Frozen Lemon Pie Is Toothsome Dish

ROZEN lemon pie is a toothsome dinner dessert for the family that's been working hard all day, says the Country Cooking editor of Capper's Farmer.

Graham cracker crumbs are crust and topping for the chilled yellow filling, she writes in the nationally circulated farm magazine. Pieshaped pieces are made by cutting diagonally across the refrigerator tray in which pie is frozen.

The dessert which will be an everpopular family favorite, serves 8, the Capper's Farmer expert advises.

Weird Tale Emanates From Underground; Puts on Act to Fool Nazis.

AMSTERDAM .- The true story of why the famous dancing bear at the Rotterdam zoo suddenly turned on his keeper, threw him to the ground and clawed and bit him has just been told. One of the weirdest tales yet to emanate from the under-

The director of the Rotterdam 200 was Erie Klant who took the name of Hagenbeck when his mother, after the death of his father, married into the famous circus family.

Because he had lived in Germany since childhood the Nazis in 1940 ordered Klant into the German army. Twice he was saved by city officials who said his services were essential. But they warned him that if the Germans asked a third time they would probably have to release him. Klant had a daring idea.

He arranged a special matinee at the zoo. Everything went smoothly until the famous act of the dancing bear. Klant had worked with the bear for years. It was his favorite performing animal

Something Happened. But this time something happened. The tame, usually affectionate bear turned on Klant. It threw him to the ground, clawed him fiercely and bit him on the foot.

"It was the most difficult act ever performed," Klant said. "The bear did not want to bite me. I had to make him. I also had to make him stop at the right moment. That could have been difficult but my bear was well-trained. An actor could not have done better."

On his way to the hospital Klant deliberately dug into his wounds with an indelible pencil. The lacerations became infected and for months he remained in the hospital. Finally the Germans sent him to a military hospital in Amsterdam.

He managed to stay there for several months more by another ruse. Butts Against Wall.

He wrapped his head in a towel and beat it against a wall until he lapsed into unconsciousness. The Germans were unable to figure out the strange high fever and apparent

Finally, he escaped from the hospital. For eight months he hid with his wife Mia in the attic of a house. Because it would have been dangerous if the neighbors had heard a man's voice he spoke only in whis pers. When he finally got out, his voice was almost too hoarse to be understood.

Now he is going back into animal training-but as Erie Klant, rather than Erie Hagenbeck.

3 Choose Death To Imprisonment

They Were Caught When the Japs Invaded Moro.

NEW YORK. - Three American civilians chose death to imprisonment when the Japanese invaded the rich Moro island citadel of Jolo on Christmas eve, 1941.

Most prominent perhaps was J. Scott McCormick, an American educator who spent many years in the Philippines and played an important role in establishing American educational methods there. In 1941 Mc-Cormick gave up his government post in Manila and came to Jolo to help educate the Moros. He was made superintendent of schools. The Boy Scout movement was a pet interest of his and McCormick became Boy Scout commissioner for Sulu and Mindanao.

When it was plain the Japs intended landing a strong force on olo, Moro teachers implored their American "superintendent" to run away. They promised to sail him to a distant island where he could hide among friends.

But McCormick refused. On the day of the Japanese landing he dressed himself in full Scout regalia. Then he went to Jolo high school and set his papers in order. Again teachers begged him to leave but the superintendent said he would not desert his post. He left the schoolhouse with a few

Moro friends and returned to his home. It was there that the Japanese soldiers found him.

When they broke in the door they found McCormick standing proud and erect, without a weapon. His khaki Boy Scout uniform which he had chosen for his last hours proved a death warrant. The Japanese riddled him with bullets. Perry Macklan, an American planter, met death quite differently. When invasion became imminent, Macklan provided his wife and children with food, and sent them to an old Moro stronghold in the mountains. He stayed behind.

Two days later the Japanese sent two small landing craft loaded with soldiers to Macklan's place. As they streamed ashore they were met with fusillade of small arms fire. Six Nipponese died before Macklan was

The third American, Antoni Frakian, also a planter, never left the streets of Jolo. When the first Japanese soldier approached him, Frakian spit in his eye. He was immediately shot.

Heroic Pup Gives Life To Save Two From Fire

CHICAGO. - Edwin Lederer, 27, of 4245 Augusta blvd., owes his life and that of his 17-month-old daugher, Alvaline, to their pet collie puppy, Doo-doo.

When fire spread through the rear of the three-story brick building. Lederer was awakened by the dog's barking and smelled smoke. He snatched the child from her crib and ran down the front stairway to safety from his top-floor apartment. Eight other persons escaped from the building.

Lederer then attempted to re-enter the burning building and rescue Doodoo, but was restrained by firemen. Later the dog's body was found among charred debris on the back porch. He apparently died of suffocation.

Lederer, whose wife Laverne, 22, gave birth to a girl recently at Illinois Masonic hospital, said: "We're sure going to miss that puppy. He was only three months old, but he saved our lives."

Air Forces Hit Hardest in War

Records Reveal Casualties Higher Than Any Other Branch of Service.

WASHINGTON .- U. S. air forces suffered a higher percentage of losses in the war than any other branch of the service, according to Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, deputy commander of the air forces. He revealed in part the costly price American airmen have paid when he reported that in 14 months of operations in Italy the 15th air force lost 2,270 heavy bombers and 22,700 men. This, the general explained, was equivalent to 115 per cent of strength and added that "few can point to higher casualties.

General Eaker summarized American air losses in Europe at more than 90,000 men, with approximately one-third killed, one-third wounded, and one-third missing. This compares with total army casualties listed early in August by War Socre tary Stimson as 197,676 killed, 570,700 wounded, 34.734 missing, and 117,741 prisoners of war. While the navy makes no distinction between its air and sea forces in casualty figures, comparatively heavy losses were sustained by navy and marine airmen. Early last month navy casualties were listed as 51,538 killed, 72,855 wounded, 11,-611 missing, and 3,756 prisoners of Heavy Losses on Luzon.

The damage to the air strength in the Pacific was as severe as it was to the United States fleet when Jap planes struck Pearl Harbor. General Arnold reported that before the Jap attack the army had 1,157 combat planes with 526 of these stationed in Hawaii and the Philippines. Twenty-four hours after the surprise attack on Hickam field in Hawaii and Clark field in Luzon there were 176 planes left. Navy air osses at Pearl Harbor were correspondingly heavy.

On Luzon the army airmen had 35 B-17 fortresses, 30 medium and 8 light bombers and 220 fighters. This force was reduced to 17 B-17s and 70 fighters. Fourteen of the B-17s were withdrawn to Australia and sent to Java. The fighters were worn down to 18 planes when General MacArthur retreated to Bataan to make his heroic stand.

Through most of early 1942 navy airmen served in a defensive warfare in the Pacific while army air forces built up strength in England. Naval task forces made quick stabs at the Marshall and Gilbert Islands one of which Lt. Edward H. O'Hare rose from the deck of a carrier to blast six Jap planes and set new navy record for one day's fighting. Other pilots got 10 more, two of the 18 Jap bombers escaping to their island refus

Japs Limped Away.

Navy fighters delivered their first full body blow when planes from the | would shelter 200 people in its 53 Lexington encountered a Jap invasion fleet moving southward in the Coral sea May 4, 1942. For three days planes of the opposing sea forces fought the first battle in naval history in which surface craft did not meet. When the battle wound up on May 8 the Japs were limping northward minus 19 ships.

A month later a navy patrol plane discovered a Jap invasion fleet west of Midway of such immense proportions it was plain the enemy intended to capture the Hawaiian Islands and possibly an attack on the California coast. Nine fortresses from Midway attacked the fleet and inflicted some damage. The next day four army torpedo bombers from Midway found the fleet and went in to attack. Two returned. Six marine torpedo bombers hit the Japs and one returned. Sixteen marine dive bombers struck and eight came out. Ten Jap ships were damaged, but the big fleet did not even falter in its advance east-

Protecting Midway, a tiny speck in the Pacific but of inestimable military value, were 84 marine airmen. At the end of the battle Midway was secure, its runways still serviceable but 17 of the 84 marines were wounded and 38 missing, total casualties of 55. All 84 were deco-

Bering Sea Seal Catch Is Valued at $4,000,000

ST. LOUIS. - The Fouke Fur company said that its sealing expedition to the Pribiloff islands in the Bering sea has taken 76,964 seal skins with a processed value of about $4,000,000. The catch is 3,000 skins short of the goal, the company said, but almost double last year's take. Skins will be processed here and sold to manufacturers at a government auction. The expedition operated under government supervision with military protection.

Ocean Going Airfield Tried Out During War

LONDON. - Floating airfields in the middle of the ocean have been "tried out with success" during the war, the Observer said.

'Since the first one was built to British and American design by Americans fairly early in the war we have made several more on what is considered an improved pattern," the article said.

Machine Helps in Making Guncotton

Cotton Fibers Are Cut Into Lintels for Powder.

NEW ORLEANS .- A machine to aid in making guncotton has been designed at the Southern regional research laboratory of the department of agriculture.

Guncoton makes the navy's smokeless powder, and it is the base of other grades of smokeless mmunition. The source of guncotton is linters, the fine, short fibers eft on a cottonseed after the staple engths have been removed to make

These linters are about one-tenth of an inch long. They can be made into very pure cellulose. Purity insures the accuracy of the big guns, as well as powder that does not deteriorate during long range.

Staple cotton, the textile sort, has all the qualities for guncotton, except one: The fibers are too long, running around one inch each. They have to be cut into the linter's

That is the job done by the new achine, and it is one of the more difficult accomplishments in the long history of cotton. A single cotfiber is so fine that it may be difficult to see separately. Handsnipping with scissors, or any other method without machine aid would be impossible even with five-cents-a-

These fibers, which in their natural state are a thousand times longer than they are thick, would, if they were not reduced in length, bunch to strings and ropes and matted balls during the purification required for guncotton purposes. This ould literally "tie up" the process. The complete guncotton machine has three main sections. The first breaks up cotton by the bale, shredding it into fluffy masses aout the size of a fist or less. This first step also removes iron and other metal and heavy foreign impurities. The second section is a series of sawtooth blades, which "comb" the cotton, and further reduce it inte fluffy masses.

Camouflaged C'ty H'd Flying Fortress Plant

SEATTLE. - Boeing Aircraft officials disclosed recently the existence of a 26-acre "wonderland" of chicken-feather trees, canvas buildings, canvas roads and burlap dirt which have been an unseen (except from a birdseye view) part of Seattle's skyline for nearly three years.

It comprises a village of camouflage atop Plant No. 2, a main assembly area, and was erected by United States engineers to protect the flying fortress and Superfertress factory from the threat of Japanese air raids. The camouflaged village, if real, houses, transporting them and their goods in three trucks and a trailer and in numerous passenger cars on its three main streets. It has 24 garages and a service station, hedges and fences, gardens, three greenhouses and a neighborhood

Biggest Helicopter in World Built for Navy WASHINGTON, D. C .- Building of the world's largest helicopter by the P. V. Engineering Forum, Inc., of Philadelphia, Pa., was announced upon completion of navy flight tests.

Designed to fill coast guard and navy air-sea rescue and transport service requirements, the ship is the first helicopter designed for air transport operations.

Due to its ability to carry a useful load, the craft is said to be the first economically practical plane of its type. It can carry a crew of 2 and 10 passengers in medium range operation, the announcement said.

The ship carries two rotors (propelling blades), one at either end, the first successful design using that The ship can land in a 100foot diameter space, on land or water.

Tests by Curie Family Seen as Bomb Source

PAIMPOL, FRANCE. - Scientist Frederic Joloit Curie, son-in-law of Pierre and Marie Curie, the discoverers of radium, issued this statement recently:

"The use of atomic energy and the atomic bomb had its inception in the discoveries and work at the College of France in 1939-1940 by Mr. and Mrs. Joloit Curie, Halban and Kowarski."

The statement added that "certain news coming from Washington and printed in the French press did not mention the origin" of the research which culminated with the unloosing of atom bombs on Japan.

Absolutely Safe

OAK RIDGE, TENN.-There is absolutely no danger of an atomic explosion at Clinton Engineer Works, Col. Kenneth D. Nichols, commanding officer, said. "Although these plants are the main units for production of atomic bombs, adequate safeguards make an atomic explosion impossible." he said.

SHRINKAGE ALLOWANCE

A stout gentleman, determined to se weight during a stay on his Vermont farm, hustled to the general store for a pair of ove alls. He picked out a pair big enough for energetic exercise. Then a thought struck him. "Wait a minute," he said to the clerk, "those fit me now, but I expect to lose a lot-maybe I had better buy a smaller pair.

The clerk shook his head, calmly went on wrapping the overalls. "Mister, if you can shrink as fast as those overalls will, you'll be do ing pretty good."

head is the only white horse ever foaled on the Goose Bar ranch in Wyoming. He is a throwback to his great grandsire, the Albino, a wild stallion. His 14-year-old owner. Ken McLaughlin, hopes that he will become a famous racer. Thun-derhead is entered at a fall race meet in Idaho. He is very fast but is hard to handle. Rob McLaughlin, Ken's father, sells off most of his horses and goes into sheep raising. Financial worries had created a rift between Rob and his wife, Nell, but they are reconciled. Ken is to go with Thunderhead to the races. Nell finds that she will soon be a mother

CHAPTER XXI

Of course, no riding; and there was a new outdoor couch with wheels on the terrace under the pergola where she lay for many hours, not doing anything, her hands clasped behind her neck, her eyes on the sky or the distant hills. Often the hair of her bang was darkened with sweat, and there were tiny beads on her upper lip, and her hands were not steady.

Their father had called both boys to him soon after they got home and had said with his harshest voice and his fiercest eyes, "Don't do anything this summer that will cause your mother trouble or pain or the least anxiety!

"No, sir," he and Howard had answered instantly. Afterwards, they had looked at each other with a long thoughtful look. This was serious. It mustn't be forgotten. Their father sure meant what he Howard's coming home had been another excitement, because Howard was changed. At least he was changed when Ken first saw him getting off the train and riding home in the car telling his mother and father things about the school in a deep voice that never slipped up any more. He was in his gray tweed suit, and the Fedora didn't look funny on his face now.

When he got into a shirt and bluejeans with a bandana hanging out of his hind pocket, Ken began to feel more easy with him. And next day Howard stopped sitting gravely with his mother and father and began to devil Ken and wrestle with him. And on the third day they started to tell each other things. Ken made the acquaintance of Howard's two best friends at school, Jake who was a football star, and Bugs. And in turn he told Howard all about his trip to the Valley of the Eagles, and promised to take Howard there as soon as there was a chance, and undid his belt and pulled up his shirt, and showed him the scar from the eagle's talons. It was still im-

"You know, Howard! Gee! Sometimes I just can't believe it."

"Can't believe what?" "That it's all turning out to be real about Thunderhead.

"Real? Why you dope-what fun would it be if it wasn't real?" A "Well, I dunno-

Were you just pretending about "Oh, of course not!" Ken was puzzled about that. How you can be planning a thing in a real way thinking about it nearly all the time, and yet it is more of a dream than a reality, so that when it suddenly comes true and has to be geared in with actual events, hours and dates and weighing scales, and entrance fees and shipping arrangements, it is just as much of a shock as if you never really expected it to happen.

Howard held a finger in the air above his face and looked to one side of it and then the other. "And if Charley Sargent buys

Dad's surplus hay and sends it down to Saginaw Falls for the race, then Thunderhead won't have to change to a different kind of hay from what he's used to. Besides, Charley can sell it down there for fifty dollars a ton. He said so. Ken went off suddenly into one of his wild bursts of joy, rolling over backwards and trying to stand on his

"Can't you do that?" said Howard contemptuously. He got up slowly, stood on his head with ease and nonchalance, then lay down and stretched out again.

Howard sniffed at such childishness. "Say! When shall we go down there—to the Valley of the Eagles?"
"Let's go soon. Golly, I hope that

"Maybe we could go this week-

Rest? There wasn't any rest. September was here, and there were only four days before the date for which Howard's return accommodations had been taken.

But four days was twice as much as they would need. So they announced that they were off for a camping trip, and Nell put up prons for them, and Thunderhead and Flicka were hung with bags, rifles, slickers, frying pans, and the boys rode away up the Saddle Back. Under their feet the bare rolling hills and soft burned grass-beyond, the Buckhorn Mountains, a wilderness of forests and peaks. And an infinite distance away and above, as if born up on the lower crests, a gleaming shape misted in cloudsthe Thunderer-beckening to them!

And how eagerly they answered. Not the antelope nor the jackrabbits fled more swiftly over the plains than the four young things, wild with excitement and freedom, galloping south with yells and shouts and pounding hoofs, and their faces cold in a wind that was sharp and sweet

"Hah! You goof! Do you expect to look like him?"

From the moment of leaving the ranch Thunderhead was in a state of intense excitement. And when they had climbed the Saddle Back and headed south, his wild eyes and his nostrils and his pricked ears never ceased exploring those mountains ahead of them. His mountains! His valley!-from which high fences and stern masters had kept him for

He was hard to hold when the smell of the river reached them. Ken let him go and he galloped on the little trail he had made himself until they rounded the hill and the Silver Plume river came into view. While the horses watered, the boys debated whether they should stop and fish, or try to complete the trip that night; and because of Howard's limited time decided on the latter.

Thunderhead took the lead and they plunged into the mountains. He was filled with a flery and masterful energy. He had never forgotten; and now that the way was open to his inherited destiny, he was ready and eager for it. His stallion's consciousness had come of age at last.

It was already twilight in the gorge; and under some of the overnanging cliffs and great trees the trail led into darkness. But Thunderhead went swiftly; and when the boys stopped to pause and look and waterfalls or the foaming cauldrons of whitewater, his iron shoe struck the rock impatiently, and his striof the river.

The scent was getting stronger, and it maddened him with joy. It was the scent of a destiny, of a life, of an overwhelming emotion. -For not under the saddle or running obediently around a track, but here in these mountains lay his whole existence and he had carried the flame of it in his or sciousness for a year.

That evening they pitched camp in the park-like grounds not far from the base of the valley rampart.

Picketed with Flicka below the camp Thunderhead did not lie down and sleep as a young horse should. Only older horses, who no longer have growing pains, sleep standing on their feet. But Thunderhead stood all night long, his body quivering, turned to that rampart and the pass into the valley, his ears pricked to

Are Practical for College Girls

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

TODAY's college girl certainly knows her fashions. What's more she is not carried away with flippant ideas, but exercises keen judgment in making her selections. It's part of the college spirit to be intrigued with the idea of plenty pretty-pretty dresses with glamour accessories galore, but when it comes to laying the foundation of her wardrobe, the modern collegefaring girl wants snappy utilitarian clothes that tune to campus sports and coal-shortage temperature.

One item that college girls have come to regard as a wardrobe 'must" is a sturdy coat that will defy wind, rain and weather, yet look sophisticated to the nth degree. Well, wrapped up in a smart Tomboy coat as shown to the left in the illustration, the smart college girl knows she will be kept warn on a blustery wintry day as well as present a fashion-wise appearance, wherever she goes. A deep brown cottonbacked pile lines this red water-repellant poplin coat, also forming the notched revers. It is the popular three-quarter length, double-breasted with a detachable self belt.

When it comes to indoor comfort, the darling of the down to study in a jacket of wide wale cotton plush which has a very swank look at the same time that it is ever so "comfy" when thermometers get tempermental on a chill wintry night. Easy, boxy lines and a tiny Chinese collar spell chic for this indoor jacket. A double dose of comfort is achieved with the gray cotton corduroy pedal pushers beneath. These have a red felt trim and are warm and cheery.

A classic cotton corduroy dress that goes everywhere on the campus and is good style for classroom wear too is shown to the right, worn by a bicycle enthusiast who apparently is pedaling her way to health and happiness. The outstanding feature of this dress is a button side-

mitting active girls to bowl, skate or bicycle in comfort. The button sleeves and deep front pleat are extra ease features. Clam digger pants made of neon pink corduroy, a featured color this fall, worn with a black jersey shirt provides another type bicycle suit. Designers are making much use of corduroy in pastel colors in the sportswear Sweaters, as college girls wear them, have a story of many chap-ters to tell. There is a big demand for cashmeres to be tucked neatly inside the skirt and finished off with a belt. The boxy cardigan is still the top seller. The sleeveless sweater is also finding ready acceptance, either in the pullover type back-buttoned.

Raincoats, which look like dressy coats, are going over in a big way with the campus group. They have inset belts or drawstring waist ties with the drawstring and bow treatment repeated about the sleeves at the wrist. These come in adorable colors.

Campus dresses reflect an easyto-wear comfortable look together with an unerring smartness about them. Done in fine wools, either neutral in tone or vividly colorful, they flaunt all the new style points of soft shoulder lines, wide armholes. The new thing this year is to add a glamorous wide belt. The threepiece suit with contrasting clan plaid coat is almost an entire wardrobe within itself. It's one of the season's most popular buys. And don't forget scarfs! You'll be wanting a long wool plaid scarf to wear, one end thrown over one shoulder. Of definite campus appeal also, is the red cotton square which resembles a farmer's handkerchief. It can be worn as a novel belt simply placed under the loops of the favorite jeans as well as around the neck or as a bandanna around the

New Jumper Ideas

The present jumper vogue is an incentive to home sewers to get busy and make several so as to add variety to one's wardrobe. The gay plaid jumper shown at the top takes the spotlight because of the intriguing self-fringe edging that outlines the jumper top, continuing down in unbroken line to accent the slot pockets. Below, a simple jumper is transformed with a braid trimming that accents the front opening. This

Elegance Is Keynote Of New Fall Millinery

The very fact that hats have gone to such an extreme height gives an air of new dignity to the millinery scene. Then too, it's been many a season since velvet held such an important place as it bids fair to do this fall and winter in the millinery realm. Before the fall season is far spent you will be seeing richly feathered and be-ribboned veivet hats coming into their own in a blaze of new glory. When it comes to new elegance, the ultimate is being reached in the stunning fur hats that are scheduled to play a stellar role in the months to come. Some of them are quite ponderous looking, especially the Russian-inspired turbans. They are wonderfully becoming but you do have to develop an acquired taste for some of the more extreme types. Then there's the new satin hat fashions that are so smart looking, made up as they are in all the new high-hat types. They are perfect companions for the new black satin frocks for dress-up wear and restaurant and cocktail dates.

Striped Surah and Satin

New on Fall Fabric List While striped surah and striped satin are new on the current fabric list they are really staging a revival, for in the distant yesteryears gay surah and satin stripes flourished in the mode. These silken stripes are being used for choicest of afternoon gowns this season and stunning jumper tunes to afternoon they are smart made up in suits to wear under the winter coat.

Before the present war French North African trade was part and parcel of French economy, and the mother country cornered the lion's share, says the National Geographic society. Recent studies of French industrial production in the light of war damage, however, indicate that the bulk of North African needs for the remainder of 1945, 1946 and probably 1947 will have to come from the United States. In the next six months, North Africa, bled by two years of Axis exploitation, will require imports, exclusive of wheat shipments, estimated at more than $100,000,000. The French North Africa, normally enjoys a substantial wheat surplus, but drouth has produced four successive crop failures. Arrangements are in progress whereby the U. S. farmer will provide North Africa with 2,500,000 tons of wheat during the next 12 ntonths. The French plan to pay cash for the wheat out of their limited foreign exchange reserves,, a sacrifice which em-phasizes the importance they attach to keeping these restive lands well

The Maghreb yields one-third of the world's supply of phosphate. There are also important deposits of copper, lead, zinc, manganese, antimony, mercury, iron, molybdenum and coal. Vast areas of North Africa, especially Morocco, have not yet been carefully prospected, and expectations are that new deposits of some or all of these metals will add to the "museum's" store.

French North Africa covers an area of over a million square miles -roughly twice the area of Alaska -with a population now estimated at 20,000,000 people, mostly Arabs, native Berbers, and Jews, with a small minority of Europeans. Geographically the region is akin to 'Maghreb." as the Arabs call the Mediterranean lands of southern Europe. The three countries are much alike in physical features, and the north-south boundaries are manmade lines unmarked by natural barriers. All are bounded on the south by the wastes of the Sahara and on the north by the Mediter-

In the southern reaches of the mountains is a high and somewhat arid tableland, where nomad natives tend large flocks of sheep and goats. Farther south are limitless stretches of desert and wasteland with isolated oases, where dates are the principal product.

Dry in Summer.

The climate of the northernmost belt is not unlike that of southern California. There is fairly abundant rainfall along the coast and on the seaward slopes of the mountains, but little rain in the summer. No rivers of economic importance flow through French North Africa.

Normally, prewar trade between France's North African lands and the United States was comparatively small. From 1937 to 1939 exports to the Maghreb averaged under $8,-000,000 a year, while imports averaged under $6,000,000. American exporters sent chiefly tobacco and cigarettes, lubricating oil and grease, refrigerators and parts, and farm machinery. Americans bought in exchange sausage casings, skins and furs, leather goods from Morocco, olive oil (both edible and for soap), rums and aromatic oils and cork Manganese imports from North Africa began shortly after the historic Anglo - American invasion of called "a museum of minerals," a grapes, olives and cereals grow in the region toward the end of 1942.

> JOSEPH'S TESTIMONY TO GOD'S PROVIDENCE

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 45:1-5, 9-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!—Psalm 107:8.

God rules the universe. He has His plan which will be carried out, yes, even in spite of man if need "He can overrule the acts even of wicked men and make them links in a chain of providence by which His purposes are carried out."

Forgiveness, opening the way for the restoration of fellowship and the showing of kindness, brought the story of Joseph and his brethren to a happy ending. Under the good hand of God, the story which began with tragedy is brought to a conclusion

I. Love Overcomes Fear (vv. 1-4). Following the earnest plea of Judah, the heart of Joseph could no longer withhold itself from the full expression of affection and devotion to his family.

Joseph tenderly shielded the family troubles from the eyes and ears of strangers by sending out the Egyptians. It was the first step of consideration which paved the way for reconciliation. How often just the opposite is done-airing family affairs before the world, and humiliating those who may be in the wrong, thus making it difficult for them to admit their guilt.

Then, too, this was a moment too tender and delicate to be seen by outsiders. The tears of a strong man like Joseph mean a deep movement of spirit-a solemn and often a sacred moment. It should also be noted that the brothers were afraid, and well they might be, because of their sin against Joseph. After many years these astonished men found themselves face to face with the one whom they thought they had disposed of and they knew their sin had found them out. It always does, sooner or later, but inevitably.

II. Grace Overrules Sin (v. 5).

The guilt of these men was none theless real and Joseph could not remove it, but he encouraged them by showing how God had used their evil devices to work out His own good pleasure. He can make the wrath of man to praise Him (Ps. 76:10).

It is worth stressing again that in the very hour when the prospects for Joseph's future usefulness seemed ruined, God was opening the door to the greatest experiences of his life and was preparing him to serve the thousands whose lives were saved by his wisdom and ability in the years of famine. Nothing is more important in the life of a child of God than to be yielded to His will, unmoved by circumstances, abiding His time, responding to His guidance whether it be by the opening or closing of doors, prosperity or adversity. And herein is the marvel of it all-even sin may be overruled by God's grace for His own glory.

That does not invite anyone to sin that grace may abound (Rom. 6: 1, 2), but it does offer encouragement to the one who has fallen, that God can redeem the years that the locusts have eaten (Joel 2:25).

Our lesson also sets us an example of how true forgiveness acts. So often when forgiveness is asked or granted, there is an "I can forgive but I can't forget" attitude, which means that while hostilities have ceased at least temporarily, there is no real friendship or the disposition to show kindness. Is there any real forgiveness at all in such an attitude of heart and mind? We fear

III. Kindness Provides the Best

It might have been enough to send food and a kind greeting with the brothers to their own land, but love does not seek the minimum expression of its feeling. It asks not how little, but how much can I give or do. Note the tender touch in verse "he kissed all his brethren." Here was no general forgiveness, but a personal renewal of long-lost fellowship.

Bringing his aged father and brothers into the land of plenty was not enough, Joseph also gave to them the "best of the land" (47: 11). His thoughtful consideration in sending for his father (Gen. 46:5-7) was part of the same piece of kindness

Joseph puts to shame the modern "hard-boiled" attitude toward needy and aged members of the family. In their eager and relentless pursuit of fame or righes, many ignore or trample upon the members of their own families. Often they are ashamed of the broken bodies, the humble apparel, the broken or uneducated speech of their parents. They fear lest their new-found friends in some circle of wealth and supposed "position" will think them strange or ridiculous. God pity the man or woman who is ashamed of a humble or aged father and SEWING CIRCLE NEEDLEWORK

People Make Fun of Mrs. Beulah Hankins

INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA. -Mrs. Beulah Hankins, who lives at 634 S. Collier, wrote an amusing letter to Faultless Starch Company recently. She said,

"I want to tell you about your wonderful starch. I sure think it's grand. Several people make fun of me for not boiling my starch. They say this starch is for lazy people. I have a boy four years old and I iron ten to fifteen suits of clothes a week for him. I love to iron them as Faultless Starch makes easy ironing. I also have twins, eight months old, and do they have a laundry -from twenty to twenty-five dresses a week and most of these are white ones. They iron so smooth and smell good. Thanks again for Faultless Starch. It sure saves me many hours of ironing."

SAVES TIME AND WORK

That's probably the most wonderful letter anyone could write about Faultless Starch! Mrs. Hankins is a busy wife and mother and she has found that Faultless Starch saves time and work for her. She makes starch without cooking and she has found that Faultless Starch makes her ironing easy. She gets a kick out of people saying that her Faultless Starch is for lazy people. Certainly she isn't lazy!

MADE A SPECIAL WAY

If you are busy, too-especially on washday and ironing day-you deserve the time-saving and worksaving help Faultless Starch can give you. You see Faultless Starch made a special way to help you through your washing and to save you hours of ironing. So why not enjoy Faultless Starch? All you have to do is ask your grocer for Then you can make perfect hot starch without cooking! And you can make ironing so smooth, easy and beautiful. It's yours for the asking . . . SLEEP IS IMPORTANT

Austin --- Sleep is a necessity of life and health, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox. State Health Officer, and habitual loss of sleep will tend to retard the body's recovery from the fatigue of the day's activities. We may go without sleep for a night or two but too little sleep for a prolonged length of time will un-dermine the health of a rugged person and turn a cheerful individual into a cross irritable one. When good health can be protected to such a large extent merely by sleep ing, and thus allowing overtaxed bodies and minds to secure the proper rest it is hard to understand why so many persons are heedless of this important measure.
