TRUE STORIES OF WEST TEXANS

By N. H. Kincaid (Copyrighted)

The men about the chuck wagon were relaxed but their faces still bore signs of fatigue. Their mission had been completed and the 3,000 steers marketed in Abilene, Kansas; the badlands had again been traversed and they were back on Texas soil. From here on home they could take it easier.

A they refilled their coffee cups and grouped themselves in a casual semi-circle about the low fire, the new look-out rode off to his post.

The conversation turned, as usual, to their own northern drive. Its full flavor unappreciated in the midst of the sweat and dust and stampedes, was now muffled over.

But gradually quiet prevailed, an dither thought swerved homeward. It would be good to be back again with some hard cash in their pockets! This was in 1870; money could surely be used in war depleted Texas!

The boss of the outfit patted his pocket fondly. This trip meant much to him. He had come out of the Civil war a captain and with a shoulder wounded at Chickamauga. And no money nor business. All that Texas had was cattle -- and no home market. So he had talked several friends into trusting him with some of the heaves and another into staking him with purchasing some of his own, and had them set out for the railroad in Kansas. And his gamble had paid off well.

The hand on the pocket suddenly contracted and dived inside. Other pockets were searched frantically but to no avail. His wallet was gone. And gone, too, was the peace around the camp fire that night. Each cow hand took up the search, but it was finally agreed that the wallet, with the hopes of a man's future tucked inside, was surely lost.

"When do you remember having had it last?" someone asked, and the young captain sat down to collect his whirling thoughts. I know that I had it this morning just before we broke camp," he decided; and he hadn't had it since. Already he was starting for the remuda and a few seconds later he rode off in the moonlight.

He was glad that they had dwelled today and covered less territory but if his wallet had been lost on the trail, it had probably been cut to shreds by that herd that had passed this morning.

In the murky light of dawn he rode up to the charred remains of last night's cookfire. An old cow stood nearby chewing her cud at that time of morning. As he looked, she lowered her head. And there at her feet lay his lost wallet.

His spring from the horse was in stantaneous and he reached the wallet just as her grasping tongue was encircling it. But a sad looking object it was! Only half of it was there; it had been bitten in two, and the other half swallowed.

Claiborne W. Merchant, future cattle baorn and "father" of both Abilene and Amarillo, stood looking at those sawed off halves of many hundred dollar bills. And a smile wreathed his face. Their serial numbers were intact.

Drive Is Set To Secure Fire Truck

Fire Boys Give $400 Themselves To Start Drive

In a proclamation, Mayor Ross Stark has designated the week of August 4th to 11th as "A New Fire Truck for O'Donnell Week" and during that week members of the O'Donnell Fire Department will contact residents and property owners for donations to be used toward purchase of the needed equipment. At a recent meeting of the Fire Department members pledged and raised among themselves more than $400 toward a new truck.

The truck now in use was purchased in 1926, and altho still in use, many of the vital working parts have been patched and substituted as parts for that model are not available. Several times the fire men have experienced trouble in starting the truck, and the group are prepared to pull the truck to a fire by towing with a car.

According to City officials, the City of O'Donnell is responsible financially for the City Fire Department, and the purchase of a new fire truck is high on the agenda of the City's plans, but it will be some time in 1948 before the City can be obligated for this needed improvement. By universal donations, a few dollars on the part of those who feel they are benefiting from our unusually good fire record, the town can assure of more complete protection before the fire hazards of a busy fall season.

The funds collected by the Fire Boys themselves, and that donated by the public will not be used other than purchase of physical equipment. In addition the Fire Department is scheduling a series of entertainment projects for the fall to raise money.

A local insurance agent, Mr. Clayton, figures we are saving 40 per cent on what we pay in insurance premiums over some neighboring towns not enjoying our fire record. Also the money donated is deductible item from income tax returns. When your Fire Boys contact you in the drive, give them your attention as their only interest is in better protecting your property and your lives.

Closing out -- life preservers jackets -- fine for sportsmen -- protect you from drowning. Price for immediate sale. H. and S.

THESE ARE THE DAYS WHEN MY ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR PROVES ITS WORTH

These are the days when the reserve power that is built into every electric refrigerator really proves its worth. When temperatures stay around a normal figure, your electric refrigerator practically coasts along, maintaining proper box temperatures easily. When hot days like we've been having come along, there is ample reserve power available in your electric refrigerator to cope with the situation automatically. All that happens is that its motor runs more often and a little longer at a time. Your electric refrigerator, by keeping perishable foods fresh and wholesome for long periods of time, has been a money-saver for you from the very first day you owned it. To make sure that you continue to benefit from this saving, take good care of it--it's an investment that pays real dividends.

Communists Await Depression in U.S.

Reds See Nation's Economy Gravitating Toward Disaster

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—There are a good many ways to judge the moods of official Washington. Sometimes you can assay them the moment you read the latest statement of the bureau of labor statistics. Sometimes you can interpret them in terms of the number of press and radio conferences that are NOT cancelled, or the number of presidential or cabinet fishing trips that are scheduled. Sometimes you can read the story in the Congressional Record or the Gallup poll.

But in recent times one of the best barometers of Washington emotions (some of my deep-dishers tell me) is the facial and/or oral expressions of the professional Communists who inhabit the carefree District of Columbia.

To help you understand the above somewhat un-understandable statement, let me refresh your memory concerning the Kremlin's most cherished desire. That dearest wish, as you know, is a great, big all-out replica of the depression of 1929 for the United States.

Let's step for a moment into the sanctum sanctorum of the Soviet Union, to the apartment of Josef Vissarionovich Djugashvili, alias Marshal Stalin.

The following is an excerpt from the official transcript of a conversation between Harold Stassen of Minnesota and Josef Stalin of Georgia, U.S.S.R., not Georgia, U.S.A.:

Stassen: Our problem now is to see to it that we do not have a depression, an economic crisis.

Stalin: Do you expect a crisis?

Stassen: I do not... with wise policies... we can avoid a crisis...

Stalin: Do American industries have a lot of orders? Is that true? And that American factories can't keep pace with them and that all factories are running 100 per cent? Is that true?

Stassen: Yes, substantially, but they are largely domestic orders...

Stalin: But that is the most important... magazine analysts and the American press carry open reports to the effect that an economic crisis will break out.

Stassen: The problem is one of... stabilizing without having an economic crisis...

Stalin: But what about business men? Will they be prepared to be regulated and re-strained?

Stassen: No, some will have objections.

Stalin: Yes, they do.

That is a verbatim record with omissions which do not affect the context. They reveal Stalin's keen interest in our domestic economy and any prospective depression in that economy.

The conversation took place in the Kremlin on April 9 of this year. A friend of mine, a financial expert met a Communist acquaintance who was bubbling over with joy. The reason for his glee? The fact that he foresaw a real depression for the United States. Later the financial man again met the Communist, informed him he was sorry to hurt his feelings, but that there was going to be only a mild recession which would serve to check the boom. No bust would follow.

That was the opinion of most of the experts—government, industry and labor—at that time. The whole country, despite the fact that business was booming, seemed to be aware of the dangers of inflation. Furthermore, people were in the mood to check extravagances (for example, the Newburyport and other price-cutting experiments) It appeared there would be a slight recession, that it would relieve the labor tension and encourage more efficiency on the part of workers and management. Also, it would adjust inventories, bring down real estate prices so that people could buy homes, reduce the cost of living, and in general, take the wind out of the sails of a boom that might be followed by a bust. That was in April.

Well along about the middle of July, the Communist ran into the financial expert again. Again the Communist was smiling.

"Well," he leered happily, "where's your mild recession that was going to take the wind out of the sails of boom-and-bust?"

He sniffed the breeze blowing off the Potomac a couple of times and added (as if he had caught the scent of attar of roses): "Smells a lot like 1929 to me."

The Communist went on, obviously enjoying himself: "John Lewis got the biggest wage settlement in his history. Didn't you say wage increases were inflationary? What are the other labor leaders going to do? Didn't I hear something about an increase in the price of steel as well as coal? And what about the other side—more loose change in people's pockets? Congress talked about letting the boys have cash for their terminal leave bonds? That wouldn't do much to pull down prices and releasing credit controls on installment buying. And the railroads saying they can't pay their coal bills without a freight rate increase. Congress tried twice to cut taxes too, right where it would do high prices the most good. Where," he asked again, "where's this recession, and all the serious thought about checking a boom?"

With that, the Communist walked off, chucking in his beard. My financial expert admitted he couldn't answer him.

"It's this way," he said to me afterward, "people feel about inflation the way they felt about sin. Everybody is against it—but they want to get theirs."

'Fanciers' Fancy Fancier Bantams

I (or to be honest, my wife) have recently acquired three new bantams for our flock. Elmer, the proud cock-of-the-walk, and his two "tunes," Clementine and Adeline.

Bantam raising is a real industry in the United States. Among my acquaintances, most people raise bantams for pets. Elmer, Clementine and Adeline had hardly gotten out of their crate which brought them all the way from Iowa to Florida where they are now ensconced, before the ladies were leaping up on my wife's arm and eating a piece of bread right out of her mouth.

The industry breeds the birds for exhibition and fancier sale.

Greek Warfare Flares; Flood Curbs Advocated

The United Nations security council, which has yet to meet a tough problem head-on and overcome it, rejected an American appeal for an emergency debate on the Balkan situation, despite reports of increasing strife in Greece.

When Herschel V. Johnson, deputy U. S. delegate, warned that the crisis developing in Greece "may burst into explosion any day," Andrei Gromyko, Soviet delegate, protested that an emergency debate on the issue was unnecessary and France added that the United Nations "must not act too hastily."

However, the council did schedule two special meetings in response to an American request to speed up the discussion of trouble in southeastern Europe. Russia objected to this, too, charging that the U. S. was attempting to "prove that an extraordinary situation had been created in Greece."

Main U. S. proposal for working out the difficulty in Greece calls for

Yanks Are Coming
The conservative Athens newspaper Elinikon Alma has reported on "excellent" authority that United States troops will aid Greece halt further invasions such as the one government forces now are fighting. The newspaper quoted an American spokesman as saying, "The United States are decided to contribute to the safeguard of Greek freedom and independence, even with American armed forces."

establishment of a powerful 11-nation border patrol with authority to scout both sides of the borders separating Greece from the Communist-dominated countries of Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania.

War Again
As additional troops were sent up to reinforce both the invading leftist guerrillas and the Greek government forces, the swiftly developing battle in the rugged heights of northern Greece began to take on a cast reminiscent of the Spanish civil war.

The war ministry disclosed that six strong guerrilla units had been concentrated along the Albanian and Yugoslav frontiers of Greece and that all were poised to join the original invasion force of 2,000 which government troops had so far been able to repel.

Napoleon Zervas, defense minister

ter, told a press conference at Ioannina that several of 20 prisoners taken by the defenders were unable to speak Greek and wore the Red Star insignia of the Soviet Union.

In the meantime, a war department announcement said that one invading force of 2,000 had been gripped in a pincers nine miles from Albania and that a battle of annihilation was in progress. A second column was halted in its drive toward Ioannina and surrounded by the government troops.

FLOOD CONTROL: 10-Year Program

Termining the problem of "desperate urgency," President Truman, in a special message to congress, proposed that a swift start be made on a 10-year, 250 million dollar program to control floods in the entire Mississippi basin and change the character of the river from a destructive giant to a productive force.

He strongly implied that the present congress should undertake the immense, long-range task before its adjournment. A number of senators immediately threw their support behind the President's proposal.

In general, the construction program as outlined by Mr. Truman would provide a coordinated system of storage reservoirs in all the major tributary basins of the Mississippi, coupled with levees, flood-walls and diversion channels to protect cities, towns and farms in those basins.

Also, he proposed that soil conservation measures be put into effect farther up-river on the tributaries of each major basin in order to retard the flow and run-off of waters from heavy rains and reduce topsoil loss.

RACKET: Training Hit

Dr. Allan Bates, a Chicago scientist, testified before a house armed services sub-committee that universal military training has become "a vicious political racket" and will be "a horrible cancer on the United States."

He cited the fate of European nations in the last war, declaring that despite assurances from their top army leaders that universal training would safeguard them from invasion they all fell before the Nazi blitzkrieg.

As an alternative to universal military training, Bates said the United States should concentrate on a strong striking force, a large air force, strong reserves and a well organized national guard, all backed by adequate scientific and industrial research.

nese military occupation. The estimated increase in sugar production in the United States would place the 1947 crop at 2.2 million tons, of which about 1.7 million would be beet sugar and the remaining cane. Last year this country produced 1.76 million tons of both beet and cane sugar, which was about 200,000 tons below an average crop.

With supplies of cane and beet sugar now adequate to supply all demands by housewives, demands for other sweeteners are expected to decline. These sweeteners, many of which were used in war time as substitutes for sugar, include corn sugar and sirup, maple sugar and sirup, honey, cane sirup, sorgo sirup, and molasses.

Chaplain Gives 'Words of Wisdom'

WHEN the Republicans reorganized the senate, they ousted the Democratic chaplain, the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, and replaced him with the Rev. Peter Marshall. However, it appears that Mr. Marshall does not entirely agree with his Republican friends regarding labor. For the tall, sedate clergyman delivered a broad-gauged talk at the New York Avenue Presbyterian church recently on labor, soil conservation and various problems on which the GOP congress has frowned.

"I am not suggesting that the whole responsibility for labor unrest lies upon employers," said Mr. Marshall, "but I do say without any fear of contradiction that where employers are God-guided men... and where they are willing to run their businesses as Christ would run them, then I say that labor troubles would vanish."

Touching on the question of reclamation and soil conservation, both drastically cut by GOP leaders, the senate chaplain said that soil erosion alone destroys 300,000 acres of land annually, equivalent to "dumping into the ocean each year 1,875 farms of 160 acres each."

Wonder what GOP leaders who put Mr. Marshall in office would say if he should open the august senate one day with similar words of wisdom?

News Item: "Congress to Adjourn for Vacation." Hmmm. Whoever heard of a vacation after a picnic? ... The Soviets do not want to change our U. S. They just want to add their S. R. ... Most everyone has some ridiculous theory about those "flying saucers." Ackchelly, they are the mates to the famous Dish That Ran Away With the Spoon and became a fugitive from a chain-cafeteria charging tall prices. ... Best line on the flying saucers, we think, was: "Anyone who tells you that he has seen flying saucers must have been in his cups!"

They were squatting on two different mountain tops holding a conversation by throwing up smoke signals. ... Their repartee was baited by the first atomic bomb which, as you probably know, sent up a lotta smoke. ... To which one Innu flipped: "I wish I had said THAT!"

Russian Obstruction Now Open

GENERAL MARSHALL appears to his friends to have been worried lately. So is all the state department crowd. The Paris conference confirmed the worst about the Soviets. Not only are they against peace; they are opposed to restoring stability. They are against the Western powers even aiding Europe further. Officially, they have presented this deliberate position. Consequently nearly everyone now realizes Russia has become bolder in promoting a not very subtle revolution to establish world communism. They will block anything which interferes, and cooperate only with ventures furthering their revolutionary cause.

This projects a somewhat new field for diplomatic operations. Marshall seems to want to let things develop to see what is necessary, and then to do it, without any preconceived fastidious or isolated notions that it should be done thus or so, and only he can do it. Consequently new policies like the Ruhr restoration are developing slowly and carefully.

No one here really knows anything to do about the open Communist obstructionist revolution, except this: War is unthinkable. You cannot appease a revolution. You cannot even appease a Communist, except by destroying yourself for him.

Outlook for Farm Measures

THE BEST GUESS here in Washington is that with full pressure of the farm organizations turned on a white heat, the senate will restore most of the cuts made in agriculture department appropriations. It is expected that the full amount of 267 million dollars for soil conservation will be restored; that the school lunch program will be hiked from 45 to 75 million dollars and further that for farm surplus disposal the full amount asked, 48 million dollars, will be restored. If the house finally agrees to this restoration in conference, the agriculture bill will go to the President with only an approximate 15 per cent cut instead of 40 per cent, as it came from the house.

Although wool represents only something like 3 per cent or less of the American farm production, the wool bill stands out from all other farm measures in distorted proportion. This is because of the fact that it was in direct opposition to our announced reciprocal trade policy in that it boosted the import duties upon wool from Australia and other countries.

Since its modification, however, leaving impost of duties or import quotas to discretion of the President, the bill resumes more or less its original objective form—namely to support price of American wool and to aid in liquidation of U. S. wool stocks. GOP leaders say that Presidential veto of the act would be an admission that Mr. Truman does not expect to be president after 1948.

WRIGHT PATTERSON

Climax of World War I Event

IT WAS in the late summer of 1918, just before the close of World War I, that I was walking on the Strand in London with a member of the British nobility. Two British Tommies came toward us and we stepped off the narrow walk to perand them to pass. "That," I said to His Lordship, "is illustrative of England of the future. The commentators, who do the fighting in defense of the nation, have learned they are of equal, or superior, importance to those with titles of nobility. That incident was evidence of a new spirit abroad in your land." The present British government is the climax of such incidents.

'TRUST'

By MAURICE GRASHIN

Eddie Martin escaped! The prison siren screamed—birds fine-combed the surrounding country—every law agency in the nation went into action. Get Eddie Martin!

Meanwhile the notorious criminal is riding under the belly of the destruction dump truck that had taken him through the prison east side.

By his fingers and toes he clung to the bottom of the bumping truck until the driver had parked it for the night in the company yard. Only after dark did he venture from his cramped position.

He wormed his way into the workmen's locker room, and speedily changed his prison clothes for a dark outfit. He pulled the cap down over his eyes, wrapped his fist around a heavy iron bar, and was ready to travel.

Via alleys and side streets he reached the city limits. He avoided the highway and headed across the creek, and waded across. They'd never get him now. He almost ran the remaining mile to the deserted back that would give him needed refuge.

As he hurried, he remembered the many times it had given him refuge. When he was a youngster, and his folks lived on the ranch, he and his older brother, Dan, played "cops and robbers." Even at that time he had insisted on being the robber. Dan was satisfied to be a cop. For a long time he had used the shed at the far end of the ranch as his make-believe hide-out; and Dan would not find him. Then one day he found his hiding-place, and the fun was over.

But that had happened when he was ten years old and only playing a game. The government paid five thousand dollars reward for him after his last bank job. It would double that amount to get him back. He felt quite proud—he had gone since he was a "play-robber."

A short distance from the shed he stopped and listened. Nobody was going to outsmart him. Satisfied that he was alone, he moved to the back.

The door was locked, the windows boarded just as he left them. With his iron bar he forced the creaky door on its squeaky hinges. Field mice scurried outside, birds flew haphazardly from the eaves. He bolted the door, and crossed to the rear of the room. On his knees he impatiently brushed aside the cobwebs, and pried loose several floor boards. He reached down, grasped the chain handle of a small trunk, and pulled it to the floor.

First he took out a flashlight, and directed the glare over the other contents of the chest. He laughed loudly, triumphantly. Everything was ship-shape—just as he had planted it three months ago. There was the box with the ten thousand dollars. Here was his gun, wrapped in felt. There were cartridges and stuff to clean the revolver in case it got rusty. And he had a complete change of clothes.

He could not miss! He had brains. That's why, when he got twenty-five thousand bucks from the last stick-up, he had only tried to get away with fifteen—he put the balance in the trunk with the gat and other gear. He had cached them just in case his plans went wrong, and he failed to get out of the country. Well, they did go wrong. He had trusted a guy, and gave him five grand to help his getaway. His "pal" had not only taken his money but squealed on him, and got the reward, too. But now he was in the same spot with the same amount of dough, only this time he could not fail, because he trusted nobody.

Alone in the dark, he got to thinking—and whenever it was dark, and he was alone, he thought of his mother. He liked Mom, not because of what she was to him, but because of the many favors she had done for him. He remembered how she used to battle the neighborhood hoodlums to save him from a beating. She was always looking out for his good. Yes, sir, Mom was all right.

He stretched out, and fell into a peaceful sleep. Two hours later, he awoke, frightened! He shook with fear as he grabbed his gun.

A voice called hurriedly, "Eddie, Eddie!"

It was his brother. He did not answer. Dan called again, "Eddie, I must see you!"

Eddie let him in, then slammed the door and bolted it. He jabbed the revolver into his brother's ribs. "You're still playing cops and robbers. But you'll never live to collect my reward."

Dan regarded him coldly. "Mom wants to see you."

The savage tenseness faded from Eddie's face. "No kiddin'? After all that bunk they printed about me?"

"She doesn't know anything about you," answered Dan. "She hasn't been able to read for six years. I made up stories, instead of reading what was there."

"Thanks, Dan, I sure wish I could see her—but it's impossible right now."

"She's very sick."

"No!"

"It's your last chance to see her alive."

"I'll go."

He changed quickly into his good clothes. He stuffed the gun and cartridges into his pockets, and carried the money container under his arm. At the door he stopped.

"Listen, Dan, even though we're brothers, we never had any love for each other. If this is your trick to turn me in, I'll get you if it's the last thing I do."

Dan shook his head in sympathy. "Don't you trust anybody?"

"Only me—and Mom. Let's go."

In Dan's car they raced for home. Midway they ran into a heavy storm. Rain flooded the windshield faster than the wiper could clear it. Thunder boomed and lightning lit the countryside.

The storm was at its height when they stopped in front of a little white cottage. Dan jumped out of the car and ran to the house. Eddie followed. A flash of lightning, and Eddie turned to see a police car skidding to the curb.

Eddie pushed Dan inside and threw the door shut. He whipped out his gun, and leveled it at his brother.

"I told you I'd get you!"

"But, Eddie," frantically pleaded Dan, "I didn't—"

A crash of thunder drowned out the revolver shots. Dan fell dead. The officers were right outside. Eddie was a caged rat. He yanked open a door. His mother was lying in bed.

"Edward—Edward!" she called weakly.

He glanced at the window—it was blocked by police. He had no chance to escape. He held the gun behind him.

"Hello, Mom," he said.

"I'm so glad you're here," she told him. "Are you all right?"

"Sure, Mom, I'm swell."

She sighed in relief.

"I've had a dreadful feeling you were in danger," she said, "I even telephoned the police to protect you!"

Limed Litter Helps Improve Hens' Health

Built-Up System Also Benefits Baby Chicks

By W. J. DRYDEN

Not only as a means of saving on the cost of litter material as well as on labor, but also as a coccidiosis control measure, authorities now recommend that litter be left in the brooder and laying house for a year or more.

When the litter is treated with hydrated lime little danger from disease will result. By using the built-up litter method, the poultry house receives additional insulation, resulting in drier litter and more uniform temperature. Extensive tests at Ohio and Washington State colleges have proven the value of this system of litter management. When the built-up method is employed, the litter is first put in at two to three inches deep, to which one pound of hydrated lime is added to each five square feet of floor space. When the litter begins to pack, another layer of litter as well as application of lime is added. This may be repeated as needed. When the litter is stirred with a fork and sticks together in clumps, or if the hens can't move it when scratching, more lime should be added. Less lime will be needed if feed hoppers and other equipment is moved occasionally.

Healthy poultry can be kept on litter left in houses for a year or more.

When deep litter is used, a greater amount of lime may be advisable. This system, in fact no system, will be satisfactory in damp weather, unless the house is well built and land well drained.

'Green Manure' Crops

"Green manure" is vital to soil rebuilding and higher crop yields that come from a crop of legumes, as shown by accompanying chart.

To compare the organic matter and nitrogen various legumes produce through their tops and roots, tests were made at Joliet soil experiment field. Plots of white blossom sweet clover, alfalfa and red clover were seeded in oats May 1. Samples of tops and roots were collected November 1. Results showed that white blossom sweet clover produced considerably more organic matter and nitrogen in the fall of the first year than the other legumes. Sweet clover is a superior green manure crop because of its growth in the fall and its high percentage of nitrogen in the spring of the second year. This greater fall growth the first year is due to the fact that sweet clover does not bloom, but continues growth until freezing weather. Alfalfa and red clover frequently will bloom in the fall of the first year. Vegetative growth stops with the blooming.

Practical Control of Brucellosis in Swine

The following program for control of brucellosis in swine should prove effective. Blood test breeding stock, segregation of infected breeding stock, blood test the prospective gilts and boars frequently and up to and during the first pregnancy, removing reactors and breed only negative gilts to clean boars.

Ammate or 2,4-D Will Knock Out Poison Ivy

Poison ivy now can be killed with either of the two new chemicals, ammate or 2,4-D. If ammate is used as a spray, dissolve it in water at the rate of one pound to the gallon. Spray when the ivy is in full leaf so that the largest possible amount of surface will be covered, but spray on a cool, cloudy day when there is little chance of rain for 10 hours. Cover plants well so that they are soaked.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Wisdom and Understanding For Our Daily Living

LESSON TEXT FOR JULY 27—Proverbs 1:1-5; 3:13-18; 9:9, 10; James 1:5.

MEMORY SELECTION—Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom; and with all thy getting get understanding.—Proverbs 4:7.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Of The Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

EDUCATION is so widespread in our day, and so eagerly sought after, that one might assume that the world would soon solve its problems through the cultural attainments of its people.

Why this is not true appears clearly in our lesson; for it is wisdom that the world needs, and wisdom is quite different from the understanding or memorizing of a mass of facts.

Wisdom teaches us how to use knowledge effectively for the glory of God. We see in our lesson:

I. The Meaning of Wisdom (Prov. 1:1-5).

PROVERBS are pithy, useful sayings, which gather up the wisdom of a people in easily remembered form. They are highly thought of in all nations, but reached their highest development among the Hebrews, because they rightly insisted that they must be related to God and worship of him.

We learn in this passage that they are given to us that we may "know" that we have both wisdom and instruction. The growth of knowledge is always a prerequisite to growth in grace—learn more about God and his precious Word, and you will have more of his grace upon you.

Knowledge must be coupled with discernment (v. 2), which speaks of going beyond and below the surface meaning. This will not be an abstract love of the scholarly, but a practical application of truth to life (v. 3). Wisdom results in right living and proper dealing with our neighbors.

The one who has come to this place is ready to give (v. 4) help to others, especially to the young or those of "simple" thinking, who have not yet reached the place where they can get hold of such things for themselves.

Notice that the wise man does not stop at that point, but because he is wise he goes on to more and more understandings, to further receiving and giving out of "sound counsels" (v. 5).

II. The Value of Wisdom (Prov. 3:13-18).

THE character of a man shows up in the things he holds to be valuable. Some cannot see beyond gold and silver. Others seek comfort and convenience, and do not wish to be disturbed in their easy ways.

The wise man knows that for real pleasure of the highest type, for peace of mind and heart, for riches that will last and not bring him into either sin or sorrow, there is nothing like the cultivation of understanding and wisdom.

This scripture affords us the opportunity to say a needed word to young people who are being so sorely tempted these days to forego their opportunities for an education, and to rush out into the world to make money, more money, yes, the most possible money.

Education seems to be unnecessary, a waste of time and effort. But wait, the years will come and go, and then when it is too late, the realization will come that a golden opportunity was missed, and that doors of usefulness and effectiveness are now closed.

It pays to give time to the cultivation of the mind and of the heart in preparation for life. We are not thinking primarily of the dollars and cents value now, for that is secondary, even though it may be important.

III. The Source of Wisdom (Prov. 9:9, 10; James 1:5).

GOD is the source of wisdom, and it is as a man fears him that he becomes wise. The fear of God is not a matter of fright or terror, but rather a genuine concern that one may do his will and never fail to be obedient to his guidance.

God is always more ready to give than we are to receive. He will not turn us aside, or belittle our efforts; but will, if we ask, give wisdom, and that in no little measure.

Let no man think that he can attain unto true wisdom apart from a right relationship to God. He may have knowledge, but not wisdom. On the other hand, let no man who knows God and serves him go through life lacking wisdom when all he has to do is to ask it of his heavenly Father. Why be poverty-stricken when you can be rich in wisdom and understanding?

TRUE STORIES OF WEST TEXANS

By N. H. Kincaid
 (Copyrighted)

THE LAST STRAW

The five cowhands gazed at the decrepid chuck wagon with a baffled look on their dust seamed faces. That it should fall them, and this so close to their goal, seemed incredible.

The drive itself had been undertaken on a shestring by this handful of fool hardy kids. The boss was a youngster of sixteen, who because of his age, had been refused admittance into the Confederate army the previous year, 1862. So he had left Missouri for Texas and there launched himself into the cattle business. Buying a herd of about 500 steers at 75 cents around, and that on credit, and hiring five cowboy friends at forty dollars, also on credit, with promises to pay only in the event they made a profit on the cattle, they then headed for Sedalia, Missouri.

In lieu of a chuck wagon their provisions were carried on a pack mule until they reached Denton County, Texas, where young boss Jim had friends. After a yoke of oxen and old tar bucket wagon were brought and it was stocked with provisions for the trip;
 Jim had one dollar and fifteen cents left.

"But shucks!", he told his cowhands, "What more expense could there be! We have our provisions and our equipment, and we won't hit a town until we get there!" And with the sublime confidence of youth their long four months' trek began.

They had fought the hardships and endured the elements, which varied from thunder storms to drought, and had traversed the bad lands to within thirty miles of Ft.
 Scott, Kansas, their new goal. And now their chuck wagon, which had been crying in protest of the hot,
 dry weather for days, had buckled.
 The rims would not stay on and the wheels were coming apart. Jim wondered of this was the last straw.
 Certainly he felt more discouraged than at any previous time. He wished that he could just chuck the whole business and go home!

"Shucks, this old wagon is still pretty good -- if we could just keep the wheels together," a cowhand decided, inspecting the crippled vehicle.

Jim's lips tightened. He could not let fellows like that down! And he sides, he wasn't any quitter, either.

"All right, you two," he said briskly. "Ride back and skin that steer we left dead from the drouth this morning. We will keep these rims wrapped on with rawhide, Ft.
 Scott or bust."

The other took up the chant and two days later Jim Daughty, future owner of the 800,000 acre Figure 2 ranch near Van Horn, Texas, lead his heard into the shipping pens of Ft. Scott, Kansas.

Plastic Diaper Cover Cuts Baby's Washing

HOME-MADE plastic diaper covers fashioned out of the same kind of material used in shower curtains can save young mothers an endless amount of washing, Mrs.
 Robert C. Miller points out in Capper's Farmer, a leading farm magazine.

Mrs. Miller says that before she thought of this idea, that everything in her young son Cleo's bed had to be changed almost as often as his diaper.

"I tried rubber pants," she writes, "but they cut his fat little legs."

"So I bought three-fourths yard of plastic material. The 40 inch fabric was cut in half lengthwise.
 Each 20 x 27 inch piece was doubled to a 20 x 13 1/2 size and sewed together at the edge opposite the fold.

 The narrow seam was turned to the inside. Then a three-quarter inch hem was stitched at each end.
 Through these turn-downs I threaded cotton tape.

"Each of the two finished articles measured about 13 inches wide and 18 1/2 inches long. After I pin the diaper on the baby, I put the cover on and tie at each side. The material is soft and folds between the legs. The extra width is gathered in at the top by the draw-strings. The covering is no more binding than the diaper; yet it keeps his sleepers and bed dry at night and his rompers clean during the day."

This simple device, writes Mrs.
 Miller, has greatly reduced washing.

KNOW YOUR BREED New Hampshires By W. J. DRYDEN

Progenitors of the present-day New Hampshire were among some of the farm flocks of "Red" chickens in New Hampshire 35 to 40 years ago. In selecting the standard New Hampshire, freedom from pullorum disease, rapid growth, rapid feathering and egg quality were considered equally with type and color.

New Hampshire male at Oklahoma contest.

The ideal male is rich brilliant reddish bay in hackle and saddle, brilliant deep chestnut red on wing, bow and back, and medium chestnut red on breast and other sections. The female is medium chestnut red throughout. A pullet will weigh 5½ pounds; hen, 6½ pounds; cockerel, 7½ pounds, and cock, 8½ pounds.

Disposal Incinerator

An incinerator for disposal of dead birds, poultry, turkeys and animals or birds that might be carriers of disease may be constructed from an old metal barrel. Iron rods are run through the barrel six or eight inches above, and parallel to the bottom to serve as a grill. Holes are cut below the grill for draft. This incinerator is considered a must by Clemson Agriculture college.

Spraying Cattle for Flies Improves Herd

For spraying cattle, Purdue entomologists recommend the use of 50 per cent DDT wettable powder mixed with water at the rate of two pounds in five gallons. It is applied at the rate of one quart per animal, and three or four applications each season at about three week intervals or as needed are recommended. A three gallon compressed air sprayer or larger equipment is suggested for the job.

Fruit tree damage from sun scald or blister can be cut down by wrapping the tree trunks.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—a risk of exposure and infection—often causes heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become tired and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling, feel constantly nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are some-thing burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Dr. Doan's Pills, Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body wastes. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Can Your Most Luscious Fruit (See recipe below.)

Fruit Preserving
 This is the year many women have waited for—the year when they could obtain unlimited quantities of sugar to put up all the fruit in their orchards, and berries in their patches.

For many of us, it has been so long since we put up fruit in any quantity that a quick brush-up of methods is essential. As in all big undertakings, the underlying or organizational work is most important, and this can be done the day before.

The day before you begin actual canning, check on equipment to be sure that it works properly. For fruit and berry canning you will need a water bath, which may be a large kettle or broiler, fitted with a rack, and a tightly fitting cover. Or, you also may use a pressure cooker for processing, but this is not as essential for fruits as it is for vegetables.

You will need several large pans and kettles for preparing the fruit and for making the syrup. You also will need to prepare jars, checking them for cracks and imperfections, and washing them in hot soapy suds. Make certain you have enough covers or lids.

Estimating Amounts
 Although fruits and berries vary in size and moisture content, it is still possible to make some sort of estimate as to how much syrup and the number of jars you will need.

For sweet fruits, you will use a syrup made of 2 cups of sugar to 4 cups of water; for slightly acid fruit, use 2 cups of sugar to 3 cups of water; for acid fruit, 2 cups of sugar to 2 cups of water is ample. If the fruit is very acid, 2 cups of sugar to 1 cup of water is essential.

The syrup is made simply by adding the sugar to the water and boiling together for 5 minutes.

If you are canning large fruits such as peaches and pears, allow 1 pint of syrup to a quart jar of fruit. For small fruit, or berries, you will need only a half pint of syrup to the quart.

The amount of fruit usually depends upon the size, but ordinarily we count 2 pounds of fruit for the quart jar. This will aid in estimating your yield.

Method of Packing
 Some fruits and berries are hot-packed, but most women prefer using the cold pack method for preparing fruit for canning as it takes less time. If the fruit is carefully packed, there will be little floating.

Wash and clean the fruit, peeling and coring, slicing and stoning when necessary. Pack into sterile jars and attach the lid, using manufacturers' directions.

Process by placing the fruits in a boiling water bath, making certain that the water comes to two

LYNN SAYS:
Save Time, Work, Money With These Hints
 Lettuce leaves tossed into soup will absorb fat and give you less greasy soup to serve. Remove leaves as soon as they take up fat.

Before you broil bacon, steaks or chops, cut gashes in the fat. This prevents the meat from curling when it is cooked.

Bits of soap make nice jelly which is lovely to use for shampoo, or for washing lingerie, gloves, hose and other delicate things.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Our Responsibility in Influencing Family Life

LESSON TEXT FOR AUGUST 3—Proverbs 1:8, 9; 6:20-23; 17:6; 19:18; 22:6; 23:22-25.

MEMORY SELECTION—Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it.—Proverbs 22:6.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Of The Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TRUTH must be translated into living, and there is no place where it can be more effective than in the home. We will want to make much of this lesson, for it is the only one during the entire year which deals directly with the home.

The book of Proverbs, to which we were introduced last Sunday, abounds in practical advice with a definitely spiritual emphasis, a combination at once wholesome and effective. This is the first of eight lessons making application of Proverbs to the problems of modern life.

Everyone in the home has a measure of responsibility for making the family life what it ought to be. No one from the small child to the great-grandmother is without influence, and each must contribute to the welfare of the home. Our lesson reaches from the young person to the grandfather rejoicing in his children's children.

It begins quite properly with I. Youth Looking to Parents (1:8, 9; 6:20-23; 23:22-26).

YOUNG people want to be well-dressed and properly groomed. They are interested in that which adorns and improves their appearance. It is right that they should have such concern. Let us remind them, however, that a young man or woman should not only be physically well-groomed, but spiritually attractive as well. If we should give as much thought to that side of our beings as we do to our bodies, there would be wonderful improvement in the life of the individual and in the home.

The child who is properly instructed, and who is responsive to that instruction, is prepared for life no matter where it may lead him (6:22). Wherever and whenever he needs guidance, night or day, it is with him. Even when he sleeps, he is in the hand of God for blessing.

Let no young man or woman be betrayed into that awful folly of our day which neglects the teaching of parents and of the church. Disaster is ahead on that road—sure disaster, and swift!

But now look at the other side of the matter, where we see II. Parents Looking After Youth (19:18; 22:6).

THERE is a foolish idea current in our day which says that the way to rear children is to let them develop according to their own interests and instincts, without discipline or definite guidance.

The fruits of that kind of child training are now being harvested in the present crop of juvenile delinquents. We have the sad and awful proof before us that children cannot be reared that way.

We are not pleading for a return to the unduly restrictive measures of some of our forefathers; children are not helped by harshness or cruelty. But there is a proper place for definite instruction, for discipline, yes, even for chastening when that becomes necessary.

The larger part, and the most effective part, of this matter is the training of the child (22:6) and when properly done it brings forth the finest of results in later life. The boy who has been taught and directed right may get on a sidetrack for a time, but there is always the promise of a return to the right way.

This business of rearing children calls for the best any of us can put into it, and over and above that, all the grace and wisdom that God can and will give us.

We have reserved one verse for our final point, for here we find III. Age and Youth Working Together (17:6).

OLD men need encouragement, and they receive it in no richer or more satisfying measure than in the delight they take in their children's children. Young people should remember that, and not fail to give to their grandparents, as well as their parents, the full measure of their interest, and devotion.

But now note that "the glory of children are their fathers," yes, and grandfathers. How sad it is when a boy has to be ashamed of his father or one of his grandparents.

That puts on each one of us who has children a truly weighty responsibility. We must walk worthily before God, and before our children, even down to old age, when our grandchildren look to us for an example of godliness and gracious living. May God help us!
