Flour dust, in thick globes, poured upon the faces of O'Daniel's foes in his race for governor, and eventually turned to sticky dough--from which they could not untangle themselves.

LIFE'S LITTLE JESTS

HOLLYWOOD TEMPO

"And so your son is a cinema actor in Hollywood," said the vicar to the local farm worker. "How interesting."

"Yes, sir," agreed Giles. "E's been away four years now."

"And have you seen him at all since he went?"

"Why, yes, sir. 'E's bin 'ome these three last Christmases."

"And did he bring a wife back with him?" asked the interested vicar.

How to Beat It

Wife—Every time I get ready to go shopping you say you haven't any money. Why don't you see Broker Skjold and get him to give you some tips on the stock market?

Wife—Then it should be easy. Only speculate every other day.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Anything to Please

"We have everything on the menu today, sir," the waitress said.

"So I see," the customer said. "How about a clean one?"—The Smit Card.

Maid—Well, mother goes to church and father goes to the chapel. But me—I'm wireless.

TO THE PEOPLE OF LYNN COUNTY:

It is my sincerest hope that they may never have reason to feel that this confidence has been misplaced. My one aim is to give to the people of this county the best educational service of which I am capable.

To my many loyal school children, boys and girls, men and women, who have so staunchly demonstrated their love and appreciation for me, I have not words enough to express my thanks.

I want the people throughout Lynn County to know that I am truly grateful for the courtesies, way in which I was received as I attempted to canvass the county. Their many acts of kindness, their many courtesies, and their votes shall ever be remembered.

Gratefully yours,

LENORE M. TUNNELL

TO THE VOTERS
LYNN COUNTY:

I wish to express to you my sincere appreciation for the vote you gave me in the Primary Saturday, and to assure you that I will try to merit the confidence you have shown in me. Your continued support will also be greatly appreciated.

To those who, for sufficient reasons, voted for someone else, I wish to say that I bear no ill-will because that is your right. During my first term as your County Judge I have sincerely tried to do the fair thing, as I saw it, for the good of county as a whole, and if elected I know that I can avoid making some mistakes that I have made, and therefore be better prepared to make you a better official.

I will sincerely appreciate your consideration of my candidacy, and if you vote for me at the runoff primary, I shall endeavor to make you an honest and conscientious official during the next two years.

Sincerely yours,

P. W. GOAD,

ARRIVES, DEALERS OF NATION DECLARE

Detroit—Automobile buyers who are looking for bargains in used cars will do well to look to their opportunities during the next four or five weeks.

A general movement is in an automotive industry to complete a stock reduction program in the remaining days of July and the month of August. From the standpoint of production the program does not auger well. Output is likely to sink below the weekly average of 40,000 recently maintained as a level. But from the outlook of the buyer the coming month may be the best of the year.

The factories want their dealers to be in the best possible trading position when 1939 models are announced. That means the outlook of the buyer the coming month may be the best of the year. The factories are also determined that their dealers shall not carry over any 1938 models into the new model season. That means the general elimination of new car stocks.

Ford Reviving Dealer Relations
Measures are under way by the Ford Motor Company to strengthen its dealer organization, if reports in Detroit are correct. Closer relations between factory and dealers are sought, according to available information.

"It is generally understood,"

Automobile Dealers' Association, "that the company is trying to eliminate, as far as possible, business practices which have proven destructive to dealer success. In addition to this the company is making exhaustive market surveys to determine as accurately as possible representation requirements."

Special attention, the bulletin says, is being given to metropolitan areas and ceilings are being set on the number of dealers in large distributing points. In this way, the N.A.D.A. says, dealers will know to what extent the available business is to be shared among them.

The Ford sales agreement is being completely revised to provide broad protective features for the dealer, the N.A.D.A. declares. "There are also clauses covering fair trade practices, all of which are in keeping with the major objectives of building a stronger merchandising program."

The company's business management program, which has already been so helpful to dealers, is being expanded and strengthened.

Harry Gibbons' ADVENTURERS' CLUB

PLINES FROM THE LIVES PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"He Wanted to Live" BY FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

LO EVERYBODY: Today, I've got a swell yarn for you. It's the story of the greatest disasters in the history of the Virgin Islands, and it's a lot more than that, too. It's the story of a deed and a darned swell illustration of what the live will do for a man—or a boy. Fellow Adventurer, I introduce to you Harry Ziegan of Brooklyn, who wanted to stay alive. And now let's get on to the story.

Their Sloop Capsized in the Gale.

A three-quarters of an hour that breeze had become a gale, moments later a "spinner" struck the sloop broadside and it completely over.

Some time it takes to tell it the sloop capsized and sank. Harry got to the stern, and he dove into the water as she went over. His brother who had gone below a few minutes before the sloop had been hit. For a while he treaded water. As he felt a small body rub against his and raised it to the surface, little boy—the four-year-old son of the woman who had been in the sloop with Harry. He was dead, and Harry let him be. It was four miles to shore, and it would be a miracle if he were himself.

Three Began the Long Swim.

Four miles to shore in a raging gale. Yes, it was the life of thirteen-year-old Harry Ziegan made it. But Harry did not live. He turned toward land and began to swim.

Harry had started when he saw his brother Ed and his pal, Jimmy. He called to them and told them not to swim so fast—save energy if they ever expected to get ashore alive. Guided by a light at the entrance to the harbor of St. Thomas, they swam a mile.

Harry says, "we could hear yell and cries from people on the shore, but after an hour all was still except the break waves as the wind continued to lash the sea to fury. We swam about an hour, then Jimmy began to tire. Soon he was in a bad way, and I was alone."

Harry dived as the sloop went over.

to the windward side of him, the better to protect him from the wind and put my right hand under his left armpit. When I got tired, I swam on my side. This went on for quite a while, but eventually I became so tired he couldn't raise his hand. He sank for the first time and I grabbed my shirt as he came back to the surface. I tried to hold him, but he would undoubtedly have drowned if Ed had not come along.

Ed kept Harry's head above water, but poor Jimmy went down. He was clinging to Harry a few seconds and then sank. Harry and Ed could do about all they were lucky to do to save themselves.

Harry and Ed were tiring out. BUT THEY WANTED TO keep on swimming. "We had been swimming for at least two hours," Harry says, "and the shore seemed no nearer than when we started. We heard a voice calling and for a time we did not know what it was. It might be a drowned man who would pull us down, as Jimmy had almost done. But at length we swam in that direction and found Louis, Jimmy's brother, captain of the Sea Gull."

How the Two Lads Saved Louis.

At this time all three of them were in line—so far gone that they were swimming so that if one went down he wouldn't try to drag the other down. This went on for quite a while, but eventually Harry and Ed called, "I'm going down," he shouted. "I've got a leg!"

Harry swam to him. One on each side, they held him up as they swam. Louis kept his head. If he had lost it, he would have been dead. Louis kept his head. After that Harry and Ed swam on again. They were swimming in a daze, almost dead with fatigue. BUT THEY WANTED TO LIVE!

Hours passed. They kept on swimming. At last they saw land under their feet and half-sunk, half-crawled up on the beach. It was then between two and three o'clock in the morning and they had been swimming for seven or eight hours. They were exhausted, they dropped on the beach with the waves lapping at their feet, and fell into a dead sleep.

was morning and the sun was shining brightly when Louis and Harry awoke. They walked up the beach in search of other survivors. They were there none. Then they walked to the cabin of a native boat and found a boat to take them home.

was a sequel to that story. A month later the H. M. S. Ingolf of the navy started into the harbor of St. Thomas. The crew of the ship were drawn up before Harry's home while Governor C. G. presented Harry and Ed with life saving medals awarded to the king of Denmark for their rescue of Louis. They were the two kids—but they weren't too busy at it to help the other

Invented Game of Chess

It is said that the politicians of Hindustan invented the game of chess to move quickly. They were hidden by day in cracks and crevices, coming out at night to feast on the bodies of the dead. They were fed on all foodstuffs liked by the king, elephants, horses, chariots, and foot-soldiers. Finding of well-worn chessmen on the site of the ancient city of Tepe Gava in the ruins of Mesopotamia is strong evidence, says London Tit-Bits magazine, that chess or some very similar game was played by the people of Mesopotamia as early as 4000 B. C. The Persians called the game chatrang. The Arabs, when they invaded the country, changed the name to shatranj. Later the Italians corrupted this to scacchi; hence the German schach, the French echec, and the English chess.

Wide Brim Hat With Silk Print

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A word about black and pink. As the season advances costume after costume favors this combination. It gives a pretty effect indeed, when the dress of pink and black print is enhanced with pink costume jewelry, perhaps adding a girlish sash of soft pink suede with possibly a pink suede bolero.

A lovely midsummer sheer centers the group. This printed blue and white silk chiffon day dress has the new square neckline. Watch necklines! Designers are giving a lot of attention to them, introducing novelty in lowest fanciful outlines that impart an entirely new character to the styling of blouses and gowns. Note also the horizontal tucked bodice and the skirt pleats released below the hips. And the big flower-trimmed leghorn hat. Wide brims and colorfully patterned prints play a charming duet in the fashion picture.

For an afternoon ensemble select a hayrider silk chiffon dress in rainbow colors, together with a navy wool full-length unlined coat, such as pictured to the left. Take note of the hairpin on the merry widow black straw hat with its crown of taffeta bows and horizontal trim.

STRAPLESS BRA IS GOOD STYLE NEWS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Here is good news, it's about the strapless bra—designed to wear with the very fashionable strapless evening gown. It is made of net or lace with drawing at the top and is boned just enough to keep it up without the aid of straps over the shoulders. Solves the problem of what to wear under that transparent blouse or dress in the daytime where one must do away with unsightly straps to look well groomed. Try the new strapless bra under your costume slip in the daytime and you will be delighted at the nifty and neatness it affords.

Terry Cloth Retains Its Popularity on the Beach

The introduction of many new cotton fabrics fails to check the popularity of terry cloth when it comes to beach attire. Coats and capes of the toweling continue to be featured, the most striking version being a two-toned striped pattern. Bold contrasts such as bright navy or black with white present the theme to best advantage. Jacket-like blouses that have been dubbed "nighties" are made of white terry cloth and take the place of longer coats for beach wear.

Mesh Oxford Shoes Offer Maximum of Cool Comfort

A striking summer shoe which avoids the commonplace features of open toe and heel offers a maximum of cool comfort in a mesh Oxford. The mesh effect covers the entire shoe except for a strip at the instep and a wide binding. You can get this unusual model in white, beige, black or navy but its original design isn't to be picked up for a paltry sum.

Polka-Dotted Overalls in Miniature for Daughter

Those polka-dotted overalls that mother likes to wear for gardening and lounging are available in miniature for small daughters. They are made of rickrack-trimmed percale and there is a sunshade to match. A doll dress in matching print but attired in a very ladylike little dress and bonnet completes a cleverly styled juvenile ensemble.

Football Ace Chapman Is Diamond Star

By GEORGE A. BARCLAY
SAM CHAPMAN used to boot footballs over Pacific coast goals last fall and help Bud Allison's University of California Golden Bears smother their opponents.

Now Sam belts baseballs around American league parks and helps Connie Mack's Athletics stay in the pennant race.

The metamorphosis of this All-American football player into a star outfielder has baseball wisecracks shaking their heads. Sam has violated the axiom which says that star football players never make star baseball players. He stepped off the campus without any minor league seasoning and because of the way he has been pounding the ball, has won himself a regular berth in the Athletics outfield.

Chapman was rated the best back on the Pacific coast last year. He was the park plug in the attack which gave the California machine a 13 to 6 victory over Alabama in the Rose Bowl game on New Year's day.

When the grid season was over, Sam turned to baseball. He developed something of a reputation as a slugger amid belt league scouts trailing him around the college circuit. The big league training season came and went and while Sam had his ears cocked for offers, he decided to wait until a real big turned up.

Joe Di Maggio, the retired immortal of baseball, had been watching him and growing more enthusiastic all the time. Finally he got hold of

All things being equal, the average man would just as soon see Joe Di Maggio or Gabby Hartnett in action on a ball field as he would watch Clark Gable or William Powell on the screen. Night baseball, however, would not be a serious competitor to the movies, because only a dozen games at most would be scheduled during a 154-game season by any team.

A number of big league magnates and managers look with rather sour eyes on night baseball. Bill Terry, manager of the Giants will have none of it. But with the demonstration of proved success in two big league cities, it seems inevitable that it will be adopted generally in the big time.

Here and There

ONLY three of the eleven players who made up the National league All-star team of 1937 were included in the 1938 roster. They were Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs, Carl Hubbell of the New York Giants and Tony Cuccinella of the Braves. The other 15 have either drifted out of the league or have slipped out of the star class.

The longevity of stars seems greater in the American league, for nine of the original eighteen were included on this year's All-American baseball team. They were Lefty Gomez, Bill Dickey and Lou Gehrig of the Yanks; Bob Grove, Joe Cronin and Jimmy Fox of the Boston Red Sox; Rick Ferrell of the Washington Senators; Charley Gehring of the Detroit Tigers and Earl Averill of the Cleveland Indians.

A Rhodes scholarship at Oxford, or $22,500 a year with the Pittsburgh Pirates in professional football were the offers which Whizzer White, Colorado university's great halfback had to consider recently. He chose the Oxford scholarship. The decision was his own, too. He asked his father for advice, but White persisted on leaving it up to him.

Comeback Trail

DOWN in the Texas league, fans, managers and scouts are watching the performance of two young men who until last year were pitching sensations in the big leagues—Scoutboy Rowe, formerly of the Detroit Tigers, and Paul Dean of the St. Louis Cardinals. Shipped to the minors this year by their respective clubs, these fellows are trying a comeback trail that will land them in the big show again.

Should the pitching magic that once made them great return to the arms of these athletes, they will find a hearty welcome back in the majors, for the Tigers could use Rowe and the St. Louis Cards might cease floundering if they had a pitcher of the caliber Paul Dean has been.

Night Baseball

THE success of night baseball, pioneered by the Cincinnati Reds a couple of years ago and introduced with satisfying financial returns by the Brooklyn Dodgers recently, indicates that before very long (possibly) will be part of the equipment of every big league ball park. In its first two games after dark, Brooklyn drew 65,000 patrons through the turnstiles—considerably more than would have come in the afternoon.

The results at Cincinnati thus far have been equally favorable. So there is little reason to doubt that night baseball would draw well in other big league cities.

Few teams do very much business on week days. The average fan does not find it possible to at-end such games regularly. The chance of actually seeing a game after dinner instead of reading about it in the box scores should prove attractive. ACCENTS OF SUEDE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Now that designers have sensed the vast possibilities suede offers to the fashion field and now that suede that is rendered thoroughly fabric-like, there's just no end to the exciting things being done with it. For instance, this lovely silk print summer costume, posed by Lucille Ball, radio player, is greatly enhanced with a girlish sash of girlish suede with streamers, and matching suede on the attractive wide-brim hat.

Miliners Are Featuring Button Bonnets Just Now

Miliners are featuring "button bonnets" this season. They are as fashionable for "big sisters" to wear as they are for the tiny members of the family. They are made of pique, sharkskin, printed linens, etc. While the new button bonnets are as pretty as a picture and as chic as can be, they are something more than mere eye-earers. For they are practical to the nth degree, in that they are made to unbutton at will so as to lay out as they are. This means you can launder them easily and when buttoned back into shape they look like a brand new millinery. Flatten them out by unbuttoning and they pack without taking up room—ideal for week-end trips.

CAN NOW MAKE HAY IN RAINY WEATHER

Modern Methods Are Used In Making Green Silage.

By Clarence H. Parsons, Superintendent Massachusetts Some Cattle Farm, WNU Service.

How to make hay in rainy weather is a trick that has been solved on many dairy farms during the past few years. Modern methods of making green grass silage have done away with the need for long curing in the field, and the resulting product is high in valuable food elements and appetizing to the cows.

Dairymen have been experimenting with this new method of making grass and clover silage for several years and the state college has also given it extensive trials. Up to the present time, corn has been the standard silage crop of the North-east, but in many farms the grass and clover are easier to grow, the yields are as high as those of silage corn, and protein content of the resulting silage is higher than that of corn silage.

Grasses and clover are low in sugar content and for this reason it was difficult to bring about desirable fermentation in the silo until investigators found that the addition of cheap molasses brought about this result. The molasses is added to the grass and clover as it is fed into the cutter. On the college farm 40 to 60 pounds of molasses are added to each ton of grass. Where alfalfa is put up about 75 pounds of molasses per ton of silage is used. Silage put up in this manner last year came out of the silo sweet and in excellent condition, and the herd responded favorably to it.

Grass silage is best when the crop is cut in a young and tender stage. If it becomes mature and woody, it makes poor silage.

Feed Hoppers Urged For the Young Pullets

Healthy growing pullets require large quantities of feed, and the best growth is made if the birds have free and continued access to the feed. For this reason, advises a writer for the National Poultry Magazine, we recommend at least three 3-foot mesh hoppers 4 to 5 inches deep, feeding from both sides, for each 100 birds. If they are filled too full there may be a waste of mash. To overcome this difficulty a strip of 1/2 inch mesh is fastened along the top of the outer edge, so as to form a lip and prevent spillage.

To prevent soiling the feed, a revolving pole or reel of laths is fastened just above the level of the feed and secured to the raised ends of the hopper. For outdoor feeding, much labor can be saved by using large weatherproof, self-feeding hoppers. These are built with a solid roof or lid covered with tarpaper, which extends out beyond the feed trough on each side of the reservoir, and thus protects it from rain. These feeders may hold 100 to 200 pounds of mash, and thus require little attention in filling. A pullet will eat about 25 pounds of feed from the age of six weeks up to maturity.

Dangers in Oil Products

Gasoline and kerosene fires cause a loss of approximately $5,000,000 a year on the farms of the United States, according to the bureau of chemistry and soils, U. S. Department of Agriculture. They are sixth among the causes of farm fires and are responsible for 5 to 7 per cent of the total loss each year. Ignorance and disregard of the explosion hazard of gasoline and kerosene are responsible for most of these fires, says a bulletin. The vapor of gasoline is so highly explosive that it has been called "liquid dynamite." It is dangerous to use gasoline for dry cleaning in the home. It may explode from even a tiny spot of static electricity produced by rubbing the clothes dry cleaning. Although not so inflammable as gasoline, kerosene and the vapor of kerosene which may be easily ignited. Neither should be used to start a fire in the house.

SAM CHAPMAN

Connie Mack and told him to grab Sammy as a sure-fire "natural." "I told you once I'd never recommend a him, playing in the majors. I got to this time. This kid Chapman has a future."

$8,500 Bonus

Mack, who has always had a weakness for college men, offered Sam an $8,500 bonus for signing with him.

Chapman thought it was a good idea, accepted the offer and signed early in May. He got into the lineup almost right away and began banging the ball all over the lot. In his first five weeks in the league, he got 44 hits in 123 times at bat, including nine home runs. And he has contributed much to leading, hard-hitting ball club that can give any team in the league a run for its money.

He isn't a finished fielder yet, but is learning rapidly and under Connie Mack's tutelage does a satisfactory job of playing batters properly.

Not many college men have stepped off the campus and into the big leagues to stay. Few if any great football players have accomplished this feat. Sammy Baugh, who has been a sensation as a passer-thrower for the Washington Redskins in the National Professional Football league, failed to make the grade this year as a member of the St. Louis Cardinals and even faded out of the football game in the Columbus in the American association.

There have, of course, been some great college players, like Eddie Egan and Frankie Franks and Earl Ligon, but their specialty in college was not football. One exception was Riggs Stephenson, who paced the Chicago Cubs outfield a few years ago. The "Ole Boss," who was one of the most consistent hitters of his day in the National league, was an all-American fullback at Alabama during the World War.

Besides Sammy Baugh, three classic examples of All-Americans who failed in big league tryouts were: Jim Thorpe, who couldn't make the grade with the New York Giants many years ago, Ernie Nevers, who was a dop when the St. Louis Browns tried to turn him into a minor league

Original Design Chosen In Rug Pattern

Mrs. E. O. Overman of the T-Bar Home Demonstration Club was quite original in selecting her rug pattern. She had been using a piece of burlap between the springs and mattress of a bed as a protector and she decided to use it for a rug background. She found had a design already printed on it. The springs had left an attractive design of oval tufts together with lines offering decorative suggestions. She soon saw it had possibilities and has a nice rug as a result of it.

Discarded Shirts Used In Making of Hooked Rug

"I used discarded gray shirts in making the center of my hooked rug and a print dress and overalls in the border," said Mrs. Paul Johnson, cooperator in the T-Bar Home Demonstration Club who has recently completed a hooked rug.

"I decided to leave it unclipped.

I believe it will be more durable," stated Mrs. Johnson.

Mrs. Johnson's rug is 27 by 45 inches. It was necessary for her to dye any of the material she used.

At Hot Springs

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McCarley are now in Hot Springs, New Mexico where they will vacation for a few weeks.

Mrs. Maynard Eubanks and son, Jimmie are in Higgins, Texas visiting Mrs. Eubanks' mother, Mrs. A. Y. Pemberton.

On Vacation

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Williams are spending their vacation in South Texas. Mr. Williams is local manager of the West Texas Gas company.

Visit In Ruidosa

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Doak left for the part of the week for Ruidosa, New Mexico on a vacation trip. They will be gone about two weeks.

Postmaster and Mrs. J. Mac Noble were in Tahoka Sunday visiting Mr. Noble's parents. Their young son, Eddie accompanied them home after a short visit in the home of his grandparents.

Variety of Colors Used In Making of Wool Rug

"In choosing a color scheme for my wool rug I selected tan, navy and wine. The pattern requires certain solid portions with sections mingled to tie the colors together," said Mrs. Frank Sargent, cooperator in the T-Bar Home Demonstration Club.

"I copied my pattern from a picture of another hooked rug. To get it proportioned correctly, I drew it on paper the exact size of the rug to be made then transferred it with carbon paper to the background of burlap," added Mrs. Sargent.

"unpredictable" and had a penchant for the spectacular. We claim the right to elect whom we please, how we please, and to back with Baltimore or Boston. We may like our hillbilly music and HILL-BILLY FLOUR (shove do), but that's the business of Texas voters. Everyone of these sneering, lofty-phrasing Northern editors can look back into his own state's affairs and find crooked politicians, who eventually fostered graft and corruption upon their state to an extent Texas has never known. Texas voters may put 'em in quickly, but they can take 'em out just as quickly!

The question pondered many before the primary as to whether those cheering for O'Donnell had paid their poll taxes was definitely answered. They had—and how!

NOTICE TO THE VOTERS OF LYNN COUNTY:

Until I see you personally, may I take this opportunity to express my appreciation for the vote and consideration that was given me at the primary last Saturday in my race for County Clerk.

To all who may have voted for some one else, I harbor no ill-will. If you can see fit now, I will greatly appreciate your vote and influence, and if else, I intend to discharge the duties of the office to the best of my ability, and by my work show that your confidence in me was justified.

Again — thank you!

Our betting on the governor's race was not serious. We're paying this week by that "O'Donnell Press" instead of O'Donnell Press, and another comes just as soon as Troy (Lase) Isaac has a picture developed. We agreed to print it if O'Donnell won without a runoff.
