O'DONNELL, TEXAS, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1942.

B. Burleson, Pioneer of Lynn Co. Dies Wednesday

(Bell) Burleson, 73, of Hope, Mexico, but a rancher of many years, passed away at his home Wednesday afternoon. He was born in San Saba, Texas, in 1865. Survivors include his widow, two sons, Joe Graham and Billy Gene, Mrs. E. T. Wells, daughter of first marriage. Two granddaughters, Mrs. Billy McKnight of and Mrs. J. R. Adams of brother, John Burleson, also Burleson either followed or connected with ranching interests greater part of his life, coming to this section when there were no others here. In his younger days he worked for Slaughter, XIT, other ranches. During World War I, he served as guard on the border. He also served as a sheriff here for many years. Burleson resided southeast of O'Donnell. In 1912, his wife, the Miss Laura Stockbridge, died. Mr. Burleson moved from here to San Antonio. Burleson's funeral arrangements had not been definitely made by the family at the time of this newspaper. Burleson is scheduled to be held for burial in Tahoka where Mr. Burleson once resided.

Truck Operators Must Get Permits

All persons and firms owning or operating trucks or pick-ups must fill out a form now in the mail, "Form SU-A, Application for Certificate of War Necessity."

Failure to fill out and return the form will not only be in violation of Federal regulations, but will also prohibit the operator from securing gasoline, tires, or parts for such vehicles, according to Roy Adams, who has been appointed chairman of a newly formed Lynn County Transportation Committee. On the committee with Adams are R. C. Wood, Tom N. Hale, Ethel Smelser, and C. H. Mansell.

To assist truck and pick-up operators in filling in the application members of the committee are available today and Saturday in the rear of the County Agricultural Building in Tahoka and at a place set aside in O'Donnell.

These applications should be filled in by Saturday, Mr Adams says.

J. C. Smith New Secretary Of AAA

J. C. Smith, for the past four years AAA secretary of Bailey County, Muleshoe, is the new AAA secretary for Lynn County.

The new secretary succeeds Derrell Henry, recently called into the U. S. Army. Miss Eloise Nettles, who had been with the local office for a number of months, has been acting secretary since Mr. Henry's leaving.

Smith was reared at Slaton, and is a graduate of Texas Tech. He is married, and the couple have a three-year-old daughter.

Extension News

By MISS MAURINE McNATT, County Home Demonstration Agent. Extension Service A. & M. College Sheets And Pillowcases On "Make 'Em Last" List

There will be fewer sheets and pillowcases allowed to do "ghost" duty this Halloween. The reason—the war. Homemakers are helping with the war program when they take extra good care of the household textiles. The way to get the best service from sheets or pillowcases is to distribute the wear as evenly as possible.

Extra Care — Extra Wear Tests show that sheets wear out most quickly where the sleeper's shoulders normally rest. Wear can be distributed by reversing the ends occasionally.

Sheets last longer if freshly laundered ones are put on the bottom of the pile in the linen closet, then no sheet is overworked while others are idle.

Springs and bed rails should be examined if tears or snags are found on the sides of the sheets. Bend down any loose ends of wire on springs or sandpaper off any splinters on the rails. Mend snags quickly.

Sheets not large enough for the bed wear out quickly. Try piecing to make them either longer or wider. Good material from old, worn sheets serves this purpose.

Life expectancy of pillowcases is about the same as that of sheets, and their career can be extended also. Underslips, the removal covering for pillows, lighten the wear on pillowcases. Acting as a "buffer" between case and pillow, the underslip keeps the case from rubbing against the harsher ticking fabric.

Constant folding makes pillowcase fabrics so weak that in time they split. If the pillowcase is made from tubing and has no side seams: it may be opened at the seam end before it has seen much wear. Then move the side places where folds formerly were made over to the face of the pillowcase. Re-seam the end. Pillowcases which are too narrow should be pieced on the sides. It may not lend to its appearance, but it is good economy.

Using a sheet or pillowcase as a laundry bag is one of the hardest uses to which it can be put.

Careful Laundering Saves Fabric

A major goal on laundry day is to keep sheets and pillowcases white. It is best to launder them before they become very soiled to avoid using strong bleaches. Bleaches containing free chlorine react with the fiber of the fabric, causing it to deteriorate. The sun is the best bleaching agent.

Don't depend on laundering or sunshine to banish stains. Stains should be removed before rubbing since hot water sets some stains, so they are more difficult, perhaps even impossible, to get out.

When drying, hang them by the hem. If they freeze on the line, don't move them until dry since they split where folded.

Too hot an iron weakens the fibers, even if it doesn't leave scorch marks. Keep the temperature of the iron about medium. Don't press folds in sheets or pillowcases.

Sheets run through a mangle sometimes split along the selvage if the edge is allowed to roll back as it enters and is continually pressed on this fold.

Such tears can be seamed, or taken off the entire selvage and finish the edge with a narrow hem. And there's still a third way—the edge can be strengthened by stitching tape under the torn places.

Junior Rangers Gather 170,000 Lbs. Of Scrap Here

Piling up a total of 170,383 pounds of scrap material for Uncle Sam's war effort, school students exceeded their own expectations.

Miss Wanda Jean Tyler became the Scrap Queen when her fellow Juniors went to work with a will and weighed in more scrap than any other class. Rivalry of the friendly type was present, but no letdown was allowed by any of the various class leaders.

The collection exceeded 700 pounds per capita for the high school.

Totals for the classes follow: Juniors, 46,138; Seniors, 35,590; Sophomores, 29,168; Freshmen, 23,186; 8th grade, 10,441; 7th grade, 2,406; 6th grade, 9,340; 5th, 5,375; 4th, 5,428; 3rd, 1,956; 2nd, 659; 1st, 566.

Soil Conservation Applications Are Now Being Taken

TAHOKA, October 23 (Special)—Lynn County Soil Conservation District will hold the first of its educational meetings at the Wilson high school Saturday night, October 24. On Friday night, October 30, a meeting will be held at the high school in Draw.

Following these meetings arrangements will be made for community meetings at various places in the county until the entire county has been covered. The purpose of these meetings is to explain to the farmers of the District the assistance which the District will be able to give individual farmers in controlling wind and water erosion.

The Soil Conservation Service has opened an office above the Wynne Collier Drug Store and will assist the District Board in the educational meetings and in the work with individual farmers.

H. E. Mather, Work Unit Leader for the Soil Conservation Service, states that he will have a staff of three or more engineers, a Junior Conservationist, and a clerk-stenographer to assist the District. Mr. Mather also states that three or four local men will be employed as rodmen to assist the engineers in surveying for terracing, contour farming, stock water ponds and similar work.

The District Board of Supervisors is made up of the following farmers: R. L. Littlepage, Midway community, chairman; P. E. Askew, Wells community; J. H. Sander, Wilson community; Loyd R. McCormick, New Home; and R. M. Stewart, Edith community.

These men have been working for several months on the District work program and plans, and they feel that they are now ready to start operations so that assistance can be given to farmers during the fall and winter before time to plant crops next spring. Farmers who desire assistance may secure application blanks from the Supervisors, at the County Agent's office, F. S. A. office, or they may go direct to the Soil Conservation office in Tahoka.

Former Resident Of O'Donnell Is Buried Sunday

Funeral services for W. H. Guthrie, 65, a former resident of O'Donnell, were held Sunday in Andrews from the First Baptist Church. Death occurred Saturday.

Mr. Guthrie was in the grocery business here, but served as mayor of Andrews and as county judge after leaving here.

Gas Rationing Board Named

TAHOKA, October 23 (Special)—Gasoline rationing will soon be a reality over all the nation, and Lynn county is taking steps to have plans complete for the rationing when authorized.

County Judge Chester Connolly expects early approval of the Lynn County Gasoline Rationing Panel, members of which are expected to be A. M. Cade, chairman, S. L. Williams, John Hamilton, and Bill Sauls.

Federal administrators have announced that citizens will register at the schools on November 9, 10, and 11, for gasoline ration books. At that time, no one will be issued permit to buy gasoline unless he has complied with the regulations permitting five tires to each car. Those with excess tires must turn them in to the Government. These excess tires are being accepted at the railway express offices.

Marriage of Miss Emma Jo Hinkle Held In Lubbock October 15

The marriage of Miss Emma Jo Hinkle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hinkle of O'Donnell, to Staff Sergeant T. Jay Rogers of Snyder occurred in Lubbock October 15, according to an announcement from the family. The ring ceremony was used.

Mrs. Rogers was a graduate of the high school here in 1941. She later attended a business college in Lubbock and was employed with an accounting firm in that city following graduation. In 1939 she was chosen as football queen and most popular girl.

The groom is a member of a pioneer Snyder family a graduate of John Tarleton College, and is stationed at the Lubbock Army Air Field.

Miss Leta Merle Koeninger, who is employed at the Lamesa Gilder School, visited her parents here on Tuesday evening.

District Rotary Governor Here

Throughout his talk, stressing the Rotary motto of "He Profits Most Who Serves Best," Charles Paxton of Sweetwater, district governor, addressed the local club here Wednesday noon.

The governor met with club officials in a night luncheon at the O'Donnell Hotel Tuesday night, and the regular meeting time was postponed from Tuesday noon until the following day. From here, Paxton went to Tahoka where he spoke on Thursday.

Service, in all the word implies, to one's fellow citizens, town and country, was the keynote Paxton urged upon the O'Donnell Rotarians, and suggested many ways the club could serve.

"By your actions let everyone know that you, as a Rotarian, are doing your best and have the welfare of others at heart—that you are not always seeking the Almighty Dollar in your dealings," he said.

"Rotary club service means something, and you can make it mean something that will be and be enjoyed by others in O'Donnell. The war is all the more reason why Rotary should live and be supported—dictators don't like Rotarians because they serve their fellowman, and not take from him."

Fire Destroys Sanderson Home Near Loop

The old Doak Ranch house, near Cedar Lake, southwest of O'Donnell, owned and occupied the past few years by Mr. and Mrs. Morris Sanderson, recently burned to the ground. C. H. Doak of O'Donnell informs The News. Mrs. Sanderson is the former Miss Birdie Doak.

Mr. Doak says that the Sandersons lost practically everything in the house in the fire. Mrs. Sanderson was at home at the time the house caught fire but does not know how the conflagration started.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Roosevelt Outlines Manpower Program; 18-19 Year-Old Army Draft to Release Older Men for Needed War Production; Willkie Renews Second Front Demands

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper. Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Japanese efforts to dislodge the marines from Guadalcanal and obtain possession of this strategic link in the Solomon Islands chain have taken a three-pronged pincer movement, according to military experts.

SOLOMONS: All-Out Struggle

Good news balanced bad as the navy made public accounts of thunderous encounters between American and Jap war craft.

On the credit side was the report that five Nipponese warships and a transport had been sunk in a midnight battle near the Solomons.

On the debit side was the somber tidings that three heavy American cruisers had been sent to the bottom of the Pacific in a night engagement during the first phase of the Solomon islands offensive last August.

WILLKIE: Persistent Advocate

Back from a 31,000-mile aerial tour of 14 countries in the war zone, including embattled Russia, the Middle East, India and China, Wendell L. Willkie reiterated a demand for a second front in Europe.

Reporting personally to President Roosevelt the results of his observations and of conferences with Joseph Stalin, Chiang Kai-shek and other Allied leaders, Willkie emphasized his conviction that the United Nations inevitably will defeat the Axis and that "Germany will never crush Russia."

In an interview later the 1940 Republican presidential candidate defended his right as a non-military expert to advance proposals which he believes will help shorten the war, reduce its cost in human life and help shape a better post-war world.

EMPLOYMENT: To Reach 62,500,000

Eventual employment of 62,500,000 Americans in all lines of industry, commerce and agriculture by December, 1943, was predicted by the National Industrial Conference board.

The board reported that current employment figures were 57,700,000 with the total moving steadily upward.

Rise in employment in the past 12 months has been 4,000,000, while 10,000,000 have been added to payrolls since the defense program was undertaken in 1940.

credit for the work she did. We truly believe, had it not been for her, we could never have won. She helped carry on the work nicely, and missed very few opportunities to collect scrap iron. She had the entire class behind her as well as the many, many friends from the surrounding communities.

There are 38 Juniors in high school and according to our method of classification, no one of us ranked lower than a Sergeant who had to collect 250 lbs. of scrap iron. Many of the students got as much as 8,000 pounds and our total was 46,138 lbs. Our class averaged 1,225 pounds per person.

We would like to acknowledge some of our leading students in the scrap drive: James Teeter, 8,000 lbs. of scrap iron; Leala La Grane, 7,000 lbs.; Wanda Tyler, David Tompson, Valene Buchanan, and Marion Oates got 5,000 lbs. of scrap apiece. There were also numerous others who had high ratings. We had our rating classifications according to the number of pounds each of us brought in.

We would like to say as a whole, not only are we proud of ourselves but of the entire school for their efforts in this drive.

We hope this small amount of iron and rubber we collected will do a great deal toward the war effort of our country. We also hope to continue this work in the future.

WELLS 4-H CLUB

"Flower arrangements should be so made that they will look natural and will look like they are growing," stated Miss Maurine McNatt, home demonstration agent, at the Wells 4 H club meeting Friday, October 16.

The flower stems should be placed in a frog or so arranged that they will appear to be coming from one central point. Better balance is always obtained by placing the heavy dark blossoms and leaves near the container, and the lighter ones at the top—that is, open roses should be placed at the base, and the buds near the top.

Many things may be used as containers, but whatever is used, it should not have any decoration on it, especially colored designs. Clear containers are very good, and also plain colored containers.

There were twelve members present at our meeting, including Miss McNatt and Miss Anglin.

Our next meeting will be held on Thursday, October 29. Our sponsor, Miss Lenore Anglin, will meet with us. — Reporter.

FSA Mobilizes Small Farmers For War Effort

Full mobilization of manpower on the small farms of Lynn County for increased food production is needed to win the war, Jack Welch, rural rehabilitation supervisor for the Farm Security Administration, believes.

"Unless our small farm operators can produce greater quantities of food," said Mr. Welch, "our country will be compelled to ration almost all foods and there is no assurance that we can maintain nutrition needs of our civilians."

"For this reason," he continued, "the federal government has ordered the Farm Security Administration to extend every possible aid to low-income and small farm and ranch operators to enable them to increase production."

The supervisor said the FSA's loan policy, collection policy, health, tenure improvement, cooperative and farm ownership programs, and all

THE Secret OF THE MARSHBANKS

W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY SO FAR: An orphan since the age of seven, Charlotte (Cherry) knows almost nothing about her early history. Judge Judson Marshbanks, her co-guardian with Emma Hasbrooks, her mother, tells her that Emma has arranged for her to leave Saint Louis, and to take a secretarial position with the wealthy Mrs. Porteous Porter, in San Francisco, where Emma is housekeeper. She is first to go to the Marshbanks mansion. When she arrives she meets alone with the judge as Fran, his young wife, and his niece, Amy, are waiting out. Kelly Coates, an artist, drops in and Cherry feels very ill at ease in her convent clothes. On their way out, Fran and Amy stop and casually nod to Cherry as they are introduced. It is evident that Cherry, Kelly and Fran are interested in each other. As Fran and Amy leave, she stands on the stairway, concealed by palms, and hears laughing reference to her and her clothes.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER IV

Mrs. Porter was a stout, soft, pretty woman of seventy-four. Some physical difficulty, perhaps not so serious than her weight itself, made it inconvenient for her to ever walk more than a few steps at a time. She took a drive every day. She could get to the bathroom for the comfort of a long, leisurely bath, and every morning she moved to her favorite chair in a sunny bay window or beside an old-fashioned

As Dovey Glashell, Mrs. Porter had had an adored, flirtatious, giddy childhood. Hers had been the generation that twined flowers in hair and danced kid slippers to pulp at formal balls. Upon marrying the richest and most eligible young man in a city full of mining and railway, banking and land barons' sons, she had flashed upon a stunned group of friends the news of a prospective European honeymoon trip with her bridegroom.

Emma was indispensable; she kept the whole enormous machine running; she knew where business papers were, and what the lawyer came about, and when to call the doctor. But there was nothing soft, friendly, companionable about Emma, and at the telephone or when it came to special shopping she was grimly inadequate. Also, she was a monotonous and disinterested reader. Mrs. Porter had a large mail; she had long been unequal to it, and had employed unsatisfactory girls to act as secretary from time to time with wearying results.

Cherry began her duties with the trembling feeling that by no chance could her lines have fallen permanently in such pleasant places. To be able to creep away from the world that in one brief encounter had hurt her so terribly and to hide herself here, with a lovely room for her own, a houseful of books for company, amazing meals served at regular — or indeed, irregular — hours, and only a gentle, sweet, helpless old lady to amuse seemed so good a fortune to be true.

From this she passed to a sort of exultation that she had succeeded. She answered the telephone and wrote letters and drove out in the park in her new brown coat and becoming brown hat, in a pleasant quiver of feeling herself liked and needed and approved.

The third phase came only after several weeks, and was one of doubt, boredom and weariness. She wanted exercise and interest and companionship; she wanted a sense of living; instead she was like a girl caught in a dream.

Outwardly, it was all easy and delightful. Cherry came into her employer's room not earlier than half past ten o'clock every morning, not later than eleven. Mrs. Porter only lost sight of the girl for brief intervals thereafter until ten o'clock at night. Cherry had immediately discovered her appetite for flattery and had innocently gratified it in their first days together. Now she had to pay the price for this companionship with constant pleasantries.

"I like you because you're so frank with me, Cherry," Mrs. Porter said to her once. "I told Emma that you were a blunt little thing and she was afraid I didn't like it. But I do! I love people to be absolutely frank with me."

With her first sight of Emma, Cherry had had the feeling that the long years since last they had met were as nothing and that she was a little girl of seven again, living in a small tiled house with a patio and a fountain, and running in and out of the bedroom where her mother always in bed. A thousand details, half forgotten, until now, had rushed back to her, and she had longed for the moment when she might talk freely to Emma of the past.

To include any exercise at all in the twenty-four hours she formed the habit of rising early and taking a long walk about the streets or along the eucalyptus-shaded roads of the Presidio before breakfast.

In the freshness and sparkle of these winter mornings life seemed exhilarating enough. But after her breakfast the warmth and torpidity of the Porter mansion enveloped her again like a stupefying drug.

"I wonder," she wrote Anita, "how long this would go on? Emma—that's my old nurse, you know—has been in one job or another like this for years and years. Well, anyway, I got my first pay yesterday and I'm going to buy myself a hat and saw on Polk street. My love to everyone, Madeleine especially, and Elizabeth and all the Sisters and girls."

One day Cherry had an adventure. It came on a quiet, foggy afternoon when all the world seemed dull and quiet. Cherry was driving with Mrs. Porter when her old companion said suddenly, "Look there—wait a minute—stop him!"

Automatically obeying these instructions Cherry seized the speaking tube and Merryweather drew up at the right-hand side of the road.

Then the girl saw that two bay horses carrying a man and woman were pacing along one of the bridge paths.

—and that the woman was Fran Marshbanks and the man Kelly Coates.

In response to old Mrs. Porter's gesticulations, and her voice at the window she was energetically lowering the riders came close to the car and Fran gave Cherry her second careless smile and nod, and Kelly saluted her by touching his cap with his whip. He was presented to Mrs. Porter, and as the two women fell into a discussion of the list of patronesses for a series of concerts, he rode around the back of the car and chatted with Cherry at her own opened window.

"Well, Miss—I have to call you Cherry, I've forgotten the other name—" he began.

"Oh, do!" said Cherry, the dull park breaking into sparkles, the white winter sky turned June.

"Cherry then. What have you done to yourself? You look like another woman!"

"It's my hat," said Cherry. The Polk street creation was on her head, a picturesque hat that came far down over the streaked gold and brown of her hair.

"It's more than your hat," Kelly assured her. "You've washed your face, too."

Her laugh rang out; he had not heard her laugh before, and as it had impressed Judson Marshbanks at the convent a month or so earlier, it impressed the younger man now as being extraordinarily fresh and pleasant.

He looked at her a long time, thoughtfully. Or at least, if only for a few seconds, it seemed a long time to Cherry. She felt the warm color in her cheeks and the slow beat of her heart.

"I suppose that's true," Kelly said at last in a surprised tone.

"I'd read about girls making their debuts," Cherry pursued, warned to the very soul by his attentive, half-sympathetic and half-amused look, "and orchids and all that. But somehow, just that night, to see her so safe and so happy and having such a wonderful time when I was homesick and tired and I knew I looked so awful."

"Well, of course," he agreed quickly, as she paused in a sort of shame and embarrassment. "Amy, you mean?"

"Amy."

"She's not having such a wonderful time," he said. "It's all comparative. She thinks other girls are having a slightly better time, and that drives her wild. Mrs. Marshbanks, Fran, was speaking of it just a few minutes ago, and saying what fools girls are!"

"Oh, girls are fools all right," Cherry agreed meekly, and as the man laughed she laughed too.

"Mr. Coates," old Mrs. Porter said, breaking into the conversation and leaning across Cherry to catch his attention.

"Fran has promised to bring Amy to dine with me two weeks from Thursday, and I want you to come too."

"I'm a dead loss at dinners," Kelly said, laughing. "You'll never ask me again."

"Well, we'll see about that," said the old lady, in high feather. "But you come, now! My nephew George's daughter, Dorothy Page-Smith, is going to be here—coming up with her mother from Santa Barbara, where they tell me she's been breakin' all hearts, and I want her to meet Amy and some of the other youngsters."

"Jud may not be here; he gets back from Portland tonight," Fran said, "but he may have to go right back again. So Mr. Coates will acquire me. I'll guarantee him."

"And you tell Mrs. Dickson to get Mary Trainor and Lizzie Block on that committee!" Mrs. Porter adjured her vigorously.

"I will. I've not been going to the meetings, more shame to me," said Fran, "but I'm going tomorrow and I'll do what I can."

"And you tell 'em Cherry'll send them my check for two hundred."

"I'll tell them," Fran did not say anything about the generous size of the donation. And Cherry fancied that her employer looked just a little dashed and disappointed as the riders cantered away on the bridge path again.

"We none of us understood," Mrs. Porter said then, in her sweet, wistful voice, "why Judson Marshbanks married Frances Unger—she's a very brilliant girl, but I don't think she's pretty, and she's twenty-two years younger than he is. Seems so strange!"

This was as near as Cherry ever had heard her come to criticism or unkindness, and she smiled at her interrogatively.

"That doesn't sound like you, Mrs. Porter," she said, with the simple daring that she knew well the old woman liked. "You always say such nice things about everyone."

"Well, I hope I always do, my dear, but somehow that girl always does seem to me outlandish. And I loved his first wife, Mary Lee Carey. She died—oh, ten years ago. Her mother was Sophie Laquelle, French family here—lovely people."

Mrs. Porter's proposed dinner party for a chosen dozen of the debutantes took on an increasing importance as the days went by, and, by the debutantes' mothers and families, was by degrees developed into a much larger affair. It was a long time—perhaps twenty or twenty-five years—since entertaining on a large scale had taken place in the old Glashell mansion, and the newspapers made much of it, and many were the friendly offers of assistance to Cherry's employer as the plan got daily under way.

The original twelve girls swelled to a score, to thirty, for there were many who must not be forgotten, and at least forty eligible young men were asked to join them. Then certain favored and intimate elders were included to save the hostess the least effort, and in no time at all caterers had come in to set tables and decorate them and prepare a sumptuous meal for one hundred guests; florists arrived with palms and ropes of chrysanthemums; newspaper men and photographers gave the house no rest; a five piece orchestra was engaged, and Mrs. Porter remained in bed all day, getting herself completely rested and ready.

To Cherry's eagerness and inexperience and hunger for excitement all this was satisfying beyond words. She was everywhere; she helped with everything.

In the midst of the flurry, the guest of honor, Dorothy Page-Smith, arrived with a formidable mother as escort, and took possession of one of the big rooms on the second floor. This alone would have supplied Cherry with pleasurable interest, for Dorothy was a harmless, indeed a seemingly half-witted little creature who turned to Cherry at once as being the only other person of anything like her age in the house, and in a babyish lisp consulted her about her gowns, her hair arrangement, her beaux and the possibility of her having anything but a "wotten" time in a place where she just didn't know one "thingle thole."

The day of the party was overcast with a cold rain spattering down.

At seven o'clock, trim and demure in her blue dress with the silver buttons, Cherry went into Mrs. Porter's bedroom to find Emma and Ferny busily getting the old lady into a magnificent robe of silvery and blue brocade, decorating the beautiful curls of her rich white hair with diamond butterflies and preparing her with a preliminary cup of tea and chicken sandwich for the evening's frivolities.

She had at first planned to go downstairs tonight, to be installed majestically in some great chair, to welcome her guests herself. But this seemed at the last moment too great an effort.

My Week

BREMERTON NAVY HOSPITAL

SEATTLE, WASH.—One day my daughter and son-in-law, with the two older children went with me to Bremerton, Wash. After a very pleasant luncheon with Mrs. Taffinder, wife of Admiral Sherwood Ayerst Taffinder, commandant of the navy yard, we visited the hospital with Capt. Dan Hunt. This is not as big a hospital as those in San Francisco or San Diego, but it has been somewhat enlarged lately.

There were a number of patients from the northern area, not all of them, however, from the battlefield. A good many boys get hurt on board ship. In all these hospitals there are a number of nervous cases, some of whom, perhaps, will never be able to resume work in the armed forces, but may be able to take up their civilian occupations again.

They have some wards for the care of navy dependents, and I saw a number of wives whose husbands are off on foreign duty. Seven babies were in the nursery, and several children were recovering from more or less serious illnesses.

This is not a separate hospital building, as it was at the naval station in San Diego, but is a part of the regular hospital. The patients pay $3.50 a day, just as they do in San Diego. I had not been at this navy yard since the President was assistant secretary of the navy. We visited all the navy yards on this coast in the winter of 1914, and the change is simply breath taking.

What used to be a golf course is now covered with shops and great activity is going on everywhere.

SEATTLE'S VICTORY SQUARE

Next day at noon, I spoke here in Victory square. Ever since last May, Seattle has carried on noon-day meetings in Victory square. Always they have a record of bond sales read. In addition, they make a point of bringing interesting people to talk at that hour on anything to do with the war effort.

This day an army band, belonging to a Washington, D. C., regiment, played very well. In compliance with Donald Nelson's request, the newspapers here, as well as in other parts of the country, are responsible for the scrap metal drive, and they had charge of this program.

AN AWAKENING FILM

I saw a picture the other day which was taken in China by Mr. Mark L. Moody, an American business man who has spent some 25 years in the Far East. He had exceptional opportunities for taking pictures when the Japanese took Shanghai and various nearby cities.

The film is called "Ravaged Earth," and he tells me his desire is to awaken the people in this country to a knowledge of the kind of adversary they have in the Japanese. They are certainly appalling pictures.

'NERVES' IN ARMED FORCES

In San Francisco, among other places, I visited the army hospital. There are new buildings there, too, but on the whole, it gives one less feeling of hurried change than most of the other hospitals. It is evident everywhere that an effort is being made to use all the new scientific knowledge which can contribute to the better care of the men in service.

I would surmise, however, that we are not giving our draftees a sufficiently careful psychiatric examination, before they are taken into service, for there seem to be a considerable number of maladjustments which may or may not become liabilities in the army. In the navy, too, I have seen some cases of what one might call "nerves."

There seems to be more attention and understanding of these cases once they are in the services than in the pre-induction period. If once they are taken into the services, of course they become a charge on the medical services of our government.

PROMOTING GOOD WILL

Also in San Francisco, I went to a tea at Pacific House. Mrs. William Denman has been very active in promoting, through Pacific House, closer relations between the various consuls stationed in San Francisco and the students who come from so many South American and Far Eastern countries.

The students will all return to their own countries to be ambassadors of good will for us if their experiences here make them really understand this nation and its people. I met a very sweet young Chinese woman who is a student of medicine. She is planning to return as soon as she finishes to work in the rural areas of China.

PREVENTING RACE ANTAGONISM

That afternoon in San Diego, I went to a meeting in the parlor of the Methodist church for Bethune-Cookman college. It is interesting to me that three meetings in behalf of this college have been arranged in the state of California. This shows there is recognition of the need for better understanding of our minority groups, and of the value of trained leaders who can create good will and prevent antagonism between people of different races.

ON THE HOME FRONT

with RUTH WYETH SPEARS

IT IS not necessary to make our economies so dull and dreary that they depress every one. Let's make them so gay and attractive that they give us a lift and a bit of a challenge too. This old rocker is an example.

A saw and a wood chisel were used for removing projections and rockers. An old quilt was found for padding and the feathers from an old bolster were packed into a thick seat cushion to raise the seat which has been lowered by removing the rockers. This required a yard and a quarter of ticking. Four and one-half yards of inexpensive chintz in a bold, modern pattern did the rest. Total cost for an up-to-date chair less than two dollars, that will serve well for the duration.

NOTE: This remodeled chair is from BOOK 5 of the series of booklets that are offered with these articles. In this book an old-fashioned couch is modernized; end tables from spools; new uses are found for a camp stool; other types

It Appears the Little Chap Was Just Having Sum Fun!

The father, who had made a practice of helping his young son with his arithmetic problems from school, took the little fellow to church with him on a Sunday.

They arrived a trifle late, the minister having already announced the opening song to be sung by the congregation. They found their seats and hurriedly sat down, as the clergyman said: "Ten Thousand Times Ten Thousand." Two hundred and twenty-two. Everybody!

The little lad seemed puzzled for a moment, then nudged his father.

"Dad," he whispered, "do we have to work out this one, too?"

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Before rubber allocation programs, one large rubber company featuring company made close to 35,000 separate rubber items. The weights of these items ran from fractions of an ounce to hundreds of pounds.

Supported by old inner tubes that have been blessed, natives of Benares, India, stay in the waters of the Holy Ganges River for weeks at a stretch.

Rubber shortage was no worry when the first roads were constructed in the Empire of Assyria and Babylon in 1900 B.C. or when the Romans built their military roads in 302-298 B.C.

In 1941 89% of the rubber consumed in the U. S. came from lands that are now in the hands of the enemy or cut off from U. S. ships.

Two-thirds of all the natural rubber in the U. S. is in the tires and tubes on American cars.

STEPS TOWARD SOLUTION OF THE ALCOHOL PROBLEM

LESSON TEXT—Ecclesiastes 10:17; Amos 5:21-24; Romans 14:19-21 II Corinthians 9:17; I Peter 4:1-3.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream.—Amos 5:24.

Let's do something about it! That is the right word regarding the liquor problem now. The time is past for theorizing or deploring—we need action. The liquor interests have redoubled their efforts of late because they fear the aroused public opinion of decent Americans. Why do not America's 65,000,000 church members say the word now, and curb this awful thing which is threatening to destroy us?

I. Right-Minded Rulers (Eccles. 10:17).

National leaders should set the example for the people—an example of sobriety, of clear-headed thought and full devotion to the cause of our country. Are they doing it? We quote: "Washington is the wettest spot in the nation. The per capita consumption of alcohol in the District of Columbia is almost twice that of the wettest state in the Union. In 1940, 4.26 gallons were consumed for every man, woman and child. Nevada, the wettest of all our states, consumed 2.65 gallons per person. There at Washington where they need the clearest heads, the steadiest nerves, and the highest morals, they are drinking the most booze" (Dr. I. M. Hargett). What about 1942? Those who have been able to observe, indicate that conditions are probably worse now!

The secretary of war and the secretary of the navy have insisted on the desirability of the sale of beer in service canteens. No wonder the Brewers' Digest of May, 1941, gloated: "One of the finest things that could have happened was the insistence by high ranking officers to make beer available in army camps. Here is a chance for the brewers to cultivate a taste for beer in millions of young men." America had better wake up!

II. Right-Spirited People (Amos 5:21-24).

God has no pleasure in the religious observances and the pious words of a people who profess to worship, but who come with unrepentant hearts and unclean hands.

Can God bless the man (or his money) who profits either directly or indirectly from the sale of intoxicants? Amos has the answer. Let us heed his plea that righteousness should run through our national, as well as our personal lives, "as a mighty stream."

III. Right - Living Christians (Rom. 14:19-21; II Cor. 6:17; I Pet. 4:1-5).

We have already suggested that there are 65,000,000 church members in America. If they were all right-living Christians there can be little question that they would long since have eliminated the liquor business, for it is certainly most unchristian. Apparently they are either not real Christians, or they are asleep to their responsibility. Our Scriptures in this section tell us that in a true Christian life there is

1. No offense (Rom. 14:19-21). The question here is that of eating meat offered to idols, which does not concern us; but the great Christian principle here stated is of the highest importance and bears directly on our daily life.

None of us lives to himself (Rom. 14:7). Everything we do counts either for or against Christ. Such an ordinary (we regret) thing as staying away from church service speaks to the world and especially to our neighbors of our loss of interest and respect for the worship of God. Apply that principle to the use of any alcoholic beverage, and every Christian must be a total abstainer.

2. No Compromise (II Cor. 6:17). We have come to the unscriptural and deeply dangerous viewpoint that if a Christian wants to compromise a bit with the world, the flesh and the devil, that's his "business." God does not think so. He says: "Come out from among them, and be ye separate." The weakness of the church on this matter of liquor is that too many of the 65,000,000 are guilty of the sin (and that's what it is!) of compromise.

3. No Worldliness (I Pet. 4:1-5). Here again the assumption of many is that there are two groups in the church—worldly Christians and spiritually minded ones, and that each is as good as the other. Both classes are there, no doubt about that, but God never has and never will countenance worldliness on the part of His people.

Let's Have a Party . . . While Witches Play (See Recipes Below.)

Halloween Pranks

October's the month which flaunts her gay, burnished colors as a prelude to winter. It's the month of apples and cider, of pumpkins and squash against dry sheaves of corn stalk, of fragrant gingerbread or doughnuts fried crispy tender in hot sizzling deep fat.

October's the month of Halloween—when witches, spooks and black cats make merry. Big ones or wee ones will love a party that mingles what's best in October with the spookiest of what's Halloween.

Pretty up with a party and give your spirits a lift with traditional food that's easy on purse strings, a hit with the party-goers. Decorations can be nature's own, a pumpkin or two whole or cut into a jolly face lit with candle glow, squash and apples banked with deep yellow, brown or red leaves, bowls of apples, grapes, popcorn and spicy drinks.

Let the children paste black cats, owls and witches onto mugs and invitations inviting guests to come as their favorite spook be it an owl, witch astride a broomstick, or a slinking cat.

Have a good hot dish if you are having the Halloween party indoors—something fixed in advance that you can put in the oven to get warm, slip out in a hurry to get to the table like tuna fish souffle, cheese fondue, macaroni and cheese with broiled bacon slices, or a hamburger roast.

Outdoor plans may include a wienie roast, with the children participating at the outdoor fireplace or grill. If you prefer hamburgers, fix the patties indoors with their seasonings, wrap in wax ready for broiling. Wienies require thorough washing.

Construct a simple grill outdoors for roasting wienies if you aren't lucky enough to have a brick grill. This will take a lot of the rough-house outdoors and save wear and tear on your house. Games will most likely be outdoors if it isn't too cold as the revelers will want to roam with spirits and ghosts.

Few foods equal the deliciousness of wienies roasted over the flames on forks or sticks fashioned from branches, depending on your degree of going in for naturalness.

Plenty of long buns, already split indoors before the party and heaped high in a basket, are indicated. They're best when toasted—with lots of butter, mustard, relish, catsup or homemade chili sauce as accompaniments for wienies roasted to doneness with a taste of smoke and ashes.

If you go in for toasting marshmallows along with wienies, try them rolled in coconut just for a taste of something different. They're really good!

You can't have enough hot foods as the weather is bound to be on the crisp and chilly side. There will

LYNN SAYS:

The Score Card: Corner your share of these food bargains during the next few weeks: Cabbage, apples, piums, peats, green peppers, lima beans and cauliflower. The well-dressed table will also wear eggs, chicken and cheddar cheese not only for variety but also economy.

Style your table with carrots, potatoes, turnip greens, beets and beet tops, mustard, spinach. Good for you, and perfect with most other foods in the meal.

Standardized bottles have been ordered for wines, jellies and preserves. Home-canning jars are not affected in this order of the War Production board.

Variety notes: if you don't have porthouse as often, you can have excellent dishes from lesser known cuts of meat such as liver, kidneys, heart, sweetbreads and tongue.

be cheers from the boisterous and ahs from the more conservative if you serve this golden, pineapple drink with a suspicion of spice. The vitamins B1 and C in the pineapple won't permit any let-down in morale and pep.

- Mulled Pineapple Juice. (Serves 4-6)
1 inch stick-of cinnamon whole cloves teaspoon cloves
quart canned, unsweetened Hawaiian pineapple juice
Finch of salt
Tie the spices in a small piece of cheesecloth, add them to the pineapple juice, and bring to the boiling point, but do not boil. Add salt. Serve immediately.

Gingerbread wears a party air if you decorate the tops with a frosting outline of a Halloween symbol after it is cut into slices. Here's a recipe for gingerbread that's light as down and exquisitely fragrant with spices in correct proportions:

- Gingerbread.
cup shortening
cup brown sugar
cup light molasses
cup boiling water
1 beaten egg cups flour
teaspoon salt
teaspoon soda
teaspoon ginger teaspoon cinnamon

Pour water over shortening and add sugar, molasses and egg. Beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients, beat until smooth. Bake in a waxed-paper-lined square pan in a moderate (350-degree) oven. Cool in pan.

If it's doughnuts you've a liking for, I'd suggest the kind made with sour cream or milk. They have a lightness of a feather that is the criterion for a "sinker."

- Sour Milk Doughnuts. (Makes 2 dozen)
3 cups flour
cup sugar
1 tablespoon melted shortening
teaspoon soda
2 eggs
teaspoon salt
teaspoon nutmeg cup sour milk

Sift flour, sugar, nutmeg and salt. Dissolve soda in sour milk. Beat eggs well and add milk to eggs. Add to dry ingredients, then mix in melted shortening. Roll out and cut with a doughnut cutter. Fry in deep hot fat (360-370 degrees F.) until golden brown. Drain on brown paper.

Fun's in store for the youngsters if you let them polish off the party with these old-fashioned, sugar saving popcorn balls:

- Taffy Popcorn.
4 cups popped corn
2 cups shelled peanuts cup molasses
cup sugar
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon vinegar cup water
teaspoon soda

Mix molasses, sugar, butter, water and vinegar. Cook slowly and without stirring until the crack stage is reached. Add soda and stir well. Add remaining ingredients and mix well before pouring into shallow, well-greased pans. When cold, cut into bars or squares.
