ADOPTED CHILDREN NOW COVERED BY S. S.

September 30 is an important date to many people according to John G. Hutton, manager of the Lubbock social security office. This is the last day that many people can apply for social security benefits for adopted children without loss of some benefits.

The 1958 amendments to the Social Security Act liberalized the rules regarding benefits for adopted children. Under these amendments, children can receive benefits immediately upon adoption by a retired or disabled worker. Also, if the child was living with and being supported by a worker who died, the child may get social security benefits if he is adopted by the widow within two years after the worker's death. If the worker died before August 1958 the child can qualify if adopted by the widow before September 1960. Mother's benefits may be paid to the widow who adopted the child after the worker's death.

According to Mr. Hutton, many people who were believed eligible under this change have not inquired at the social security office. Inquiry should be made before Sept. 30th to prevent any loss of benefits. A representative of the Lubbock Social Security office will be in O'Donnell on July 29th at 2 p. m. at Elementary School and will be glad to assist in all matters pertaining to Social Security.

Crops Best In History

The big news this week is the prospects of a multimillion dollar harvest of cotton and grain in this trade area. Open, dry weather for the past week has made ideal growing conditions. Crops are the best ever seen for mid July according to numerous long time farmers and residents here.

Only hail or a wind storm could cut the yield now as underground moisture should take the crop thru with scattered cotton showers next month.

Cotton chopping is expected to continue thru much of August. Week end business is brisk and merchants are gearing their planning for a mad rush of fall business. Houses in town are filling rapidly with many new families moving in.

What frightens most of us is that it looks too good to be true. Drive out in the country Sunday and see for yourself.

Katie Garrett, Pam Singleton, Jimmy Gay Gardenhire, Libby Cook, Fran McLaurin, Cieta Faye Massey have returned from a Girl Scout camp at Rio Blanco, near Crosbyton.

H. M. Veach is up after suffering a mild stroke.

The oil test just east of town was at 3,000 feet Sunday. Contract depth is 5,000 ft.

INSECTS CONTINUE LIGHT

Local heavy rains reduced cotton insect infestations in some sections while light showers favored activity of the insects in many other fields. Reports generally indicated some increase in insects activity thruout the area over the previous week.

Trips were found in lower infestations in most fields. Only Hockley County reported heavy infestations in occasional plantings.

Aphid populations increased very rapidly in many fields, particularly on late planted cotton. Damaging infestations were reported in Crosby, Hale, Lamb, Lubbock, Lynn, and Swisher Counties. Late planted cotton or regrowth should be checked frequently for appearance of damaging infestations.

Fleahopper infestations increased on the earlier planted cotton in most counties. Light to heavy populations were reported in some fields in Dawson, Bailey and Lamb counties. Light to medium infestations were reported elsewhere. Since the heavier infestations have been found on cotton which has set some fruit, the degree of terminal small square set should be checked along with fleahopper counts.

Know The Law

A trial aims to settle a dispute when the parties fail to do it themselves. For this the court needs facts.

Simple? Well, no. For if the parties could agree on the facts, a settlement out of court would be easy. But as a rule each side has its own story, and the trial judge or jury must hear witnesses and view physical evidence to decide what took place. In doing this the court applies the rules of evidence.

1. Irrelevant testimony will also be barred by the judge. It is testimony which has no bearing on the case, even though it may be true enough.

Suppose in a battery case the jury has to find out whether Jones knocked Smith down or not. The judge would have to rule out any evidence that Jones, say, was rich and Smith poor. Such a fact, even if true, has nothing to do with the "issue." Moreover, such irrelevant facts often confuse jurors and arouse their prejudices.

3 Only an expert like a doctor, an appraiser, a chemist, a pharmacist, or an engineer can give opinions as evidence, and he must show his qualifications as an expert before the judge will let him express his views.

Lawyers keep inadmissible evidence out of court by making "objections." When the judge "sustains" an objection, the jury may not hear the evidence. Or if he does, the judge may "instruct" the jury to ignore it. Should the judge "overrule" the objection, the jury may hear the evidence.

LOCAL YOUTHS ENJOY FARM TOUR RECENTLY

Cottonseed Has Wide Market

Prior to 1947, says the USDA, use of cottonseed meal for livestock rations was limited largely to cattle because of the gossypol, a pigment that is toxic to poultry and swine.

Although variable from year to year, the new market for cottonseed meal has been estimated by the USDA to have reached 300,000 tons annually in recent years. California, at the present time, is the largest market for the improved cottonseed meal, where in 1958 an estimated 200,000 tons went into poultry rations.

In the past, even when fed to laying hens at low, non-toxic levels, gossypol in unimproved cottonseed meal caused egg yolk discoloration. The improved cottonseed meals, however, can be fed at levels up to 1% percent of the total diet of hens with no adverse effect on yolks of eggs produced for the fresh egg market.

USDA's Agricultural Research Service began work early in the 1940's to improve cottonseed meal. Studies of the chemical and physical properties of cottonseed and of the pigment glands containing gossypol gave scientists of the ARS Southern Utilization Research and Development Division, New Orleans, an understanding of the role played by gossypol and laid the groundwork for producing cottonseed meal with a low gossypol content.

Further work indicated that the glands containing gossypol could be ruptured during processing by several means, and a large part of the freed toxic material could then be inactivated at a much lower temperature than was previously thought possible. Also, low processing temperatures favor high protein quality in the meal. However, achievements to date do not complete the research required to realize the full feeding potential of cottonseed meal, the USDA added.

BACTERIA MAY RUIN FOOD

Nothing can live without food, suitable temperature and an appropriate amount of moisture. This applies to man, animals, fish -- and plants.

It also applies to bacteria! The range of needs for bacteria is slim, but when they are present bacteria can be very prolific, multiplying themselves by the millions in mere minutes.

That is why food poisoning is so much more common in warm weather -- and why you need to be especially carefully now about preparing food and storing it.

The main rule to remember is that bacteria which are apt to cause food poisoning thrive best in lukewarm foods.

Thus if you make it a hard-fast habit to keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold, the chance of bacteria getting a foothold are slim.

However, there are certain foods that have proven to be more susceptible to bacteria growth and the resulting food poisoning conditions.

For instance, egg and milk mixtures, including custards and meats, either in salads or sandwiches, and potato salad -- one of the popular picnic foods -- are often quickly suspected when food infections occur in summer.

Making sandwiches and wrapping them in wax paper to let stand for hours before eating is just asking for trouble. So keep them well refrigerated.

Potato salad can give lots of trouble. The best way to avoid it is to chill all the ingredients before mixing, and then store the salad in SHALLOW containers in the refrigerator. Deep bowls retain the room temperatures in the center portions.

Everyone loves a picnic. Enjoy them, but a portable ice box and a thermos bottle are musts if you are going to minimize the chance of summer food poisonings.

Cottonseed now has a market as a high protein feed for poultry and swine, says the USDA. Improved processing techniques have made this new use possible by lowering of the free gossypol content in the meal.
