1940 Census To Start Here April 15

Officials 3 Counties To Meet in Lamesa Next Monday

W. D. Harris Chairman Of Lynn Census

W. D. Harris of O'Donnell has been appointed to serve as the federal census chairman of Lynn county according to A. G. Boarden, Lamesa, district chairman.

The business census will be launched immediately over the county, and enumeration of residents is expected to get underway by April 1.

Assistants to Harris have not been named, as yet, but will be in the hands of Boarden, who has charge of the selections.

The business census, so Harris points out, is to secure an estimate of the business done by various firms, and he assures the owners of various businesses affected that no attempt is made, nor are questions asked, to find out "how much money" that firm is making. Expenditures are not listed on the census sheet.

The quicker the census is taken, he adds, the better for all concerned. "This morning," he says, "and we hope the speedy co-operation of everyone."

Perms, cotton gins, banks, and newspapers are among those invited to file returns, but practically every other type of business in O'Donnell will be affected, and will make returns.

Mrs. Eaurshal Franks of Cora-ca was here during the Christmas holidays, visiting with her parents and Mrs. H. C. Frost.

Burton Hackney County Attorney of Terry county and former resident of Tahoka announces for District Attorney.

Burton Hackney Announces For District Attorney

Burton Hackney, prominent Brownfield attorney, and a former resident of Tahoka, entered the race for district attorney, 106 judicial precinct, this week, and authorized the placing of his name in the announcement column of the Press.

He is now serving his second term as county attorney of Terry county. Counties comprising the 106 district are Lynn, Terry, Yoakum, Gaines and Dawson.

Mr. Hackney was born and grew to young manhood on a farm in Hopkins county. He will be thirty-three years of age next August.

He has been a resident of the 106th district for more than fourteen years, having moved to Tahoka in 1925. He attended the high school here and graduated here in 1927.

After finishing high school he accepted a position with the West Texas Gas Co., and worked for this company in Garza county for several months. For four years he worked as a clerk in dry goods stores. He got his college education at the Texas Technological College, took a law course by correspondence, and in June, 1934, was granted a license to practice law by the Supreme Court of Texas.

After receiving his license to practice, he opened a law office in Seagraves, Gaines county, where he remained until April, 1935, when he moved to Brownfield. In 1936 he made the race for county attorney of Terry county, and was elected without the necessity of a runoff. As stated, he is now serving his second term in this position.

Mr. Hackney is a married man, his wife being the former Miss Leta Torrence, who was practically reared in Tahoka. Both have many friends in this county.

Mr. Hackney says that he will make a formal statement to the voters of Lynn county through the columns of the News at a later date, and he expects to see as many of them as possible, personally, before the July election.

Former O'Donnell, Woman Dies In Lubbock

Funeral services were held at a funeral home in Lubbock Wednesday afternoon for Mrs. Felix Poppelewell 66, who died at her home in Lubbock Tuesday after a long-continued illness. She is survived by her husband, one daughter, and other relatives.

Mrs. Poppelewell was a former resident of O'Donnell. Wiley Phillips and Jeff Shook of O'Donnell being nephews. A number of O'Donnell people attended the funeral services Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Busby of Brownfield visited their parents here last weekend.

Appeals for Finns

Capt. J. F. Lucey

Appointed by former President Herbert Hoover as Texas Director of the National Finnish Relief Fund, Captain J. F. Lucey urges Texans to subscribe money to aid Finnish civilians who have been driven out of home and home by the Russian attack on their country. Thousands are freezing and starving and immediate help is necessary. Capt. J. F. Lucey was associated with Mr. Hoover during the World War in carrying American aid to the Belgians. This newspaper will be glad to accept and forward funds, giving due credit in its columns.

Huffaker In Race For County Attorney

Calvin Huffaker, Tahoka attorney, who was practically reared in this county, authorized the placing of his name in the Press' political announcement column for the office of county attorney.

Though born in Stamford, Jones county, Mr. Huffaker, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Huffaker, came to Lynn county in 1919. The family settled on their farm a few miles west of Wilson, and the boy later entered the Wilson school graduating there in 1931.

Then he entered the Texas Tech, paying his own expenses by keeping a dairy cow and selling milk. At the end of two years he began teaching. After holding a position in the Sparenberg school two years, he was elected superintendent of the McCarty school in Dawson County. At the end of that year he resigned to become superintendent of the White Flat School in Nolan county. In the meantime, he had been attending the summer sessions of the Texas Tech, where he completed the course and received his B. A. degree.

Entering the law department of the University of Texas he made his expenses by working in the furniture department of the local Sears and Roebuck store. At the end of two and a half years, he took the law examination and was admitted to the bar. That was in February, 1939. Locating in Austin, he practiced there until last August, when he opened an office here.

Mr. Huffaker was married to Miss Nina Scott of Lamesa in 1934, and they have one son, two years of age.

Mr. Huffaker is a bright, young fellow with a good grasp of the fundamentals of the law. He is well qualified and ambitious to succeed in his profession and has a very promising future. There is no question but that if elected he will make an excellent county attorney. Possessed of a pleasing personality and an affable disposition, he makes friends easily. He craves the favorable consideration of the voters and hopes to see every one of them personally during the campaign.

M'Laurin Is Candidate Re-election

Waldo McLaurin, present commissioner of precinct 3, has authorized the Press to announce his candidacy for the same office, subject to the action of the democratic primary.

Probably known to every person in the precinct, Mr. McLaurin needs no introduction, and his knowledge of both precinct and county affairs are also well known. He has tried to be fair with everyone, and to treat each action as an official to the best interests of all concerned.

Mr. McLaurin will appreciate the consideration of the voters of his candidacy during the ensuing campaign, and if elected, will continue to do his very best for the best interests of this precinct and Lynn county.

Mrs. Tunnell to be Birthday Chairman

Mrs. Lenore M. Tunnell received a request last Thursday from the state chairman of the President's Birthday celebration to act as local chairman for Lynn county.

Mrs. Tunnell accepted the nomination but has not decided what type of festivities will be held in Tahoka.

One half of the proceeds will revert back to Lynn county this year, to be put in trust for a league for the control and treatment of Infantile Paralysis, until such a league is organized.

The other half will be turned over to the national program, as in the past.

It is customary to hold a ball on the President's birthday, but that may be impossible here this year for lack of a ballroom of sufficient size.

CLEARANCE SALE IS ANNOUNCED BY HURT'S HABERDASHERY

A store-wide clearance sale of ready-to-wear for men is announced in this issue of the Press by Hurt's Haberdashery of Lamesa. The advertisement appears on another page.

Only the highest quality of merchandise is carried for sale, so Mr. Hurt says, and nothing has been reserved from sale in the way of ready-to-wear.

Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Johnson of near Lamesa were business visitors here Tuesday.

Discussion as to the best manner in which the proposed highway from O'Donnell to Welch to Seagraves may be built will be made next Monday at Lamesa when the commissioners of courts of Lynn, Dawson and Gaines county hold a three-way session.

Interested citizens of the various counties are urged to attend the meeting which will be held in the district court room, according to P. W. Good, county judge, and Waldo McLaurin, commissioner precinct 3, Lynn county. A large delegation is expected to go to Lamesa from O'Donnell.

The proposed highway, which has already been brought to the attention of the state highway department, was first broached by the local Rotary club, but is a three-county community project, and when built, will prove of benefit to all three counties.

Walter Mathis Asks For A Second Term

W. M. (Walter) Mathis, popular county clerk of Lynn county, announced his candidacy for that office this week, for a second term, and authorized the placing of his name in the Press' political column.

Mathis, who had never held public office before, was elected for his first term at the last election.

No lengthy statement was made by Mathis. He hopes to meet all the voters in the coming campaign, but until that time he merely wished to say via the Press that he has tried to make a good official, and that if elected to the office, he believes his experience, he gained in his first term, equips him to serve even better, and that he can make the citizens of Lynn a better county clerk.

Mathis has been conscientious in his work, and his co-workers praise his work.

I. H. PARKS RITES HELD DECEMBER 24

Funeral rites for I. H. Parks, longtime resident of the Draw community, later of O'Donnell, were held from the Draw First Methodist church December 24. He passed away at his home here.

Survivors include his widow, son, F. I. Parks of Welch, daughter, Mrs. Buster McMillan of O'Donnell. Eleven grandchildren also survive.

Mrs. C. L. Hafer and Mrs. E. T. Wells were shopping in Lubbock Wednesday.

THE YEARS OF THE LOCUST

One of the most eventful decades in modern history has ended. And this nation enters a new decade during which, unless all signs are wrong, its people must face and grapple with problems, issues and responsibilities of the most far-reaching character.

The 1930's will be known to the historians of the future as the years of one of the greatest and longest depressions this or any other nation ever experienced. They will be known as years of experiment, of trial and error, of the weighing of our old values and our old traditions. And they will be known too as years in which the democratic process was consistently attacked by some of those who called themselves its friends, as well as by those who were its frankly avowed enemies.

From the international point of view, the tragic '30's came to a cynically fitting end in that most ghastly and unnecessary of events—a war which embraces much of the world. In nation after nation the arts of peace have died in holy causes ever since the world we know began. It destroys those spiritual values which are at the root of all artistic, cultural and humanitarian achievement. It has been truly said that in modern war there can be no victors—there are only the vanquished. It is an ironic commentary on the times in which we live that those nations which are fighting this war in the name of threatened democracy, have been forced to use the methods of the dictators in order to meet the enemy on its own totalitarian terms.

The greatest blessing which this nation possesses today is its physical remoteness from the conflict abroad. That is a position enjoyed by no other of the world's major powers. There is profound wisdom

In the attitude of the great majority of the American people who say, in effect—"We can keep out of war—and we will keep out of war". There is no war party in this country—no responsible statesman urging our participation. We can all feel a deep and abiding thankfulness that this has never before been so important that we Americans keep our heads in order that we may also keep our liberties. For should this country become involved in war, democracy would vanish here, as swiftly and as surely as it has vanished abroad.

Turning to our own internal problems, our task is great. The gratifying improvement that has recently taken place throughout our economic structure must not be allowed to blind us to the unpleasant truth that not one of those issues which we are facing has been solved. Most of them have become more complicated and difficult. The national debt, despite the heaviest tax load in our peace-time history, has nearly reached the ten decade and will soon reach the present legal limit of $45,000,000,000. The immense expenditures for relief continue, even though business has much improved and unemployment has consequently been reduced. The agricultural situation, in spite of a long series of extremely expensive "farm relief" measures, remains tangled and unsatisfactory.

On top of that, there is still a strong clique high in government whose attitude toward business can be described only as strongly inimical. This is the group which backs any and all measures designed to put government into tax-subsidized competition with heavily taxed private enterprise—which stays awake nights thinking up new ways of saddling business with restrictive laws and punitive class taxes—which encourages labor excesses to the full, prevents stability, and to keep chaos and uncertainty in the saddle. It is a remarkable tribute to the courage and staying power of American business that it has managed to progress as much as it has when confronted with such handicaps.

Summing up, we have plenty to do at home during the years that stretch ahead. The current Congress and those which follow have their work cut out for them—but satisfactory results will be secured only if the people as a whole are awake and watchful, are conscious of their needs, are deeply aware of their American heritage and way of life. For in spite of the unproven claims of extremists, our only real progress has come from productive, employing industry, working under the American system of free enterprise which brought us from a minor power to a world power in a century and a half.

Here in America we have all that

SKETCHES
By
W. G. FORGY

We missed out on an issue of the Press last week, but if you could have seen the ice that we saw on these crazy-quilt curve, curve, curve highways in Oklahoma, you would have stayed "put", too, and would not have trusted to luck in traveling. Not only were natural hazards of the road ready to be encountered, but merry-makers who had sampled bootleg whiskey, for which Oklahoma is famous—or infamous.

Our idea of a man behind the times was the individual who tried to talk to us about the "war" Monday while we were listening to the A & M - Tulane football game. We weren't interested in the German army.

A few weeks ago we could have written a few words about one John Kimbrough, and a few readers would have paid attention to the said blurb, but such is not the case now. The nation knows of John Kimbrough, the Haskell powerhouse. He literally wrecked that famed Tulane 210 lb. average.

The John Kimbrough that stepped out against Tulane Monday for his bid for football glory, is a far cry from the gangling 13-year old youngster we saw back yonder in '33 at Haskell. He is heavy, then, but so young and brittle he would be injured on most plays.

No newspaper headlines blazoned out with the name of John Kimbrough then, although he and brother Jack were plenty "tough" then played his games on a rocky field, with perhaps 200 people watching the boys go through their paces.

The following season, John Kimbrough came to life in more ways than one. We were handling all raw for the Wichita Falls papers, and began our drive to place the Kimbroughs in the newspaper line. And we had plenty competition from the news from Crowell which heralded one Dick Todd. Feature after feature we shot to the dailies, although Jack Kimbrough was doing most of the stuff. Interested in last, sport writers from the larger cities began to trickle in to Haskell to see the "Kimbroughs" in action.

But—and a big one, too—John became so good that the Abilene Eagles "wanted" him, and what they wanted, they took, thanks to the Sportsman Club of that city. John received scant mention from the Abilene sportswriters, because they thought others were much better.

John's attempt to attend Tulane was short lived because Tulane's smart ones figured he "wasn't sood enough" to play football the Tulane is needed to bring a greater prosperity than we have ever known—the industries, the men, the resources. But unless we maintain our basic liberties, material blessings mean nothing. INDUSTRIAL NEWS REVIEW way. Maybe not, but he demonstrated he was good enough AGAINST the Tulane way.

We had nothing to do with making John a football player. His whole darn family of brothers are "that way", but we couldn't resist writing about him once again.

No, we had nothing to do with his football ability. Our efforts were bent toward coaching him as a baseball player—and would he have been a honey! He was developing fast, when along came high school coaches and ruled that he couldn't "play" baseball because we also "paid" some of the players on the Haskell team. And away went a baseball career.

We sometimes wonder what John thinks about that "paying" part, since he has attended a big-time college and has "seen" so many poor boys making their way through college through their ability to play football. That amateur standing! Phooey!

NEW WAY OF TRAPPING ANTELOPE DISCOVERED

Austin, Texas, Jan. 4.—The first white men to tramp the plains of Texas found antelope in larger numbers than the famed and fabled buffalo and the pronghorns contented to prosper until the advent of the barbed wire fence, the high-powered rifle and the motor car.

Tens of thousands of antelope turn themselves to pieces on barbed fence before they learned to crawl under it. Then the hunter, fortified with his heavy rifles and transported rapidly long distances by automobile, carried on the work of destruction. Antelope decreased so rapidly that a dozen years ago William T. Hornsaday, noted naturalist, viewed with alarm the passing of the fleet-footed mammals. He believed there were only approximately 10,000 antelope left in the United States. Stern steps were taken by many states to give the pronghorn a maximum of protection. So successful were their efforts that in some localities gratifying increases in the ranks of the animals took place. It was not many years before Wyoming had so restored the antelope that an open season was possible. Later New Mexico provided an open season under a system which permits the killing of a few of the animals each year. Now, through trapping and transferring antelope to new areas by use of a method devised under the direction of Mr. Elliott Barker, chief of the New Mexico Game Department, Texas may have a controlled open season on pronghorns within a few years.

Mr. Barker, finding that antelope are inclined to over-populate a given range without a natural spread to surrounding areas, was the first to devise a successful plan of trapping and transporting antelope to new and suitable range.

The recent efforts of the Texas Commission, which has trapped nearly 300 pronghorns on the Brennan Ranch near Sterling City in a drive recently completed, further proved the success of the method. It is believed other states that have a surplus in some localities will follow this method and that the antelope will again become one of the important game mammals of the western states.

So near to virtual extinction had the antelope appeared that in the summer of 1938 Mr. Barker reported at a meeting of game officials in Asheville, N. C. that New Mexico's game department had perfected a device for trapping the antelope in large numbers. Most game officials were surprised at such a method was necessary. Learning from Mr. Barker of the successful trapping of pronghorn Will J. Tucker, executive secretary of the Texas Commission, conferred with the New Mexico chief at the Asheville meeting and immediately detailed Game Manager Lee Fish and Tom Redford, a game warden to Roswell, N. M., where trapping operations were under way. They were given rapid instructions by Mr. Paul Russell of the New Mexico department and plans and specifications for the trapping device. With slight modifications of the methods used by New Mexico, the Texas Department was able to trap efficiently. The most recent roundup of antelope on the Brennan Ranch resulted in a catch of 2 with a loss of but six animals due to injuries.

Should the pronghorns prosper and propagate as rapidly as it believed they will in the past country, the only territory suitable for them, Texas may join New Mexico in holding controlled seasons. Latest reports from Mexico indicate that state has continued its restocking program, that the Game Department has trapped a considerable number of antelope without any loss.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond James Big Spring were holiday visitors to the home of their parents.

36 Years on 'The Hill,' Garner Succeeds by Reason of Seasoned Experience and Sound Judgment

By BASCOM TIMMONS

John N. Garner would make a great President. He has a better practical understanding of national Government than any other living man. It is his life and has been for 36 years.

At the end of the three dozen years under the Capitol dome he is, according to the calendar, he is 50 years old and in top physical condition. This vigor and physical toughness he would carry into the greatest office within the gift of the people and he would have the extra 20 years of knowledge of affairs, domestic and foreign, he came to in his present place of eminence the hard way. In his public service there is no problem of Government with which he has not grappled.

BASCOM TIMMONS

A deep and informed interest in international relations. That Garner considers the solution of the unemployment and agricultural problems as the two outstanding challenges to the United States and that the chief attention of a Garner administration would be bent to this end, no one who knows him doubts. He likes to tackle tough problems, and here are two tough ones.

Opposed to Government in Business. If any one is supporting Garner on the theory he would be a do-nothing President, that supporter would better begin looking for a new man to support. He would be a head-up administration. He moderns needs. He has said that "revolutionary process must go forward to meet ever-changing human needs." He would not have the Government evade any legitimate function, but he would be in his endeavor to see it did not encroach on functions outside its field. "Putting the Government into business is a violation of the Nation's industrial and commercial fabric," he declared in his 1932 acceptance speech.

Believing as he does in a Government that he thoroughly believes in our democratic system of three branches of Government, he has never called for a general-minded. It is true he has fought invasion of the prerogatives of Congress, but he is just as firmly against trespass against the executive and judicial branches.

Believing as he does in a Government of laws and not of men, he abhors unnecessary bureaucracy and would undoubtedly seek to dissolve some of it entirely, but he would preserve the natural checks and balances of the executive branch, rather than weaken it.

Garner believes, as did Grover Cleveland, that the whole art of government is simply applied common sense and common law. He believes in justice and tolerance as handmaidens.

Has Vivid "Sense of Humanity"

Garner's President would be guided by a sense of humanity. It is he who introduced the first general relief bill in 1932. It was a pay-as-you-go measure, and carried a tax to pay its cost. He believes in an ever-increasing standard of living for the people of his country. He has always had a passionate devotion for the well-being of men and women who work for their daily bread. He has always fought monopoly and the concentration of wealth, and has insisted that the Government lay down rules to guarantee free and fair competition. He is for property rights, he believes them the very basis of human rights. Ownership of property, he thinks is one of the best guarantees of the dignity and independence of the individual. He is against favoritism in law enforcement.

Garner knows you cannot get something for nothing. He believes in constructive economy. He is the indestructible pioneer type who learned in a pioneer country, how hard it is to make a dollar. He would be scrupulously careful with the taxpayer's dollar. He has the courage to resist fantastic proposals and would to meet an issue.

To continued efforts to find solutions of the Nation's problems Garner would take to the presidency vast experience. "Experience," to paraphrase the great Justice Holmes, "is the life of administration."

Garner loves his country, believes in it, knows it is durable and wants it to believe in itself. He wants Government to do its part toward preserving freedom of opportunity. He believes economy, thrift and self-reliance are still the hallmark of the majority of Americans. (Released through courtesy of the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

Garner would make a great President because he has the proper temperament for the office. He knows when to advance and when to halt and take stock. He understands the Nation's legislative and administrative digestive system better than any man in the country. He would take no shortcuts he could not hold. He would be the best insurance against reaction, which so often follows unwise action. He has the poise and the patience to work for permanency. He would insist on sound legislation and coherent administration.

Best Judge of People's Temper

He is probably the best judge of the temper of the people and their representatives in Congress, at any given time, of any man in the United States. He has an uncanny perspective, which enables him to disregard the clamor of words and vociferous minorities and find the desires of the submerged majority. Perhaps this is because he is a typical American, neither radical or reactionary, but progressive and forward-looking.

Garner would make a great President because of his gifts of leadership and his judgment of ability to work with men. He has often said that most men he has known in public life were men of good will, patriotically interested in the best of their country. He has always found a rest in sitting down with men who review problems from diverse angles, men of different experiences. He believes that out of such deliberations come sound, practical, beneficial and progressive solutions. He takes in such counsel takes his own fidelity to principles, clearly of reasoning and ability to get at facts.

His judgment of men is excellent. When he became Speaker, in 1931, he demonstrated his ability to choose men for important assignments—of finding the proper man to do a job. Men were placed in roles for which they were not so qualified. He has always liked to reward merit in young men, and this gave him the opportunity. Although the Democrats had a fragile majority of only three votes overnight, he selected them into a cohesive, fighting organization.

Far-Flung Network of Contacts. Because his acquaintance is second to none, in all parts of the country, it is possible for Garner to call into service men of outstanding ability for his cabinet and other administrative places. His standard for judicial appointments would be high. He would be especially anxious to find the best men for diplomatic posts. His long experience on the House Foreign Affairs Committee imbued him with

SOIL CONSERVATION

When a stream is dammed to form a storage reservoir it represents an investment for service in irrigation power, municipal water supply, flood control, or recreation—or a combination of these, according to Soil Conservation Service engineers. When the gates of the dam are closed the reservoir begins to fill with water—and also with sand or silt that settles and reduces the storage of serviceable water.

The silt deposit is the result of soil erosion. This is where the Soil Conservation Service workers come in. As publicly employed specialists they are interested in both ends of the silt movement—in keeping the silt on the land and keeping it out of the reservoirs.

Since 1934 the staff has been gathering definite information as to the rate at which reservoirs are being silted. They know of examples of completely filled reservoirs in which original investments have been wiped out by silting. By balancing the injury to farms from loss of soil, against damage to reservoirs from silting, these specialists are getting the facts on which to base control policies, to suggest fair apportionment of the expense of keeping the soil in place and so prevent filling of reservoirs.

Carl B. Brown, in charge of the reservoir investigations, points out that as a practical matter the effect of reservoir silting is likely to be even worse than the destruction of the original investment in the storage plant. As a rule such reservoir is located at the most favorable point for economical storage. If the service to the community requires a replacement, the substitute is likely to cost more than the original and the value of preventing silting can fairly be reckoned on the basis of the replacement cost.
