O'Donnell Doubles Quota In Red Cross

Only One Day Used On Drive

O'Donnell really has something to crow about in the fine way we rolled up the Red Cross Drive last Wednesday. O'Donnell's quota was $250 and before the workers were thru for the day $663 was collected. John Ellis was local director of the drive and he was assisted by Chas. Cathey, Leibert Mires and Homer Hancock as well as possibly others. Tahoka's quota was $500 and that community collected slightly more than $600. O'Donnell never fails to go over the top on any worthy drive. The largest contribution, as far as the index knows, was $25 by a local merchant.

Approximately half of the money collected in Lynn Co. remains in the County for quick assistance to the needy.

Ed. note: The Index has been having Linotype trouble due to sand and dust grinding up and clogging vital parts. Next Monday we will be down for repairs having the Lino cleaned. Because of a day or more out of production, this great weekly will be late; distribution in town will probably be Thursday afternoon and... routes... Friday Morning.

Man Killed Here Sunday By Truck

Mishap Occurs 2 miles North Of Town

A Latin American traveling on foot along U. S. Hiway 87 about 2 miles north of here, was struck and killed instantly by a pickup truck shortly after 4 a m Sunday. The man, Vicente E. Mata, about 33, of Carlsbad, N M suffered a fractured skull, and breaks in his right arm and one leg when he was hit by the right front side of the truck driven by Billy Ray Chance, 21, of Lubbock. Investigating sheriff's officers from here and Tahoka said Chance, who was driving the 1949 Chevrolet pickup, had seen the man in the distance on the right hand side of the road, and that as he approached the man ran out onto the highway directly in front of him.

Mata apparently was in the area alone and without means of transportation. They said tire marks and other visible evidence at the scene of the mishap indicated that Chance had swerved across the left lane in an attempt to avoid hitting the man. The force of the impact smashed the truck's right fender and drove the radiator back into the fan.

Other evidence of the force of the impact came later Sunday when officers found a shoe missing from Mata's foot in a cotton field about 30 feet away. The imprints of his elbow and head were left on the fender. Mata was employed in Tahoka by a New Mex. construction firm which is working on the city streets at Tahoka. The body was taken to Stanley Funeral Home at Tahoka for burial at Carlsbad. He was married.

Chance was carrying a load of Avalanche Journal papers when the accident happened. A nearby farmer heard the crash and took Chance in to O'Donnell after seeing that Mata was dead. Cleve Bairrington went to the scene after calling Sheriff Clem at Tahoka.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Miners Cited on Contempt Charge; Compromise Reached on Oleo Bill; U.S. - Bulgarian Relations Severed

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.

PIT MEN: A New Angle

Federal Judge Richmond B. Keech wrote a new angle into the continuing fight between the United Mine Workers and the coal operators. The judge cited the miners themselves for criminal contempt on grounds that the 370,000 UMW members had "willfully and wrongfully" ignored his back-to-work order.

THE NEW ANGLE was that this time the UMW's boss, John L. Lewis was not even mentioned in the citation. Observers pointed out that the citation could lead to heavy fines against the union. On two previous occasions, Lewis was named defendant when strike issues came into federal court.

There was some speculation that omission of Lewis' name from the contempt citation might mean that the government felt that Lewis had been really sincere when he ordered his miners back to work—but no government official would comment on the subject.

Judge Keech's action came as the east was gripped with bitter cold, with many housewives' coal bins nearly empty.

In the meantime, violence flared in the eastern Kentucky coal field as roving mobs wrecked equipment at several mines and beat up at least 11 miners. Ten men were beaten in Knox county and one was attacked in Harlan county.

SIXTEEN AUTOMOBILES loaded with six men each visited a number of mines, Kentucky state police reported. Twenty-eight bullets were fired into a mine-man car hauling miners up an incline, and two automobiles belonging to miners were overturned.

As for the hope of the contempt citation to end the mine walkout, no one would say how effective it would be. It was recalled that there is no limit on the penalty a federal court may impose for contempt, but the Constitution forbids "unusual and excessive" punishment, and the supreme court in 1947 reduced the UMW's contempt fine from three million dollars to $710,000.

BULGARIA: U.S. Cuts Off

Uncle Sam finally "got his dander up" and began to get tough with the Communist-dominated Balkan countries. In one of the toughest U.S. foreign policy actions since World War II, this nation broke off diplomatic relations with Bulgaria and ordered home American Minister Donald R. Heath and his entire staff.

At the same time, the state department demanded the recall of Dr. Peter Voutov and his smaller Bulgarian staff in Washington.

DEVELOPMENTS in the same vein included a ban on American travel in Hungary and the ordering from Communist China of all American consuls.

The U.S. action was seen as a climax to what the state department called a "long series of intolerances and indignities" against the U.S. legation in Sofia.

In that, the state department was on solid ground because since the legation was established in 1947, Bulgarian officials and the controlled Bulgarian press, the department said, had been "constantly denouncing and insulting the United States." The department charged the Sofia government had carried on an "unprincipled campaign of prosecution" against Bulgarian employees of the legation.

THE DIRECT CAUSE of the break was said to be Bulgaria's demand of January 19 that Heath be recalled for "interference" in Bulgarian internal affairs. Charges of spying also had been made against Americans in the legation.

The break was significant because it indicated a stronger attitude by President Truman and state secretary Acheson toward Moscow satellites with which the U.S. has been waging postwar disputes.

However, there was no cause for alarm as to military repercussions. For, as Winston Churchill put it, diplomatic recognition of one nation by another does not mean espousal of that nation's policies or attitudes—it is an act to "secure certain conveniences. Conversely, when diplomatic relations are broken off, it means chiefly that those conveniences are at an end, but not necessarily military action.

MEN'S CLOTHES: Going Up

Early in 1950, there was much newspaper space devoted to feature articles in which a happy era of low-cost men's clothing was about to descend upon the American male.

Indeed, the old standby—the $35 suit—was pictured as coming into its own again and a man could cheerfully anticipate clothes buying. But apparently it was all a dream, for clothing costs are up.

Out and In

William Dudley Petley (left), former Silver Shirt leader, was released on parole from the U.S. prison in Terre Haute, Ind., where he had been serving a 15-year sentence on a criminal sedition charge. But as he left the prison gates he was promptly arrested again, because North Carolina has requested his extradition in order to try him for violation of the state's securities law.

OLEO BILL: A Compromise

Congress had reached a compromise on what should be done about the bill to repeal federal taxes on oleomargarine. One factor helping the compromise along was the striking out of a senate requirement that colored margarine sold at retail be put up in triangular packages.

But the conference committees which effected the compromise put in strict labeling requirements. IF THE SENATE and house accept the compromise, it would become effective July 1. The bill had been in the hands of the conference committees since February 2. The House passed the measure last year, with one senate version being approved in January of this year.

It had been agreed by both houses to knock out federal taxes on oleo, but dairy interests had held out for the triangular-package requirement, arguing that this was necessary to make sure nobody got margarine thinking it was butter.

HERE are the taxes the bill would wipe out: One-fourth of a cent a pound on uncolored margarine, 10 cents a pound on the colored form; $600 a year on manufacturers whether their output was colored or not; $480 a year on wholesalers of colored margarine, $200 on wholesalers of the uncolored, $48 on retailers of colored margarine, and $6 a year on retailers of the uncolored variety.

Unaffected by the bill are laws in 21 states banning manufacture or sale of colored margarine.

SEARCH: No Sharp Guide

The inviolability of a man's home against search without due course of law—meaning a properly executed warrant—is now in question as the result of a recent supreme court decision. The court, in a 5 to 3 ruling, held that when police legally arrest a man, they also may search a limited area under his immediate control for evidence of a crime. But the court didn't say exactly how far the police may go.

Justice Felix Frankfurter protested vigorously. Dissenting from the opinion, he declared that the "decision makes mockery of the fourth amendment to the constitution which bans unreasonable search and seizure."

He added that the court by its action had overturned a long series of decisions and argued that the tribunal should "show respect for continuity in the law."

The majority opinion was written by one of the new justices, Sherman Minton, who said, "What is reasonable search is not to be determined by any fixed formula. The recurring questions of the reasonableness of searches must find resolution in the facts and circumstances of each case."

The decision came in the case of Albert J. Rabinowitz, who was charged with the sale of four altered postage stamps. When he was arrested, officers searched his office and found 573 more stamps. These were made the basis of a new charge that he possessed and concealed altered stamps.

Defense Move

Ever since World War II there has been considerable discussion of a proposal to scatter U.S. agencies and industrial manufacturing centers so that in the event of another war the nation would not face the threat of complete paralysis from bombing attacks.

Now, the proposal had the support of the head of the office of civilian defense, Dr. Paul J. Larsen.

BROADWAY AND MAIN STREET

Quality of Mercy Was Strained When Mantell Played 'Richard'

By BILLY ROSE

A few years back, I got the nobby notion of reviving "Henry VIII," by one W. Shakespeare, and the day after the first three-line announcement appeared on the drama pages my office was crammed with well known actors who were willing to work for what ordinarily would have been their agents' commissions.

Subsequently, for reasons that have nothing to do with this piece, I pigeon-holed my plans for doing "Henry," but I sure learned a lot about show folks during the month I was buddies up to the Bard.

To nine out of ten of them, I found the pentameters of William the Great are the chocolate sauce on the profit role and during rehearsals they go about their business as if they were in a temple of worship. On opening night, as far as the cast is concerned, the theater has stained glass windows, and I'm not exaggerating when I say the actors would probably kill anyone who tried to foul up the performance.

If you think I'm using "kill" carelessly, try this one on for signs . . .

BACK IN 1964, an obscure thespian named Robert Mantell, who had been playing desultory one-nighters in the Midwest, received word that a choice Broadway theater would be available during the Christmas season. He promptly cancelled his road engagement and brought his troupe to New York, but shortly after his arrival he discovered that the "choice" theater he had been offered was the Princess, a small second-story auditorium on Broadway between 27th and 28th streets.

No more daunted than solvent, Mantell announced he would present his production of "Richard III" on December 5, and when friends and colleagues warned him that not a hundred people would climb a flight of rickety stairs to see a Shakespearean play during the holidays, he shrugged his threadbare shoulders and posted his rehearsal schedule.

Immediately, however, there was trouble. The stage crew insisted on a scenic rehearsal, and when the impoverished actor refused they decided to get even by lousing up his show on opening night.

On the evening of the 5th, a minute after Mantell began to declaim his way through the initial lines a stagehand lunged at him from behind a cloth drop and almost knocked him into the pit. And a few moments later the same "accident" happened again.

When the act was over, Mantell quietly told the crew that he would kill the next man who tried to disrupt his performance—and halfway through the second act he darned near did. In the middle of a speech, he saw the outline of a hand behind the curtain trying to locate him and, never faltering in his lines, he drew his dagger and plunged the blade full-force into the drop.

When he went into the wings at the end of the scene, one of the crew grabbed him and said, "You've killed our head carpenter."

"I hope to Heaven I did," said Mantell. But when he examined the stagehand he found the wound was only a gash in the thigh.

The Fiction Corner

IRONCLAD EXCUSE

By Richard H. Wilkinson

SHORTLY AFTER his marriage to Lynn Harvey it became evident to Burt Englewood that his wife was a procrastinator of the first order.

This was annoying because Burt was used to order and system and routine and regular schedules. He had definite time for doing things, and he did them as planned. He was never late for an appointment, and never left articles of clothing strewn around. He never set over until tomorrow things that could be done today.

Despite his annoyance, Burt tried to be fair. He realized that there must be certain things about his own habits that proved distracting to Lynn. And so, instead of complaining, he endeavored to discover his own faults and rectify them in the hopes that she would take notice and try to improve her own deficiencies.

But no matter to what ends he went his endeavors and sacrifices made no impression whatever on Lynn. She continued blithely to procrastinate, and the blame in which she accomplished it fairly caused Burt to write. At length he was driven to complaint. The occasion was provoked by a bureau drawer void of socks when Burt was in sore need of these articles of apparel.

"Good heavens, Lynn!" he blurted. "I own two dozen pairs of the things. Certainly there must be one washed and mended."

Lynn's eyes widened. She looked apologetic and contrite. "Darling! I'm so sorry. I intended to finish them up last night, but as you know, the Westlands dropped in and I simply couldn't."

Which was true. After awhile Burt began to suspect his wife of strategy, of manufacturing excuses for the sole purpose of evading the inconvenience of household duties. He began to suspect her of being lazy. The more he thought about it, the more convinced he became and presently he accused her openly. Lynn looked at him with a hurt and angry expression. "Burt Englewood! You think that! Of all things! Why, I can't believe it! And I have been trying to improve, too. Only—only I haven't been feeling well lately. I've even thought of going to a doctor."

"Doctor!" Burt scoffed. "You don't need any doctor. What you need is a little backbone and ambition! You're just downright lazy, and I don't mind telling you it's getting on my nerves."

"Well, what's your iron-clad excuse this time? Have a pain in your foot or something?"

"No," said Lynn, "it's in my side. I don't know what it is, Burt. Besides, I was dreadfully tired. I'm awfully sorry."

"Tired? Lazy, you mean!" Lynn sighed and started for the kitchen. "All right, Burt, I'm sorry you don't believe me."

Burt was mightily pleased with himself. Moreover, it gave him a certain feeling of superiority, appeased his vanity.

Thus having satisfied himself that Lynn was once and for all definitely cured and having promised himself that he would never again break down when she offered her excuses, it was something of a shock to return home two days later and find her stretched full length on the couch.

"Well," he roared, "what is this, a game? There's plenty to be done around here, yet you seem to find time enough to take a snooze. Just what is your excuse this time? Now don't tell me you're sick or something. That gag's worn out."

But Lynn didn't move. She lay there, very still. And presently Burt came nearer, bent down to peer at her face. A horrible, sickening fear clutched at his heart: a wretched sense of shame and guilt and self-condemnation.

For Lynn had an iron-clad excuse at last that was flawless.

FRIEND, do you mourn the passing Of some loved one today? Try to remember that often "He taketh the righteous away From the evil to come." He watches Above us with infinite care, And He sees that the future may be Too hard for a heart to bear; And so in His loving mercy He signals that one to come Into the light and the glory Of an eternal home, To be safe and sheltered forever. "He taketh the righteous," He said, "From the evil to come." O mourner, May you be comforted.

TO MAKE SURE no one would misunderstand how he felt, the actor went up to his dressing room and came down wearing the iron-studded glove that was part of his costume in the last act. "Any more trouble," he said, "and I shall brain each and every one of you." The stagehands looked at Mantell, at the mailed glove, and at the bleeding man on the floor. And from then until the final curtain, the crew was as quiet as a Scottish meeting house after a call for contributions.

Next day, the critics hailed Mantell's performance as "the greatest 'Richard' since the days of Booth," and before the week was out he had been signed by the late William A. Brady, under whose management he went on to achieve recognition as one of America's leading classic actors . . .

Recently, Theresa Helburn of the Theatre Guild offered to let me buy a small piece of "As You Like It," starring Katharine Hepburn. "In all fairness," she said, "I think I ought to tell you that Katy's contract is only until June."

"I'm not going to brood about that," I said. "The play is by Shakespeare, and if it gets over, I doubt whether Hollywood will see her again until both she and the scenery fall apart."

MONA FREEMAN, pretty, hazel-eyed, blonde, is 24; in "Dear Wife" she plays a 16-year-old girl, in "Copper Canyon" she is a young widow. She prefers adult roles, but teen-age ones haunt her, because she looks the part in real life. Probably her favorite role, however, is that of mother. Her daughter, Mona, who must be enchanting, is three. One of the year's most pleasant interviews was the recent one with Miss Freeman and her husband, in New York for "Dear Wife", which was barely mentioned, because the stories they told about their little girl were so completely delightful.

When two "Truth or Consequences" contestants failed to complete a consequence—falling asleep in Chicago's Union Terminal for a $5,000 prize—Ralph Edwards received an avalanche of letters. More than 350 listeners said they could fall asleep in the railroad station without half trying, and asked for a chance to prove it.

Jack Buetel got into the movies with no trouble at all. Three weeks after he reached Hollywood and began trying for a screen career, Howard Hughes picked him to portray Billy the Kid in "The Outlaw".

Jean Hersholt (renewed as "Dr. Christian" for five years) really needed a doctor when he finished signing 2,500 copies of his translation of Hans Christian Andersen's fairy tales for the Heritage club. Incidentally, the awards in the 19th annual Dr. Christian radio script contest will be announced May 17. Prizes so far awarded total $110,000.

Danny Kaye ended a wonderful contract with Warners—five pictures to be made in five years.

Uncle Sam Says

Here's a good 1950 resolution: "I will start today taking advantage of the safe, sure way of saving by purchasing U. S. Savings Bonds. That is one habit I will adhere to, come what may." Start the new half of the 20th Century right by enrolling for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work or, if self-employed, the Bond-A-Month Plan where you bank. In ten short years, 1960 to be exact, you will reap the harvest of $4 for every $3 invested today. Your future will be secure with U.S. Savings Bonds. U. S. Treasury Department

U. S. Milk Industry Vastly Transformed
Cost of Product Rises
Less Than Other Foods

Since the turn of the century the milk industry has undergone a transformation rivaling that of the airplane, according to dairy scientist and historian Dr. J. Lloyd Henderson.

Dr. Henderson, co-author of "The Market Milk Industry," a standard textbook whose latest edition will be released this spring said "Our research since the war's end points up the fact that although labor and equipment costs have kept pace with rising scales in other industries, the cost of milk and its products has risen less than that of any other food. In fact, milk, from a nutritive point of view, is far and away the housewife's best food buy."

Cost-saving scientific advances in milk processing and startling economies due to improved distribution practices have been responsible for this, Henderson points out.

The industry shed no tears as it buried the familiar 10-gallon milk

This excellent herd of cattle, grazing quietly and contentedly is symbolic of vast milk industry which has undergone such a transformation in the past two decades.

can and converted to huge insulated tank trucks for bringing milk from the larger farms to the processing plant. Savings in handling due to this change have only been matched by the improvement in sanitation and quality of the product, Henderson said. Every-other-day delivery, now practically standard practice in major cities, plus the use of retail trucks of almost double capacity, also helped keep the housewife's milk budget in line.

The flash pasteurized, once outlawed by health authorities, has been so improved that today every milk company of any size uses it to save expensive man-hours and production space.

Grain-Blower

This grain blower, made on an Illinois farm, is constructed from scrap 14-gauge steel for the case and 1-1/2 angle iron for the frame. It is all arc welded.
Grain is fed into the blower by an auger feed.

New Pig-Feeding System Paying Off for Farmers

A pig-feeding device which might be adopted profitably by many swine raisers has been developed in northeastern California.

The "pig strainer," as it is popularly known, was invented by Jess Steiner who lives in Modoc county near Cedarville.

A new kind of creep, the "strainer" sorts pigs out by size at feeding time.

Here's how it came about:
Steiner purchased buttermilk from a creamery at Alturas which he feeds as part of the ration to his hogs. He figured out that it was necessary to feed the pigs according to size, since the small animals had difficulty in getting their fair share of feed alongside the larger hogs.

Therefore, he arranged his pigs at the trough where the buttermilk and concentrates are fed in such a way that, by using creeps, the hogs naturally arranged themselves according to size.

Tree Roots Troublesome When Invading Sewers

Tree roots mean trouble when they grow into sewers. Costly digging to free clogged drains can be avoided by a simple practice.
George Adamson, of the Michigan state agricultural college, recommends use of copper sulfate or blue vitriol in freeing sewers of tree roots that may be causing stoppages.

50,000 Miles - No Wear!

1. Proved by Punishing Road Test! For 70 days, six brand-new cars roared over searing highways along the Mexican border . . . putting sensational new Conoco Super Motor Oil to one of the cruelest tests ever devised.
After 50,000 miles of continuous driving, engines showed no wear of any consequence . . . in fact, an average of less than one one-thousandth of an inch on cylinders and crankshafts.
Original factory polishing marks were still visible on piston rings!

2. New-Car Mileage! Test engineers were astounded at the remarkable record of economy. Gasoline mileage for the last 5,000 miles of the run was as good as for the first 5,000 miles . . . actually there was an average difference for the fleet of only 4/100 of a mile per gallon. This punishing test . . .
equal to 5 years' normal mileage . . . proved that Conoco Super Motor Oil—with proper crankcase drains and regular care—can keep your new car new.

3. New-Car Power! Quicker Starts! Yes—Conoco Super Motor Oil's extra protection keeps that factory flash . . . that showroom smoothness . . . year after year! Conoco Super Motor Oil OIL-PLATES metal surfaces to make your engine last longer, perform better, use less gasoline and oil! Conoco Super Motor Oil virtually stops wear before it starts . . . keeps your engine new and clean. Astounding new Conoco Super Motor Oil proved to be the great new modern wear-fighter!

Dental Problems Can Be Solved
Solution of the nations dental problems lies in making dental health education and dental care available to every child, said Dr. Cox, State Health Officer.
He said it is possible to prevent loss of teeth from decay if a person starts early in life to follow these simple rules:
1. Early and frequent examination of the mouth by a dentist.
2. Early treatment of small cavities and other dental defects.
3. Proper diet with refined sugars held at a minimum.
4. Proper brushing of teeth after eating.
A child should be taken to the dentist shortly after the last of his first teeth appear at about the age of 2. Frequent examinations and treatment of dental defects by dentists should follow.
It has been learned that the very active element, fluorine, can be used to curb dental decay to a large degree. Dentists are now applying a solution of sodium fluoride to the teeth of their child patients as a routine dental treatment.
