After nearly three years of war, many Texas housewives can point with pride to their faithful electric appliances. In these days when extra time is needed for war work or other worthwhile activities, these electric helpers on the home from are called on more often than ever to save time and energy.

Although wartime restrictions on the manufacture of a few electric appliances are being relaxed a little, many months may pass before new appliances are available in quantity.

Ask at our office for helpful free pamphlets on the care of various electric appliances. When expert repair work is necessary, take them to an electric repair shop where they can get the proper attention. Remember, most electricians are extra busy these days, so allow plenty of time for repairs.

Wounded British Flier Fights Death Eight Days

Americans Rescue Cheerful Tommy From Badly Wrecked Plane

By Ernie Pyle

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Although Ernie Pyle is now back in the United States for a much-needed rest after two and one-half years on the fighting front, this column was written before he left France.)

ON THE WESTERN FRONT .- I would like to tell you in detail the remarkable story of the wounded RAF pilot whom we released after he had lain unnoticed in the wreckage of his plane for eight days on a battlefield.

Several American soldiers sprung out of somewhere a few moments after we arrived.

They grasped the situation instantly, and began tearing at the sides of the plane with pliers and wire clippers. They worked as though seconds had suddenly become jewels. The tough metal came off in strips no bigger than your fingers, and only after terrific pulling and yank-It seemed as if it would take hours to make a hole big enough to get the pilot out.

The ripping and pounding against the metal sides of the hollow plane. made a thunderous noise. I peered inside and asked the pilot:

"Does the noise bother you?" He said, "No, I can stand it. But tell them to be careful when they break through on the other side-my leg is broken, you know."

But the American boys worked faster than we believed possible. They tore their fingers on the jagged edges of the metal; they broke strong aluminum ribs with one small crowbar and a lot of human strength. Soon they had a hole big enough so that I could get my head and shoulders inside the cockpit.

Somebody handed me a canteen of water and I shoved it through the hole to the pilot. He drank avidly. When he put the canteen down he set it on his bare chest and held it with both hands.

"By God, I could drink a river dry," he said. Somebody outside said not to let him drink any more right now. The pilot said, "Would you pour some on my head?"

I soaked my dirty handkerchief, and rubbed his forehead with it. His hair was nut brown in color and very long. His whiskers were reddish and scraggly and he had a little mustache. His face seemed long and thin, and yet you could tell by his tremendous chest that he was a big man and powerful.

His eyes were not glassy, but I was fascinated by his eyeballs. They didn't protrude; it was just that they were so big. When he turned them toward you, it was as though he was slowly turning two big brown tennis balls.

He had complete command of his thoughts. The half-delirium you would expect of a man trapped for eight days without food or water, just did not exist in him. He was just being him-

His face was dirty from much sweating, but the skin of his body was white and clean. There was a small scab on his forehead and there were some light bruises on his arms.

Inside the plane, the stench was shocking. My first thought was that there must be another man in the plane who had been dead for days. said to the pilot:

"Is there someone else in the plane?

And he answered, "No, this is a single seater, old boy.

What I had smelled was the pilot himself. We couldn't see the lower part of his left leg, but we judged it must be gangrenous and in a horrible shape.

'I can move my right leg," he said, "it's all right. In fact I've had it out from here several times, and moved it around for exercise. But the left one I can't

I asked, "Where did you get the eigarette you were smoking when we got here?" He said, "Your chap gave it to me. The one who came first. He lighted it for me and stuck it in through the hole, and went searching for the rest of you."

I was wondering if it wasn't dangerous for him to be smoking inside the wrecked plane. I mentioned something about his being lucky that the plane hadn't caught fire when he crashed. And he said:

"I'll tell you about that. Do you see that woods a little way north of

There were several small woods but I said, "Yes." "Well," he said, "that first night they set fire to that woods. I could tell it by the glow in the cockpit.

And here the plane was soaked with hundred-octane gasoline. I thought the fire would spread right across the field. But it didn't." Actually what he had thought was the woods afire was the little town of La Detinais, which had been set afire by shelling. I didn't bother to tell him, for he was alive, and after all what could the technicalities mat-We had sent one soldier to the nearest aid station as soon as we discovered the wounded British pilot, trapped for eight days in his plane.

He had to drive about six miles. Just a few minutes after the other soldiers finished tearing two holes in the sides of the plane, a medical captain and three aid men popped through the hedge and came running.

The doctor knelt down and sized up everything in a few seconds. He asked an aid man for morphine. The pilot willingly held out his right arm, and the doctor stuck a needle into the bend of the elbow. The pilot never flinched, but looked on almost approvingly.

"You're in good condition," the doctor said to him. "This is just to make it easier for you when we start to pull you out. We'll wait a few minutes for it to take hold."

While we were sitting there on the ground beside the plane, waiting for the morphine to take effect, the pilot said:

"I am delaying you from your work. I'm frightfully sorry about it."

One of the soldiers, touched by the remark, blurted: "Good God, leftenant, you aren't delaying us. This is what we're here for. We're just sorry we've been ng getting you ou The pilot momentarily closed his eyes and put his hand on his forehead. And then, as if in resignation at his own rudeness in bothering us, he said: 'Well, I don't know what I should do without you." So incredibly strong was that pilot's constitution that the morphine never put him out.

They waited about 10 minutes. Then two soldiers took off their web belts and looped them around the pilot's armpits. The medics on the other side said they had hold of his trapped foot and could gradually "It's my back that's weak," the pilot said. "All the strength seems to be gone from the small of my back. You'll have to help me there."

They pulled. The pilot, al-though without food for eight days, was tremendously strong, and he reached above his head to the plane's framework and helped lift himself.

The belts slipped, and the sol-diers took them off. They knelt and lifted his shoulders with their hands.

They had padded the jagged edges of the torn aluminum, over which they would have to slide him, with the heavy rubber of his collapsible lifeboat.

The doctor said, "We'll be as easy as we can. Tell us when to quit. And the brave man said, ahead. I'll stand it as long as I

They pulled again. The pilot made a face and exerted himself to help They slid him slowly a few inches through the hole, until he suddenly called: "Whoa-whoa-whoawhoa! My back! It's stuck to the ground. We'll have to break it loose

They surveyed the possibili-ties a while, trying to figure a less painful way of getting him out. There wasn't any. He said: "I can't raise my behind at all. If you could slide something under me to carry the weight."

Pilot Released Shows Courage

came clear of the plane. They crawled backwards with him, on hands and knees, struggling to hold his back off the ground. You could see that he was steeling himself

"Quick! Slide that litter under him," the doctor called.

At last, in a sort of final surge, he ! the next five minutes he mentioned the fresh air.

When they finally laid him tenderly onto the canvas litter and straightened his left leg, you could see the tendons relax and his facial muscles subside, and he gave a long halfgroan, half-sigh of relief.

And that was the one single sound The pilot said, "My God, that of normal human weakness uttered air! That fresh air!" Three times in by that man of great courage.

Washington, D. C. OCCUPATION OF REICH

The war department isn't advertising the details but it has completed plans for the occupation of Germany by American forces.

The Allies have agreed the occupation should be shared in roughly equal numbers by U. S., British and Soviet forces. This will permit the return to the U.S. A. of a maximum number of units, will also free thousands of trained men if necessary for polishing off the war against Japan.

The chief problem involved is getting enough transports to rush the men home, plus sorting out those entitled to go home first. The latter will be decided by the army's "point demobilization system," and millions of forms for computing each GI's service are being printed and shipped overseas.

In 1918, American soldiers in France, deliriously overjoyed at victory, almost threw away their weapons, went wild for weeks and months. Officers, equally happy, suspended regulations, and permitted their men to overrun the big cities of France, having a gay time.

After this armistice, things will be different. The whole plan has been charted to the last detail. Discipline will be maintained, but the war department demobilization plan calls for the elimination of all "harrassing details not essential to the health and welfare of the troops."

GI Tours of Europe.

Most of the troops will be excused from drill, will be given ample op-portunity to see Europe while awaiting transports for home. Men who desire it will be taken on tours of the continent under army aus-

A "Guided Tours of Europe" program is being worked out as a result of the experience, after the last war, of American doughboys who returned home having seen only the battle fronts plus the gay side of Paris. This time officials are anxious to let the boys learn something more of the people and places they have been fighting for.

Some GIs will be given an opportunity to go to school in Europe, attend universities such as the Sorbonne, Oxford, and Cambridge. The army will also organize classes for the younger GIs who want to pick up their studies during the brief period after the armistice before they return home.

The war department recognizes it will be no easy job to get the army home all at once. However, both have emphasized the need for speeding discharges and, with no submarine warfare to cope with and no necessity for sailing in slow convoys, officials are confident that all except the army of occupation in Germany will be back within a few months.

Note-Greatest complaint against the army point system is that it makes no allowance for men over 35, who apparently have to sweat it out until the end of the Japanese war, unless the war department makes new allowances for them.

INSIDE GERMANY

Allied leaders, after surveying effects of intelligence work inside the Reich, are now finally convinced there is no chance of an honest anti-Hitler revolt by the German people. What's more, efforts to spawn a pro-Allied underground in Germany have met with failure.

Principal reason is that the Gestapo controls everything - includ-ing the army hierarchy. The communist underground has been completely liquidated; also all remnants of the socialist and social-democrat-

The only real hope Allied military leaders have is that the 11 million slave laborers brought to Germany by Hitler from Poland, Russia, France, Belgium, Holland and Norway, will conduct an increasing campaign of sabotage, perhaps giving heart to large groups of Germans to join them.

A year ago, Hitler and his henchmen kicked these slave laborers around at will, fed them poorly, worked them brutally under a whip lash. Of late, this pressure has been eased. In some instances, Nazis have reportedly given special treatment to their captives on the chance that they themselves will not be too badly punished by the Al-lies when German talls.

It is now even possible for a few of these captives to escape from Germany - for a price in foreign money-as petty Nazi police try to accumulate enough foreign currency to live safely during the Allied occupation.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Whenever Sen. Bennett Clark of Missouri (soon to be an ex) meets Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer, he says: "I should hate you - but I can't." He refers to the fact that, at the Baltimore Democratic convention of 1912, A. Mitchell Palmer received a telegram from Woodrow Wilson, then governor of New Jersey, releasing his delegates to Bennett's father, Speaker Champ Clark. But Palmer refused to show any one the telegram and, in the end, Wilson, not Clark, was nominated.

"Scorchers" are rare. The cops have to look thrice-and even then what they mostly see is skilled, ticket-proof driving that earns their respect. For as experts they know that's really how to get there, without taking it out on your car. You too, knew it all the time, but war "alerted" you to it—and you're staying alert. Now be still more alert to the perils of engine acids. Those can be curbed by one brainy move...by having your engine OIL-PLATED.

Changing to Conoco Nth motor oil-at popular price—is all it takes to own an OIL-PLATED engine. One special characteristic of OIL-PLATING is the acid-resistance that costly pioneer research developed. This acid-fighter—OIL-PLATING—becomes surfaced to your engine's fine inner finish as closely as chromium plating could be. That's made possible by Conoco Nth oil's special ingredient whose magnet-like nature holds OIL-PLATING direct to metals -square in the path of the acids always created by every engine explosion. Contact between acids and metals is checked. Then so is corrosion.

And now here looms the season of low engine temperatures—unable to clear out acids sufficiently. So now they could do their worst-but not with your engine OIL-PLATED by patented Conoco Nth motor oil. Change at Your Mileage Mer-

Swamp Yields Rich Iron Ore

Marsh in Michigan Drained And Upper Dirt Removed To Get at Deposits.

ALPHA, MICH. - Less than two years ago, in October, 1942, surveyors discovered that a swamp area 28 miles northwest of Iron Mountain, Mich., concealed one of the richest deposits of iron ore in the upper peninsula. Tests of ore samples brought up from 40 feet below the marsh surface showed very high quality, the kind of ore urgently needed in our production of war materials, says the Milwaukee

The first job in getting at this rich iron deposit was to drain the marsh and strip away the 30 to 40 foot deep surface strata of rock and soil. This was the start in the development of the Book mine by the North Range Mining company

The stripping was used as fill for truck roads, railroad siding and a stockpile base. After about 10 months of intensive effort by a large crew of workmen, the area had been excavated to the depth of the ore deposit, and in July of 1943 actual operation of the new open pit mine got under way.

Production Rising.

With a crew of 80 men, recruited from the near-by towns of Alpha, Crystal Falls, Iron River and Iron Mountain, the North Range Mining company started a steadily increasing flow of this rich ore toward the steel mills. A big steam shovel ate its way into the ore at the rate of 240 tons a day. Forty railroad ore cars a day rolled down the spur line to Escanaba to dump their load into the big ore boats headed for Cleveland, where the ore goes into the building of tanks and other vital war equipment requiring this high quality of ore.

In its first six months of operation the Book mine produced 291,000 tons of ore. Thus far in 1944 it has produced 313,920 tons for shipment and additional thousands of tons which have been stockpiled for Today the huge pit, a quarter mile across, yawns 170 feet deep where less than two years ago was desolate swampland. Circling up from the bottom a narrow ledge forms the only roadway out of the pit and over this trucks haul 11 ton loads of ore to the crusher at the edge of the pit. From the crusher the ore runs down the conveyor into the ore cars.

Ore Very Hard. The trucks hauling the ore out of the pit are specially built for the When they are received at the nine, Lee Sutton, master mechanic, and his assistants make several changes in the trucks in order to condition them for the tremendous abuse to which they are subjected. The mining company maintains a complete machine shop for this pur-

The trucks are built with reversible seats and the same speeds for both reverse and forward operation. This is because they cannot be turned around-they are run forward out of the pit with their loads of ore, then are backed down the mile long ledge roadway for the next

The ore from the Book mine is so hard that the points on the power shovel wear down every 16 hours and have to be replaced. Two welders are kept busy repairing shovel points. During the summer months the mine operates on two eight-hour shifts. In the winter months it is operated continuously on three eighthour shifts. This is because equipment would freeze up from the intense cold if it were not kept in constant operation.

complete laboratory is also maintained for the Book mine, since samples must be run on every car of ore shipped to determine that it measures up to the high quality re-

Ancient Dog Race Sport Is Revived in England

LONDON .- A sport more than 100 years old draws heavy wagers in the fields about Whitehaven.

Hound-trailing, a race in which a field of 30 to 40 foxhounds participate, was born decades before the electric rabbit. The winner's time is usually under 30 minutes over a 10mile cross-country course of plowed fields, crags, fences and other handicaps which mark the foxhound route. Hounds follow the scent left by a rag dipped in aniseed, turpentine and heavy oil with scouts along the pathway to guard against inter-

The event is popular with the wealthy, farmers, miners and factory workers alike. Dog owners stand at the finish and whistle their pets home, but otherwise are not permitted to take any part in the dramatic race.

Japan Drafts Women and Girls for Labor Service

NEW YORK, N. Y. - The Japanese Domei agency said in a broadcast that a compulsory labor service law for girls and unmarried women from 12 to 40 years old in Japan went into effect recently. Domei indicated that the girls and women would be mobilized as needs arose into labor corps consisting of 20 to 50 workers each, and would then be sent to factories and workshops "for a term of one year."

New Comforts in Store After War

Science Develops Gadgets To Make Life Easier.

NEW YORK. - Wartime search at the direction of the army quartermaster corps will be reflected in better postwar living. There will be such improvements as premixed cereals, waterproof matches and butter that won't melt except under high temperatures, a survey indi-

Reporting on what it said were only a few of the conveniences that will come out of the war research, the September issue of Click magazine listed insecticides sprayed from metal bombs that will destroy mosquitoes and other pests in a few seconds. Also listed were cereals premixed with sugar and milk and needing only water to make them palatable and glassware that is unbreakable.

Other gadgets tested by the quartermaster corps which promise to become civilian aids include cotton pile jackets warmer than the warmest fur. Also there are midget canopeners so small they may be worn on a watch chain, overcoats that shed water, pianos that weigh only 150 pounds and may be moved easily in and out of doors, and a powder that sterilizes dishes quickly. The out-of-doors type will find useful a one-pound stove, incredibly sturdy, that will burn for hours on a single filling of gasoline. A waterproofed sleeping bag that gives maximum warmth and protection and weighs only 5 pounds, 10 ounces is another.

German Soldier's Body

Disclosed as of Woman ON THE BRITISH FRONT, NOR-MANDY .- The first German "Amazon" definitely identified as fighting with the wehrmacht, apparently as a member of a tank crew, was found mandy bulge. A British stretcher bearer reported recently: "A woman soldier was discovered when British burial squads were going over the scene of the bitter tank battle in the Vire dead during the battle of the Nor-sector between Viessoix and Burcy. "Her flaxen hair had rolled out of her steel helmet and fallen to her shoulders. She was in full German uniform and wore trousers, field boots and a small pack in battle order. On her jacket was a silver star, a type of badge not often seen on Germans, and the epaulets of her tunic had the braid of a corporal."

The stretcher bearer said he searched her clothes without finding any hint of her name or identity. A photograph of four German soldiers and the woman was found in her wallet. Lying dead near her was a German soldier in a panzer uniform who was identified as the man standing beside her in the group photograph.

Russ Colonel Finishes Her 130th Air Mission

MOSCOW. - Lieut. Col. Yevdokia Bershanskaya, the only woman in the Soviet air force to command a night bomber unit, completed her 130th mission recently and her proud male pilots remarked that "mama is blazing the trail as usual."

A blue-eyed brunette, daughter of a Kuban Cossack, Bershanskaya has been flying 13 years. She is married to a fighter pilot whom she has seen only once during the war -by accident. He was wounded in an air battle and made a forced landing on her field. He could stay only long enough to have a bullet wound dressed.

The woman commander is in her 30s and has a young son, who also has been separated from her throughout the war.

Described as owl-eyed when flying in darkness, Bershanskaya personally reconnoiters the objectives to be bombed before she sends out her formation.

Guam Natives Get Lost;

New Roads Are Vexing

GUAM. - American bulldozers, cutting what might be called roads on Guam, have just about upset the sense of direction of some natives. Sgt. Murrey Marder, marine combat correspondent, tells this one:

A native Guam guide for marines on the west coast was released from duty recently and started for his home in the Mount Santa Rosa district. Four hours later he was back in the bivouac area.

"Don't you want to go back home?" some one asked.

"Yes," he replied, wearily, "but your people make new roads all over the island. I start for home but can't find the way. I am lost. So I come back here to stay. Later maybe I can find way home."

Kathleen Norris Says:

The Bride of a Blind Man

Bell Syndicate.-WNU Features.

I hope Dolores and David will have as pretty a wedding as can be managed in se thrifty days, and be back on the campus when college opens.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

TER father says that Dolores shall not and must not marry David. Dolores says that come what may she will marry David. Her mother cries a great deal and wants to know what I ad-

And David waits. David has a great deal of waiting to do. For he has come home from gallant service in the South seas, stone blind. They weren't quite engaged when he went away. They liked each other very much, the young Spanish professor at college, who was David, and the pretty half-Spanish pupil who was Dolores. Before he left David asked Dologes if she would wait for him-if he weren't killed-depends in these tremendous days. Now he's come back-blind, And of course he feels that he can't talk about marriage to Dolores, who is 22, whose people have only one child, and a comfortable position in the Arizona town. It would mean the sacrifice of the child's whole life.

if he came back-all the pitiful "ifs"

upon which our children's happiness

But Dolores is the most determined of them all. She knows what she wants-and it is David. He can go right on teaching-with Dolores, who speaks Spanish better than he does, to help. He can live right along in his own cottage on the campus, with Dolores to keep house for him. His handicap will only draw them closer together. His eyes may never see his children's faces, but he will see them through Dolores' eyes. Dad will go on with her allowance, they'll have plenty of money.

Should Have Pretty Wedding. Now all three say that they will abide by whatever I decide. This is a tremendous responsibility, but without hesitation I answer that I hope Dolores and David will have as pretty a wedding as can be managed in these thrifty days, and be back on the campus when college opens, ready for the new life together.

Dolores has loved David ever since she was 12 and he 23, ten years ago. He has always been her ideal of gentleness and friendliness and companionship; to feel that he needs her, that she can be always close to him, is heaven to Dolores. In her letter, written in a round childish hand and stained with tears, she says:

"Papa used to ask David to dinner sometimes when I was only a little girl, and those used to be great days for me. I used to go 'round hugging the thought, 'David's coming. I'll hear that nice throaty voice of his; he'll smile across the table at me. "When I got older, and was going to my first parties he'd bring me a gardenia now and then-I have them all yet. And a year ago, when he went away, and said something to me out on the porch one night about wanting to feel that I'd miss him, that perhaps someday I'd forget he

LOVE CONQUERS ALL

Many tragic situations are developing in the wake of this war, as in all wars. A poignant ro-mance is the problem in this issue. Dolores is now 22. She has loved David since she was 12, when he used to visit her father. He is now 33. Before the war he taught Spanish at a southwestern university. He went to war in the south Pacific. Now he is home-stone blind.

Dolores wants to marry him more than ever. She knows how he feels - useless, a burden - a drag on the girl he loves. Dolores' mother is frantically op-posed to the union—so are most of her friends. David believes he now has no right to expect his fiancee to marry him.

There is no question of financial difficulties, for Dolores' father is wealthy, and will continue her allowance. Besides, David probably can teach or tutor again. It's just that it seems somehow too awful for a girl to risk her happiness on a blind was Dad's friend and think of him as my friend - as my husband well, I lived on that for a whole year! You don't know how wonderful he is. I'd rather marry him, with his heart and his mind, than a million boys with eyes!"

Miss Norris strongly advises Dolores to marry her beloved David. A happy future is ahead for a couple whose devotion is intense and spiritual, regardless of physical changes.

Devotion is Uncommon.

Feeling as she does, knowing this man as she does, Dolores has nothing to fear. On the contrary, the happiness of marriage between these two, the flimsiness of its difficulties, will be a constant revelation and delight to both husband and wife. Many and many a wife hungers in her heart for the companionship these two will know; the evening lamp lighted; the day's school papers read aloud by Dolores. corrected put aside, the world shut out, and all their dreams and their love shut in.

American women have been wonderful in sacrifice and endurance during these years of war.

Now a new job is facing us; to meet our wounded, handicapped sons and brothers with heroic courage, to plan activities for them that they can perform with dignity and satisfaction to themselves. To save their hurt pride. To encourage them to take up life again on new lines. To convince them that love and content, happiness and usefulness, interest and achievement do not depend upon an arm, a leg, eyes, backs; that despite wounds and losses, a man may live a full and happy life.

Saddle Soap Cleans Shoes

There is no all-purpose white shoe cleaner. Polish and cleaner for the shoes should be chosen according to the type of leather in them. The cleaning and polishing of shoes should be done off-the-feet. Put them on shoe trees in cleaning.

Smooth grain leathers can be cleaned well with saddle soap. The saddle soap should be applied with a minimum of water. When the shoe's are dry they may be polished with a cream or wax form of white shoe polish.

Last Game Takes All

By E. M. PARKINSON McClure Syndicate-WNU Features.

A S Clara Rivers parked her car before the Northville Farmers' Bank, William Hudson thrust his long face inside the window. "Car's gettin' kinda run-down, ain't it, Clara?"

Clara laughed, a plump, middleaged spinster's pleasant laugh. "I'm not squanderin' money on new ones. I learned a lesson, William, when my father died and I got that mean note from one of the bank directors, threatenin' to foreclose on my farm. Lucky I found Pa's money in time. Only that letter rankles. I keep wonderin' who done it."

"When I find out, they'll answer to me!" William's voice dropped. "Ye know how I feel about ye, Clara. Any time ye say the word—" "Sh! Someone's comin'"

William nodded contemptuously. "Dumbest businessman in the Big. good-natured Bruce Bigelow ambled over, grinning, "Mornin', Clary. Mornin', William. Well, William, you sure outsmarted me last week. Heard you sold my hog for twice what you paid me."

"Well, ye begged me to buy."
"Dumb," Bruce chuckled. "That's me!" he turned to Clara. "Clary, I picked up a nice box of choco-lates. Could I bring it over tonight?" Clara flushed. "Well, Will and

"Sure!" William broke in. "I'd enjoy eatin' chocolates while I beat ye at smear, Bruce. Or this here old ladies' game, annygrams. Hear ye've taken it up lately."

He went off and Bruce looked at Clara ruefully. "Clary, you ain't gonna marry William?"

Clara snapped, "If so, I wouldn't starve. I admire a smart man,

"I know, Clary, but maybe I got reasons for appearin' so dumb!"
"Then you better prove it, Bruce.
You got just tonight."

All the way home Clara fumed. She was so angry at Bruce that she'd almost have taken William Hudson, if it weren't for her awful uneasiness about the note. She took it from its hiding place back of the old Seth Thomas clock and read it for the thousandth time. It was typed in capitals on the bank's stationery, and signed only DIREC-TORS. Every director had declared indignantly, "Clara, if we find out who did this, we'll oust him!" Well, after a year, maybe she ought to forget. But.

At ten that evening Clara could have cried. Bruce had lost every game. "You boys play this final one without me," she said, looking straight into Bruce's eyes. "Last game takes all."

The first plays went badly for Bruce. He held one word; BEAR. He drew A and made MA. "Take your MA to make MASS," William Bruce drew and passed. "This is embarrassin'!" William's eyes narrowed. "Take your BEAR to put with MASS and make EMBARASS!" Clara gasped. "But-"

"Hush!" Bruce said. "No kitbitzin'!" He acquired two words, RITE and STRING.

"Take that RITE to make EN-TIRE," William said. Bruce drew and passed. "Nice game, eh, Clary? Interestin'!"

William leered. "Take your STRING to put with ENTIRE and make INTERRESTING." Clara was furious, "Bruce, that

"No help!" Bruce said. Then, "Take your EAR to make FEAR." Losing a word upset William. "Come on," Bruce teased. "Don't take from now to February."

"Thanks," William sneered. "Fill take your FEAR to put with BUY and make FEBUARY." Clara burst out, "That ain't the way to spell -"

"Never mind," Bruce said stern-ly. William had nineteen words. "Twenty words out," Bruce sighed. "Last game takes all. I'd sure like to win. It's - urgent!'

"Urgent, eh? I'll jest take your CUR to put with my HINT and make ' HINT! Hate to win so HINT! Hate to win so Bruce Laned across the table, ad-miringly. "You got a lot of big words, Will. Pushin' em around, addin' a little here and there, you could make a little sentence.' Suddenly, before Clara's eyes lay a familiar message: VERY UR-CHINT YOU PAY UP WITH INTERREST BY FEBUARY OR SOMETHING EMBARASSING WILL HAPPEN.

'Remind you of anything, Clary?" Bruce asked. Clara went to the clock and returned to spread a worn paper on the table. "What's that, Clara?" William asked hoarsely. "Just the note you sent me, Will, when Pa died."

William's face purpled. "Look here! This ain't proof—"
"Tis," Bruce said quietly. "I tried out every other bank director, tried out every other bank director, before witnesses. None of 'em's got just this way of spelling these words. Maybe you'd like to resign, Will, without lettin' the town know why." He turned to Clara. "Sorry about losin', Clary."

Clara smiled meltingly. "You won the last game, Bruce. Last game takes all—including me!"

Three or four other couples to balance the table—but a nice gay crowd."

His deep voice became a rumble. A minute later, Zorie heard a car start. The admiral presently returned along the path he and Steve had taken.

The sudden ferocity with which war had burst upon the Pacific had put all of them under an increasing ain. And Paul was trying too to make up for lost time. She was finding his over-zealousness at es trying and she was finding it ere and more difficult to keep we out of her thoughts. One evening at her stateroom door when Paul had kissed her good night, and had asked her-as he did so often ese days-if she still loved him, she had murmured, "Of course I do,

She was so frightened she turned rold. But her voice must have been too low for him to hear, or his own ughts too turbulent. He hadn't no-

She had tried to rationalize it by assuring herself that she could, any time she wished, notify the authorities, and by her knowledge that there was still, in spite of her sure spicions, nothing she could prove. She dreamed about Steve. Often ere were strange dreams in which both he and Paul figured. If Steve suspected her suffering, te was being very nice about it. It tess, an old story with Steve-being and to all the women who made tels of themselves over him. As, for example, Amber Lanning was

Most of all, she didn't want Paul to become aware of it, although she was sure that his renewed ardor was making him blind. She did not want Paul to be hurt. And regardess of where her heart wanted to lead her, her mind was still at the controls. Her mind kept insisting that she would, in a little time, fully recover. By then Paul would be ack on an even keel and they would, at an appropriate time, be married. Of the remainder of the trip on the blacked-out ship, she would unreasonably recall most vividly, not the frantic excitement of the passengers, nor the tension, the alertness, the white war-worn faces of Honohalu under martial law, but her aldish jealousy of Steve's attenlack of inhibitions, wasn't making any efforts to conceal the fact that she, too, had gone overboard for Steve

The war, curiously, affected Zorie scarcely at all. After the first awful feeling, when she learned of the devastation at Pearl Harbor and at the army and naval air base, her self-possession returned. Her new fearlessness was impervious. She wasn't afraid of torpedoes or Japanese bombers and, as she saw neither submarines nor bombers, her the first day's attacks on Oahu, the enemy was occupied with Wake. would not be frightened. Often she came upon Steve and Amber, walking together, playing ping pong, or the horse races, or shuffleboard. They were always laughing always appropriate the statement of the laughing, always so absorbed in each other that they were oblivious.

it affected her—the bleak fury, the jealousy, the hatred that swept her. After the first day, there was little war news. All the passengers' radios were confiscated and only curt official bulletins from Washington were issued. On the day after the attack on Oahu, two United States destroyers magically appeared and escorted the "Samoa" on her zigzag course the rest of the way.

Zorie wondered how the war would ffect the plans, the status, of Steve, he Lannings and Pierre Savoyard.
he had hoped that her problem own fiery hatred of Japan, of all the Axis powers, had made her problem suddenly acute. Yet she had, despite the intensity of her feelings, done nothing about it. She had rationalized it by telling herself that the blow might kill the admiral. She had decided to talk it over with him, to tell him about all her suspicions, and let him decide what action to take.

She had grown very fond of the peppery old man. Her brightest recollections of that strange voyage had been her work with him. He had no fear of submarines and he was determined to get on with The Book. Once he was reconciled to Zorie's disinterest in his Annapolis pranks and the Battle of Manila Bay-now being fought again with terrible new weapons-he had plunged into the story of the Duncan clan.

He was anxious to get on with it, but he had told Zorie there would be no work today.

with him on a lanai shaded by a Pride of India tree. The centerpiece was an arrangement of translucent spikes of blood-red ginger flowers. She tasted her first baked breadfruit.

"I've been thinking things over." Paul said. "You once, mentioned that you'd prefer it if I gave up my ambition to be a professor of psychology, and went to the plantation as a cut-cane luna and worked up."

"But, Paul, I didn't say that!" Zorie protested. Or had she?

"Did I ever tell you how we came by Uluwehi E Kai?

His overstop being so humble. anxiety to please her had reached a very irritating stage. She scarcely caught the gist of what he was say-

A Hawaiian queen had once lived here. The admiral had bought Ulu-wehi from the Hawaiian crown fifty years ago. Until recently it had been part of the Duncan Plantation. On the death of Grandmother Duncan, he had sold the plantation to a syndicate in which he owned a large interest, retaining only Uluwehi. He also had large interests in other sugar and pineapple properties, and in banks and hotels, in steamship and air lines. "I know you're enchanted with Uluwehi," Paul said. "I'm seeing it as I never saw it before—through your eyes. I know how you'll hate to live anywhere else. So, if you say fearlessness was not tested. After the word, I'll start in tomorrow as

"But you've fallen in love with this place!"

"That has nothing to do with it. Your career comes first!"

His eyes were grayer than green. "If I thought you could go back to Elleryton without hating it—"

"But of course I could, darling!" He was doubtful. He really looked wretched. "I'd rather make any sacrifice to keep you happy."
"No, Paul," Zorie said crisply.

"Your future isn't to be worked out on that basis. Decide what you want to do and I'll abide by it."

"There isn't a lovelier spot in the world than this," Paul said, "and you would lead the happiest life you've ever known. You'd be the boss of the Duncan clan. And the mistress of Uluwehi is the undiscrete gueen of this island. nistress of Uluwehi is the undisputed queen of this island. I know how crazy the admiral is about you. "The instant this book is finished," Zorie said crisply, "we'll go back to Elleryton." She had a sudden glimpse of the twin chimneys of the Fenwick Body Plant and of the social life-Mrs. Folsome, Mrs. Mc-Gonigle, Aunt Hannah. "Now let's stop all this silly argument."

He came around to her chair and kissed her on the cheek.

"Thank you, Zorie," he said solemnly. "That was what I wanted you to say . . . Would you like to be married here?"

Zorie hesitated. Her heart was beating in slow, cold thumps. "Yes, Paul. Of course!"

"It would be a lot of fun," Paul said. "We'd have a luau-an oldfashioned Hawaiian luau. Would you like that?"

"Yes, dear." "I've been thinking." Paul said, "that we might be married Sun-

It was true. They had. Rather, Paul had. For more than a year they had been on this vaguely engaged basis. And there hadn't been day when she hadn't hoped that Paul would decide not to wait.

But that had been in Elleryton . . His announcement left her with feeling of panic. She realized that she hadn't the slightest desire to marry Paul day after tomorrow.

He was fondling her shoulder. "Then," he said, "we'll fly over to Kona for a few days. We'll come back here and stay until the admiral's book is finished. I'll find plenty to do. I want to do some more work on my dissertation."

He was trying to be gay and reckless. But he wasn't convincing Zorie and he wasn't convincing himself. He sensed that something was wrong, but he didn't know what it was.

"Would you like it that way, hon-

Zorie was gazing at the garden.
"This would be a lovely place to be married," she said. She would not try to escape it. She would go through with it. She could not let Paul down.

She wanted to cry. All the time Paul was talking, she'd been seeing Steve at her wedding-Steve watching her with a brother-in-law's detached pride and fondness.

"Well, then, that's settled," Paul said vigorously. "We'll be married Sunday. I'll attend to everything."

She was about to leave her room when one of the maids brought her a lei of white ginger flowers. When she put it on, it fell almost to her waist. If she had needed a completing touch, the chain of glowing She asked the maid who had sent

"Mr. Steve or Mr. Paul?" "Mr. Steve."

It almost went without saying. With all his ardor, his anxiety to please her, Paul would never think of sending her a lei-especially a white ginger lei. She went out onto the lanai with its blackout curtains of heavy blue velvet. The admiral, Paul and Steve were already there, but none of the guests had come. The three men were drinking Old-Fashioneds. They stared at her as she crossed the lanai. As one man they raised their glasses to her. It was almost involuntary. The expression in their eyes was a toast. She murmured, "Thank you, sir," demurely.

Steve made her an Old-Fashioned. She noticed dry little lines about his mouth and eyes. He looked tired and worried and tense. She was aware that Paul, in spite of his resolves, disapproved of the frankness of her star sapphire dress. He had betrayed it in his eyes after the admiral had complimented her. It was, she thought, disheartening. Paul did not want her to be radiant. He wanted her to be dull. He had always wanted her to be dull. And when, to please him, she had dressed dully, he had frankly admired women who were colorfully dressed. She wondered why. She wondered what the solution was.

She was sipping her cocktail when Amber and her uncle came out of the house, followed by Pierre. Am-ber wore the midnight-blue dress the most effective dress she had. Mr. Lanning was all in white. Pierre Savoyard had crowded his power-fully sloping shoulders into a white dinner jacket. He seemed ill at ease. He stared at Zorie, then sat down in a Singapore chair. He sat there, smoking one cigarette after another, until dinner was announced, arising only when the guests arrived and he was introduced. He spent his time nursing one drink and staring

JESUS' PROGRAM FOR MEETING LIFE'S PROBLEMS

LESSON TEXT-Matthew 4:1-4; 6:31-34; GOLDEN TEXT-Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that pro-ceedeth out of the mouth of God.-Mat-

Problems, sorrows, needs, anxieties-how they press in on mankind from every direction. What is he to do about them? He cannot meet them in his own strength. They worry him almost to the point of distraction. What shall he do?

There is just one answer, and it is blessedly simple and completely satisfying. Take your burdens to the Lord and leave them there! Cast all your care upon Him, for He careth for you (I Pet. 5:7).

From the teachings of Jesus our lesson tells us why and how we may do this. Let us not miss its glorious -and convicting-message.

I. We Can Overcome Temptation Through Christ Matt. (4:1-4).

Temptation is the common lot of all mankind (I Cor. 10:13). The strongest and most noble of men are subject to it. Angels were tempted, and our scripture reveals that even Jesus was tempted. We recognize that Jesus was tempted as the Messiah (vv. 3, 6) and as one without sin (Heb. 4:15), but it is also true that He was tempted in all points as we are, apart from sin, and that we may learn from His temptation how we may meet and be the victors over temptation.

We learn of our Lord that temptations may be victoriously over-

1. By the right use of Scripture. If Jesus needed that weapon, how can we do without it? But how can we use Scripture if we do not study it and hide it in our hearts?

2. By dependence on God. Every Scripture used by Jesus honored God. We cannot fight Satan in our own strength. To attempt to do so is to fail utterly. The real victory for the Christian is to bring Satan back to the cross where Christ won a decisive victory over him.

3. By denouncing Satan. Jesus sent him on his way. We may do the same in Jesus' name. It is always a serious error to try to argue with Satan or to engage in any discus-sion with him. Leaus meet him with Scripture and say "Get thee hence."

II. We Can Learn to Trust God for our Daily Needs (Matt. 6:31-34). Some want to be rich. Their folly made clear in verses 19-24. But then there are some who while not wanting to be rich, are in constant anxiety about food and raiment for the morrow.

What is the answer of the Lord Jesus? Consider the birds. They are not able to work, nor are they able to pray, but God feeds them. Consider the glory of the flowers of the fields, for not even a king can dress himself in such beauty. "Are ye not much better than they?" (v. 26).

"As far as known, no bird ever tried to build more nests than its neighbors; no fox ever fretted because it had only one hole in which to hide; no squirrel ever died of anxiety lest he should not lay up enough nuts for two winters instead of one; and no dog ever lost any sleep over the fact that he did not have enough bones laid aside for his declining years" (Public Health service). Proper forethought is good and right, for we are intelligent beings, but anxiety about our daily needs is always dishonoring to God. Yes, says someone that's all very well, but how about the future? Well, why should we fret about that? It is in God's hands, and even if it were in our hands, what could we do about it? Even tomorrow, with its needs and its blessings, with its joy and its sorrows, is not yet here, and when it does come, there will be God's gracious provision for each passing hour.

III. We Can Follow Christ in Sacrificial Service (Luke 4:16-21).

Let us be clear at once that we cannot do what Christ did, for He is the Son of God. He had a special ministry to perform as the Messiah. But we may learn much from this Jesus began His ministry among His own people even though He knew of their unbelief. He used the Word of God as the background for His calling. He recognized the special need of the poor and the suffering, and especially of those who were bruised and broken by sin.

In all these things we may follow His example. Let us declare the truth to those nearest to us, even if they do reject it. Let us look to God's Word for our call and our commission-different from that of Jesus, but nevertheless from God and for His glory.

Then, too, let us learn of Him that we are to serve those who are most needy and possibly neglected, serving their physical needs, but above all bringing to them the light of God's redeeming grace.

Here is light from the Lord on our problems of sin, sorrow, supply and service.

Matching Cornice And Radiator Shelf

THIS winter as last we should remember that the purpose of a radiator is to radiate heat and that we are not getting the maximum from fuel if we box the radiator in with a tight cover. The shelf shown here is built well above the radiator and curving up reflector which also covers the wall back of the radiator. The front and end of the shelf are trimmed with cut-out wooden scallops repeating the curves of those used for the cornice shelf above the curtains.

There is a trick about the cornice too. It fits over the top of the window frame but is considerably wider to allow the overdraperies to hang straight at the sides of the radiator which is the width of the window. The sketch at the left shows how nails hold the box-like cornice in place and how the draperies are held inside with cup hooks.

. . . NOTE—The attractive chair beside the radiator shelf is made with pattern No. 263. Scallop pattern No. 207 illustrates the steps in making cornices and also gives actual size pattern for scallops for cornice and edging of the shelf. Patterns are 15 cents each. Address:

Between 2,000 and 4,000 years ago, more than 50 large obelisks were erected in Egypt to preserve, for all time, through their hieroglyphs, the achievements of the Pharaohs. Yet today, only 19 of these monolithic monuments are still standing and only five are in

The soil of the earth, and fruits and vegetables which are stale, or over-ripe, or bruised, or broken, or dirty, or decayed, serve as head-quarters for yeasts and moulds and bacteria. That is why sound, strictly fresh, home-grown produce must be chosen for canning.

Bacteria, the hardest-to-kill of the enemy group, multiply rapidly in vegetables, such as corn, peas, lima, and other shell-out beans, and are hard to kill once they are estab-lished, because the vegetables contain no natural acid to help make it easier for heat to destroy the bac-
