Star Dust

- ★ Shirley Likes Cops
- ★ Shorts for Colonel

By Virginia Vale

IT IS reported that Norma Shearer, having won the coveted role of "Scarlett O'Hara" in "Gone With the Wind," now wants the story changed. It's said that she feels that the heroine's character, in the last half of the book, is unsympathetic.

To do this would be to ruin the character and spoil the story, of course—and the result would be that thousands of motion picture fans who liked the book and have taken real interest in the casting of the picture would be furious.

During Shirley Temple's recent visit to New York her mother actually dared leave her for a little while. Shirley was at the office of a national magazine, and her mother was in a smart department store, doing a bit of shopping.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE

She said that she almost never left Shirley, but that she felt that it was all right to do so just then—"The policemen assigned to her are such nice men," said she, "and Shirley is so fond of them."

Just in case you've wondered what has happened to Colonel Sloopnagle, formerly of "Sloopnagle and Budd," he's making movies. They are shorts, and he's doing it near his Connecticut home, for Educational. The finished product will be issued as "Colonel Sloopnagle's Cavalcade of Stuff."

Dorothy Lamour spent part of her vacation with her husband, Herbie Kay, at the resort near Houston, Texas, where he was appearing with his orchestra. She appeared with the orchestra one evening and sang two numbers; she also announced that she'd like to be back, singing with the band, but that he wouldn't give her her old job again. And all she wanted was $50 a week and expenses.

She also visited Galveston—her career began there six years ago, when she was "Miss New Orleans" in a bathing beauty contest.

Harold Lloyd has bought the negatives of 114 of his early pictures from Pathé.

Partly for sentimental reasons, partly because some of those early pictures of his, at which we all shouted with laughter, contain gags that can be used again. Watch for his new one, just released—"Professor Beware."

There may be some of the ancient laugh jokers in it.

Al Roth, NBC musical director, ran into a lot of surprises and several shocks when he began tracing nursery rhymes for his proposed "Children's Symphony." Most of today's simple little songs for children were originally hilarious drinking songs!

ODDS AND ENDS—When Eddie Cantor sailed for Europe he took along a supply of sturgeon from a New York delicatessen store, just to be sure of having the kind he likes best. . . Seven men and women, doubles for famous movie stars of Hollywood, sailed for England the other day to make a picture there. . . Walter Catron, who played the sheriff in "The Great Train Robbery," in film-dramas of his early days, will be seen in "Made for Each Other." . . It's reported that Simone Simon's contract won't be renewed when it expires about September first. . . George Bancroft recently celebrated his 25th year in the movies. . . Made Evans, yearning for experience on the stage is appearing in one of the little summer theaters near New York. . . Jane Pickens, for the same reason, is in "My Bill," you'll see New Francis in a new role—hus of the mother of four children, wearing simple frocks instead of gorgeous ones, and giving as good a performance as if she were just beginning on a new troupe, instead of winding up an old one.

TO THE RESCUE

A member of a club had the habit of consuming his soup in a noisy and boisterous fashion. The noise upset other members, but they were too courteous to protest.

One day, however, when the offensive sounds were at their loudest, a young and nerveless member strode towards the culprit and said, "May I help, sir?"

"Help?" retorted the diner. "I don't need help."

"Sorry," said the youngster. "I thought perhaps you might wish to be dragged ashore."—Tit-Bits Magazine.

A Test of Courage

INSTEAD OF JELLY ROLLS

How would you like a lovely golden sponge cake roll filled with luscious favoring and fruit instead of jelly? You know how uncooked fruit has a flavor that speaks of sun and wind and fields. It's a delicate under-tone flavor that's completely lost when the fruit is cooked. That's why I like to find so many recipes as I can that call for fresh uncooked fruit. And this Blackberry Sponge Roll is just that kind of a dessert.

You make the sponge cake roll—then coat it with whipped cream and sweetened fresh berries spotted with sugar to enhance their flavor. You can see what an effective-looking dessert it is—rim of the golden tender cake encircling layers of the luscious juicy purple blackberry fruit. Each slice of this regal purple and gold dessert is served with a swirl of snowy whipped cream and a few whole berries for a garnish.

I'm going to give you the recipe for this dessert just as we made it. Our testing kitchen tried with fresh blackberries. But I want to add a suggestion made by a visitor who was invited to sample it. She was most gratifyingly enthusiastic—but also added that she was sure it would be just as delicious with sliced peaches.

Blackberry Sponge Roll

3 eggs
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup water
1 cup all-purpose or cake flour
1 tsp. baking powder
1/4 tsp. salt

Beat eggs until very light. Add sugar gradually and continue beating with rotary egg beater until all the sugar is added. Add water and beat well. Sift flour once before measuring. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together and add to the egg mixture. Beat quickly until well mixed. Add favoring and pour immediately into shallow 10 by 14 inch pan which has been greased and lined with paper. Batter should be only 1/2 inch thick. Bake 15 to 18 minutes in moderately hot oven, 375° F. When baked, turn upside down on a cloth sprinkled with confectioner's sugar, remove paper, cut edge of cake so it will not be broken when rolled. Roll the thin layer of cake in sugar, roll in towel until cool. Wash the berries and drain well. Cover with sugar and lemon juice. Open the roll and spread with the fruit and serve with whipped cream. Garnish with a few whole berries. You can get 10 fairly generous servings from this dessert.

Question: I've been having a great deal of trouble with my sponge cakes lately. I don't know what the matter can be.

Answer: In the first place your sponge cake may not be sufficiently baked! Or the egg yolks may not have been sufficiently beaten either before adding the sugar, or after you have added it. This matter of beating the egg yolks until they are literally thick and lemon-colored is highly important to the success of any sponge cake. I'm convinced that under-beaten egg yolks are the cause of most sponge cakes disappointing. After you are sure you are blending it in very thoroughly.

Loyal Workers Class Tea Social Meeting

In the home of their teacher, Mrs. R. G. Carroll, members of the Loyal Workers Class of the Methodist church were entertained with a party last Friday.

Entertainment for the afternoon was "42".

A delicious refreshment plate with punch was served to the guests.

Present were Mesdames Tom

Brewer, Thelma Vandall, Henry Warren, Harry Line, Alva Jones, Betty Crocker, Mrs. S. M. Stark, Joe Garner, B. M. Pike, Fay Westmoreland, Clayton, J. N. Walker, covering the "Bill Billy" boys' stumped the state in a bus equipped with sound amplifiers and a platform atop. He gave a mixture of mountain music and politics such as Texans had never before.

When his announcement was made, the other candidates and most political observers paid little attention. After his formal position at Waco attracted an estimated 15,000 persons, they blinked their eyes. His campaign was a sensation from that day hence.

O'Daniel said he was no politician, but just a business man who had spent 25 years selling flour.

"Well, well," he would breathe into the microphone, opening a speech, "just a few weeks ago I was W. Lee O'Daniel, selling flour. And look at me now!"

Little Change Noted In Fabric Styling
While little actual change has taken place in fabric styling for fall, the collections fall into two types: fair, crisp, woolly cloths, and very soft cloths with jersey like drape for daytime and evening.

Dullness is a prerequisite, except for a few fabrics here and there with an indefinite sparkle or a crystalline fabric made of flat acetate yarns.

The majority of fabrics are smooth, with a definite weave interest. The mossy weave is the basic weave of the season; the checkered weaves are being made an increasing amount of weaves, offering both weave in, interest and a not-too-fancy ground.

Double alpaca weaves of rayon and acetate constitute a volume group for daytime fashions. Spun rayon and wool combinations take a higher place in the fabric picture. They are offered in interesting weaves, woolly textures and comfortable wearing qualities. Velvets are more important than ever, with improvements in crush-resistant types. Jerseys both wool and rayon, come into their own this season. There is a big story still to be told by retailers on the wearing qualities of jersey garments.

Speaking of pioneer hardships, many people yet living can remember when they toasted their bread on a fork over the fire, and even had to eat the slices themselves.

O'DANIEL RAN FOR FEAR HE'D LOSE CUSTOMERS
That Waco—A smiling 46-year-old flour jobber who'd been six weeks ago to run for governor because he was afraid he would lose customers if he did not, is to be our next governor.

The flour maker was W. Lee O'Daniel, a newcomer in Texas politics.

"We just applied some principle of advertising and four-sell," he said of his mountain music campaign against such established political veterans as William McCraw, twice-elected attorney general; Ernest O. Thompson, railroad commissioner; and Tom Rouser, who has run for governor three times before and never received less than 200,000 votes.

O'Daniel's platform was the ten commandments. His motto was the golden rule. His slogan was "I'm not from here, but I'm for Texas." He advocated, between $30 a month pensions for all Texans over 65 regardless of their financial condition; he stood for industrialization of Texas; and he lambasted all his opponents as "professional politicians."

The farmer should be suspicious whenever anyone comes to him offering to pay a price much above the current local market for such wool indicate that there is doubtless some fraudulent practice to be worked on him. Likewise the farmers should be suspicious when grain is offered to them much below the price being quoted them in their locality, for it is obvious that these truckers in order to pay more than the market justifies in one place and to sell for less and accept only legal com-

This condition is especially prevalent in Central Texas where it is also possible where trucks can deal with a safe way a grain weighed and sold carefully that no perpetuated to affect the per weight, and then to accept only legal com-real news is to be found in the small local items about the community . . . when they guests from out of town they give a birthday party for Junior or the small daughter (or big daughter) when a group of friends come in for an evening of bridges; when the family takes a Saturday afternoon off to the mountains, the beach, the desert . . . all those and many other similar everyday incidents, concerning the folks in the community . . . are NEWS . . . the good healthy interesting sort that any paper is fortunate to have in its columns. Rest if you do us the friendly courtesy of calling in these little news items . . . never trival.

SKETCHES
By
W. G. FORGY

We're just quoting: John Earles (who left Wednesday morning for a three weeks vacation) told us that we wouldn't believe him, but he'd have all bale of cotton picked on his land this month.

Mrs. Housewife (who undoubtedly voted for short next fall's fledgling governor, because someone did) will certainly get bargains to let her back the back on Saturday-week when O'Donnell merchants cut loose with a whole of a lot of bargains. And (here we stick our neck out again) we're going to give away absolutely for free one half sack of that good, old Hilly Billy flour. We don't know where it is made, but who cares?

SPACE FILLERS—Watched Rains tinker with an old-fashioned clock and our memory went back many, many years when our dad would take down our old clock off the mantle to fix it—but seldom made it work; to our mother's disgust—And out of this and that do you remember when it was fashionable for most everyone to carry their own fancy toothpick? Hope the dad doesn't return—most of the oldsters will remember when their fair sweethearts would take the little bows out of the gentlemen's friend's hat for some purpose (twas whispered to place on garters, but we wouldn't know you know)—We're not so old, either, but we sported in that era when we expected, and were never disappointed, our sweet heart to beg us and beg us to quit smoking cigarettes for her own sake. But he-man, we had to refuse her request. (The secret, however, was that we only pretended to be such a devil because we refrained from actual smoking until we were 19. Married to be another Frank Marshall)—Car riding, movies and other modern set criteria is fun, but cannot be any more thrilling than when the Sunday populace met at the railway station to meet the train and walked up and down the platform looking at the lucky people riding in the coaches. And no greater thrill was ever evolved than to stand at the station and be the first to see the smoke of the incoming train and to say "she's coming!"

only a boy, you would be impatient for the train to leave as that you could retrieve that coin you had placed on the track to be flattened—Sunday afternoon, the lads, and their lasses straddled off decorously as a group, properly chaperoned, down the railroad tracks for a walk and surreptitious spooning—Slow, old-fashioned courting? No doubt, but it produced more honest-to-goodness thrills than all the slam-bang type of modern courting (?)—

Lloyd Gibbons' ADVENTURERS' CLUB

"The Particular Thief"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:
And who's the guest speaker at our Adventure Brandy? Well, sir, it's Mrs. Anna Robinson Bronx.

And what's she going to talk about? Why, Anna is to tell the strange tale of the thief who didn't want well as Anna did.

It all happened in a doctor's office the little upstate New York Jeffersonville. In 1927, Anna was working there as a nurse. It is a hard job, but it was a lonesome one, for the doctor was out on most of the day, leaving Anna in charge.

One afternoon in March, though, Anna had a caller. The doctor was not usual when the door bell rang, and Anna answered the door to admit a tall, ragged stranger with a desperate look in his eye.

"What do you want?" Anna asked. "What do you want?" He asked that the emergency would be his own.

"This Caller Just Wanted 'Coke,'" Anna said. "I'm not a doctor," she wanted to know.

"Where's the coke?" he cried angrily.

"Where did I get it?" he asked.

"Where's the coke?" he asked.

"Where's the coke?" he asked.

"Where's the coke?" he asked.

"Where's the coke?" he asked.

More Lace This Summer Than Ever

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AN UNPRECEDENTED surge for lace is recorded this summer. No longer is lace considered from the luxury and esthetic viewpoint only. Lace has become a tremendously practical factor in the realm of apparel wearable for all occasions.

You can get laces that you can scarcely identify as lace, so fabric-like in their mesh. They tailor as perfectly as cloth and carry a sophisticated air about them. As for service you'll be delighted with their practical wearableness. Then there are the handsome, washable cotton and linen laces that tailor so smartly in simple daytime dresses you will be wanting alone else, at least one of these practical gowns. Perhaps we would be better expressing the idea to insist that you invest in several. They will carry you through most any social crisis.

So far we have been talking of lace from the practical standpoint. When it comes to reviewing the triumphs of lace from the esthetic side of the question we think the lovely evening ensemble to the right in the illustration tells the story more eloquently than any word-picture could do. This exquisite creation is of bottle green Chantilly lace, so delicately meshed it is like finest cobweb structure. A water green foundation with bands of crepe in rainbow colorings at the hem and bodice top of this slip reflect the spirit of joyous summer. The evening veil which has become a favorite headress for formal occasions is of bottle green net with applied motifs of the lace.

'ON THE SQUARE' BY CHERIE NICHOLAS

White lingerie has come in and is the wanted kind at present. And as for accessory whites, footwear, gloves, bags and dresses, too numerous to mention make their mark on the fashion stage in pure white.

Decidedly on the square is the formula that newer bags follow, and as to size many of them are enormous. Pictured is a bi-den-dash bag on the tab of which are monogrammed initials. Wide, flat handles and zipper top opening are added features to this bag, which comes in tones of black, navy, rust, tan and black patent leather.

Top a Print Frock With Silk Coat of Monotone
Well-dressed women find appeal in the new summer costumes that top the print frock with a silk coat in monotone that repeats the leading color of the print. For instance wear with a brown beige and rose print dress, either a jacket or full-length coat of brown silk crepe. Or a red-on-white silk print dress adds a bolero of red silk and there are red ribbon bow trims on the frock.

Suit of Hopsacking
A suit of yellow hopsacking is a fitting costume for a summer day. Its jacket may be fitted and belted or swing straight and free, but it must be short-sleeved. Add a blouse in white organdie or a vestee of printed lace.

Rookie Stars Pace Majors In 1938 Race

By GEORGE A. BARCLAY

FRESHMAN ball players are ruling the roost in the major leagues this year. A crop of brilliant rookies unprecedented in the history of the game have achieved stardom right off the bat and clinched key jobs on seven of the sixteen teams in the American and National leagues.

These boys wonderers are no morning glories, mind you, for they are likely to fold when the going gets tough. They demonstrated their right to their jobs by sheer merit. For instance, up to the half-way mark of the season, six of the freshmen outfielders and infielders playing regular positions had knocked in 249 runs and compiled a composite batting average of .322. And four of the rookie pitchers taking their regular turn on the slab had won 25 out of 42 games for an average of .700.

Standout among the first year men, of course, is Cincinnati's sensational Johnny Vander Meer with two no-hit, no-run games in succession to his credit. His teammate, Frank McCormick, a heavy, slugging first baseman, has also made good in a big way.

FRANK MCCORMICK

Another scintillating recruit is Joe (Flash) Gordon, second baseman of the New York Yankees and regarded as about the classiest infielder in the junior circuit. The Cleveland Indians have Ken Keltner on third base, who specializes in home runs between hair-raising plays.

Wonder Woman

HELEN WILLS MOODY's recent victory over Helen Jacobs at Wimbledon, England, confirmed her as the greatest woman player in the history of tennis. Whether you like poker-faced Helen or not you must agree that her championship feat after a layoff of three years was unparalleled.

This latest comeback was the second in her career. In 1935 after being inactive for the two previous years because of a knee injury, she triumphed at Wimbledon. Now, three years later, she has repeated.

She dropped out of tennis so far as major competition was concerned after her 1935 triumph and stayed out until she hit the comeback trail this year in England.

Along with her tennis triumphs, she has been a dominant figure in the world of tennis for 15 years, ever since she won her first United States championship in 1923. Before that, for two years she was the girls' national titleholder. She took the national singles crown seven times, between 1924 and 1931. Since 1927 she has won the Wimbledon singles title eight times, including her recent victory.

Just for good measure, Mrs. Moody has won four French women's championships and a respectable number of doubles and mixed doubles championships.

Here and There—

WHEN Bob Feller was pitching for Van Meter there were only 200 high schools in Iowa playing baseball. There were 510 high schools entered in an Iowa tournament this spring which climaxed in a three day competition at Manson in Calhoun county. . . . Lefty Grove takes a nap on a rubber table before each game he pitches. . . . Reddy York needs only one more no-run game with the bases full to tie the season record of four, held jointly by Frank Schulte of the west side Cubs, Babe Ruth, and Lou Gehrig.

classy young catchers, including Johnny Middle of the Boston Bees, Clark of the Phillies, Herb Bremer of the Cardinals and Tom Heah of the St. Louis Browns.

Put all these rookies together on a diamond and with the exception of shortstop and with the exception of shortstop you would have an all-star aggregation that would give a festive account of itself in any ball game. And even so, that shortstop position could be acceptably filled by Justin Stein of the Reds.

Baseball Slots

A RACE of slow-footed, dull-witted ball players will soon dominate the national game if the present emphasis on stunting continues, according to Bill Lange, who 42 years ago stole 100 bases for the Chicago Cubs and speeded his way into diamond immortality.

"Modern ball players think too much in terms of home runs and not enough about base stealing," Lange declared. "The slinger has supplanted the thinker in baseball. Base stealing makes a player more alert mentally. He has to try to outguess the pitcher and the rest of the opposition, instead of trying to knock the ball out of the lot by brute force.

"As a rule the superior base stealer is also the brainier player. One of your illustrations is Ty Cobb, the greatest we ever had. He was worth more to a team than a dozen Babe Ruths."

It is an interesting coincidence that Lange, in his day regarded as the outstanding player of the game and the immortal Ty Cobb now are neighboring country squires near San Francisco, California.

Two men preceded and bettered him in stolen bases. They were John M. Ward of the New York Giants with 111 in 1887 and Billy Hamilton of Philadelphia with 102 in 1890 and the major league record number of 115 in 1891.

Best Breed of Poultry

A study of ten-year records indicates that choice of breed is not dependent upon the breed itself, writes Cora Cooke, extension poultry specialist, University of California, St. Paul but rather on management and local conditions. In six of the 10 years, light breeds led in labor, but for two years she was the girls' national titleholder. She took the national singles crown seven times, between 1924 and 1931. Since 1927 she has won the Wimbledon singles title eight times, including her recent victory.

Raw Potatoes for Cows
Raw potatoes may be fed to milking cows though best results will be obtained when they are limited in amounts to not over 20 pounds per cow per day, says an authority in the Montreal Herald. Potatoes have a tendency to produce a white, talcum-like growth on the feet of the potatoes. In fact, about four pounds of potatoes will be equivalent to one pound of hay in feeding value.

Lespedeza in Shade

Lespedeza is not a pasture product in dense woods, but the crop responds to stand more heavily shade in lots than when bluegrass, according to K. E. Beecher, agronomy department, Purdue University. While the plant will grow in shade and there is no sweet root growth, a marked increase in root-

YOUNG BIRDS NEED GROWING QUARTERS

Ample Space for Pulletts Is Best Summer Plan.

By Dr. W. C. Thompson, Poultry Husbandry, Ohio State University.

Much of the success of next year's table-egg producing flock depends upon the way in which the young pullets are being grown this season. Future layers must be protected against adverse conditions during the warm summer months.

A much too common fault among poultrymen is to crowd the pullets. Constant and too close contacts tend to injure the health of developing pullets and increase the risks of disease.

It is recommended that pullets be divided into colonies or flocks for handling on summer ranges or fields. Sixty pullets make a desirable unit and is the number which can be taken care of economically and efficiently in one standardized colony. Each summer shelter, however, should be light in weight and can be easily moved from place to place over the range. This type of pullet colony can be given not only ample space or area over which to roam, but also fresh, clean ground throughout the season.

Each colony should be handled as a separate unit and supplied with its own water trough or fountain and its own mash and grain hoppers. Five such units can be efficiently managed on each acre of range, particularly if the range is covered with some green growing crop, such as grass or alfalfa. In this way, each acre of range will accommodate 300 grown pullets to advantage. Such a management will obviate overcrowding and minimize disease problems.

It may seem, during the early summer season, that the shelters could easily accommodate more than 60 pullets, but as the weeks advance the fast growing pullets will soon use the shelter ground and prove the wisdom of having allowed that amount.

Dip for Sheep Scab Is Cure for the Disease

Sheep scab, a parasitic disease of the skin caused by tiny mites, can be cleared up by dipping the animals in a solution of lime and sulphur, coal tar disinfectant or 40 per cent nicotine sulphate. The solution should be made up at the rate recommended on the dip container, advises Wallace's Farmer.

For best results, the dip should be about 105 to 110 degrees Fahrenheit. Keep each animal in the dipping vat for two full minutes. Keep badly itested sheep in for three minutes.

Follow with a second dipping 10 to 12 days later. Failure to make a follow-up dip at exactly the end of the interval will invite reinfestation with a new brood of mites.

Along with treatment of the live animals, clean up the premises. Washes. Keep the dipped sheep out of these sheds for at least 30 days. In fact, following dipping, it is advisable to turn the sheep to ground where they have not been running for a period of at least several months.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

Austin—The honeymoon is over, and the first signs of discord between the ill-assorted group who rolled up such a tri-umphant majority for W. Lee O'Daniel as Democratic gubernatorial nominee, developed over the week-end in the wake of the county Democratic conventions. In Ft. Worth the nominee's home town, the "blue shirt" O'Danielites, led by Joe Steadham, labor leader, walked out, after bitterly assailing the "chamber of commerce bunch" which he accused of "steam-rolling" the convention. Frank Rawlings, ex-Senator and politician de luxe, was the floor leader.

In San Antonio, the Quinn city machine, which has been running political affairs for a good many years, controlled the convention, and a "rump" session was held by O'Daniel delegates who walked out. There will be a contest for recognition at the Beaumont convention, September 13. There was also a split convention in Houston.

COLLINS TALKS
In Dallas, the convention was especially interesting. Carr P. Collins, reputed to be "closer to the throne" than any other man with O'Daniel, dominated the session. As a result of the influence of Collins, an ardent dry, the Dallas delegates will take to Beaumont resolutions declaring the sale of beer and wine unconstitutional and caving upon the Legislature to bar their sale by the drink throughout Texas. It also urged stronger laws against boot-makers, and gamblers, and altogether was a distinct shock to the "liberal" element in Dallas, whose support was enlisted for O'Daniel on the plea that he was "a sensible businessman" and "honest" in his views.

SAVE JUDGES, IS PLEA
Collins also indicated that even O'Daniel leaders are fearful of the results of a "sweep 'em out of office" hurricane started by the flour man. Collins urged Democrats in the runoff primary to "find out about the candidates and vote for the best interests of Texas" declaring "there are some men in office and who have held office who ought to be re-elected, and there are some down at Austin who ought to be defeated." J. L. Goggin, permanent chairman, seconded Collins' warning not to defeat all present office holders, by adding "especially in our judiciary."

Job hunters were warned by Collins that O'Daniel will fill the jobs on merit alone, and told bluntly not to ask the aid of present office holders, by adding "rewards for political jobs given the nominee, 'because I won't do it'."
Reports from the rural counties generally indicated O'Daniel supporters were given a free hand. The candidacy at Beaumont will be composing the various factions who cast 525,000 votes for Collins) to get jobs at the most widely varied views on many public questions.

NO NAME CHANGER
Judge Richard Critz, of the Supreme Court of Texas has always suffered from a slight political handicap because many names are not familiar to the proper pronunciation of his name. It is pronounced "Critz" to rhyme with "nights"—not to rhyme with grits. When Judge Critz was considering plans for his runoff campaign last week, somebody suggested that he go to Court and legally change the spelling of his name to Crites. My ancestors fought in the Revolutionary war, and my father fought in the Confederate Army, replied Judge Critz, nettled at the suggestion. And that name was good enough for them. I wouldn't change it for all the votes in Texas.

Then a clever publicity man met along: "nights"—not to rhyme with grits. The Colorado river which flows through five counties, destroyed several bridges, damaged highway and washed away ten to 20 million dollars worth of farmers crops for harvest, may come one of the significant political developments of the year. Charging that the Colorado River Authority had filled Buchanan Dam with water preparatory to generating a lot of power to sell in nearby Central Texas cities, and wouldn't let the lake level down even when warned the flood was coming down, irate farmers in the five affected counties met in Austin with Gov. Allred, and other officials, and demanded a Senate investigating committee probe Chairman Tom Holbrook, the New Deal and its power-selling theories, called the committee to meet August 8. The farmers contend dams must be used either for power or for flood control, primarily, and can't serve both purposes effectively. They charge the Authority officials, sacrificed their crops and homes to their burning desire to generate and sell power. Then they answered the criticism of the ruined farmers with the arrogance characteristic of bureaucrats, and further angered the protestants. Congressman Lyndon Johnson of the Austin district, an ardent supporter of the Governor, is "on a spot" politically over the situation, and though he has no opponent this year, is reported looking apprehensively toward the primary election two years hence since the flood.

ALLRED TO QUIT SOON
Hinting broadly that he will step out of the Governor's office near September 1, Gov. Allred exhibited his commission as U. S. Judge for the Southern Texas district, and talked to friends this week about the "tremendous congestion" of the docket of the new court. It will open for business September 5, with more cases set for trial than any other Federal District Court in the United States. Best guessers here feel sure Judge Allred will be on the bench. That will give Walter Woodul, lieutenant governor, about 4 1-2 months to serve as governor. Meanwhile Woodul, high man in the first primary Attorney General, was vigorously prosecuting his runoff race with Gerald Mann, ex SMU football star of Dallas.

AUSTIN NOTES
This was "trade-out" week among the candidates, and virtually all candidates for State office, defeated and left in the runoff, visited the capital for conferences with the others—Ernest O. Thompson, departing for the States Compact meeting in Colorado, expressed no bitterness at his defeat, and his friends began talking freely of his "next race for Governor"—Bill McCraw announced he will practice law in Dallas after January 1.

J. B. Hancock, formerly of O'Donnell but who has resided with a daughter in Strawn for the past year, was transacting business here this week.

Mayor and Mrs. B. M. Haynes have returned from Monday where they visited with friends and relatives.

Jess Perry Hinu, who is stationed at Ft. Knox, Ky., is visiting in the home of his uncle, C. E. Ray.

Mrs. Roy Gibson and Mrs. R. M. Middleton were in Lubbock Monday.

Miss Betty Middleton will return Sunday to Ruidoso, New Mexico, where she and her mother and sister, Mrs. J. T. Middleton, Sr., and Maurice will spend the month of August.

Bobbie Hebsen of Emory is visiting his uncle Chesley Ray and Mrs. Ray.

From log-rolling to fence-mending, that's the life of a congressman.

TO THE VOTERS

After recovering from shell shock I wish to thank the friends so loyally supported me in the race for County Judge. The voters have spoken and I bow to their good judgment. The office of county judge is the office of the people, and I am proud of our system of government, that the people, and the people alone have the right to say who shall serve them.

In the "Run Off" it will be my policy to "hand, off" in the race for County Judge, as I think it would be unbecoming of me to even indicate who my choice for County Judge was, as I feel that the voters are sufficiently intelligent and patriotic to know what was the best course to pursue in that race. It is not in me to complain at what the majority of the voters wish. This is a great country and behind the clouds the sun still shines. I am indeed thankful to the many kind messages shown me in the race by both my friends and those who opposed me. Goodnight, will see you all tomorrow. Thanks a lot.
