the Moscow radio, expressed a positive attitude toward improving Soviet-American relations and stated that Russia "is in agreement" with a U. S. proposal for "discussion and settlement of existing differences.'

Although these developments received a big play in the press and radio of both nations, indications were strong that the aura of mutual hostility separating the U.S. and Russia might not be dispelled by the willingness to "compose our differences.

Neither side had modified its foreign policy. Rather, each had emphasized it in the exchange of notes. The U.S. statement said, in part "The concern and the determination of the people of the United States have been intensified by the inexplicable hostility of the Soviet government to the European recovery program-a measure which in its inception and subsequent developments is so obviously only a measure of American assistance for reconstruction on a co-operative basis without menace or threat to any-

In their reply the Soviets contrasted what they termed military threats against the Soviet Union with the Russian government's pursuit of "a consistent peace policy

At least there was a definition of terms and a preliminary agreement to talk things over. Whether or not any good would come of it was, at this stage, problematical.

There was a suspicion abroad subject of civil rights for some time that Russia, balked in its ambitions now, the echoes of the civil rights to expand into western Europe by the European recovery program, might be ready now to try to make some kind of deal.

ALL ABOARD: Trains Run

U. S. economy escaped being, a victim of railroad paraplegia at the eleventh hour when three rail brotherhoods yielded to a restraining order brought against them by the government and called off their impending strike.

Events leading up to that climax had run a course which has become familiar to strike-weary Americans. Negotiations between the railroads and the three dissenting brotherhoods - engineers, firemen and switchmen-had been fruitless. As the strike deadline approached they remained miles away from any kind of agreement on wages and working

By that time President Truman had built up a full head of steam and he opened the throttle wide.

Acting under the sanction of a 1916 law which authorizes the government to take over the railroads during the time of war (U. S. is still, officially, in a state of wartime emergency) Mr. Truman seized the entire vast network of tracks and trains in the name of the federal government. That move paved the way for a court order restraining the unions from striking for eight days. Federal District Judge T. Alan Goldsborough issued the order and the nation's trains kept running, for the time being, at least.

Possibly proving that there is no wind so ill that it doesn't blow up some good for somebody, one of the major influences leading to cancellation of the rail strike was John L. Lewis, who didn't have a word to say about it.

But Lewis had set the pattern. The looking to 1952.

UNCERTAINTY:

Who Won?

Just about all that anyone was sure of when the smoke from the Ohio primary elections had cleared was that Sen. Robert Taft had won 44 delegates to the Republican national convention and that Harold Stassen, the wolf at Taft's door, had captured nine.

How these results should be interpreted promised to be a thoroughly argued question by the time the Republicans convened in Philadelphia to nominate a presidential candidate.

Many held the opinion that the Ohio primary resulted in, if not an outright defeat for Stassen, at least a brusque check on the Minnesotan's heretofore snowballing cam-

Stassen had competed with Taft for 23 of the state's 53 delegates. He won nine and Taft took 14 of those 23. In a pre-election statement, Stassen had said that the Ohio contest could be accounted a victory for him only if he won a majority of the 23 disputed delegates.

Thus, by his own estimate, Stassen lost in Ohio. He lost, however, to a "favorite son" candidate strongly supported in his own state by Ohio's powerful political organiza-

It was hardly a victory for Taft to shout about.

In the final analysis the G.O.P. election race had not changed much. It was Taft and Dewey teaming up to force Stassen into the rail, with Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan coming up fast on the outside.

FARM ISSUE: Truman's

Rather hard put for a good, earthy issue to play upon in his coming campaign, President Truman has hit upon the farm problem as the vehicle to carry some of his convictions before the public.

He began by planning a message to congress on the subject of longrange agricultural legislation. The idea was originated by the retiring Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson who opined that such a plea to congress would put the Republicans "on the spot."

The message which Mr. Truman was preparing would ask for an 'adequate appropriation' to continue the government farm program, 'particularly on soil conservation.' according to Alben Barkley, senate Democratic leader.

Barkley acidulously recalled that the President had asked in his budget message for 300 million dollars for soil conservation in the coming fiscal year, and that congress had cut that sum to 225 mil-

Many U. S. farmers would be inclined to agree.

'X' for Taft

Sen. Robert Taft's presidential star once again was in ascendancy following the important Ohio primary election of 53 Republican national convention delegates. He won 14 of the 23 contests in which Harold E. Stassen was a strong disputant.

WHEAT:

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Big Crop Carolina defined the South's stand

Word from the department of when he told the rally that the South agriculture was that the U.S. would is not in revolt against the Demoproduce the third largest wheat crop cratic party but against its present in history this year. The department stuck to that pre-Spark that kindled the political diction even though it had reduced its estimate of the important winter wheat crop by 14.5 million bushels from the April 1 estimate.

Except in parts of the southern great plains, the crop made good progress, it was revealed in an official department report.

As of May 1, prospects were for a total of 1.117 billion bushels of wheat. Largest crop was 1.36 billion bushels last year. Production in the 1936-45 period averaged 890 million Department of agriculture estimated the fall-sown winter wheat crop at about 845 million bushels, a decline of 14.5 from its April 1 forecast. No official estimate of spring wheat was available, but a guess was that average yields should produce 272 million bushels.

PLANT LIFE:

Appetites

Atomic scientists have learned that some plants, like human beings, are finicky eaters.

This new knowledge, important commercially, is the result of exhaustive tests with radioactive isotopes of phosphorous.

Now science can tell a farmer who spends $50 to put phosphate fertilizer on his land whether the plant only nibbles or takes a bite big enough to repay his expenses.

Washington Digest

Series of Contradictions Marks Political Campaign

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator

WASHINGTON-Political currents and cross currents are running high, wide and deep along the Potomac these days.

The wave of popularity stirred up by Stassen supporters is not pleasant for regular Republicans to contemplate. Some of the non-professionals however, particularly those in the Taft corner, are very bitter about it, not because they think that Stassen will get in, but because of the way he has served to block the Taft efforts-despite the fact that the efforts have been labelled, rightly or wrongly, futile from the beginning. Deweyites don't admit they are worrying - but!

I talked to one of the Taft men recently. "What makes me sick," he said, "is the way the people who have done their best to break down Taft are full of praise for him now that they think he is beaten. They describe his efficiency, his knowledge, his frankness, his grasp of the subjects he discusses. And they talk about Stassen's vagueness and inability to answer Taft's charges." 'And these," he wound up, "are the same people who have been shooting at Taft ever since he started his presidential campaign."

There is something in what this man says. You would be surprised how many liberals, how many Democrats even, praise Taft privately, would really like to see him elected, but either they can't quite come out openly in his favor, or they take for granted he can't win anyhow.

Then there is the great group of Republicans who are going to vote for Dewey, but act as if they were gritting their teeth in the process. "What have you got against Dewey?" I ask them. Some are vague, others say the New York governor is a "straddler . . . an opportunist . . . never comes out for an issue until he sees a Gallup poll on it . . . but I suppose he'll win . . ." Can he?

Since the Stassen hurricane, the oldtimers are talking a little differently about Dewey. Some of them who have predicted right along that Dewey would win now are saying that Stassen has undermined him so thoroughly that now Dewey has no more chance than Taft.

And all the time the Vandenberg tide is rising. But here's an interesting thing. Way back in February some very canny observers were saying that Speaker Joe Martin of the house of representatives had the best chance of anyone for the Republican presidential nomination, in case of the expected Taft-Dewey deadlock.

At the time many people were surprised at that opinion. But it wasn't long before we began to see mention of Martin here and there. Then, finally, insiders accepted him as probably the best bet of the several Republican dark horses. I know I could feel his popularity growing as I traveled around the country.

But then came the surprise move when Martin was credited with bringing about settlement of the coal miners' pension row-the appointment of Sen. Styles Bridges New Hampshire as neutral trustee on the pension board with John Lewis and Ezra Van Horn, and the agreement that was reached between Bridges and Lewis.

At first the settlement put Martin in a favorable light with the public. Then some of the conservative Republicans who hate Lewis expressed their disapproval. There were hints of a "deal" that had been reached between Bridges and Lewis before Bridges was appointed. Democrats charged that Martin was politicking. Horn, representing the operators, appealed to the courts to declare the pension agreement invalid.

Martin's stock dropped. And the oldtimers began to say his chances for the presidential nomination were slim. Not so much because of the pension deal itself, but paradoxically-and this is one of the accepted paradoxes of politics-because his intervention in the row was taken as a public avowal of his candidacy. Martin ceased to be a dark horseand as a light horse, he wasn't considered nearly as much of a favor-

The paradox applies to Senator Vandenberg. The Michigan senator constantly and consistently has disavowed any desire or intention of being a candidate for the Republican nomination. If, according to this paradoxical political rule, the oldtimers say, he were thrust into the limelight, his cause woud suffer too. At this writing, Vandenberg seems to stand as the No. 1 bet.

Stassenites, however, claim that this paradox is all old hat; that times and political thinking have changed. One of the first black marks which the Republican old guard checked against Stassen was the fact that he came right out as a candidate way ahead of time. The traditional thing is to be oh, so coy

But some observers feel as Newsweek magazine expressed it some time ago: "Stassen's forthright quest for votes may end much of the traditional coyness of aspirants. In the future, it's thought that more candidates will frankly announce their intentions well in advance of election." Well, maybe. There is plenty of old-line resentment against Stassen, not only because he began an open campaign so early, but also because of the efficient, powerful, highly-organized and aggressive machine he has built up. A right wing Republican ex-governor, and the New York banking interests "that wanted in." Senator Taft was reported so furious over Stassen's invasion of Ohio that it was thought that he might forget his rivalry with Dewey and throw his support to the New Yorker earlier in the convention if the deadlock was

All this talk AGAINST candidates is interesting psychologically.

You always hear far more rea sons for voting AGAINST a candidate than you hear for voting FOR one. It's a very good thing that no candidate is ever quite so bad as his opponents claim he is. Otherwise the government would fall apart regularly every four years.

On Charles street in the sleepy little town of Fredericksburg, Va., in the first floor office of a storyand-a-half brick house, you can see, if you obey the parking signs and stop there, a beautiful brass-bound mahogany desk, artistic handiwork of the French cabinet makers of the early 18th century.

It is an historic piece of furniture for on its surface 125 years ago, there was signed a document which, reactivated today, becomes at once the challenge and the hone of free men throughout the world.

That desk, carefully carried across the seas as a precious heirloom. found its way into the great, empty rooms of the White House, newlyrebuilt after the destructive fire set by an enemy torch in the War of Turn back the pages to December of the year 1823. At this desk sits a man in a stiffly-starched stock. His broad forehead is wrinkled with thought. His wide eyes look down at the document he is about to sign. It is his message to the 18th congress of the United States, but it embodies the spirit and is couched in the phrases which his predecessors have used before him expressing the intent and the obligations of the young republic of which he, James Monroe, is the President.

Two years before, the Czar of all the Russians had uttered a ukase that no foreigner must approach within 100 miles of the American coastline north of the 51st parallel. Russia then had a firm foothold on the northwestern coastline of the western hemisphere. The iron curtain had descended.

pass. Today, the United States, in a world that has shrunk until Moscow is nearer to Washington than Boston was in Monroe's time, rededicates its resources to "help free peoples to maintain their free institutions and their national integrity against aggressive movements that seek to impose upon them totalitarian regimes.

The words are President Truman's, but the spirit is the same as that breathed in the Monroe doctrine. America carries on.

Polysyllabically, John L. Lewis and Gen. Douglas MacArthur have something in common. Perhaps Lewis should run as MacArthur's vice president. Think of all the sonorous five-syllable-word statements they could get out.

In President Lincoln's time, most of the speeches were made in the open air without benefit of public address system or microphone. Now all you really need is a few friends who can make themselves heard in a smoke-filled room.

MAL III

After Jerry's recent discharge m the hospital, he decided that he wanted to live out at the cottage while making his plans for the future. His family objected, not without cause, and it wasn't until old Doc Crowder, the family end and physician, convinced them that it would be a good hing for Jerry to do under the umstances, that they finelly rielded to his wishes. Jerry had ent every summer of his life there, until his enlistment, and he oved the old place.

So, when his mother and Lucy reluctantly left him this afteron, he was glad. Not that he did not appreciate the things which they had been doing for him, but he wanted to be on his own. He had plans to make and this change and the quiet that he world have would be perfect. He had tried, ring his month at home, to apply his own "self-reasoning" ethod, but to little avail. He felt confident that it could be tested reperly by facing his problems dependently.

Jerry sat near the window for ite some time trying to make start at some of that "selfeasoning," but his mind kept reerting to the broadcast he had heard carlier. If the woman only had had a gun, he thought. She probably would have been afraid to use it, though; most women were. He thought of the empty Luger in his bag and wished that he could have tried again to get some ammunition for it. He loved that gun, a gift from one of his buddies who had not come back. Jerry went into the bedroom and took the gun from his bag. He fondled it and then slipped it into his pocket. He smiled when he realized just how foolish that was. He came back to his chair and then lit his pipe.

He had been sitting there for just a few minutes when, suddealy, he heard the back door being opened, and then the click of the light switch. He sat still. wondering who it could be. a dozen thoughts chasing through his mind. He felt the useless gun in his pocket and took it firmly. Now, if ever, he could test himself on several of the things which he had learned during his rehabili-

In less than a minute, it seemed, he heard the ice-box door being opened, and a low chuckle come from the intruder. Then he heard things being put on the table. He knew that whoever was in the kitchen seemed sure of himself. He must know, he thought, that even with the whole house lighted, it was practically impossible to see in from any side. The minutes dragged while he listened to the man eating and drinking. From the noise he was making, slamming the ice-box door and moving his chair, the man undoubtedly thought that he was alone. Perhaps he had seen Lucy and her mother leave hours before and had waited for darkness to

After what had seemed an hour, the heard the man get up from the table and walk toward the hall which led into the living room. Jerry knew that his safety de-pended upon what he would be able to do within the next few minutes. It wasn't a very pleasant spot to be in, but . . .

He thought of the broadcaster's remark, that the killer had not used a car, and that it was sus-pected that he was making a getaway by the county back-roads and woods. This could be the man. For as long as he could remember.

go. I ain't done nothing but eat some of your grub. Honest, mister, I'll get out of here quick if you'll put that gun down." This was the voice of a frightened man, but not the voice or true dialect of a hobo. Jerry relaxed slightly, and the man in the chair moved. This was the time to "follow through" if he was ever going to do it. "Get up and do exactly as I tell you," he commanded. The man cringed but rose slowly, his eyes still on the gun. He hated guns; he was afraid of guns, and ne knew now that this man knew it, too. If he could only knock it

The man advanced toward the door and the telephone without looking from right to left, Jerry moved to his side as he passed him. He could feel the man's body tremble, as though he were having a chill, when he touched him with the gun.

When Jerry heard a hand moving along the wall groping for a light-switch, he stood up and pointed the gun toward the door. Then it happened — the living room light was snapped on. He heard a hoarse cry of surprise.

The man's breathing was heavy as he stood motionless, facing the He had a fear that Jerry could sense was genuine.

"Get 'em up! Who are you and what do you want?" Jerry was an officer in the infantry again as he made the demand. The man was shaking when he spoke, "You're a cool one, brother. Put the gun down, please, before you hurt somebody." He took a step forward, and Jerry raised the gun and moved it slightly from side to side. Looking toward the man, Jerry was not sure of what he should do next. Then all the admonitions of his teachers came back to him: SHOW NO FEAR-THINK FAST-SPEAK WITH CON-VICTION - REASON - FOLLOW THROUGH .

"Sit down in that chair," Jerry roared, surprised at his loud voice. This gave him a bit of confidence. Then he thought of his next move. "A nut," the man ventured, half under his breath, and he obeyed. He kept his eyes on the gun as though hypnotized by it.

"Shut up and sit still." "You're a smart . . ." The man glanced away from the gun just long enough to see if there was anything near that he could grab.

"Wot you going to do? Let me

The man lowered his arm slowly and took the receiver off the hook. He'd stall, he thought; maybe the nut would give him an 'in.' But hearing the sound of regular breathing and feeling the pressure of the gun against his back, any illusions that he might have had regarding an 'in,' were shattered.

"Operator, gimme the Helm road police station." His voice quavered, and his hand was shaking. He couldn't keep the receiver close to his ear.

The man was conscious of the gun at his back, and he spoke in a deep hoarse whisper, "Come to the Anderson cottage off Helm road right away. "What's up?" Jerry heard the officer ask "Tell him," he snapped at the then ordered his prisoner to go back to the same chair and sit The killer had a dogged smirk on his face as he turned and moved toward the chair. He felt positive that his captor was a 'nut,' and with that gun . . .

Seconds passed as he continued to glare at Jerry. Then he thought of an old trick that he would try in order to get Jerry off guard. He wondered why he had not tried it when he first came into the room. Stiffening himself and settling back in the chair, he broke the silence with a tirade of oaths. "Keep it up and keep them up, too," Jerry ordered. This was not the reaction that the killer and hoped for. He then quieted and began to talk more coherently, and soon was telling of the crime for which he was being hunted. He spared none of the details.

Then Jerry heard the purr of a motor and men's voices. A slight wave of relief swept over him. Almost immediately, there was a sound of crackling shrubbery and running feet. The front opened and two officers, with guns drawn, rushed in. They saw their man and covered "Good work, Mr. Anderson, good

When the officers yanked the man to his feet and they had started for the door, one of them said to the prisoner, "You're lucky to have had this extra living time, him spotting you and with everybody in the county ready and willing to shoot you on sight." The prisoner did not comment, but he scowled and was shaking and snorting with anger.

"The gun was not loaded, officer, and I could recognize him only from his story . . . you see, I am blind," Jerry said softly.

Men Who Dared To Stand For God

Lesson for June 6, 1948

FIERY furnace, and a lion's den. A These are the tests to which Sunday's lesson will put our hero about whom we studied last Sunday, this young man Daniel. Three friends, Shadrack, Meshach and Abednego, will undergo the test of the fiery furnace, having been convinced by Daniel's example that God trustworthy. And Daniel will spend the night in the den of lions. You will need to read chapters three through six to get the full story.

DANIEL IN THE DEN OF LIONS

THE sixth chapter must be read to have an adequate background for this study. Daniel had been chosen as the first of three presidents to rule over 120 princes who should govern the kingdom. The other two presidents and the princes could find no fault in this Hebrew, save that he believed and observed the law of his God. So, they conspired against him by persuading the king to issue a decree that no person in the kingdom was to make a petition to any God or man for 30 days, save to the king, on the penalty of being cast into the den of lions. This decree was issued by Darius, and Daniel's enemies reported to Darius that Daniel was opening his window three times a day, praying to his God. Darius was greatly troubled, but had to stand by his decree, and Daniel was cast into the den of lions. Darius spent a sleepless night, and hurried to the den at dawn to know about Daniel. Daniel replied, "O king, live for ever. My God hath sent his angel, and hath shut the lions' mouths, that they have not hurt

DARIUS REWARDS DANIEL

C ONVINCED that Daniel's conrewarded by God, Darius ordered the other two presidents and the princes, together with their wives and children, thrown into the lions' dens. They were all destroyed by

Then Darius issued a decree to all the nations and people of all languages that dwell in all the earth. Hear this decree

"Peace be multiplied unto you. I make a decree, That in every dominion of my kingdom men tremble and fear before the God of Daniel; for he is the living God, and stedfast forever, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed, and his dominion shall be even unto the end." So Daniel prospered in the reign of Darius and of Cyrus, the Persian.

COURAGE TO PUT GOD FIRST

L OOK now at the other test of faith—that of the three Hebrew children, Shadrack, Meshach and Abednego. Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, had made a golden image, 90 feet high and nine feet wide, and set it up in the plain of Dura. On a certain day, when he was going to establish his state religion, he ordered every subject to fall down and worship this image.

But Shadrack, Meshach and Abednego refused to worship the image. Nebuchadnezzar was furious when he heard of their refusal. He summoned them into his presence, and warned them of their fate if they further refused to worship his gods. They answered him frankly that they would not bow down to the image. He ordered them thrown into the fiery furnace.

They decided that death was more honorable than apostasy. The men who cast them into the furnace fell

UNSEARED AND UNSINGED!

B UT the three Hebrew children walked into the flames, unseared and unsinged! The king was astounded. The people were amazed. They had witnessed what the God of all the earth can and will do.

Then went forth the decree, 'There is no other God that can deliver after this sort." Thus we have the golden text for Sunday's lesson:

"Be it known unto thee, O king, that we will not serve thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up."

And what happened in the long ago when men dared to stand up and trust in God will happen today and every day.

Way to Socialism

When President Charles Seymour of Yale University declared recently that his university wants no part of federal grants for educational purposes, it seemed to me high time that educators gers inherent in federal aid to education. The public, too, seems entirely too complacent regarding this "let-Washington-do-it" attitude, an attitude far too many educators have been fooled into accepting.

It was President Seymour's idea that direct federal grants to his institution would "imperil the independence of the university." Indeed, sooner or later they would. Public school educators could tear a leaf out of President Seymour's notebook. If federal aid would bring interference and control at Yale, so also would federal grants to public education bring control by Washington over local educational functions.

Pocketbook Power

As far as I know, nobody has ever argued that control over the finances of an undertaking fails to bring with it full control of that project. Surely where the pocketbook it, there goes the authority. None of those arguing for federal aid will admit they would welcome federal control of education. Everybody wants to avoid federal control (except the Communists).

Yet, it amazes me that folks would accept measures that lead to control, as surely as dawn precedes day. We work hard and spend tax money, to promote decentralization, local responsibility, and local self-government in Germany. We still believe that Hitler and his Nazis built a dictatorship by concentrating power into hands that no one dared oppose.

Local Rights

Why then, should America ever take a step in the same direction? Federal aid to public education is socialized education. All the dangers attendant to the centralized government would be magnified under any plan that would permit federal control of the education of children. Must America go in the same direction that Czechoslovakia has gone? Freedom of the local community in educational affairs must be maintained.

No sane educator or good citizen would argue against more and better education. Everybody agrees on the necessity for improving our schools con-stantly. Not only the children, but the nation as a whole suffers when we neglect to provide funds for school buildings and equipment. Our public school teachers need better pay and better training.
