KNOW YOUR LAW

Many people regard rules of legal procedure as mere tools of delay, of concern only to lawyers and judges. Far from this, they are instruments of justice, and of real significance to all of us. Procedure is the lubricant which makes the machinery of uniform justice run smoothly.

The law is composed of two parts the substantive and the adjective law. The substantive law defines rights, duties and remedies; it enforces contracts and rights and wrongs; it describes crimes and sets up penalties. Procedure is the machinery which makes the law work. Adjective law deals with legal procedure and describes the steps a person must take to invoke the substantive law.

Some of our most important rights are found in the body of procedural law. For example, as a people who want justice to prevail, we like to think that every man, rich or poor, shall have his day in court. This is an important right, for a day in court implies more than merely the right to have your say before a judge and jury.

Your day in court implies that you shall have the right to be properly represented, to have your case presented before an impartial jury and an unbiased judge, and to have a reasonable time to prepare for the trial. It holds that you shall have proper notice of the action against you; that the complaint or indictment shall state a clear cause of action. It means that you shall be comforted by your accusers; that you shall have the right to cross examine them; that you shall be able to present evidence in your own behalf.

Finally, the law governing procedure tells you how you may appeal your case to higher courts when you feel that you have not had a fair trial or that a prejudicial error has been committed in the trial court.

Much of our procedural law comes down from centuries of experience in the courts of other lands. It was inevitable that through the centuries some of the procedure would become cumbersome, obsolete and difficult. For this reason the history of procedure has been characterized by great periods of reform. In America we have experienced many advantageous changes in our laws governing the procedure of courts and administrative agencies. There is a growing custom in the United States of giving the courts the power to revise their rules in certain fields.

Our Texas rules of civil procedure are made by our state Supreme Court. The Court is constantly striving, with the recommendations of the practicing lawyer, to improve these rules. The aim of the Supreme Court is to provide a uniform and relatively simple set of rules for dispensing justice with Easter Service Set At Lawton, Okla.

The twenty-seventh annual production of the easter sunrise service will be produced in the Wichita Mountains of Oklahoma of April 13th, Easter Sunday. The service begins at midnight and continues until dawn.

At the present time, extensive preparations are being made for the Easter Pageant. Women are busy making costumes for new scenes; Electricians are working on the grounds, moving the flood lights from an area which will provide a roadway for the fifty mounted horsemen in the King Arthur scene, riding full speed in search of the Holy Grail; stage props and back drops are being erected; the galleons which humankind is to be hanged in the "Queen Ester and Mordecai" scene, is being built; the loud speaker staff is getting ready to install equipment; the Oklahoma highway patrol is making preparations to receive the largest crowd in pageant history; the Red Cross has organized first aid assistance, ham radio to broadcast messages to any part of the world, by anyone in the audience desiring its services which is free of charge; the lawton fire department will bring out equipment to the Holy City for protection against fire; and the refreshment stand on audience hill is prepared to serve 30,000 gallons of milk, sandwiches potatoe chips, ice cream and other items of food to the 200,000 people who migrate to Zions Holy Hill in the greatest religious pilgrimage in America.

A cast of 3,000 people constitutes a unique fellowship and a rare event in religious participation. The year the performers are coming from ten states, and several officers from far away Korea will perform as priests in "The Eleven Great Faiths", one of these Koreans will play the role of Bal-thaxar and bring his gift of gold to the infant Jesus in the manger. The Wichita Mountains Easter services operates as a non-sectarian organization. People of every faith, race, color and creed, attend it and participate in it.

Some of the scenes of the pageant are put on by the Redekah's Oddfellows, Masons, Theta Rho's Rainbow Girls, De Molays, and members of the Lawton Womens Forum stand at the entrance of the chapel in Holy City to receive visitors and guide them about the pageant grounds.

Fort Sil, which is known as the artillery center of the world, has assisted in the easter production through the years. The Fort not only provides excellent leadership in the various branches of the production. The wives of military personnel assist with the making of costumes and help on the make-up staff.

Members of the Elks lodge in the surrounding cities have volunteered to assist with the offering and other duties.

Several towns this year outside of Lawton, are providing full scenes in the pageant. These include Cache, Meers, Hobart, Kingfisher and Cashion, Oklahoma.

This combined effort is provided free of charge to the public. The offering during the production and the production and the gifts which people send to the easter pageant office, help to pay the cost of the production. Many god people regard this as a worthy project to support.

Workers Covered By S S

Newly covered workers should make certain that they are receiving credit on their social security accounts. John G. Hutton, manager of the Social Security office located at Lubbock reminded today.

He was referring especially to regularly employed household workers and regularly employed farm workers who are among the groups which were given social security protection by the changes in the social security law effective January 1, 1951.

Hutton called attention to the fact that there may be some employers of household workers or employers of farm workers who are not aware of their responsibilities under the new law, and who may accordingly fail to make the necessary social security reports or to pay the social security taxes which would give these workers the insurance protection intended by the law.

To make certain that they will qualify for retirement benefits at age 65 or later, or their families will receive the survivors benefits provided in death cases, regularly employed household workers and regularly employed farm workers are urged to contact nearest social security office for information.

The social security office will explain the old-age and survivors benefits. By getting in touch with the social security office, workers can make certain that they will receive on their social security accounts, if their work is covered by the law.

For the convenience of those who live in and around O'Donnell, Texas a representative of the social security office will be at the post office in O'Donnell on Thursday, April 15, 1952 at 4:30 P. M.

Rosalind Russell, star of stage, screen, and radio, borrowed from Old World folk-lore the idea of decorating an Easter egg tree at Easter time. Decorating trees with gaily-colored eggs at this season once was a cherished family custom in many localities of Europe, according to the "Poultry and Egg Nation" by Mrs. Russell, currently starring in "Bell, Book and Candle" in Chicago, said she finds it is "just as much fun and more practical" in her case to adapt the idea of an Easter egg tree as a centerpiece.

JUDSONIA, ARK.—Their homes among more than 2,000 Arkansas and Missouri homes destroyed or damaged by March tornadoes, these men, like thousands of storm victims, turn to the Red Cross for help. After emergency needs for food, clothing, medical care and shelter are met, Red Cross workers will stay on the job until rehabilitation needs of more than 1,800 families registered for help in these two states are determined. Based on need, Red Cross will assist in repairing and rebuilding homes and providing furniture. Of the nearly 500 persons hospitalized by tornado injuries, many will need Red Cross help with medical bills. All this Red Cross help, expected to run into millions, is a gift given by the people through the Red Cross fund campaign.

Social Security Benefits Explained

The new starting date for figuring old-age and survivors insurance benefit payments is important to everyone now employed or self-employed in work covered by social security.

In explanation of this statement, John G. Hutton, manager of the Lubbock social security office, points out that work after 1950 can be used alone for figuring the amount of the benefit payment. Everyone who has been in work covered by social security continuously since January 1, 1951, will be fully insured by the middle of the present year. If he reaches age 65 and decides to retire, he will be eligible for old-age pension. He points out that an employed person will not immediately get the highest benefit payments if he files his claim during 1952. Moreover, he says "Self-employment earnings for the year in which a claim is filed are not used to figure the amount of the payments. It may be to the advantage of both the employed and self-employed insured person to defer filing a claim until January, 1953, age benefit payments; if he should die after a year a half of covered work after 1950, his survivor can get benefit payments. He and his family will have this insurance protection until July, 1954. They will continue to have this protection if he stays in covered work for at least one half the time after 1950 and up to the time of retirement at age 65 or later, or up to the time of his death.

Hutton advises everyone who plans to retire during 1952 to contact the Social Security representative before making a de-

"Jane kept harping about not having hot water enough for her new automatic washing machine. I said nonsense - we have a good water heater! But to keep peace I called our plumber." "Only ONE automatic water heater heats fast enough to run these modern appliances," he said, "and it's Gas. It's 3 times faster than any other all-automatic fuel." He said also a Gas heater would be cheaper to buy, install and run. Must say I've got hotter water for shaving, too!" Ask your plumber - he'll tell you there's nothing like Gas for automatic water heating.

O. P. S. Cafe Rules Effective

Some 2400 restaurants and other eating and drinking establishments in the Far West Texas district of the Office of Price Stabilization were reminded today that the new ceiling price regulation covering their operation becomes effective next Monday, April 7.

District price officials pointed out that the new regulation (CPR 134) freezes restaurant prices at the level shown on menus or charged during the week of February 3 to 9, 1932. It also requires operators of eating and drinking establishments to post dollars-and-cents ceiling prices for their principal meals, food items and beverages. These frozen prices, with permissible adjustments by operators who have been charged lower than permitted under the present restaurant regulation (CPR 11) will be the dollars-and-cents ceiling which restaurants will post.

The posted prices may be changed in the future only by the direction of the Office of Price Stabilization. The regulation provides that future adjustments may be made if the OPS determines that food and other costs have changed significantly, either upward or downward.

A series of trade meetings will be held throughout the district by price officials in the next few weeks to acquaint operators of restaurants and other drinking and eating establishments of the detailed provisions of the new regulation. The schedule of meetings will be released as soon as it is available.

Meanwhile, restaurant price officials this week are attending conferences in the regional OPS offices concerning administration of the regulation.

The price stabilization agency is now sending out the posters which must be posted. They must be displayed not later than April 25, 1932, by restaurants in a place where they will be easily visible to customers.

Relax Rules To Obtain Silver Wings

Silver wings the symbol of the Air Force are easier to obtain now than any time since the end of the war.

Relaxing of age and educational requirements has opened aviation cadet training to many persons formerly denied the opportunity to learn to fly.

Examining procedures for both airmen and civilian applicants have been streamlined. The waiting period between completion of entrance tests and appointments to a class has been lessened considerably.

Now it's even possible to go straight from basic into cadet training.

And certain applicants who failed the cadet qualification tests may re-apply immediately. Lowering of requirements for entry into cadet training is in line with an intensive drive to secure more applicants, both airmen and civilians, for instruction as pilots and observers.

If you're interested in becoming a cadet, you should apply as soon as possible. The present requirements will remain in effect only long enough to build up a sufficient backlog of applicants to fill future aviation cadet class requirements.

You are eligible to apply if you are: a male unmarried United States citizen between the age of 19 and 26 years, with 2 years college training.

You must meet high physical qualifications. Applicants interested in one of the 11 aircraft, observer specialties should have an aptness for mathematics in addition to the physical, mental and moral qualifications required of all cadets. Visual requirements for observers are not as high as for pilots.

Airmen with less than two years of college may satisfy the educational requirement for application by producing any document indicating successful completion of high school, institution or a state board of education.

O. P. S. Rules On Farm Prices

The Office of Price Stabilization has moved to bring the agency's ceiling price program for farm commodities in line with provisions of the Agricultural Act of 1949, the district OPS office today.

In one action it authorized sales of processed or unprocessed agricultural commodities at prices equalling support or purchase or prices in cases where such prices have been announced by the commodity Credit Corporation.

In another it provided a new formula for ceiling prices on CC Ceales of non-storable, non-basic agricultural commodities, whether processed or unprocessed, which were acquired under price support programs.

The first authorization is granted by General Overriding Regulation 26 and became effective this week. It provides in general that the ceiling price for sales of a supported farm commodity shall not be less than the support purchase price, announced by CCC.

The second authorization is granted by Amendment 2 to Supplementary Regulation 14 to the General Ceiling Price Regulation also effective this week. This prescribes generally that the ceiling price on sales of non-storable non-basic commodities held by CCC shall be the highest of: (1) the highest ceiling price the purchaser could pay any of his usual suppliers for the commodity; (2) the cost of acquisition by CCC plus reasonable carrying charges or (3) the latest announced support price, or purchase price under a support program, plus carrying charges.

Gay Bedroom Decor Should Reflect Tastes and Hobbies

By Erita Haley

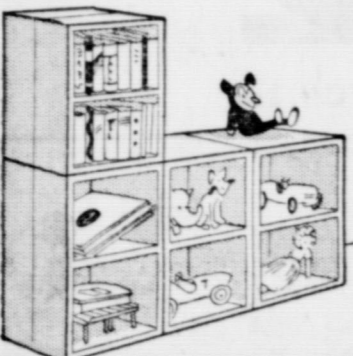

WHEN you wake in the morning to a day full of the same routine as the day before and the day before that, does the prospect seem dreary? Not, so, say decorators, if you wake in a bedroom that's cheerful and pleasing!

Ever since the old-fashioned parlor went out of the picture, and the new living room became the family gathering place with all their respective interests, bedrooms have taken a new role, too. When mother and dad want to get away from the teen-agers' parties in the living room, they can find comfortable lounging chairs in their bedroom, a radio of their own for their own programs, their books, their sewing and perhaps even the walls with pictures which bring them cherished memories.

Children's bedrooms, too, can be converted into a second living room, just as is their parents, especially if the living room is just not large enough to hold all their various hobbies. Though small, clever use of space will convert now empty walls into a place for many things.

As long as the bedroom is being converted from strict relaxation to one which is also a combination living and hobby room, you'll probably have to reconsider color scheme. Pastels used to belong exclusively to the bedroom, but with different uses for the room, the decor undergoes a change, too.

Favorite color of the occupant is a good way to start, for this marks the room with a certain individuality. However, the current trend is also to use somewhat the same colors in all rooms of the house to give it unity.

Create economical storage space . . .

In the latter case, of course, the same colors in all the rooms would be monotonous, so different shades are used, or a single color with its contrasting complement is perfectly acceptable.

Fit Decorating To Your Budget

Changing the bedroom completely, and all at one time is not a necessity. With good management, you can change only part of it, and still not be inconvenienced by having an "unfinished" room, or one which throws the budget out of joint.

Look the room over carefully and decide where its shortcomings are. If the budget does not permit a coat of paint or the papering of a wall, or new curtains or draperies, then see what can be done with no cost or less cost than any of these items.

It is important to have a plan as to how you want the room to look

Fashionable Cuffs

Navy yarn-dyed taffeta is used for this daytime to dinner costume in a new Spring collection of clothes. The full-skirted costume has navy bone buttons spaced down the front to follow the jacket closing. White silk organdy, drawn through the slots along the jacket of the neckline of the dress, is pulled to form a bow outside the jacket to match the lovely, pleated and flounced cuffs which are creating well-deserved interest.

so that you do not step into any redecorating which needs to be changed later.

Is the furniture somewhat battered? This can be refinished at home with little cost, though of course, it involves labor. However, the satisfaction is excellent payment and money saved buying new pieces is even more satisfying.

If the furniture is out of proportion or has poor design, this can sometimes be altered by removing some of the decor, shortening legs of old dressers or tables, reshaping the headboard on the bed and doing the same with chairs.

Storage is another big problem that can be remedied. If the man of the house has carpenter's ability or is even interested in it, built-in dressers and chests can be made for the room.

and add gay color to bedrooms.

In addition to this, you'll be amazed at what sturdy wooden boxes can do for storage. Several boxes of the same size can be fitted and placed together to give cabinets. Use these for a hobby collection such as dishes, knick-knacks, records or even bookcases.

Proper Storage Cuts Clutter

Children's rooms frequently need additional storage space, even though at one time you may have thought them adequate. The sturdy boxes just mentioned would be excellent here, too.

Books are always being added to their possessions, and so are records, in many cases, not to mention the "collections" such as insects, nests, boats, airplanes, dolls and games of all sorts. Unless there's space for housing these, the room is never really neat and certainly as such is not conducive to teaching habits of neatness.

Boxes converted to cabinets are usually made of soft wood, so they should be treated with shellac and sandpaper first. They may be stained and varnished accordingly if you want light or dark woods. If preferred, they may be painted with a bright enamel that goes with the room colors.

Shelves are another item which not only relieve clutter, but also add to the decorative interest of the room. If reading while relaxing is a primary interest of the occupant, consider placing shelves directly above the bed to hold current reading material.

One, two or three shelves may be used together, depending upon the need as well as the decorative effect desired. A group of three shelves can be made from plywood, and scalloped edging from the plywood for the shelves may add interest.

Triangular shelves are excellent, too, especially in corners. These are made of varying sizes with the smallest at the top and may hold a doll, plant, miniature dish or other collection.

Graduated rectangular shelves are fine for decorative items and may be placed on any wall of the room on which they would look well.

Have Floors Comfortable, Attractive, Colorful

There are many different ways to treat the floors of the bedroom, and these depend on the style in which you do the room as well as considerations of taste and budget.

If you like handsome polished floors, you'll want to use few rugs, and these small and for foot comfort. If the room is done in Early American or even Modern style, small rugs are appropriate.

For Early American style rooms, rugs can be hooked or braided, and these may be made at home, thus cutting expenses.

Shag rugs for either type of rooms are quite inexpensive. In fact, they may be used in other period styles also. Buy a single rug or a pair, if the budget is limited, and then add more in the same color when finer permit.

Several small rugs eventually can be placed close together to look like one large rug and thus give a luxurious note to the room. This will provide great comfort in the cold weather. When warm weather comes, several of the rugs can be stored, and thus the room can look cooler.

A single large rug or wall-to-wall carpeting may be considered, too, especially if it helps to tie the room together, and if the flooring is so bad that it would be less expensive to carpet it completely.

Alimony Destroys Self-Respect

"YOU DON'T WRITE much about alimony," writes Mrs. Laurette Adams, of Fargo, "and yet, with more than two million women entitled to it, it seems to me a problem of today that is worthy of occasional discussion.

"I am 33," her letter continues, "deserted in 1944, when my husband returned from Guadalcanal. Ours had been a hasty courtship and marriage; my boy's father never has seen him. Jimmy was born six months before I received a letter saying that Lewis, my husband, wanted a divorce, was disgusted at the idea of returning to me, and was planning a second marriage. This came like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky, but, as I was to discover later, I am not the only woman whose young life was blasted that way.

Trapped

"The arrangement was that my husband should give me full custody of Jimmy, pay me $100 a month, and $40 a month for Jimmy's support until he is 18. As Lew is a junior partner in his father's very prosperous law firm, and makes close to seven thousand a year, this should not be too much. But he has remarried and had two little girls and an extravagant wife, and he also supports her mother and brother, according to report, so he represents himself as very much strapped.

shall not be saddened by his father's faults.

"Woman after woman tells me a similar story of desertion, cruelty, and utter indifference to obligations and to children. God knows we don't want divorces! We don't want to be lonely and unloved. But what little dignity we could save from the wreckage of our hopes is torn away by the insolent coldness of the men who swore to love us always. Have you anything to suggest that will help me to convince my husband that he owes us something better than this?"

Laurette, you are right in your statement that this case is not unusual, and my abhorrence of divorce—any divorce—is well known to anyone who reads this column. But at the same time, alimony in itself is an indefensible thing, and a smart woman ought to get away from it as fast as she can. Help with the small boy's expenses is another question, and Lew is bound on all accounts to pay that. Legally he can be held to it.

But look at your case as a healthy young human being, not as a deserted wife. You and Lew made a hasty, ill-considered marriage. In those war years a million girls and boys did the same, and some turned out well and many didn't.

Now you say to Lew, "For those weeks of wartime excitement and mistaken passion, you must support me as long as I live. No matter what your difficulties I will never have to help you. Though I married a capitalist tomorrow, you would have no claim on one penny of mine. I will hold my son, I will keep him conscious of his father's faults. But I will make no efforts to support him, because he and I are assured now of support as long as you live." This does not seem fair from the man's viewpoint. It is understandably so.

Color Important In House Plans

Paint Makes A House Stand Out From Others

URBANA - CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — "Color is a powerful force in housing. It is the first thing a person notices and the thing he remembers longest about any object," William S. Pusey, University of Illinois small homes council staff member says.

"In housing, it is color—not roof lines or siding material that makes one house stand out from another," he says. Pusey gives the following suggestions:

"A house with a dark, rich body color is usually improved by the use of white trim, especially if the trim and siding are of different materials.

"Too many changes of material and color makes a house look smaller. No one ever bought a house because it looked smaller than it really was.

"A tall house can stand to be broken up by the use of colored panels which cut down the apparent height and improve the proportions of the house.

"When color is being selected for a development, individual houses should look as if they belong with the others. The colors may either harmonize or contrast, but they shouldn't clash.

ONCE OVER

Estes Is Taking the Big Gamble

By H. I. Phillips

ESTES Kefauver, top prober of gambling, is taking one of the biggest gambles in history. The Senator is taking a chance on the White House. With all the odds against him, he has grabbed a ticket on the political jackpot. A battler against slot machines, he has clutched the "iron arm" and yanked it in an ardent hope that the three plums, not the three lemons, will come down.

Senator Kefauver has made it tough for horse-race bettors but he is an added starter in one of the most exciting races in the world and has announced himself as "fit and ready," "trained for a sprint or a distance" and "a good thing at the weights," so to speak. We would put him down on our sheet now as follows:

Kefauver Boy.—Prepped for the classic in the Video Derby, the Channel Handicap, the National Quiz Stakes, the Interrogation Futurity and the Twenty questions Steeplechase, this one has been pointed for the big event. There is no telling how good he is. Late trials are reported sparkling. He is the rangy type, not showy or gifted with much early flight, but is a terrific finisher. Excellent post manners and very smooth and fast when hits stride. Recent reports that he had pulled up lame after a fast Washington workout are without foundation. May be overheard in the November Grab-All over the Chicago route but is a distant threat.

Estes not only has his hat in the ring but there is a "ring" in his hat . . . the ring of sincerity. Should he make it, he will be the first "From Video To White House" candidate. Win, lose or draw his performance will be interesting as testing how much a good screen drama can do for a public servant. The Senator is identified in the public eye as Mister Honesty in Person, the generalissimo of the forces arrayed against the underworld. When, in his recent statement, he declared the Administration had not done enough to wipe out crookedness there was a distinct "Move over!" in his voice.

Most successful investigators are not particularly heart-warming. They too often shape up as line-smashing, hard-hitting and tough-talking with a large percentage of ham in them. But Estes is a new type.

There is little ham in him. When he puts the finger on the baddies it is to the lilting music of Tennessee folk songs, not the brass disturbances of the football battle. You see erinoline instead of shoulder-harness and noseguards . . . there is the perfume of magnolia above the smell of rubbing liniment.

There is no point during a Kefauver Information Please quiz when you don't feel that if a lady entered the courtroom he would rise, bow and offer to protect her from the hard facts of life. He leans so far backward to be courteous that he at times seems to be floating horizontally in space. But the velvet glove leaves a witness groaning when he says good-bye. The Kefauver campaign will be fun, anyhow. There is no telling how far television can get.

By quitting OPS to enter a political contest Mike Di Salle would seem to be dismissing the meat situation as a whole and concentrating on the baloney situation .

MARRIAGE LICENSES

"... hasty courtship . . ."

"He pays, yes. But he never pays on time. I have to telephone every month, and sometimes have to ask my lawyer to jog his memory. Sometimes he writes me a little note with his check, saying something insulting like how long am I going to keep this up, haven't I found someone who wants to marry me?"

"I can't tell you how humiliating and even maddening this is to me. I live with my mother whose only contribution to expenses is that she owns the house and pays a low tax yearly.

"We rent all the downstairs rooms except the kitchen to a woman doctor. This means we have no gracious living space, and can naturally have but a limited social life. I am not complaining, but it interests me to talk to other divorced women, in shops and in the circle of my friends, and to discover that the very husbands who wanted the divorces, and more or less forced them, are acting in this cruel way about alimony payments.

A Racket

"My lawyer tells Lew that he must be more prompt, and Lew says that alimony is a racket and that no self-respecting woman would go on taking it year after year. This is very different from the way he talked when he wanted to be free. I have never seen him since he sailed away; we had known each other then only seven weeks. Mother and I live out of town, keep much to ourselves, and devote ourselves to my boy, determined that his life

Keep Alert

An old Negro was watching his boys trying to break a mule. As fast as the youngsters climbed aboard, the critter tossed them off. Finally he could stand it no longer. "Bring dat mule here, Rastus! You-all don't know nuthin' 'bout ridin' a mule! LemME show you!"

The old man hopped astraddle with confidence. As Lizzy began to buck, he talked to her: "Lizzy, you ain't foolin' with the boys now—you's got de ole man on yo' back, so you might as well quiet down."

Just then Lizzy managed to toss the old man about six feet out onto the ground. He picked himself up, turned to the boys and said: "Now, boys, dat's de way to do—when you-all see she's gwine to fling ye, jump off!"
