Revision Traffic To Be Asked

The State Public Safety Dept. will ask the Legislature to amend the law governing traffic violations in January in order to give State and local officers a bigger club with which to fight traffic fatalities.

Lee Miller, heading the highway patrol for the District, reported that the State Public Safety Dept. is now engaged in drafting amendments along these lines.

The amendments would provide for a complete revision of the law governing traffic violations in January in order to give State and local officers a bigger club with which to fight traffic fatalities.

Church Debt of 10 Years Duration Paid By Members

The local Methodist congregation is rejoicing today since an exchange of legal papers between the board and general board of Church Extension of Louisville, Kentucky, was made this week. A debt of 10 years duration to the amount of $3,000 was satisfied.

In 1929 the congregation, having outgrown a one-room type church structure, erected the present beautiful modern and adequate plant consisting of nine rooms and assembly halls, and the auditorium seating capacity of 250 persons. The building outside is of cream-colored stucco, situated on lots 9, 10 and 11 of Block 51, corner of 5th and Baldrige Streets, with elevation facing the south out on 5th Street.

The interior of the church is very beautifully finished in sheetrock, panel-board and running around the walls are offsets of beaded ceiling. The ceiling of the auditorium and throughout is done in pressed cork board, making the walls are offsets of beaded ceiling. Besides the loan the Cicero Smith Lumber Company carried an account for a number of years. In 1935 this company made the liberal offer of settling all accounts for the sum of $400.00, which was accomplished. Then the church set out to reduce the principal on the other loan as rapidly as possible. The church found out that after nine years it had only reduced the principal a little over $300 and had paid over $1,100 interest. Something had to be done, leaders knew, and they secured a plot of ground and put this to cotton the past year.

From this crop, $670 was made to apply on the debt. Then application was made for a $500 donation from the general board. This was secured and the district of $1,602.00 was raised locally in the month of February this year, and the loan was settled. A total of $2,272 from local sources has been raised and applied on this loan since January 1, 1938.

Mrs. L. T. Brewer Suffers Broken Wrist in Accident
Falling from her chair as she sat at a sewing machine, Mrs. L. T. Brewer suffered a two-way break in her wrist Friday. The breaks were set by physicians in a Lamesa hospital. Examination of the injured member Tuesday showed that the breaks were healing nicely. Mrs. Brewer started to turn her chair away from the machine, but lost her balance when the chair slipped on a smooth hardwood floor.

Huge Money Sum To Be Spent On Year's Politics

Biennial Battle For Votes Proves Costly For Aspirants

DALLAS.—Running for office is not listed as one of Texas' industries, but nevertheless it is a big business that every two years pours vast sums into trade channels. One million dollars would not be too high an estimate of the amount that will be disbursed in Dallas County as a direct result of the 1938 campaign for State and local offices. Every candidate for State office who makes a serious bid for the voters' attention had or will have a State or regional headquarters in Dallas. These offices soon will be virtual beehives of activities as stenographers type out letters, publicity men pound out ream after ream of copy that they hope to get printed, and streams of supporters pour in, many of them with their hands out for what they have done and promise to do for the candidate.

Big Printing Business

The printing and book-binding industry has had a boom in Dallas with joy the jobs that come their way from candidates every two years. Tons of printed matter are distributed in the fight for votes. Even the United States Government benefits from politics, for the post office handles large quantities of letters and literature sent out by the candidates. Downtown hotels benefit not only from rooms rented and meals served to campaign workers and well-wishers from all over the State who come in to report and collect their pay.

Candidates making a State-wide campaign will travel thousands of miles, mostly by automobile. They will use uncounted gallons of gasoline, wear out hundreds of tires and usually end up with a worn-out car. Often a candidate will buy a low priced car to tour the State, expecting to junk it at the end of the campaign. Accompanying the candidates for major offices will be a retinue of workers. Sometimes the publicity man will also act as chauffeur. In other cases he will go ahead to complete arrangements for meetings. A sound truck, with an operator, is indispensable in modern campaigning. Candidates with little money at their disposal frequently will travel in their sound truck.

Sky Is The Limit

STRANGE MALADY STRIKES CHICKENS IN VICINITY

A strange malady, which chicken experts have not been able to analyze, has already affected the frying sized chickens of Roy Adams of the Wells community, killing over 400 out of his flock of 700 young chickens. There has been no remedy found that will aid in saving the chickens. It is thought by experts that it is something like "sleeping sickness" that has been prevalent among cattle and horses in the past two years. No similar cases have been reported.

Air Mail Plane Makes O'Donnell

O'Donnell participated in National Air Mail Week today when a special plane stopped here, and picked up 46 pieces of first class mail, to be taken to Lubbock, headquarters for this territory. Mail leaving Lubbock at 12 noon arrived here at 12:15. In a letter received on the same mail, by Mayor B. M. Haynes, Mayor Carl E. Slaton, Lubbock, said: "Greetings sent by first class mail from Lubbock to O'Donnell, marking beginning of a program that will more closely connect our municipalities." The program was headed by Mayor B. M. Haynes and C. H. Doak met the plane.

DON'T SCRATCH IF CHIGGER BITES; KEROSENE PROBABLY BETTER

Nobody loves a chigger. They are lazy, useless, despicable little pests with one-track minds and a feeling that the world owes them a living. That's why it's wise now to keep the law closely trimmed, busting every 1,000 square feet of chigger-infested brush. Chiggers don't like sulphur, according to Dr. E. W. Laake, chief of the United States Bureau of Entomology at Dallas. It kills them. Chiggers like Snakes. "As a matter of fact," said Dr. Laake, "chiggers really don't like human beings. Whenever a chigger hooks on to a human, it signals its own death warrant. It has little insects so so lazy and grasping in their philosophy, that they just sit on shrubbery or grass or ground and wait the first thing that comes along." What the insects really prefer is a nice lizard or a juicy snake, or perhaps a tender chick, and water, cooling ointments and many other treatments have their advocates.

In Memory of Merline Petty Caswell

(Printed by request from Lynn County News, Tahoka.)

"I am come a light into the world," said the Master. To the memory of one that was created so much in the likeness of that light this article is dedicated. Sometimes the beauty and benefit of the bright morning sun is not fully realized until there comes a dark cloud to obscure its light; it is very true of the lives of our dearest friends, at times, that we also understand better their real meaning to us after they are gone. We have lost a ray of light that seems very much akin to that "light that lighteneth the world."

Merline is not here longer to cheer us with her bright smile and friendly "hello." But of this we like to think: and that is the fact that her husband gave me these words in speaking of her death: "I can't go with her but I can go where she is." It is a thought that is restful to our otherwise saddened hearts. We, that are glad to be called the dearest dearest friends of the sweet one that has gone on, can glory in doing our best to live the same sweet life that she lived in the little while that she was with us.

A flower seems much sweeter while it is alive and growing; we don't in any way, understand why we should lose one that had so lately blossomed into womanhood and was shedding her sweet fragrance on all our lives. We feel certain, however, that so sweet and good was her life in her every contact with those of us that were privileged to know her, that we may say that "she lived and did her work and is no more."

Merline won a place in our hearts that shall remain vacant because of the lack of any person that is capable of filling that place. As a wife, her thoughts and ambitions were to please her husband whom she loved with a love that was quite divine. She was, seemingly, very happy with her new responsibility in life, and for over three and a half years she had succeeded in making cheerful the life of her chosen companion. May he rest himself in the thought that the poet gave us when he said:

"And those that were good shall be happy,
And they shall sit in a golden chair,
And shall splash at a ten-league canvas
Wash brushes of comet's hair."

So, we say, let him understand that our loss is their gain, and the Heavenly host must be praising God anew because of the angel that has joined their group so recently. The wonderful spirit that was shown (in the giving flowers and the doing of kind deeds, and speaking of kind words) shows us, in a measure, how she had won her

'Buying Power' Gains Bolster Texas' Appeal

DALLAS. — Impressive gains for Texas as a whole and for 25 "big five" cities over 100,000 population in 1937 retail sales and "effective buying income" constitute further evidence, says a report of the All-South Development Council, of the state's potentialities to provide healthy and growing consumer markets for the industries its business leaders are trying to attract.

A study of authoritative business surveys show that the total effective buying income of Texas in 1937 was $2,996,100,000, a gain of $109,462,000 over the figure of $2,886,638,000. While in percentage this amounts to only 3.8 per cent, against the national average increase of 6.7 per cent for last year, in the matter of retail sales Texas ran ahead of the national average. In this Texas totaled $1,660,800,000—a gain of 9.3 per cent—whereas the national retail sales were estimated at $40,590,000,000, an 8.5 per cent rise.

Texas' effective buying income, per family, was $2,171 in 1937, the same rate of increase, 3.8 per cent, as the national average. The family figure of $2,092. The state's "buying power index" number was slumped slightly last year, from 92 to 90.8 to $900.

While Dallas retained its hold on fifth place nationally—and leadership in the Southwest—among the "100,000 population group of cities" in effective money income per capita, Houston, Fort Worth, San Antonio and El Paso all made sensational advances in this rating. Houston climbed into eighth place nationally, from 46th in 1936, the per capita income rising from $770 to $940. Fort Worth was close behind, moving up from 81st to 14th place by advancing its per capita figure from $710 to $900. El Paso and San Antonio were tied at 45th in 1937 with $780 per capita. The former was 187th the year before, with $490, while San Antonio, was 74th, with $720 that year.

The Dallas per capita figure moved up from $925 to $940. New York ($893), Washington ($976), Des Moines ($950), and San Francisco (946) were the only cities topping the Texas lead-off, though Los Angeles, and Miami tied with it for the fifth position.

Continuance of favorable conditions in business, industry and metropolitan centers and the state as a whole could play an important part in attracting more and more industries to the state, the Council's report said, especially if there were official reassurance of the state's receptiveness to industry sending needed support to vigorous efforts in that direction being made by commercial groups and leading resident industries.

More than one-fifth of all the people in the United States live in states other than the ones in which they were born.

way into the hearts of those that knew her. Certainly she had no thought, and we had no thought, of her sudden death, but "God moves in a mysterious way His Wonders to perform." We do not question His wisdom in taking this precious loved one from us; our lives are richer from having and her with us; this little while and her memory shall abide with us and bless us all the days of our lives. In speaking of such a one we realize the truth in the word of the man that said:

"It is better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all."
May the sweet, contagious cheerful nature, that was until so recently the beloved Merline Petty Caswell, continue to pervade our souls, until we shall at least be accounted worthy to be with her in that Great Beyond where we may, with her, sing praises unto Him, in whose likeness she was created.

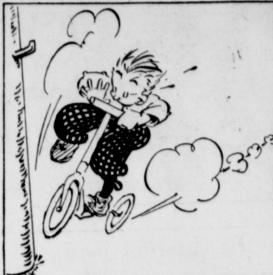

Sincerely,
BERVIN CASWELL.

What Do You Buy

When You Buy At A

R & W Store

You buy more than groceries. You are given the advantage of a combined buying power of local independent grocers, it is true, but when you trade at a Red & White store you secure the finest of service at no extra cost.

Red & White stores are planned that way. Everything is arranged for your benefit because experienced grocers that they are, the Red & White store owners have found that the thrifty housewives prefer to trade at a place where they secure the most for their money, and, at the same time, find fresher cleaner foodstuff. If you trade regularly at a Red & White store you know this to be true, but if you haven't availed yourself of this better service, ask that you give your budget the benefit of Red & White savings—and then compare your savings not on just one article, but all that you purchase.

With Our Farm Friends

Considered one of Lynn County's most progressive farmers, T. L. Higginbotham, Jr., and associates will farm approximately 2800 acres this year nine miles west of O'Donnell.

Mr. Higginbotham is a firm believer in modern methods of farming and conservation of precious soil. All land he is instrumental in farming is contourd. Terracing will be done when a machine can be secured.

Cotton, wheat and milo are the principal crops grown on the Higginbotham farms. A herd of 15 milch cows are kept and while no certain strain of poultry is raised, only good stocks are to be found at the farm.

By application, the farm was reclaimed from almost total ruin, and where unmanageable sandhills were to be found a few years ago after the Higginbothams again assumed control, one will find level farm land today.

Their own blacksmith shop, welding outfit and general overhauling shop is maintained on the farm. One four-row and two-two-row tractors are used.

Betty Crocker KITCHEN CLINIC

IN CHERRY SEASON

Cherry pie is grand eating. But have you ever feasted on a Cherry pie? Here you have even more of the luscious juice and ruby red than you do in a pie. And this time it's topped with a flaky tender brown biscuit-like covering. That's a cherry cobler! Best of all, you'll find it much more easy to make than a pie and the family—guests—will find it a pleasant innovation. Here is the recipe:

Cherry Cobbler

2 cups pitted cherries
1 cup sugar for sour cherries
1/2 cup for sweet cherries
1 cup water
Heat cherries, sugar and water. Blend in cornstarch dissolved in a little cold water, and cook for 5 minutes. Pour into the bottom of a buttered baking dish. Dot with butter and cinnamon. Let cool while making crust. Cover with rich biscuit dough. Drop by spoonfuls over berries, or roll to fit top of dish, and bake for 30 minutes in a moderately hot oven, 400° F. This recipe should make 8 servings.

Rich Biscuit Dough

2 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 tsp. salt
4 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. sugar
1/2 tsp. shortening
3/4 cup milk

Put flour once before measuring. Sift flour, salt, baking powder and sugar together. Cut in shortening with 2 knives or a pastry blender and add hot milk. Mix gently until smooth. Drop on cherries.

Question: Could you please give a list of the various wedding anniversaries?

Answer: Here is a complete list:
1 year — Paper
2 year — Cotton
3 year — Leather
4 year — Fruit or Flowers
5 year — Wood
6 year — Iron
7 year — Wool
8 year — Rubber
9 year — Pottery
10 year — Tin
11 year — Steel
12 year — Silk
13 year — Ivory
14 year — Glass
15 year — China
16 year — Silver
17 year — Wood
18 year — Coral
19 year — Wool
20 year — Sapphire
21 year — Gold
22 year — Platinum
23 year — Diamond

Question: I always get confused on when to say a wedding breakfast and a wedding lunch. I went to what was called a wedding breakfast, but the food seemed more the sort you'd have for dinner or lunch. Can you set me straight on this?

Answer: Until 10 o'clock in the morning a regular breakfast menu even including griddle cakes and waffles may be served. But after 10 o'clock the meal takes on the features of a luncheon even though it is called a wedding breakfast. After 1 o'clock it is a supper, although the food is the same as that which might be served for a late morning wedding breakfast. Even when a dinner is served, (yes, even a turkey dinner with all the trimmings) it is called a wedding supper. Regular dinners are rarely served at weddings, however. Of course, where guests have come from a great distance and are leaving for the long journey home the same day, it may seem natural and considerate to offer them a dinner.

Do you worry about what to serve, if you dread to start the next mail, and a card to Betty Crocker in care of your newspaper, and ask for this week's menus. Complete menus for the week will be sent you at no cost. Please enclose 3 cent stamp to cover return postage.

BAKED ICE CREAM

WE HEAR a great deal these days about insulation and materials that act as insulators. Ovens are lined with a material that cannot penetrate and we say that they are insulated so as to hold the heat inside instead of radiating through the whole kitchen. Houses are insulated to keep out the cold of winter and the heat of summer. But did you know that egg whites can be made to act as insulators too? Perhaps you've met that mysterious dessert sometimes called Baked Ice Cream or Baked Alaska, where ice cream is piled on a layer of cake—a frothy meringue spread over the ice cream and cake and the whole affair popped into the oven. It seems recklessly daring to consign ice cream, with a mere bit of froth over it, to the oven, and a very hot oven at that! If we've never seen it done before we hold our breath, fearing the terrible consequences of melted ice cream breaking out through the oven door and sizzling and scorching on the oven floor. What a mess! But lo! The ice cream doesn't melt. We open the oven door—and there it sits looking as cool and collected as a clock. The only difference is that the meringue has acquired a healthy tan that makes it especially tempting-looking. It seems like magic—unless we remember that the meringue acts as an insulator and actually keeps the heat from penetrating to the ice cream.

As we eat this luscious lovely we are most thankful for the added insulating service from the eggs. For certainly this made possible a wonderful dessert. It's a dessert, too, that can be made in 10 minutes. For instance, for a sunny-side-up cake, combine with strawberry ice cream on top and then the meringue over all. That's a grand combination. A chocolate cake with pink peppermint ice cream on top is another delightful arrangement. Or you might use vanilla ice cream with the chocolate sauce, or the strawberry ice cream, or the delicious here, too.

And here's a suggestion for the hostess. Some Saturday bake and serve this cake for breakfast. It's so easy to make that you can have it ready in 10 minutes. Don't bother to frost it. Just set them away for 5 minutes. Permitted meringue is easy to make and it will be delicious on any layer of this cake in the form of a Baked Alaska. Then you'll have the other layer left to serve for breakfast for your Sunday Supper. It's not necessary to frost the cake. You'll find it's delicious with any flavor and consistency and it's quite complete without frosting. Here is the recipe:

Fudge Cake
1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup cocoa (4 oz.)
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup flour or 1 1/2 cups purpose flour
1/2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup vanilla
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1/2 cup shortening, add 1/4 cup sugar gradually, then the whole egg yolk, and cream other thoroughly. Blend in sifted chocolate. Sift flour and measuring. Sift flour, shortening, salt and sugar together. Cut in shortening with 2 knives or a pastry blender and add hot milk. Mix gently until smooth. Drop on cherries.

Do you worry about what to serve, if you dread to start the next mail, and a card to Betty Crocker in care of your newspaper, and ask for this week's menus. Complete menus for the week will be sent you at no cost. Please enclose 3 cent stamp to cover return postage.

WORKING WIVES

William J. Campbell, state director of the National Youth Administration for Illinois, who declared in an address that one-half of the 5,000,000 married women now working in the United States could give up their jobs without causing serious financial distress and providing a much-needed panacea for youth unemployment through the nation. Mr. Campbell explained that he was not referring to these married women who are the main wage earners of the family.

Joe Alexander, publisher of the Lynn County Journal, has just unannounced another printing press, which will print a standard-sized newspaper, seven or eight columns. We print seven columns, so maybe O'Donnell will stop some day with an eight-column press, but for the time being our press will take care of our needs.

It's downright peculiar how quickly some people ask you to print something "funny" about the other fellow. We are not joking, but, honestly, don't ask, or expect us to print anything. You know many "suggestive" magazines are barred from Uncle Sam's mail.

While both are candidates for medical office, in Lynn County, Garlan G. McWhorter and Aubrey McWhorter are not related. Many people pronounce the two names exactly alike.

We attended the political meeting held at Wilson recently, and enjoyed it even though it was mighty cold. Not thinking, we wore our straw hats and had for company Daniel C. Davis, candidate for county clerk. Davis began his speech to the voters about BLUE hat. And Louis B. Reed, candidate for district judge, gave a short address to the shivering voters—which they seemed to appreciate. Judge Reed was complimented for making such a good speech in so short a time. And Walter Mathis, candidate for county clerk, made a nice talk and didn't seem to mind the cold. H. P. Cavness, candidate for re-election as county superintendent, stopped up to the microphone, and made his talk in a clear, concise manner. About the shortest speech was made by J. B. (Jim) Earl, candidate for sheriff, who declared he would make no host of promises—and didn't in his talk. Just told 'em

Continued from Page 1 for hotel rooms and for meals out of their own pocket. Local enthusiasts usually take care of these bills, but the money is thrown into circulation regardless of who spends it.

Limits on campaign expenditures as set by law are by mutual agreement ignored. The $10,000 limit on the sum candidates for Governor are supposed to spend to be nominated was knocked out by a court ruling a few years ago, but nobody noticed the difference before or after the court holding. Legal technicalities are complied with in filing reports on expenses, but thousands of dollars customarily are spent by candidates' friends, without the candidate officially knowing anything about it.

Thousands of Speeches Radio stations, large and small, get a share of campaign money that is spent in increasing amounts from year to year. By this method of reaching voters. Observers say that crowds at political meetings have fallen off as the year has gone on. Newspapers, too, sometimes benefit from politics by purchase of advertising space.

Open gatherings are the rule in Texas campaigns, unless rain drives audiences indoors, so little money is spent for hall rent. It costs something to hold every meeting, however. Handbills are distributed, a hand illumination provided for night meetings.

Probably the state candidates will be in the field this summer preceding the July 23 primary. Even if each makes one speech a day in something over two months of campaign, there will be 3,000 political meetings. Many candidates make as many as a dozen speeches a day, so 10,000 stump appearances by the state candidates alone would be a closer guess than 3,000.

The cost of the primary elections, borne by the local candidates, is a sizable amount to the individual candidate, but a small part of the money spent in the business of running for office. In 1936 the primaries in Dallas cost $16,000, and probably will be near this cost again this year. While the sum total spent by local candidates all over Texas would pile up into big money, it is in the State races where the cash, and also the credit, roll up high.

Dallas, because it is the center of the most densely populated section of Texas, has long been popular as the headquarters for State candidates. State or regional offices already have been opened in Dallas by Attorney General William McCraw, Railroad Commissioner E. O. Thompson, Tom Hunter and Karl Crowley, candidates for Governor; R. A. Stuart, John Wood and Frank Morris for Railroad Commissioner; Gerald C. Mann and Lieut. Gov. Walter Wood for Attorney General. Others will have offices here when campaigning warms up.

Bob Austin of Harmony was a visitor in O'Donnell Saturday.

Lending Rates Are Now Low

Farmers Given Lowest Rates in History; 3 Billions Loaned

WASHINGTON.—Uncle Sam is lending money to farmers on virtually everything they produce, from Maine potatoes to California oranges, at interest rates said to be the lowest in the Nation's history for agricultural loans—and making money at it.

Farm credit administration officials say it is being done without a cent of cost to the taxpayers and without using Federal funds. Lending operations are carried on through a dozen regional Federal Intermediate Credit Banks, 535 local farmer-controlled production credit associations and other privately owned credit institutions.

During 1937 these agencies loaned $449,566,000 to farmers to finance virtually every type of crop production, marketing and processing activity, George M. Brennan, commissioner of the Intermediate Credit Bank says. Where a few years ago farmers paid to obtain short-term credit interest rates as high as 8 and 10 per cent, borrowers from the Federal agencies paid only 5 per cent on an annual basis, or 2 1/2 per cent for six months.

Brennan said this loan business netted the banks a profit of $1,100,000 after charging off losses and payment of all expenses. Of this amount $741,275 was paid into the Federal Treasury in the form of a franchise tax. The Intermediate Credit Bank serve to bring money-lenders in financial centers and farmer-borrowers together, Brennan explained.

A farmer needing money for production or marketing purposes and having a sound basis for credit can apply to the local production credit association for a loan. The association would obtain funds for the loan by discounting the farmer's note and chattel mortgage or warehouse receipt, representing staple agricultural products, with the Intermediate Credit Bank.

The bank, in turn, gets its money by floating short-term debentures or bonds in the principal financial markets. Although the debentures are not guaranteed by the Government, they usually are oversubscribed 500 to 600 per cent, Brennan said.

"These associations are usually endeavoring to supply farmers with adequate credit sound basis at the lowest possible cost," Brennan said.

"Since production credit associations do not accept deposits at a specified date or when can pay it in a series of payments."

Brennan said these agencies are out of a need for a permanent and dependable source of funds required by farmers in financing seasonal production and marketing requirements.

Credit in 1923 Congress created the Interstate Credit Banks in 1923 congressional study at the time showed that many private banks were withdrawing from the farm-credit business because of the term agricultural credit facilities farmers without adequate financial aid.

The commissioner said the Federal agencies have no desire to monopolize the short-term credit field.

"Our objective is to be in the field, ready to finance the farmer if he needs our aid," he said. "We want competition, but we realize without it we would go dead and lose our usefulness."

Brennan said that in the 1930's the banks' operations were financed by the Government. Loans outstanding on May 31, 1937, totaled $198,394,000, of which $37,426,639 was on range and feeder cattle, $9,957,223 on dairy cattle, $34,526,849 on hogs, $10,968,660 on trais and hogs, $29,434,791 on other livestock and the balance on general financing.

Some of the farmers of the Government have had some question as to whether they should collect the subsidies on the land placed in the government loan program. They are assured that they will receive subsidies if they sell their crops or not.

According to my understanding they will receive the subsidies not later than July 1, 1938, at about 2 cents per pound. It is a change in the present law, no doubt it will be published in the papers and the local agents also notified.

Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Bryant and Mrs. Mattie Shook were guests of Mrs. Cecil Bryant of Lamesa the latter part of last week.
