Around Muleshoe

Tamara Gilliland, Donae Parker and Pam Plank were the first place winners in the Bailey County 4-H Fashion Revue held Friday, June 26 in the Muleshoe Church of Christ.

These girls will represent Bailey County in a Fashion Revue Tuesday, June 30 in Lubbock.

Persons interested in the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture Women's Division met recently to discuss possible projects and by laws.

The women's steering committee discussed project suggestions including: a beautification program for the Mule Memorial and surrounding grounds, promotion of all-school reunions, and the publication of new brochures and promotional literature.

Anyone interested in this division can attend the next meeting July 14 at 7:30 p.m. in the basement of the Law Enforcement Center. Further information may be obtained by contacting the Chamber.

Lt. Col. Don R. Watson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie A. Watson of Muleshoe, recently completed the US Army Command and General Staff College Regular Course at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Local corn and grain producers have expressed a great concern for the recent development in the Commodity Credit Corporation's sale of stored grain. This grain was stored from the 1979 crops and had been scheduled for sale to Russia.

With the onset of Carter's embargo, 45 million bushels of corn which was scheduled to be sold to Russia was stored in the United States. At this time, it is presently stored in various High Plains elevators within a 75 mile radius of Plainview, Texas.

This week in a letter from the Executive Director of Grain Sorghum Producers Association, Elbert Harp, states that "corn shipped by the government from northern corn belt states will be sold in competition with grain produced by High Plains farmers."

Harp further stated that "this action will most likely cost High Plains farmers a minimum of 50 cents per hundred weight--or $5,000 for a million pound producer--on all grain currently being held or produced in 1981."

"The GSPA has been seeking a USDA policy to sell this corn for export use only," Harp pointed out.

"The effect of these sales will put the local High Plains farmer in the position of competing against the USDA, in that the USDA held corn will be sold by a bid basis nationwide, with the bulk of the sales being made in the High Plains area because of the higher prices here." Harp stated to the Journal Friday.

In talking with several local corn growers, the Journal came upon the definite feelings that the intended sale was grossly unfair. Local farmer, Kenneth Precure stated: "From the material we have received from the GSPA and news media, it is obvious that this sale will leave us facing a price crisis for 1981 corn production in three counties. What we have is as if the 1979 corn production is in competition with the 1981 crops. It is necessary that we as farmers, get behind the GSPA and support this action allowing them to file this suit against the USDA."

Bill Wimberly, another local involved in grain production had this to say: "There will be no doubt about the results if this stored grain is released in local markets. It will severely depress the already unsteady economy and the results will be a serious disaster. Support from local and area producers by their signature on a check will be the only way of financing a suit against this action."

Another local man, Bob Free indicated to the Journal that he was of the opinion that "even if they (USDA) scatters the sale for 70 weeks it will have a bad effect on our market. Furthermore, if this is carried through, we (the farmers) will have nothing to look forward to for at least two years."

Free also stated that "the government seems to be totally unsympathetic to the farmers, while at the same time gives the big

Key To Losing Weight And Keeping It Off

The key to losing weight and keeping it off is to change total behavior, not just eating habits, a Baylor College of Medicine scientist said after a study of participants in a weight control program.

"Losing weight requires a complete change in lifestyle and principles and can take years; it is one of the hardest things people try to do," said John Foreyt, Ph. D., associate professor of medicine at Baylor and director of the Methodist Hospital Diet Modification Clinic.

He recently completed a study of the effectiveness of the program in which behavior modification is taught and found that it was successful for a majority of the program participants. More than 70 percent of the patients maintained their weight loss or continued to lose weight one year after completing the program.

Additional findings of the study were that: ---Women have a harder time losing weight than men.

---People who have been overweight all their lives may not find it more difficult to lose weight.

Foreyt concluded from the study that to lose and keep weight off, people must make changes in their behavior, such as avoiding the food table when at a party, or reading or exercising instead of eating when depressed.

He also found that a person's sex and the amount of weight he or she wants to lose can influence success at shedding pounds.

Although the program helped most of the patients, he said, the average weight loss was relatively modest (under 20 pounds) and the program was unsuccessful for many patients, especially women.

Three times more males than females in the program were successful at achieving their goal weight.

"This was probably because men have less body fat than women, and women are around food more often than males," Foreyt said.

Foreyt's study also confirmed that the more weight someone wants to lose, the harder the task. Only two percent of the patients who wanted to lose more than 30 pounds reached their goal, except for one woman who lost more than 100 pounds.

The study's results do give hope to people who have been overweight all their lives.

"Those who were fat since childhood did not have any more difficulty losing weight than the recently overweight," Foreyt said.

COURT RULES
The Supreme Court ruled that states rich in natural resources cannot make out-of-state consumers pay higher prices for them. In a ruling, non-energy-producing states hope will prevent energy producers behaving like OPEC nations, the justices said it was constitutional for Louisiana to impose a special tax on offshore natural gas passing through the state.

JUNE BIRTHDAY PARTY.... The Needmore Community hosted a birthday party Thursday, for the residents of the nursing home who are celebrating birthdays in the month of June. Mrs. Sylvan Robinson provided music at the piano. Decorators Nursery and Floral provided the flowers. The club served punch and cake. Celebrating birthdays were Rose Sebring, left, who was born June 29, 1887 and Pablo Flores, who's birthdate was June 11, 1906.

STRIKE?

LONDON -- Britain's 530,000 civil servants voted on whether to expand their sporadic work stoppages into a two-week, total walkout that would paralyze government operations. For 14 weeks, civil servants have staged partial walkouts in demand of a 15 percent wage increase. The government offers a 7 percent increase.

Candlelight Ceremony Unites Miss Clark, Precure

MR. AND MRS. CARROLL GRANT PRECURE (nee Terri Lea Clark)

Miss Terri Lea Clark of Lazbuddie became the bride of Carroll Grant Precure of Muleshoe in a candlelight ceremony Saturday May 30th at 8 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was performed by David Lasater, minister of the Church of Christ at Lazbuddie.

Vows were repeated before a wedding scene featuring a brass arch and spiral candelabras holding white candle tapers entwined with greenery and accented with rainbow shaded ribbon and lace bows. The aisle markers were candle holders decorated with spring flower sprays and candle volts tied with rainbow shaded ribbon and lace bows. The colors featured in the decorations throughout the wedding scene was orchid, pink, blue and yellow. The windows were decorated with white candle tapers with silk flower rings and rainbow shaded ribbon bows.

Two large bowls of mixed flowers and fresh baby's breath and large potted plants adorned the front of the church.

Music selections from the Abilene Christian University wedding album was used. Also special music was sung by soloist Miss Kim Kinnison of Lubbock, Texas. She presented selections of The Wedding Song, Poems, Prayers and Promises.

The bride was escorted and presented in marriage by her father, Wayne Clark. She wore a formal length gown of white silk organza and venice lace. The gown featured a Queen Anne collar and heart shaped neckline highlighted with a lace ruffle and seed pearls. The long fitted sleeves of venice lace was accented with a double ruffle of silk organza and closed with tiny self covered buttons.

The gown had as a special interest an a-line skirt that fell from a high waistline into an apron effect with four deep ruffles of silk organza and venice lace across the front and around the hemline going up the sides to form a bustle in the back. The back formed a long chapel train falling from the waist under the ruffled bustle.

She wore a waltz length veil of illusion and matching lace featuring cluster of pearls attached to the lace border. It fell from a head band covered with a garland of tiny silk flowers and fresh baby's breath. The flowers featured her chosen colors of orchid, pink, blue and yellow.

She carried a cascading bouquet of silk flowers in soft spring colors matching those on her veil. It was made up of rose buds, daisies, carnations, and fresh baby's breath with other tiny flowers tied with rainbow shaded ribbon and lace streamers.

In keeping with tradition her wedding attire was new. She borrowed a gold bracelet from her maid of honor, Angela Matthews and she wore an opal and ruby ring for something old. It was given to her by the groom's grandmother, Mrs. R.D. Precure and a blue garter made for her by her mother.

Miss Angela Matthews served as maid of honor. She wore a sheer pink polyester formal dress with deep ruffles around the hemline and up the back to form an apron effect and featuring a large bow in back at the waistline. The neckline was accented with a deep ruffle to form small cap sleeves.

The bridesmaids were Miss Susan Glover, Miss Jan Whitt, and Miss Kim Gregory. They wore formal length gowns of sheer polyester like the maid of honor but in different colors featuring the colors of orchid, yellow and blue. They carried long stemmed silk daisies in colors to match their dresses and tied with rainbow shaded streamers they also wore silk flower combs in their hair that matched.

The groom wore a white tuxedo with white ruffled shirt and bow tie. His boutonniere was a blue feathered carnation with fresh baby's breath. The groomsmen were all dressed in powder blue tuxedos with dark blue trim with white ruffle shirts and powder blue bow ties.

Jennie Lasater was the flower girl. Her dress was lime green sheer polyester with a tiny print sheer polyester apron. She carried a white wicker basket with rose petals and honeysuckle blossoms. As she scattered them along the aisle, the bride was escorted to the altar where she paused to present a rosebud to her mother. Immediately following the exchange of vows, the couple lighted a unity candle signifying the beginning of their life together. The bride then presented a rosebud to the groom's mother.

Wayne Precure of Muleshoe served his brother as best man. The groomsmen were Doug Precure, brother of the groom and Kelly and Greg Harrison, cousins of the groom from Muleshoe.

The candles were lighted by the bride's brothers, L.D. Clark from Portales, N.M. and Danny Clark of Lazbuddie.

The reception was held immediately following the ceremony.

The bride's table was attended by Angela Matthews, Jan Whitt and Kim Gregory.

At the groom's table was Mrs. Dust Precure, sister in law of the groom and Miss Susan Glover of Lazbuddie.

After the wedding trip to San Antonio and Galveston the couple are making their home at Muleshoe.

The bride graduated from Lazbuddie High School and Lubbock Commercial College.

The groom graduated from Muleshoe High School.

The rehearsal supper was hosted Friday night at 8 p.m., May 29 by the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Precure of Muleshoe at KL's Steakhouse.

Proposal To Strengthen Federal Wage- Hour Law

Declaring that it is "a national disgrace" to allow sweatshops "and the law-breakers who run them" to stay in business, Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan unveiled his Department's proposals to crack down on labor law violators.

In a speech prepared for delivery before the National Business Roundtable, Donovan listed five proposed changes in the Fair Labor Standards Act which he says will "strengthen our ability to locate, prosecute and punish those who abuse and exploit their fellow human beings in such a casual and callous manner."

The five changes include increased penalties for failure to keep adequate records, higher penalties for repeated violations of the minimum wage and overtime laws, payment of back wages to the government if employees cannot be located, and changes in the statute of limitations which would enable the Labor Department to get more wages to employees when violations are discovered.

Donovan also emphasized that, "By toughening the law, we will not increase the regulatory burden on employers." He said the new proposals will not add a single new form or a single new reporting requirement.

"We are asking for accurate payroll records," said Donovan. "Honest business people already keep these records."

"Donovan added: "We will be creating a regulatory framework that makes sense, penalizing exploitation of workers wherever it exists, but not penalizing work."

He told the management-oriented group that he expected their support "because you, as responsible members of the business community -- and as citizens of this country -- have a stake in putting an end to the abuses and exploitation that go on in sweatshops."

Donovan told his audience, in effect, that talk is cheap. "The time is past when words alone...are enough. It's time to put actions behind those words," he said. He concluded by quoting the Epistle of St. James, which admonishes readers, "Be ye doers of the Word, and not hearers only."

Conservationists Offer Watering Tips

Much of the water going onto area lawns and shrubs is being wasted. It's lost to overwatering, high evaporation and poor application patterns. Since the lion's share of household water use goes out to the year, it becomes a real waste of money as well.

You can have a healthy lawn and garden without wasting water, and it is not difficult. The biggest improvement you can make is to begin a careful program of home lawn irrigation...if you can figure out when to sprinkle, how much water to apply and for how long.

The High Plains Water District has a few pointers for practical, efficient grass watering tailored for the individual lawn that can save you several hundred gallons of treated, fresh water and save you money on your monthly energy bill. They'll help you make it through the summer without sacrificing your turf while saving water.

REMINDER

Water alone will not make grass healthy. In fact, too much water can be as harmful as too little water. Excess watering will drain away valuable plant nutrients stored in the root zone, decrease root zone aeration necessary to plant growth and may even inhibit root growth.

Overwatering can promote the growth of disease. It is a waste of water, fertilizer and energy expended on pumping.

You don't need to water every day. Most High Plains soils can store enough moisture to last seven to ten days. Watering a small amount every day or two only serves to wet the top few inches of the soil and cause the plant roots to concentrate there. Plants will be healthier if they are watered long enough at one time to moisten the deeper zone thereby encouraging deep root development.

OK -- BUT HOW LONG?

Try this experiment to learn your sprinkler's habits. First, place a few empty topless cans at various distances from the sprinkler making sure they don't lean. After sprinkling for an hour, measure the depth of water caught in each can and average the amounts. Then divide the number of inches needed for your soil type by the average amount of water needed to effectively irrigate your lawn.

For example, assume that you've placed several catch cans, sprinkled for an hour and arrived at an average depth of 3/8 inches of water in the cans. If the total depth of water needed for your lawn is one inch, then the total sprinkling time needed is found by dividing one inch (the total depth of water needed) by 3/8 inch (the average one hour catch)--and the answer is 2 hours, 40 minutes. If you needed to apply 1.5 inches of water to sufficiently irrigate the grass and root zone, you'd need to water for about four hours.

Of course, other factors will have a bearing on your irrigation schedule, but this is a good rule of thumb approach for establishing a lawn-irrigation schedule. Combined with careful observation, it should lead to a healthy, resilient lawn as well as to an appreciable savings of water.

SO WHEN DO YOU WATER?

...At the first sign of real wilt. Wilt doesn't mean that the grass is dying, only that it's "thirsty." But don't look for it in the middle of the afternoon. Despite plenty of available moisture, many plants will tend to show considerable wilt on a hot afternoon. It's usually temporary. The grass normally will regain its vitality in the evening. Look for signs of real wilting then; its time to water.

Most likely you'll discover signs of wilt only after five to ten days of little or no rain or irrigation. During cooler weather this period will be even longer.

HOW MUCH SHOULD YOU WATER?

Most lawn grasses used in the High Plains have a potential root zone depth of about three feet. This means that with proper irrigation, the grass roots will penetrate and efficiently extract water and nutrients from the soil to a depth of about three feet from the surface.

How much water you'll need to apply to adequately irrigate this three foot zone depends on what type soil you have. If it is totally dry and sandy soil, you will need to apply about three inches; if it's loam (a mixture of clay, silt and sand) apply about four and one half inches; and if it's a heavy clay soil, about six inches. It will be a rare occasion that your soil will be totally dry to the three foot depth. Normally half of the amounts given above will wet your soil adequately.

MORE TIPS FOR EFFICIENT IRRIGATION

To avoid as much evaporation loss as possible, water your lawn in the morning. Picking a calm, windless day will help, too.

Overlap your sprinklers just enough to supply water to the outer fringes, but not so much as to double-water large areas.

Be certain that your sprinklers are placed so as not to water sidewalks, streets, driveways, walls, etc. It wastes water.

If you have an automatic sprinkling system, make sure it has an override to compensate for rainfall and for the lawn's reduced water needs during winter months. Make doubly sure that it's not on a 24 hour cycle. Your grass really only needs irrigating every five to ten days--daily watering is wasteful and may even prove harmful to your yard.

Keep in mind the plants or lawns adjacent to pavement or ungrouted roofs sometimes need less watering because of increased runoff.

And speaking of runoff: a 2,500 square foot roof receives about sixteen hundred gallons of water from a one inch rain. Rather than allow this water to flow into a storm sewer or ditch, why not divert it to irrigate shrubs or lawns?

ON LASER WEAPONS

WASHINGTON -- The Air Force's push for a revolutionary laser weapon turned up a dud in a secret attempt to use high-intensity light to destroy a 2,000-mph missile, it was learned recently.

Adequate Insulation Sells

Nearly eight out of ten people thinking about the purchase of a new home cite energy-saving features as an important consideration. And, according to the National Association of Home Builders, 62 percent of these prospective buyers say they'll willingly spend $500 for insulation.

Of what import are these findings to people who already own their homes?

They could be vital, says the Mineral Insulation Manufacturers Association, especially to those thinking about putting their homes up for sale.

Add Insulation

To those who aren't, adds MIMA, the cost of operating a home is still important. There's much more to energy conservation than turning down thermostats in winter, using less air conditioning in summer and caulking and weatherstripping doors and windows.

Though these methods help save energy, says MIMA, the single, most-effective means to save on the costs of heating and cooling a home is to add adequate insulation in walls, ceilings and floors.

There are a variety of insulation materials on the market today. The most widely used type is mineral fiber--either fiber glass or rock wool. It is available as blankets--rolls of insulation with or without vapor barriers; batts--essentially short blankets; and loose fill--bagged insulation meant to be poured or blown in attic floors, and walls.

Look for R-values

Insulation should be chosen not by inches, but by R-numbers. These "R-values" measure the ability of a material to resist heat loss in winter and heat gain in summer. The higher the R-value, the greater the insulating power.

Savings vary. Find out why in the seller's fact sheet on R-values. It's best to ask your utility company for its recommendation for your locality.

PROGRESS

Progress is on the march. There is a great boom in building. Cures are being found for maladies that have killed mankind for centuries. Industry is doing magnificent things. But what sort of progress is being made in human relations--this term that includes respect for the person and property of others and good will among men.

There is one agency striving for progress in this field. This agency is the church. At the birth of Jesus Christ, the following prophesy and promise was given to mankind by a host of angels: "Glory to God in the Highest Heaven! Peace upon earth among men of goodwill!" Luke 2:14, (Phillips translation). Only when the majority of men on earth are men of goodwill, will we have peace.

Attend church this week and align yourself with the forces of God.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Charley Pride Returns To South Plains Fair

Following a one-year absence, country and western superstar Charley Pride will be returning to the South Plains Fair in Lubbock this fall.

Fair General manager Steve L. Lewis said Pride would be making a record 10th appearance at the exposition for two shows—5 p.m. and 8 p.m.—on opening day, September 25. The fair concludes October 2.

In the past 11 years since he was first signed by the fair, Pride has missed only 1971, 1972 and 1980 through here.

He still holds the fair's box office record for a single performance.

Earlier, Lewis has announced that Slim Whitman and Red Clay White would headline two shows on October 1 and Jinky Ward and The Kentucky would be on hand for a pair of performances on closing day. Other attractions being booked will be announced later.

Sixteen years have passed since Pride cut his first single, "Swains Creek at Night," the first of many hits.

Now, 38 albums and 41 singles later, Pride has established himself as a superstar in the country and western field. Out of his 38 albums, 34 are gold and he has had a steady stream of chart-topping hits, including the million seller, "King of the Hill" and "Angie Good Morning." He has been nominated for 18 Country Music Association awards, including six for the prestigious "Entertainer of the Year" (which he won in 1971), five for "Best Male Vocalist" (winning in both 1971 and 1972), three for "Best Single" of the year and four for "Best Album."

He has won several Country awards and has been selected as top male country vocalist and best male vocalist by Billboard and Cashbox magazines.

Tickets for all fair shows will be $6, $7, and $8 and all seats are reserved. Mail order requests for reservations will be accepted by the fair and P.O. Box 208, Lubbock, Texas 79408. Orders will be filled in the order in which accepted but tickets will not be mailed until early August, Lewis said. Requests also must be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The one with no comparison

The 526—truly unique! the only rear discharge tractor... it's compact for storage... collect cut grass and dump it without leaving the seat. Best of all, you can do it all in less time with 5 H.P. and choice of 5 forward speeds you can select the one speed and gear range to cut most efficiently. (The 526 can cut as much grass in the same time as some 10 H.P.—30" units). And new for 1980—headlights and alternator are standard. The 526 is so proven, so agile, so compact, so self-contained, it had to become a classic.

Pure Demagoguery

One reason Democratic Party fortunes are so low at the moment is that leaders of the party--in the northeast particularly--haven't come up with new programs which challenge the voter's imagination. Instead, they employ the same old, hackneyed phrases and worn-out liberal cliches.

Few voters are so dim that they were unaware of the economic, trade and foreign affairs mess the nation was in, after years of Democratic congressional rule, in 1980. Congress was almost as much responsible for the disaster which befell the party in 1980 as was Jimmy Carter, who helped the slide significantly.

The vast majority of Americans turned to Ronald Reagan and his new (old-fashioned) approach to the nation's critical problems, greater fiscal responsibility. The Democrats are left with Senator Bob Byrd and Speaker Tip O'Neill as their titular leaders--Mr. Carter having been routed so decisively his political influence is nil.

Senator Byrd of West Virginia has played the role of leader of the loyal opposition (to the president) with grace, generally speaking. But O'Neill has in recent days resorted to the same old demagoguery Democrats have used since the thirties to woo special groups and special blocs of voters.

O'Neill's latest charge was that President Reagan has "no concern, no regard, no care for the little man of America." He further claimed that the president's tax cut proposals were only a windfall for the rich and that Reagan associated only with wealthy, upper class individuals.

Edwin Meese responded to this with the statement that he didn't believe Tip really believed the things he was saying about the president. That's the most charitable light one can put on such partisan rhetoric--and it doesn't speak well for Democrat chances in 1982.

Most Americans know Ronald Reagan came up in life in modest circumstances, worked hard and long, was a union man and finally made it, in the media, film and political worlds. And that included working his way through college, when times were tough.

Biggest Business

Congressman Skip Bafalis, who has co-authored legislation that would aid law enforcement officials in their fight against drug traffic, recently publicized some facts about the problem in his state, Florida. They show dramatically the seriousness of today's drug traffic problem.

The big three drugs, according to the Florida Republican, are marijuana, cocaine and counterfeit Quaaludes, and are a multi-billion dollar business in Florida, the biggest retail business in the state!

Bafalis says the menace to society is not just from sellers and users of these drugs. There is the corrupting influence of all that cash. There are the violent crimes that come with this illegal activity.

And there is the law-enforcement problem of catching and convicting the criminals. They are often so well financed they stay free for years, until, perhaps, they jump bond or escape to South or Central America, where most of these drugs come from.

Bafalis says Florida is the dumping ground for 70 percent of the nation's cocaine, 80 percent of its marijuana and 90 percent of the illegal or counterfeit Quaaludes. Florida, then, is where the fight is--in plain words--and added federal assistance is very much needed, and justified, in Florida.

WASHINGTON NOTES

DIVORCES IN 1979

More American marriages than ever broke up in 1979 as the number of divorces nearly tripled what it was 20 years before, the government reported recently. Some 1.18 million divorces were granted in 1979, 4.5 percent more than the 1.13 million of 1978 and almost three times the 395,000 granted in 1959, according to the National Center for Health Statistics.

SALE OF SACCHARIN

The Reagan administration endorsed legislation to allow the sale of saccharin for two more years. An exemption expires June 30 that has allowed the popular artificial sweetener to be sold despite tests indicating it is a weak cancer-causing agent.

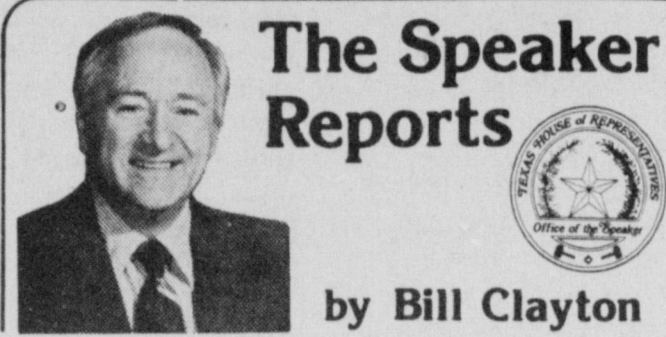

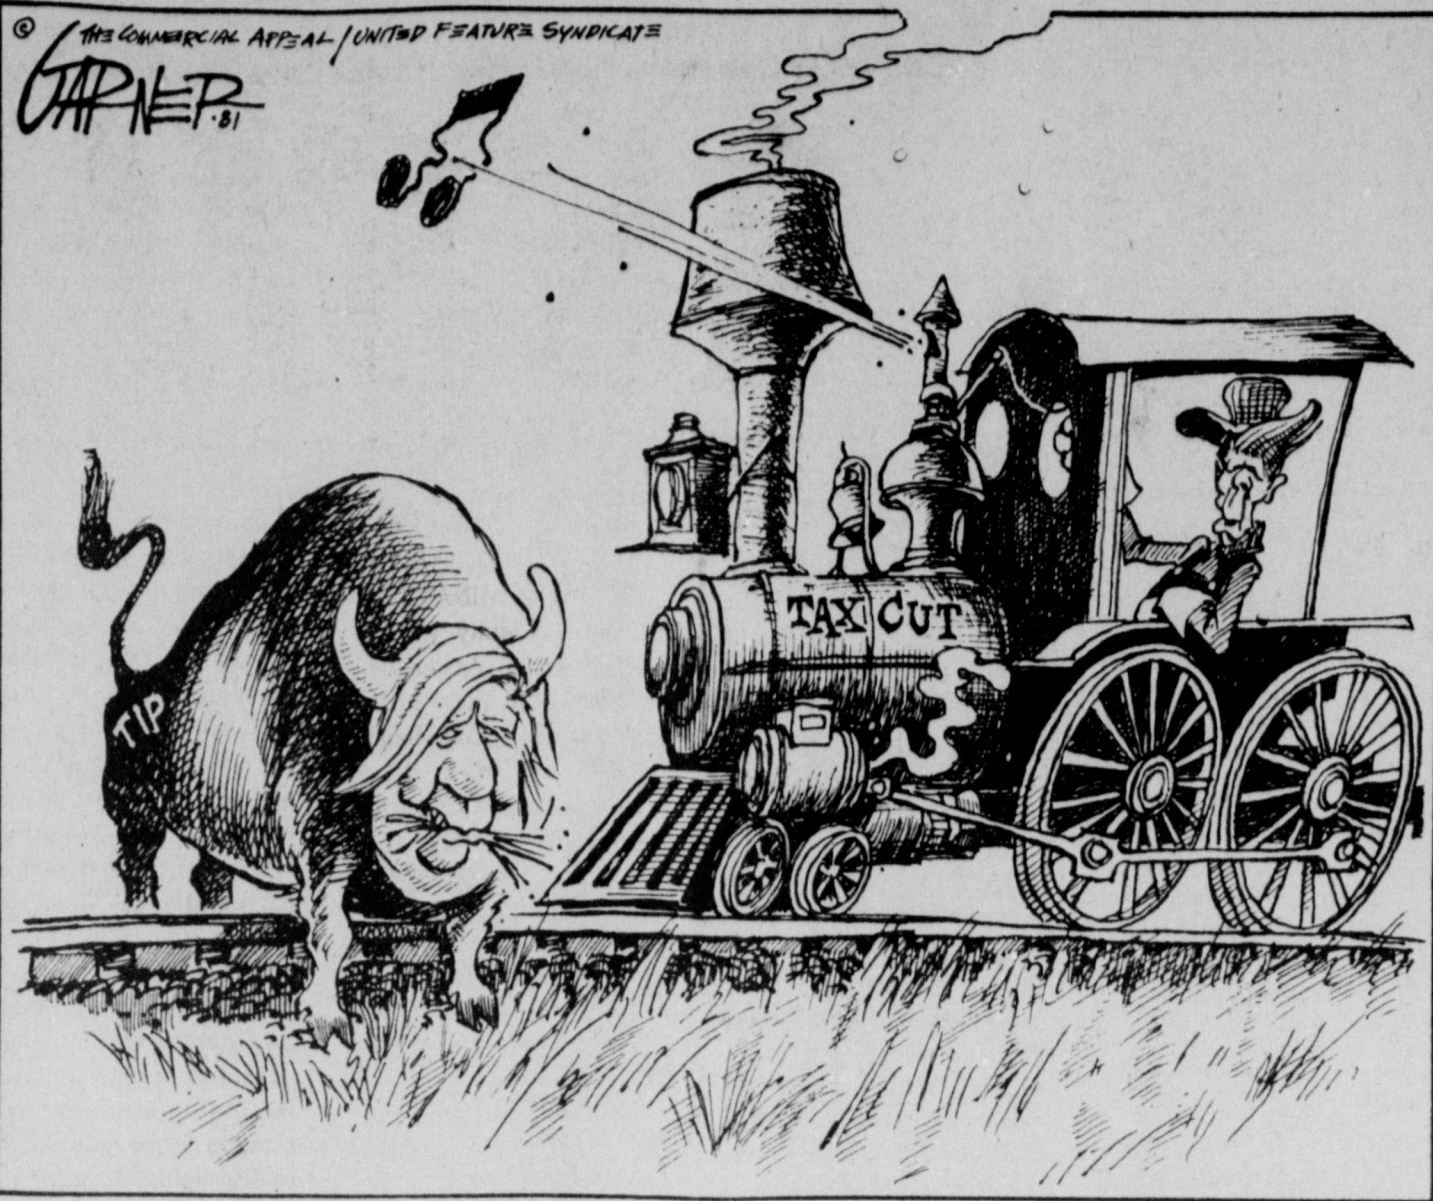

Elderly & handicapped exempt from food stamp cut.

ON CUTS

Acting with unusual dispatch, House and Senate committees completed work recently on more than $35 billion in specific cuts across the breadth of government to comply with President Reagan's fiscal 1982 budget ceiling.

BRADY UP

Recuperating White House press secretary James Brady appeared at his hospital window recently to the cheers of well-wishers and signaled "thumbs up" when he saw a huge "Get well Jim" sign.

The Speaker Reports

by Bill Clayton

AUSTIN—The single most important issue on the minds of legislators from April until the final day of the session on June 1 was how the state's legislative and congressional districts would be re-shaped.

Each House of the Legislature took care of its own redistricting. Congressional reapportionment, with three new seats up for grabs, was a joint try. The 27 districts weren't finalized when the final hours of the session rolled around. We will try again in a called special session to draw our state's congressional districts.

Even with three additional seats in Congress, it proved impossible to draw the districts. It was also difficult in the Senate and in the House because we knew that the 1965 Voting Rights Act would bring a contest if Blacks and Hispanics were deprived of adequate representation. Other legal questions were also considered, including equal population, if districts were shaped compactly and contiguously, if they represented a community of similar interest, how historical boundaries were affected, and also the effect on those holding the seats.

Under the Voting Rights Act, we must obtain approval from the Justice Department before the plans can go into effect.

Violations of the act could make the Justice Department a party to any lawsuit against the state.

The House plan pairs 18 of our 150 members. There are two pairs in West Texas, one pair in North Texas, one pair in Dallas, one in El Paso, one in Fort Worth, one in Central Texas, one in San Antonio, and one in Houston.

The state gained 27.1 percent in population over the decade. The typical House district will now be about 100,000 in population, compared with 75,000 during the 1970's. There were 24 counties split in the House plan because of excess population. Ten others were split so they would comply with the one-man, one-vote principle and to comply with state and federal laws. There were double splits in two counties, based on historical divisions.

A MALFUNCTION

An Air Force tracking aircraft disintegrated with 21 people aboard because an unknown malfunction in a control system slammed the plane into a fatal dive, the Air Force said recently.

ON BUTTER

President Reagan wants to sell surplus U.S. butter abroad, but only to countries agreeing not to resell it to the Soviet Union, a White House spokesman said recently.

NEWS NOTES

WANTS RULING

WASHINGTON -- The Iranian government and the Justice Department pressed the Supreme Court for a speedy ruling on the legality of the agreement that freed the 52 American hostages from Iran.

ON SINKHOLE

WINTERPARK, FLA. -- Two men in an aluminum boat, tethered to an overhead cable have sounded the depths of the Great Winter Park Sinkhole and found that it is about 125 feet deep. The finding will help geologists decide whether the sinkhole has stabilized enough to be filled in, and how much material it will take.

WINS ELECTION

DUBLIN, IRELAND -- Prime Minister Charles Haughey said recently he will try to form a government despite his party's apparent failure to win a parliamentary majority and the loss of a seat to an IRA guerrilla jailed in Northern Ireland.

POOR WASHING HABITS

BOSTON -- Doctors and nurses often fail to wash up after handling patients' bandages and tubes, and their dirty hands may be a major contributor to diseases that spread within hospitals, a study concludes. Such hospital-spread illnesses are called nosocomial infections.

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower
U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS
142 RUSSELL OFFICE BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

One of the most basic principles of our government is due process of law. The government cannot imprison its citizens, or search their homes, or deprive them of property without giving them recourse through the legal procedure to argue their case. In fact, the burden of proof is on the government, which must show there is a justifiable reason for the action.

Yet, because of court decisions which define long distance telephone records as the property of the telephone company, the government can subpoena and obtain your records -- and you might not even know that it had been done for 90 days after the records are in the government's possession.

I have introduced legislation to give telephone customers due process of law in the procedure. It would not keep the Justice Department or other government entities from getting records needed in criminal cases. But it would insure that this process is not abused, and that individuals and businesses have the fundamental right to know when their own activities -- making long-distance telephone calls -- are being used against them.

There is precedent for this law. In fact, it is patterned after similar legislation regarding banking records. That legislation has not impeded the judicial process. When the government needs an individual's bank records, it issues a subpoena. If the individual wishes to contest it, he appears at a court hearing and provides the reasons. The judge then makes a decision after hearing BOTH sides.

The government has moved too far in recent years in injecting itself into the lives of its citizens. Reversing that process must be one of the highest priorities of our government.

In some cases, that will mean eliminating regulations which either fail to accomplish any worthwhile purpose, or which fall outside the jurisdiction of the federal government.

In other cases, it will mean changing the federal funding structure from specific, highly regulated categorical grants to less specific block grants which return the decision-making process to more local levels.

But this is one case in which getting government out of a "big brother" role will require legislative action.

The most active advocates of this legislation have been news organizations, because their records have been subpoenaed without notice in several cases.

But this bill would not be limited in its applications to reporters and their news organizations. It is a protection all Americans deserve.

I introduced a similar bill in the last Congress, and no action was taken. It is my hope that it will be enacted, either as a separate bill or as an amendment to related legislation during this Congress.

Mr. Corn Producer !

Over forty-five million bushels of corn which is equal to all the total 1979 corn production in Bailey, Castro, and Parmer Counties, which was sold to Russia before the grain embargo, is now stored in various Hi-Plains elevators within a radius of seventy-five miles of Plainview, Texas.

At their discretion the U.S.D.A. can sell all or part of this stored corn in direct competition against your corn production this year.

Minimum losses to the corn producer is estimated to be 50% per hundred and possibly more.

You can do something!!

The Grain Sorghum Producers Association (G.S.P.A.) is planning to take legal action against the U.S.D.A. regarding the corn sales--

But G.S.P.A. cannot contest the U.S.D.A. unless sufficient funds are available to hire lawyers.

You, Mr. Corn Grower, can get into this fight by contributing to the :

G.S.P.A. Legal Fund

Abernathy, Texas 79311

or call 806-298-2543

Deadline for funds is July 10, 1981.
