BOY IS KILLED HERE BY HIT & RUN DRIVER

J. L. Whitted, 17-year old... day laborer of Kingston, Tenn. was almost instantly killed Thursday night by an unidentified "bob-tail" truck a few hundred yards south of the Sumrow Filling Station at the South "Y". A brother and another youth were working along the road when the accident happened at about 11:30 p. m. The truck did not stop. Roy King, state highway patrolman, is working on the case but there are few clues.

Whitted's body was sent to Ten Mile, Tenn. Saturday night for burial. Accompanying the remains was Whitted's brother, Jack, who was walking with him along the highway. The youth received a broken leg and head injuries. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Kem Whitted, he was born Nov. 5, 1929 in Texas and 3 brothers, Junior, Jack and Bill live back home at Ten Mile. The Dawson county officers are driving around with members of the highway patrol; but little results are expected.

This is the second hit and run death in and near O'Donnell in the past six months. The last was that of a baby girl and nothing was ever found.

It would seem to the Index that the counties and Texas needs professional officers instead of politicians; wit hour crime rate mounting we need modern day detectives.

UNION CHURCH SERVICE TO HEAR DRY SPEAKER

A SPECIAL COMMUNITY WIDE SERVICE AT THE METHODIST CHURCH will be held SUNDAY morning at 11: a m at which time PFF. ROY M. CLAYTON of Seagraves, representative of the United Texas Drys, will speak.

The pastors and congregations of all the Churches of the town are invited to attend and participate in this service.

The legalized liquor traffic in Texas and in our nation is the most hideous, defiling enemy of our commonwealth. This is a curse that challenges every good citizen, and more especially the entire christianity of our s rral churches. This is a communal, wide service in which the churches of the town are participating. The theme for this service is "Temperance" and the entire program is built around that theme. Hymns, appropriate for the occasion, led by a large choir, will be featured. All singers of the several churches are invited to the Choir. All pastors present will have a part on the program. Rev. Clayton will preach. Everyone is cordially invited to attend, especially do we invite all the young people of the community. The United Texas Drys is a state organization which is leading in the fight against this evil, legalized liquor traffic. Come, and let's give this great organization our moral support.

The Pastors of the O'Donnell Churches.

GRADE QUEEN CROWNED

Those who attended the football game last Thursday nite and the coronation of the Lamesa and O'Donnell elementary football queens are high in their praises of the manner in which the affair was carried out. The game was between the Lamesa Breezes and the O'Donnell Cowboys composed of players from the 7th and 8th grades of the two schools with the O'Donnell team winning 13 to 7.

Each school selected a football queen and during the half of the game the ceremony was held. This was worked out in a novel manner and much credit goes to Lee Simpson in designing and building the O'Donnell float. The float was a large white football with white and red streamers floating from the ends, mounted on a jeep also covered in white and decorated with flowers, driven on to the field, stopping in the center of a heart formed by the children of the O'Donnell elementary school.

The football was opened to reveal the two young football queens, their majesties, Kay Wiggins of Lamesa and Nancy Gale Everett and her escort, Jack Worthington. The queens were both dressed in pink evening dresses and wore crowns of silver.

The crowns were placed on the girls' heads by the football captains of the respective schools. All lights were turned off on the field leaving only lights within the football throne to bring out the pagantry as the ceremony took place. The lighted jeep then circled the field to give all a view of the queens.

O'Donnell's queen's attendants were:

5th Grade: Frances Vandivere & escort, Norman Hooten

6th grade: Sue Randolph and escort, Wyndell Edwards

7th grade: Patricia Fralin, and escort, Kellas Davis, co-copt.

8th grade: Cleo Fultz, and escort her twin brother, Theo Fultz, capt.

The majorettes were Helen Jones of the Pop Squad and Dickie Marie Harris of the Rhythm band. It was estimated that a crowd of about 400 attended this colorful event.

HOME FROM HUNTS

Home from the hunt are Elmer Wright, E. W. McMurtrey, A. R. McMurtrey, Howard Wright, and Louell Wright. They got in Monday and were sporting two big bucks. The hunt was northwest of Springer, N. M. E. W. came back out of breath for the mountain air and telling of snow filled canyons. He patted the deer lovingly but said such sport would last him for at least a year.

The Gibson party arrived over the week end with two deer; they hunted near Pie Town.

Setting a record for haste in getting two deer, Melvin Eaker and F. M. Page left here Friday and were back home Saturday spending only 2 1-2 hours hunting time. They hunted near Rock Springs and paid only $5 a day hunting lease while leases around Keerville were from $25 up. F. M. said there were many times more hunters than deer and you were taking your life in your hands in going into the hills.

Mr and Mrs. Bart Burns of Melrose New M. visited Mrs. E. C. Ward over the week end. Bart is employed by the REA at Melrose.

Roy "Hoot", Roy, Jr. and Blondie Barnett returned from Pie Town sporting two bucks: 9 and 10 points —and they also got a bear. The party trailed the critter all day in deep snow only to lose him; also they returned with a winter's supply of pinto.

Mr and Mrs. G C Aten visited Mrs. Aten's folks near Austin and while there G C nabbed a nice buck; also he brought back a bushel basket of Indian relics found there.

TEETER HOME BURNS SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Sunday afternoon at about four, fire of unknown origin gutted the interior of the home of Walter Teeter, our bakery owner. The exterior of the house was only slightly damaged but most of the household furniture was damaged or destroyed. Much clothing was saved, especially from a rear bedroom. The property was insured.

Mr and Mrs. Teeter were away on a vacation and were returning home being stranded at Roby with car trouble at the time of the fire. At the time of the fire there was no one at home.

The prompt arrival and efficient work of the City Fire Department held the loss to a minimum; it is difficult to estimate the worth of a fire department until fire breaks out — so much of life and property depends upon this small group of men who stands between a family and disaster. Good going, boys!

The menu will appear next week. Much favorable comment has been heard on the attractive appearance of the cemetery at the work.

PAVING PROJECT IS BEING PRESENTED

At a joint meeting of lot owners around the square and the City Council, the business group is proceeding to secure paving agreements at no more, probably less, than $87.50 per 25 running feet; the city will vote on paving the center one third. The price seems very high at first thought, but the paving projected would be like hiway 87 and should last for many years without repairs.

The Index is a pick-up station for typewriters, adding machines & scales for the Virgil Williams Typewriter Service of Lamesa. Virgil was formerly part owner of the Lamesa Reporter.

Mrs. Shorty Summers is returning home Wednesday after an operation last week at Lamesa.

Harvey "Windmill" Castleberry is still talking of the upset ball game at Tahoka —even if attending the game did cost him $30 in doctor bills. It seems that after the game Harvey grabbed a burger with mustard on top at one of Frank Hill's home town "joints".

Long came midnite and Harvey jumped straight up in bed, his hand to his mouth — his stomach was making an end run around his gullet — and away he was carted to a Lamesa hospital where it costs to even knock on the door.

Harvey swears the burger was off of a beef killed in the plow-up year of '34.

A dry year may not necessarily spell disaster even planting as late as July 15th. B. B. Street of Harmony, has a strip of recent sod of 40 acres that is making 1500 lbs of grain to the acre. This yield is above the average for the rest of his place which is estimated at about 1,000 lbs per acre. Hitting a dry July and August, the grain stood only a few inches high marking time and with the rainy storm of Aug. 30, 31 and Sept. 2nd the grain jumped forward turning in a record growth for Sept. and October. The above is cited as it is much the same story over the area where rain came in time to plant.

Russian delegates are privately stating that if the veto power of the Big 4 is cancelled, Russia will take it on the lam for home. . . . They invariably show up in Broadway drug store windows (on sale for 19c) a few months later. A certain syndicate is letting column-raiders take all they want for their alleged books. . . . Then, next year, demand an accounting and royalties from their publishers at $1 per copy.

He knew what the One Ring meant, and he would call right back. . . . This system, however, was her undoing. . . . When she started two-timing him, some of his pals heard about it but didn't want to wound him by informing him directly. . . . U. N. Converts Modern War Plant Into Peace Factory

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y.—At this writing, committees of the United Nations are still meeting in the great modernistic factory building, now converted into a plant for the manufacture of international good will. A hundred committee meetings are being held in the rooms where once the delicate machinery turning out instruments of warfare once hummed merrily and efficiently.

Baukhage

Here delegates to the assembly of the United Nations, split up into groups, tackle the various subjects allotted to them just as the committees of congress discuss the bills and agree upon their form before they are submitted to the "committee of the whole house" for consideration and action.

The difference is that the assembly, unlike congress, cannot pass laws, it can only express the will of the majority. Its value is to register, before the world, world opinion as expressed by the nations which make up the United Nations. This is the first step toward a world government whose chief purpose is to police the world against war.

While the committee meetings were taking place the security council, which compares roughly with the senate, held some of its meetings in the same building, for unlike the assembly, which meets only once a year, the security council is a continuing body.

The Council of Foreign Ministers, which also is meeting in New York, is a body entirely separate from the United Nations.

Saddle U. S. With U. N. Expenses

It was characteristic of the desire to maintain a "realistic" attitude (let us hope) which resulted in the emphasis on fiscal matters, causing newspapers on the first day's committee meetings to display a head like this:

U. S. OPPOSES PAYING HALF OF U. N.'S BILLS

At the meeting of the budgetary committee, Senator Vandenberg got in a sly dig when he suggested that if the other nations felt the American economic system was so good that it could put up half the money to run the organization perhaps they might adopt a similar system. Capitalist America would pay 49.89 per cent of U. N.'s bills while Communist Russia, although much greater in size and population, would provide 6 per cent in the plan submitted. Of course, any amount balanced against the price of war is small.

Powerful Committees Are in the Making

The work of the committees of the assembly covers a wide scope, since besides offering the sounding board for world opinion and controlling the pursestrings of the whole organization, the committees likewise supervise the several important subsidiary agencies, some of which will become extremely powerful when and if they carry out the duties planned for them. For instance, the many plans for improving living standards and social relations throughout the world, which is the purpose of the economic and social council, and the projected trusteeship council which will oversee the relationship between the dependent countries and the nations held responsible for their control and welfare.

Another important function of the assembly is initiating amendments to the charter, and this session bristled with talk among the smaller countries for amending provisions governing the power of the veto in security council.

Russians Vie to Last Minute

Early in the meetings of the general committee (the steering committee) and in the assembly itself, it became evident that the Russians were following a general plan of procedure which was not unlike that which had appeared and still is appearing in all the controversies. The Russian delegates frequently oppose violently a point and then, when they see that they are beaten, yield. Sometimes this looks like pure obstructionism; sometimes it seems merely an effort to display strength and combativeness, sometimes it is only a patent move to keep Russia in the forefront of the negotiations as a force with which to be reckoned.

There is also the language barrier. Probably there are no more competent performers among the various types of experts than the translators at these international gatherings. Much has been written of their remarkable ability to translate, without taking a single note, long paragraphs of some speakers who get so deep in their subjects that they forget that the translator is waiting patiently to translate one segment before the speaker goes on to the next.

Prize of them all is Pavlov, the lean and scholarly looking young man who appears to wrap himself about Molotov or Vishinsky and with his lips close to the listener's ear pours in the words so rapidly that it would appear they synchronize with the movement of the speaker's lips.

But even a perfect translation may produce a different meaning, just as the same word may mean two different things in the same language to two different pairs of ears.

You may recall the famous Molotov outburst at the opening of the assembly, the speech in which the Russian delegate demanded disarmament, objected to the Baruch atomic energy plan and went right down the line walloping everything in sight. As I remarked earlier, there was more smoke than fire in that tirade and American Delegate Austin, suspecting as much, made the terse comment on the speech, "smart but tough."

When the translations came back from the report in the Russian press Austin's words became "smart but sharp."

Now it may be that "tough" is a tougher word in Russian than it is in English because the Russians' ordinary conduct in such and some other matters, all the way from dancing to breakfasting on vodka, may be what we would consider tougher than the Anglo-Saxon approach.

Americans Conscious Of Foreign Policy

Most Americans do not realize how far this nation has gone in the establishment of a foreign policy built on popular desire. In the past, the foreign policy of the United States always had been a rather vague thing to people in general, something evolved behind a screen of formal phrases in the ancient high-ceilinged offices of the old state department building, where they still have marble fireplaces that really work in some of the rooms.

In the early days the subject was kept out of domestic politics simply because the politicians knew that the people knew as little as they did as to what it was all about and didn't care any more. Then came the famous Wilson versus Lodge fight over the League of Nations, which was really something far deeper than that, a fight of two powerful personalities and two different concepts of government—not world government but domestic government. Lodge and Wilson became so definitely committed to their own respective views that they couldn't afford to compromise.

After that, each party considered it fair game to tip the other up the back when it came to a discussion on foreign affairs and the fine old tradition (which was really a negative thing) "foreign affairs ends at the shore line," was split wide open.

And then the bloody conflict of World War II made people realize that Democratic and Republican blood when it flowed on the battlefield was the same color and caused the same gaping wounds at home.

The campaign which we have just witnessed, while it was characterized with the same old fuss and fury of the past, omitted the question of foreign policy except when it was raised by persons already discredited by both major parties.

That is the hope, as I see it, for American dominance, for the dominance of the American idea of human freedom. We have learned that when it comes to facing the world, we meet it shoulder to shoulder as Americans and nothing else.

BARBS . . . by Baukhage

One of the problems of the United Nations is to find out whether the Russians prefer to export caviar or Communism. . . .

Did you ever think when your mother made you use an atomizer to clear your head of a cold that "atomizers" might lay a million people cold? Is this progress?

The difference between a Communist and a fellow-traveler is that one knows where he wants to go and the other is being taken for a ride.

Paul Scott Mowrer says that Russia has solved the problems of the economic cycles (the booms and busts of capitalism) by achieving a permanent depression.

Kathleen Norris Says:

The Selfish, Dishonest Wife

Bell Syndicate.—WNU Features

"Late in the afternoon she and her crowd are giggling at a bar in some fashionable lounge."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

HOW is it that a woman like Ethel Davis can get away with what she does? How is it that while thousands of women are steadily meeting their obligations as wives and mothers, Ethel can break every law in the book, and not be thrown out of society as the outlaw she is?

All wives have faults; so have all men. We all fail each other part of the time. A wife can be irritable when she is tired, but that may make her only the more loving and sorry when the time comes to make up. A wife may be extravagant in one glaring instance, but she is sorry for it, and a little scared, when the milliner's bill comes in, and she makes Tom's favorite dessert for dinner and resolves to wear that hat for two solid seasons. A wife may know that she is too fussy, or too suspicious, or too slipshod about getting the marketing and the dusting done promptly, but if she is a real wife she does try to improve, she does feel sorry for poor old Tom, she does grow spiritually year by year.

Not Ethel Davis. Ethel was completely satisfied when she married Ferd Davis seven years ago, and she is as smug as ever now. She has two children, a boy and a girl, and she talks as if no woman alive had gone through the ordeal of having children before. Ferd carries up a tray to Ethel every morning, and a high school girl comes in for 50 cents a morning and gives the children their breakfast and starts them off to nursery school. Ethel gets up at 10 and goes downtown to lunch with friends. Then it's a beauty parlor or a movie, and late in the afternoon she and her crowd are giggling at a bar in some fashionable lounge. Perhaps then the telephones home to the woman who comes in at a dollar an hour every afternoon that she won't be home to dinner. If she does come home it is to cuddle her babies, give them candy and toys and shriek like a siren if Ferd comes in hungry, tired and critical. The children scream too, and cling to their mother. Ferd is an outsider in his own home.

'Hates to Go on Living.'

Ferd gives me this account of his marriage in a seven-page typewritten outburst. He says he's been considering everything; desertion, kidnapping his own children, divorce, suicide. He wants to know if there isn't a tribunal where a marriage like his could be rated; isn't there any standard, any graph by which his friends could know that his rating of marital happiness is about three per cent?

"Nursery school includes lunch and naps," writes Ferd, "and costs me $70 a month. The school girl gets $12 and old Minnie about $80. My salary is $75 a week, and commissions. Ethel cashes small checks at the grocery and drugstore about three times a week.

"Of course I can't swing it. I sweat myself crazy for commissions; I've borrowed all my life insurance will carry. My father left a farm that I'm crazy about, to my bachelor brother and me; now I'm going to sell him my share. But then what? Don't say 'talk to Ethel'; all she does is get shrill, and mad and say that I needn't think I married a servant.

"There's divorce, of course. But

"She may wake up into real womanhood."

UNHAPPY HUSBAND

Ethel Davis is a thoroughly selfish woman. She is a wife and mother, but she wants all the freedom of her single days, plus the security and support to which a married woman is entitled. Although her children are very young, being four and five years old, she leaves them in the care of high school girls and old women. Most of the day she spends at movies, beauty shops or card parties, topped off with a few drinks with her crowd. Her house is neglected. She has little interest in her home except to cuddle her children now and then.

Poor Ferd Davis is trying to go along with her as best he can, but he is reaching the end of his tether.

If he could he would settle on a farm that he has recently inherited from his father, but he knows that Ethel would refuse to leave the city. He doesn't care about Ethel any longer, but he dearly loves his children. He is asking Miss Norris what to do, in a long, bitter letter.

What of Sharon and Ferd? I'd die for my kids, but I don't seem to know how to live for them. Is there any way out of this mess? I've gotten so low that I hate to go on living."

I think there is a way out of this mess, Ferd, and you indicate yourself what it might be. Many a man could take it, when faced with your problem, but not quite so simply as you can.

Go to the Farm.

Tell Ethel that you have decided to live on the farm with the children. Any man has the right to decide that he will be a farmer instead of a city clerk. Move out there, perhaps notifying certain shops in your city that you are closing your account with them. If you must borrow to get the farm paying; borrow. Chickens and milk, potatoes and apples are bringing higher prices than they ever have in the history of the world.

Ethel will have to come with you, or leave you. Either way you will have the right to make terms. You cannot possibly take care of babies of 5 and 4 in a city apartment, but you'll have no trouble with them on a farm. The nearest farmer's wife will run their clothes through her washing machine, and they'll be with you all day long, in a child's paradise.

The other day I was asked in a questionnaire what quality I thought most essential to success; that is, the worldly success of fame and wealth, independence and security. After some reflection I said "imagination." Whether it's running a boarding house or writing a novel, you must have imagination if you are to escape from the rut, see far enough ahead to discern a shining goal. Put your imagination to work, Ferd, upon just what this turning of the tables will mean to a selfish, extravagant, stupid wife. Get back to the soil, and give your wife every chance to accompany you. If she won't, she forfeits income, position, home, and she cannot claim alimony. If she comes, there's just a chance that she may wake up into real womanhood.

CATTLE POISONED BY METAL

Molybdenum poisoning has been playing havoc with dairy herds in a 400-square-mile area of California, largely in Kern county, reports the University of California. An overabundance of molybdenum in pastures of the area has been shown by recent studies to be the cause of the disease, which develops slowly. Cattle are made ill only after weeks of feeding in the contaminated pastures. They become emaciated and anemic and their coats fade.

Murder in Plain Sight
by GERALD BROWN
W.N.U. FEATURES

Duke McCale, private detective, is guarding the wedding presents at the Bigelow mansion. While he is talking with wealthy old Miss Adelaide Bigelow, they hear a shot. A moment later, Curt Vallincourt, the bridegroom-to-be, dies in the front hallway. McCale slips away before the police arrive, and buries to Vallincourt's apartment to search for clues. There he meets Shari Lynn, a singer, and former wife of Vallincourt. She apparently knows of the shooting, and betrays herself under McCale's clever questioning. He notes that she wears a green dress, as did the woman he saw running away from the scene. Shari admits that she was nearby when Vallincourt was shot.

CHAPTER IX

"He was a long way ahead of me. There was another dame coming up over the Hill road that meets the path he was on at the gate by the Bigelow house."

"You're sure of that, Miss Lynn? Remember, you may be making a dangerous accusation."

Rage flared up in her. She jumped up. "Dangerous accusation," she screamed. "I should say it was. She killed him—that little blue-blood. Killed him! I tell you I saw her. He's dead. Dead!"

He crossed to her quickly, shaking her by the shoulders. "Take it easy. You're in a spot yourself. Whoever it was that met Vallincourt at that gate had on a green suit or dress."

Angrily she brushed his hands from her arms, faced him.

"I know that. She had on a green suit. I saw it. But I was a long way off, I tell you. You're not getting me for this just because I'm wearing this green thing. I wouldn't have killed Curt. God, I loved him. I loved him."

Her body sagged away from him. Her voice was low and harsh, was a cry of despair, as though her throat were all burned out.

McCale left Shari Lynn slumped on the couch. He knew it was useless to talk to her anymore. She wouldn't be of any help.

He went quickly through an ornate bedroom which had a fabulous connecting bath of chromium and glass. There were two closets of expensive linen and haberdashery. He had never seen so many shirts, ties, shoes, socks, and collars outside a department store. And he went through everything.

But there wasn't a single thing to give him a lead, to use as evidence—not a letter, a receipt, a bill—not even a stray address. The murdered man had played it pretty smart and close to the ground.

Disgruntled, he went back into the living room and out the front door.

It was nine-fifteen when the buzzer in McCale's outer office announced a late caller. McCale laughed, "How are you, Bart?"

Donlevy Trades
Some Knowledge

"Ready to take you over the hurdles for sneaking out on me this afternoon." Donlevy's smile belied his growl.

McCale smiled back at him steadily. He liked the man. He had the look of careful grooming not often associated with the police. You would place him at about forty; a large man, bulking powerful and tall against the heavy door. He was of the new school of officers so widely heralded but often ridiculed—college bred, scientifically trained and carefully chosen.

"I'm not really sore," he began. "I only wondered why you took a powder when you and Adelaide Bigelow were practically the only eye witnesses to this ghastly business. It dawned on me very soon when I found no keys on the corpse that you'd gone to Vallincourt's apartment to steal a march on me. Was that nice?" He raised an eyebrow facetiously.

"Not nice, but necessary from my point of view. I've got second look before—after your squad has fine-toothed a place—and there's never been a hairpin left for us fellows."

"What exactly did you find from being first this time?"

"Nary a clue. The place was as clean as a bone. Beyond getting a good idea of what the lad who lived there was like, there wasn't a false whisker for my trouble."

"The setup he had was quite revealing, wasn't it? Pure Hollywood—half De Mille, half Dorothy Draper. Very suggestive. Is that all you have found?"

"I found a woman."

McCale never felt it accomplished anything to hold out on Donlevy. It only promoted misunderstanding and ill feeling. It was much better to get the evidence first. That was all.

He watched the quick interest flash across Donlevy's eyes before he controlled it, before he said casually, "I would call that a clue, Duke."

"Well?" he questioned. "Shari Lynn, the chanteuse, at present of the Latin Quarter and 'The Abbey'."

"Umm—I've heard of her."

McCale went on, then, to tell of his encounter with the night club singer. He told it all, what she had said, how she had looked, bringing the complete picture before Donlevy in a manner that insured the detective of every detail.

"You think then," the lieutenant queried when at last McCale was silent, "that there was an old affair between them? Something in your telling it makes me feel you are convinced that it was not too recent—something flaring up again after a long time."

McCale nodded. He closed his eyes a moment, then opened one, as if the other still shuttered an inner thought. "I'm sure of it," he said. "I'm sure you'll find that they may even have been man and wife at one time—that they have never been out of touch with each other for long."

Donlevy digested this. "Then?" "Oh sure, Lynn was back there after any letters of hers that Vallincourt may have kept. I don't think there were any there, however. There wasn't even a stray phone number chalked on the bathroom wall, if you get what I mean."

"Quite. It was exactly as if the place had been cleaned of everything by the boy himself. Kind of disappointing, what? Because from everything we know, it doesn't seem as though that kind of gent would ever destroy a compromising missive of any kind whatever."

"You were a fool to come directly here."

"True. There is the possibility of a safe deposit box at some bank." "That's been checked. He had a small balance at a downtown bank, but no box of any kind."

McCale hunched himself over his glass for a minute, musing. "It becomes very confusing, then. For he must have got rid of every thing last night or today. Before"—he stared unblinkingly at the rim of his glass—"just before he went to his death."

A long minute went by, while the fire crackled merrily in the grate—while each one of the three thought his own thoughts about this conjecture. It was Donlevy who finally shrugged it away with a sour look.

Duke McCale paused in front of the big man, Donlevy. The gray-haired police inspector looked up at him and said, "I suppose in return for your information you want to be brought up to date."

"That's only fair," McCale smiled.

Donlevy had never once let him down in a matter of this kind, though he covered it always with an air of assumed ill grace.

Suspicion Settles
On Veronica

"Here it is, then, for what it's worth," he said. "There was, in the Bigelow house at the time of the murder, besides Adelaide Bigelow and yourself, the cook, an upstairs maid, and the butler, King. The cook was preparing dinner. The maid, Kitty Shane, was hanging round the kitchen. They're out, obviously. No motive, no opportunity. King was fixing a tray of hors d'oeuvres for the usual cocktail hour. He's out for the same reason. None of them saw or heard a thing until the prolonged ringing of the bell."

"About five minutes after the ringing car got there, I arrived. It was then about twenty minutes since Vallincourt had been shot. Shortly after that, the family began to wander in and I questioned them in the order of their appearance. Sybil and Stephen, her son, came in together. She said she had walked from the church across the Gardens, stopping at Shackley's drugstore for cigarettes. She had chatted a few minutes with the clerk, whom she knew. She met Stephen as she came out of the store. He had been wandering along Charles street, just killing time, he said. Likes to walk in the rain—that sort of thing."

"There's a jangled lad for you," McCale wagged a finger. "Neurotic. Worried about his wife. Was probably out hunting her up, wherever she was."

"Sybil is no calm, strong pioneer woman either. Collapsed like a balloon at the news. You'd think Val-lincourt was her own cheek-ild to hear her rave."

"To get on with it, the Garboish Karen is quite another ticket. As masklike and cold as the Snow Queen. Concerned, but unruffled, if you know what I mean. She turned a shade whiter, if that's possible, but I got the distinct impression she'd only walk around the corpse and go on her way. A bit too controlled."

"Victoria was next. She blew in with a book under her arm. Had been browsing around the Public Library—walked home."

McCale pursed his lips. "I imagine she screamed once, made an inappropriate remark and had a long hooker of whisky on it."

"You are very adroit." "I've an unusual mind, I guess," said McCale facetiously. "What crack did she make?"

"She looked down at the corpse in a kind of mixture of fright and sheer excitement and said, 'Then someone did have the nerve!'"

McCale whistled.

Donlevy turned a page. "Christopher Storm—the guy that didn't get the girl—or almost didn't, what? He probably will now. He swears that he was walking back and forth along the lower Common path, hoping to intercept Veronica on her way home if she should come that way. She didn't show, so he came on up to the house. There's a funny thing, Duke, them all breaking up in onesies after the wedding rehearsal. Oh, well. We come now to Veronica, the bride."

"Veronica drove up in a cab—the last to arrive. She was strangely excited, I thought. She'd been doing some last minute shopping, saw it was getting late and got a cab at the corner of Boylston and Tremont." He hesitated. "... she said." He let his last two words hang in the air.

A devastating conversational abyss yawned, for McCale made no reply. Minutes ticked away. When he did speak, it was quietly.

"She is the obvious suspect, of course, Bart. The accusation of Shari Lynn; the fact that both Miss Bigelow and I saw a girl in green running away from the scene directly after the murder. Too bad she should have picked the corner of Boylston and Tremont street to get her cab. There are very few shops there and, as you have noted, the path running from the gate opposite the Bigelow house, over the hill by the cannon, ends at that precise point."

"Hardly coincidence." McCale shrugged. "What about the weapon?"

"She must have thrown it away." "Then the area in which to search for it is small. A woman cannot throw too far."

"I know that." A thwarted look came over Donlevy's craggy face. "We've had a special squad hunting it for three hours. So far, not a sign of it. We've actually used floodlights and turned up every fallen leaf, emptied every ash barrel in the park, with no luck."

Where Is the Murder Gun?

"That, then, for the moment, is that."

Funny, but McCale's mind seemed relieved.

The case was dropped momentarily while they talked of pleasant things. It was nearly twelve when Donlevy stood up to go.

"I rather thought," he said at the door, "that you were retained by the old lady Bigelow to get at the truth. Now, I'm sure you're hired to protect the girl." He tried to put it over with a slow smile.

"Nothing of the sort has been suggested to me, I can assure you," McCale returned his smile sardonically. "That's the truth."

"Okay. I have my duty to do, you know."

"I'd find the weapon first."

"Oh, sure, sure. We'll find it."

The echo of Barton Donlevy's footsteps had hardly died on the stairs when McCale, standing before the dying fire, spoke.

"I held out on the torn bit of letter."

"So I see, chief. You don't think the girl in green was the Veronica dame, then?"

"Maybe."

There was a silence for a minute, then Rocky said, "They have not found the rod."

"No." McCale's eyes lighted up as he looked quizzically at his friend and employee. He smiled as though he knew what Rocky was thinking.

"Didn't you say the gal who ran away stopped a minute to look back when she got to the cannon on the hill?"

"Yes."

"Well, chief," he jumped up, "you've been waiting to see if I'd think of it. Of course I have. After all, I've heard you tell it three times. That gun ought to be in the belly of that cannon."

They left the office in a mad rush. A cab deposited them in rapid time at the Common entrance. It was late and any police who had been searching for the gun were gone.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF

WASHINGTON. — If you think times are tough today, drop in at the public library and ask for the back files of any newspaper for the fall of 1919 or the early part of 1920. That period was just about as long after World War I as we now are from World War II and the headlines are amazingly similar.

In fact, with the mere change of a few names, a glance at 1919-20 headlines would almost convince you that you were reading the newspapers of today.

We were having the same troubles with Russia then—only a little worse, with American troops in Siberia and Murmansk. The northern Adriatic, as now, was the chief bone of contention at the Paris peace conference. Only it was Flame instead of Trieste which caused riots in the streets of Rome and Belgrade.

"Jews Massacred, Robbed by Poles," was another tragic but familiar headline. "Foresees Jewish state in Palestine. Judge Julian Mack tells of atrocities and asks for migration to Jewish homeland."

"Pershing denies large quantities of war goods destroyed in France." "Rep. Emerson offers resolution asking war department to what extent soldiers were overcharged in France." "War department criticized for offering $4,000,000 worth of fabrics for sale at public auction." "Sergeants arrested in Paris charged with theft of American stores."

When it came to strikes, race riots and soaring prices, the domestic scene of 1919 was even more alarming. Labor troubles caused far more bloodshed. The alleged Communist menace was much worse.

May day celebrations in Chicago, Cleveland, Boston and New York produced riots, "citizens' armies" and an untold number of skull and political fractures.

By July 6, 1919, the army stood at 704,845, with 235,000 of these in Europe. Eight months later when the Junkers and German army seized power in Berlin, forcing the Ebert government to flee to Dresden, the American army of occupation totaled a nervous 18,000.

Meanwhile, the war department was recommending a universal military training program of three months for all 18-year-olds—more or less as today.

Unchecked by governmental pleas and voluntary programs, prices spiraled. Shoes were three times their prewar price and women's stockings were offered at "2-$25 a pair." Coffee prices jumped 7 cents a pound and, although the government declared 11 cents a pound a fair price for sugar, it was selling for 30 cents within a year. "Food now costs N. Y. residents 86 per cent more than six years ago," announced the New York Times.

Only a national "buyers' strike" in 1920, with prominent society women feeding their families on a dollar a day while their husbands were wearing overalls to their Broadway offices, changed the trend.

New York clergymen were making a survey of churches in an attempt to ease the housing shortage.

Headlines on August 16, 1919, don't seem out of place today. "Director General of Railroads Hines sees danger of coal gouging. Cautions senate that rumors on shortage may pave way for price advance." "Begin jailing Germans as war offenders." "Amendments to food control act supported and fought before congress committees."

All this and prohibition too. "Thousands return to Europe, blaming prohibition here."

Not only were there strikes, but also there were the same, familiar strikes. Telegraph and telephone workers, maritime and a steel strike lasting into the fourth month. . . . Omaha faced a general strike. . . . In the spring of 1919, 10,000 men were locked out of the Willys-Overland plant in Toledo, a strike committee controlled Winnipeg and police were using machine guns in Connecticut strike riots.

In the fall of 1919 a United Mine Workers' strike closed all bituminous coal mines and produced a news story headed "Lewis says mines' demands are 'subject to negotiation'—puts blame on operators."

No, history is just the same. History always repeats after a war.

Household
Hints

To stop grease from spluttering in your frying pan sift a speck of flour into it.

Sewing machines should be oiled after every five or six hours of use.

Paint splattered on glass comes off rather easily if you use a cloth moistened with turpentine. If it has dried hard use a razor blade, scraping lightly to avoid scratching.

Combine equal quantities of pitted, chopped, cooked prunes and marmalade. Cut doughnuts crosswise, spread with the marmalade mixture and put together again sandwich fashion.

AIR MEET AT LUBBOCK

The annual convention of the Texas State Council of the National Aeronautics Association will meet in Lubbock Nov. 22, 23, 24 according to Fred H. Lindell, San Angelo, president of the Council. Among the topics to be discussed by the convention is the establishment of a state headquarters for the Council with a paid manager to coordinate the activities and efforts of, and to serve the local groups. Adequate financing of such a comprehensive program will also be taken up. Other topics which will be brought before the gathering are examination of proposed state legislation pertaining to aeronautics, adoption of a policy of action of the part of the council in this legislation.

WATCH FOR TICKS

With the hunting season now open, the State Health Department, is urging that all hunters or other persons spending time in wooded areas use all possible precautions against being bitten by ticks which may infect the victim with relapsing fever. He further advises that when a tick is found, it be removed from the body as soon as possible and that care be taken not to crush the ticks in handling.

Tick bite fever is contracted either from the bite of infected ticks or by absorbing the infectious material thru breaks or scratches in the skin.

The disease does not spread from person to person by direct contact but only thru the bite of an infected tick or body louse. Prompt removal of the insect is of the utmost importance.

Relapsing fever, commonly called tick-bite fever, is characterized by sudden onset, intense headache located in the front part of the head and pains in the back and limbs. The fever lasts from three to five days before slowly declining. The temperature will then remain normal for about a week when the fever repeats itself. There may be three, four or even more such relapses, which accounts for the name of the disease.

Dr. Cox said that the wearing of suitable clothing so as to prevent ticks getting next to the skin is of importance in the prevention of this disease. The insects may be removed with the fingers but the use of tweezers is recommended since this helps to prevent leaving the head embedded in the skin. After removing or handling a tick, the hands should be washed carefully with soap and water.

Prize fighters don't have the picturesque names they used to have. The negro boxer who fought in the old Phoenix Athletic Club in Memphis, Tenn had such handles as Joplin Ghost (he was a scientific boxer); Hoek Bones and, even more striking — the name, not necessarily the punches — Egg Head Ratty.

Of a public official who fancied himself as a speaker, a rival said, "He never opens his mouth but what he subtracts from the sum total of human knowledge."

Then there was the statesman who answered the speech of an opponent with "The gentleman is indebted to his memory for his humor and to his imagination for his statistics."

J. M. He told of an early day citizen of Ft. Worth who ran a boarding house. This citizen decided to run for mayor and received 11 votes. The ex-candidate put a notice in the paper that if those who voted for him would come by, he would be glad to have them as his guests for Sunday dinner. So many came that it took three hours to feed them all!

BOOKS 'TALK' FOR BLIND . . . Sightless readers get an inkling of the personalities of leading authors through the Talking Book editions of their works. Here Edna Ferber, at the New York sound studios of American Foundation for the Blind, places part of her autobiography, "A Peculiar Treasure," on the record.

PERSONALITY ON PLATE

Talking Books Give Sightless Inkling of Author's Identity

WNU Features

Voices of many of the nation's leading authors now reach blind men and women throughout the country on the long-playing phonograph discs of the Talking Books. Main objective of the new policy of having well-known writers personally record at least a portion of the Talking Book edition of their works is to give blind people an inkling of the author's personality, it is explained by American Foundation for the Blind, with headquarters in New York. The foundation records these volumes in sound for the Library of Congress.

Some writers personally record whole volumes. Jan Struther read all of her "Mrs. Miniver" on the Talking Book discs while recently Glenway Westcott completed recording in full his best seller, "Apartment in Athens." For the six hours necessary to record it, John Mason Brown read all of his book, "Many a Watchful Night."

Trained Readers Aid.

Usually, however, the author reads merely his introduction or his first chapter, the recording then being completed by a trained reader from stage and radio.

Authors who have co-operated with the foundation in recording the Talking Book editions of their works include Somerset Maugham, Lin Yutang, Eleanor Roosevelt, Thomas Mann, Edna Ferber, John Kieran, Oliver LaFarge and Dorothy Caruso.

Former Prisoners Assume Santa Role

ATLANTA, GA. — Children the world over are basically good of heart. Atlanta's ex-prisoners of war insist as they map plans for playing Santa Claus to the youngsters of Bad Nauheim, Germany.

The project is being undertaken by the Atlanta chapter of the Barbed Wire club, composed of former prisoners of war. "The Barbed Wire club selected as its first project the job of playing Santa Claus to little German children. We remember they were our friends," declared Horace Wood, club president, in appealing for donations of toys and dolls.

Wood, former infantry lieutenant who spent five months as a prisoner of war in Germany, recalled an instance when a German youth gave him a light for his cigarette. "There were other times when little children along the street would give us cheese and bread. This food tasted good to a prisoner of war," Wood insisted.

Idle Vessel Sought for Housing

CAMDEN, N. J. — Among the unusual housing plans revealed by the National Association of Housing Officials is the search underway in the Camden area for a surplus navy vessel to house 50 families now without shelter.

The drive is aimed at procurement of one of three unfinished and idle vessels in the Philadelphia-Camden area. The ship would be used to house evicted and veterans' families until more adequate shelter is available.

Welfare agencies backed by the Community Chest are leading the drive for the housing facilities.

A similar housing plan already is in effect at Alabama Polytechnic institute, which is using 93 tugboat deckhouses at Auburn for student veterans. Each unit houses two men with a "second story" pilot house which can be used as a study.

Doolittle Keeps Promise To Town Named for Him

DOOLITTLE, MO.—"We may not be on all the maps yet, but we have a good name and lots of enthusiasm," insisted A. R. Cook, mayor of Doolittle, at the town's recent dedication ceremonies.

Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle, former commanding general of the Eighth air force and leader of the famous Tokyo raid, kept a promise made more than two years ago by flying to Missouri for the dedication services of the town named for him.

Small Community.

The town consists of a handful of buildings scattered along Highway 66, 100 miles southwest of St. Louis. Prior to becoming Doolittle, the community was known as Centerville.

Early in 1944 a group of citizens in the Ozark mountain foothills region of Missouri banded together to incorporate their community, naming it for the famous airman.

They addressed a letter to General Doolittle in care of the war department in Washington, advising him of their action and inviting him to participate in the official dedication ceremonies. Not long afterward the general replied from England thanking them for the honor and stating that when his current "pressing business" was finished and conditions permitted, he would be happy to attend the ceremonies. At the dedication rites, General Doolittle made a speech and unveiled a bronze plaque bearing his likeness.

Medicine Output Hits New Peak; Aspirin in Lead

WASHINGTON. — Consumption of medicine by the American people reached a record peak of about 40 million pounds last year, it is disclosed in a report compiled by the chemical division of the tariff commission.

Production of medicinal preparations by the chemical industry, which is by far the largest producer, exceeded 44 million pounds last year, according to the report. While some of this was produced for export and some was retained for a reserve supply, the greater part was consumed by Americans, both military and civilian.

Aspirin was the largest single item, the report reveals. Eleven million pounds of this and similar mild pain killers were produced, the greater part of this supply presumably passing over drugstore counters.

Running a close second were the sulfa drugs, chemical factories producing nearly six million pounds. This represented a gain of 1,400,000 pounds in a year, the increase being attributed to war demands. Wholesale return from the sulfa drugs was placed at 20 million dollars.

Vitamin production amounted to 2,900,000 pounds, according to the report, with a total valuation of about 50 million dollars.

The report also shows that chemical factories turned out 18 million pounds of perfume and flavoring substances, exclusive of those perfumes extracted directly from flowers. The demand went up about 10 per cent in a year.

'Died in 1950' Sign Shocks Visitors to Wisconsin Cemetery

DOUSMAN, WIS. — "John H. Aplin, born 1865, died 1950." This inscription on a gravestone in the local Ottawa cemetery invariably shocks visitors.

To John H. Aplin, 71, who lives in nearby Eagle, Wis., however, there is nothing particularly amiss about the inscription. When his wife died last January, Aplin, a carpenter, had a monument erected and told the tombstone cutter to put his name on it too. When asked about the date, he said, "Put down 1950. It doesn't make any difference if it's a few years one way or the other. There probably won't be anyone to take care of it when I die, so I might just as well do it myself."

The monument, as a result, bears this inscription: "Alice Aplin, born 1865, died January, 1946. John H. Aplin, born 1865, died 1950." Aplin has established a reputation as an individualist around Eagle. One of the favorite stories about him concerns the old schoolhouse. When a wrecker tore down the old building, he found a whisky bottle between the walls. In the bottle was a note saying, "We drank the whisky, John Aplin and Stewart."

CHICAGO. — Ex G.I. freshmen at Loyola university make Prof. Paul S. Leitz yearn for the good old days in the teaching profession. Then, apples for the teacher were in vogue. "Off We Go" AVIATION NOTES

SMALL TOWN BOON

Use of the helicopter for air mail service, already tested by the post office department, is expected to prove a boon to rural and urban areas by linking small towns and cities located off the routes of scheduled airlines.

By co-ordinating transport time-tables with postal schedules, helicopter service will afford speedier delivery of goods and faster communication with communities which must rely on the rural letter carrier.

Postal officials are gathering facts to be submitted to Civil Aeronautics board for guidance in passing upon applications of proposed helicopter operators.

"I loved it, every bit of it!" That was the endorsement of flying given by Mrs. Mary Wooten, 81, when she stepped from a Pan American World Airways plane in Los Angeles after a flight from Auckland, N. Z. Mrs. Wooten, described as the oldest passenger on an overseas flight, lives in Dunedin, South Island.

PRODUCTION SOARS

Production of military aircraft in September totaled 135 planes, according to official government data distributed by Aircraft Industries association. This represents an increase of five planes over the August total.

Aircraft engines delivered for military planes totaled 220 in September, of which 88 were jets.

Deliveries of jet fighters to army air forces increased by 27 during the month with delivery of 57 planes. Fifty-six conventional engineer fighters were delivered to the navy, which is building up its carrier complements of late-type fighters. Three light bombers and three medium bombers also were delivered to the navy.

Acceptances of military planes for the first nine months of the year now total 800. Production schedules call for 1,600 planes for the year.

Flying schoolma'am is the title conferred on Mrs. Earl Hallock, who teaches 11 children in the rural one-room school on North Bass island near Sandusky, Ohio. Mrs. Hallock commutes by air because plane transportation from her home in Put In bay on South Bass island is the swiftest way to span the four miles of water between the two islands. The school house with its pot-bellied stove has changed little since it was built 50 years ago. Mrs. Hallock's pupils are children of grape growers who inhabit the small island.

MODERN TOUCH . . . Something new has been added to the lonely Wright memorial marker at Kitty Hawk, N. C. Now a new airline, the Manteo-Ocracoke line, passes over the birthplace of aviation daily on its run down the isolated Outer Banks of North Carolina.

MORE INTERNATIONAL ROUTES

The international air route system has expanded 50 per cent in the past year and now is more than double the 150,000-mile prewar network, according to International Air Transport association. Airlines bearing 35 flags now provide service to more than 200 countries, colonies and dependencies and there is keen competition to see who shall first establish a complete round-the-world schedule. The world's air fleets, however, are still in a transitional period.

Turkey and Trimmings Should Be Prepared, Served Simply

Let the turkey take the spotlight on Thanksgiving Day by using simple garnishes for the platter. Parsley and spiced fruit adorn this luscious golden brown bird.

If we are really to keep the Thanksgiving tradition as we understand it, the table should be heaped bountifully with good, wholesome food, well prepared and served family style. This is truly one of the big occasions in our country, and the table should have tasty, well-cooked food in keeping with the idea of harvest.

It's true that cooking during Thanksgiving time means plenty of fussing, but it's not the kind of food that looks fussy after it gets on the table, if you can understand what I mean, and I'm sure those of you who have participated in the past Thanksgiving reunions in the past do know just what I'm talking about.

Perhaps the menu doesn't change much from year to year, but that's one of the beauties of the day. We don't have food like this at any other time, so it never becomes tiresome.

Since the dinner involves so much preparation, I'd suggest that you try to make it as easy as possible by taking some shortcuts. By that I mean don't leave everything to be done for Thanksgiving Day, or you'll be too tired to enjoy yourself. Have son or daughter help in making the mince and pumpkin pies and picking the pin feathers out of the turkey. They'll really enjoy it, and they're a wonderful help.

There are other things which may be done on the day before Thanksgiving, and these include making the cranberry sauce or jelly, preparing the vegetables, the turkey stuffing, etc.

On the day of the big event, you have but to pop the big bird in the oven, probably about breakfast time if it's a large one, so as to be ready for mid-afternoon. Rolls can be shaped from refrigerator dough made the day before and allowed to rise, and last minute things such as vegetables and salad can be taken care of while the dinner is on its way.

If you feel rushed making beds and giving the house a onceover, set up a breakfast table buffet style in the kitchen or breakfast nook and let everyone help themselves. This will leave you free for setting the table, etc.

Turkey Tips.

Turkeys usually weigh from 7 to 20 pounds. Allow 3/4 pound of turkey to each person. Clean thoroughly. Stuff the cavity after salting it thoroughly. Compute the roasting time from this chart:

Size	300 degrees
7-10 lbs.	30 min. per lb.
10-15 lbs.	20 min. per lb.
15-18 lbs.	18 min. per lb.
18-20 lbs.	15 min. per lb.

Savory Bread Stuffing.

- (For 8-pound bird)
  - 1 1/2 cups boiling water
  - 1/2 cup melted fat
  - 1/2 cup minced onion
  - 1/4 teaspoon pepper
  - 1 tablespoon poultry seasoning
  - 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
  - 2 tablespoons dry mustard
  - 2 tablespoons diced celery
  - 3 quarts lightly packed day-old bread crumbs
  - 2 tablespoons minced parsley
- Combine boiling water, fat, onion; simmer 5 minutes. Add remaining ingredients and mix thoroughly.

LYNN SAYS:

Make Your Stuffings Savory

Stuffing may add new richness to the bird, or it may counteract the fatness of the bird simply by what you put in it. If you like a moist dressing, use liquid with the bread crumbs, but if you prefer the dressing just barely moist, use only fat for moisture.

A one-pound loaf of bread yields about 8 cups of crumbs. Use one cup of stuffing for each pound of bird.

THANKSGIVING DINNER

- Chilled Vegetable Juice
- *Roast Turkey with Stuffing
- Spiced Fruit
- Glazed Sweet Potatoes
- Broccoli in Browned Butter
- *Cranberry Mold
- Refrigerator Rolls
- Assorted Relishes
- *Pumpkin Pie
- Mints Beverage
- *Recipes given.

Stuff cavity of a bird weighing 8 pounds. Double recipe for 16-pound bird. This makes a moist stuffing.

Ten-Minute Cranberry Sauce.

- 1 cup corn syrup, dark or light
  - 1 cup sugar
  - 1 1/2 cups water
  - 4 cups fresh cranberries
- Boil corn syrup, sugar and water together for 5 minutes. Add cranberries and boil, without stirring, until all of the skins pop, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat and allow sauce to remain in saucepan until cool. This makes 1 quart.

*Molded Cranberry Sauce.

(Serves 6 to 8)

- 2 1/2 cups cranberries
  - 1 1/2 cups water
  - 1/2 cup sugar
  - Dash of salt
  - 1 package orange or lemon-flavored gelatin
- Wash cranberries and place in saucepan with water, sugar and salt. Cook slowly until skins pop and berries are soft. Drain, measure juice and add enough water to make two cups. Dissolve gelatin in hot juice; add cranberries. When slightly thickened distribute berries and pour into a mold. Chill until firm.

*Pumpkin Pie.

(Makes 9-inch pie)

- 1 1/2 cups cooked pumpkin
  - 1/2 cup brown sugar
  - 3 eggs
  - 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
  - 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
  - 1/4 teaspoon ginger
  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
  - 1 1/2 cups milk
  - 1/2 cup melted butter
- Line pie plate with pastry. Beat eggs, add remaining ingredients, and pour mixture into pie shell. Bake in a hot (425-degree) oven for 10 minutes, then in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 30 minutes or until firm.

This pie may be served with whipped cream or just plain. If desired, a meringue may be used, this latter being especially good if flavored with a dash of nutmeg. Or, if you prefer, it may be sprinkled with 1/2 cup sliced nuts 10 minutes before it has finished baking.

Cranberries are part of the trimming for the holiday table. Make the mold a day ahead of time and serve it simply as pictured.

If you want a dessert that is not so filling as pie, you will like this cake:

Honey Spice Cake.

- 2 cups sifted cake flour
  - 2 teaspoons baking powder
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 1 1/2 teaspoons allspice
  - 1/2 cup shortening
  - 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
  - 1/2 cup honey
  - 2 egg yolks, unbeaten
  - 1/2 cup milk
  - 1/2 cup chopped raisins
  - 1 teaspoon vanilla
  - 2 egg whites
  - 1/2 cup chopped nut meats
- Sift flour, measure, add baking powder, salt and allspice and sift together three times. Cream shortening with lemon rind; add honey gradually, beating well after each addition.
- Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry. Stir quickly into batter. Turn into greased eight-inch square pan and sprinkle with nut meats. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 55 minutes, or until done.

PAUL IN ATHENS AND CORINTH

LESSON TEXT—Acts 17:22-23a; 18:1-4; I Corinthians 1:22-25.
 MEMORY SELECTION—For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.—I Corinthians 3:11.

History repeats itself, in spiritual things as well as in secular events. The experiences of Paul at Athens and Corinth are peculiarly applicable to our day, for here he encountered the very problems which face (and have apparently stopped) the church today.

The cities were not far apart in miles, and they were both pagan, but they differed widely in their cultural and commercial development.

Athens was the home of a godless culture. Corinth was a prosperous commercial center known throughout the world for grossly licentious living.

What did the gospel accomplish in such cities? We shall soon see.

I. Godless Intellectuality Meets the Gospel (Acts 17:22-23a).

Paul was alone in Athens. He had been separated from his companions Silas and Timothy (Acts 17:14), and was to await them at Athens. While he waited he looked the city over and found it wholly given to idolatry (v. 16). This was no idle observation of a scientific mind, for it caused Paul's spirit to stir in him.

It is a bad sign when a professed Christian can live in the presence of sin and false worship and not be deeply moved by it.

Paul did something about it! He went into the great daily gatherings of philosophers and gave them some solid Christian philosophy to work on. They were curious to know more, and when the opportunity arose, Paul preached the sermon on Mars Hill.

He found them superstitiously religious, but religion does not save. They even feared lest they had forgotten some god, so an altar was "to the unknown God" (v. 23). This gave Paul his opportunity, for he declared the one true God—unknown to them—as the answer to their question.

The intellectual felt superior and had an idea that God needed him, a kind of snobbery which is as current in 1946 as it was in Paul's day. How effectively he disposed of that attitude appears in verses 24 and 25. They needed God, and without him they could not draw a breath!

Moreover, the pagan intellectual then as now would swell with pride as he thought of the race and people to whom he belonged. They were superior—a master race. Paul declares God's truth that all men are of one blood, and that the nations are in his hands (v. 25).

What they had to do, and what the godless intellectuals of our day need to do, is to seek God in humble repentance and faith; then lives can become fine and noble and useful (vv. 27, 32-34).

II. Sophisticated Immorality Meets the Gospel (Acts 18:1-4).

To Corinth Paul came (evidently still alone) without friends or funds. Like all well-bred Jewish boys, he knew a trade. He was a sail maker and tent maker. Rather than have the ungodly men of Corinth hinder his preaching by the criticism that he was doing it for money, he supported himself.

The minister who is eager for rich financial return, and who is willing to accept the gifts of the ungodly that his work may prosper, has closed the door for his testimony to many who do not believe. In fact, one wonders whether he has any real testimony to give.

In this wicked city, given over to vice and fleshly pleasure, Paul made his way to the synagogue—and began to preach Christ. He reasoned and persuaded and won some for the Lord as he continued with them for a year and a half (Acts 18:11).

Paul's letter to the Corinthians reveals the struggle of the believers at Corinth to maintain moral standards and spiritual warmth in such a city, but it also clearly indicates that the gospel of Christ is "the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth" (Rom. 1:16), even in the midst of sin and corruption.

III. The Gospel Meets Sin—and Is Victorious (I. Cor. 1:22-25).

The wisdom of this world—for which Athens stood in a special way—becomes foolish in the eyes of men, as it is already in the sight of God, when it stands up against the gospel (read vv. 18-21).

The preaching of the cross, which looks foolish to the worldling (v. 23), is the wisdom and the power of God, and by it men are saved.

Whether Jew or Gentile, whether seeking signs or wisdom, whether "up-and-out" by way of pagan intellectualism or "down-and-out" by way of immorality—no matter what man's race, or his problem—the answer is in the gospel which we are privileged to teach and preach, for it is the gospel of "Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God" to all who are called by him.

THANKS ARE GIVE FOR HEALTH OVER NATION

The First Thanksgiving Day in this country was proclaimed for the purpose of expressing thanks not only for the bountiful harvest which the colonists had reaped but for the sturdy health and endurance that had permitted them to survive the hardships and exposure, that first vigorous year in America. On this occasion the Texas State Health Department is appealing to every citizen to give serious thought to the preservation of his own health and that of his community.

We have much to be thankful for in that our national health level has remained high despite the nervous tension, the sacrifices, the privations of a post war period. Our people have maintained a remarkably high health level and even under existing conditions. Texas has shown a continued decline in maternal and infant deaths.

The people of Texas have reason to be thankful for the steadily increasing interest and cooperation being shown in matters pertaining to general sanitation and the control of communicable diseases. Responsibility for advancement of the public health program lies not with the State Health Department but with the people who support and encourage the local community efforts exerted and who apply in their own individual lives the health rules with which they have become acquainted thru public health education.

Dr. Cox pointed out that one direct result of public health efforts in this nation has been the lengthening of the normal life span by more than 15 years.

Certainly this is something to be thankful for and it should lend incentive for further efforts to promote and maintain community as well as statewide public health programs.

Kenneth Moore Is Improving

Word from homefolks of Kenneth Moore, who was injured about 2 months ago in an automobile accident in the Valley, indicate that he is slowly recovering. Relatives say that he may possibly be home by Christmas. Kenneth suffered numerous injuries especially fractures of the pelvic region and has lain in bed with weights on his legs. Incidentally he has many friends in this area who are anxious to see his complete recovery and return home.

Personally, I like words like "tol'able" and "sorta" and "atomp" whether they are in the dictionary or not.
