TWO LYNN RACES IN

An old saw has it that no one knows who a woman will marry nor the outcome of an election.

Looking back on the decision of Saturday in which John and Jane Citizen registered his and her preferences, we see only one change in the Lynn County Court house family to date, that is, the victory of Curley Reed over Mrs. Lois Weathers for Treasurer. In an easy win, Judge Garrard won over Judge Grider for County Judge. Due for a runoff are the two Sams: Sam Grider for County Judge. Due for a runoff are the two Sams: Sam Floyd and Sam Price for sheriff, and also a runoff in the Tax Assessor race, David Weathers vs. Frank McGlaun, Jr. Taking an early lead over her opponent Mrs. Len ore Tunnell goes back as County School Superintendent over B. T. Smith, and Mathis goes back as County Clerk over Jim Woods. In the local precinct race John Anderson defeated B. W. Keith.

Incomplete returns as of Sunday CONGRESSMAN -- George Mahon representative of the 19th District of Texas to Washington for 12 pears. was returned to the same enough votes are out to change the results.

bomb which leveled Hiroshima and has since been echoing in the Pacific did something to con-

Scientists don't have many votes, so the persuasion couldn't have come by way of a lobby. The public imagination had been stirred. Suddenly the layman realized that science was a powerful factor in war. He realized too that perhaps men who could smash the atom and make it smash the enemy, might learn how to use the powers of the sleeping giant-atomic energy-for the good as well as the ill of mankind. At this writing congress has not completed action of the bill but probably will have done so by the time these lines are read. The idea of a national research program seemed very good to met Therefore, I was somewhat surprised to hear a pharmacological authority of my acquaintance say that passage of this legislation "would be as destructive in the field of science" as the bomb was in the midst of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. He made the observation in a group, several of whom were scientists. His hearers appeared to echo his sentimentssentiments which I later learned he had set forth in the recent Bulletin of the American Association of University Professors. He (Dr. Theodore Koppanyi) said: "In an analysis of the bill, a basic wrong immediately leaps to the eye. This is the assumption that scientific research can be 'initiated' or 'pre-scribed for.' If this assumption could be grounded, the natural sequel to a national research foundation would be federal foundations to 'initiate' and 'prescribe for' composition of music, the painting of pictures, the writing of poems, and the establishment of social controls and education, for science is probably the most personal and individualistic of all human endeavors. No agency, however authorized and directed, can develop a national policy for scientific research."

Difficult to Pass

The theories and ways of thinking of scientists, Dr. Koppanyi explained, (and his colleagues agreed) are as diverse as the world itself. "How can we set up a court with the power to pass on what is good and what is not good for science? he asked, and then he turned to me with this question: "Would you approve of having a member of your profession-a commentator or newswriter-appointed by a President of the United States, as head of a similarly selected group of your colleagues who were made privy to private government information, which was barred from other speakers or writers?"

Naturally I said: "No." (That would be the end of the freedom of the press and radio.)

Then Dr. Koppanyi concluded: "You can spend a lot of money and get no return. But if you trust in human ingenuity, motivated by desire of public service, the love of science, recognition, and maybe selfish aims alike, you will have done more for basic science than you could ever do with billions of dollars of federal money."

National Genealogical society, writes in China Monthly of a study of 100 Chinese genealogies in the library of congress. The oldest is that of the Pi family of Hsin-an. Published in 17 volumes in 1509, it covers 31 generations dating from

"In the genealogical portion of the work," Mr. Rubicam writes, "was given the name of each person, his pen-name, degree received from an examination, official titles, dates of birth and death, name of his wife, place of burial, number of sons and names of the sons. Unlike western genealogies, the Pi record did not name the daughters of the family, although especial honor was paid to the women who married into the family and who, by their deportment, showed loyalty to their husbands and to the house of Pi.

Family Regulations.

"The numerous family regulations, which were described in detail, provided that if the wives of the members of the Pi family were of noble extraction their last names and dates of birth should be stated. If the wives' fathers held official positions the fathers' names and ofices should be mentioned. But if wives were not fortunate enough to be descended from noble families they should be mentioned but no further data about them should be supplied.

"The insistence upon moral vir-tue was carried to an extraordinary degree, according to our west-second oldest Chinese genealogy in the library of congress collection was published in 1535. It relates the story of the Wang family for 81 generations, extending back to the Chun-chiu period (about 1091 B. C.)

Among the more modern genealogies consulted at the library by Mr. Rubican, one concerns the Chang family and was published in eight volumes in 1870. It goes back 25 generations.

"Not the least important features of the Chang genealogy," Dr. Rubicam says, "are the discussions of the clan and family doctrines, so important for the welfare and the happiness of the individual and his immediate circle of friends and relatives. The 12 clan doctrines may be briefly summarized as follows:

Clan Doctrines.

"1. Respect toward ancestors. Ancestors should be respected in very humble manner.

"2. Respect toward parents. The utmost care must be taken of one's parents, who should be provided with food and clothing and whose house must be kept in repair.

"3. Relations between husband and wife. Everything must be in

"4. Relations between brothers. Brothers should be affectionate toward each other and they should not permit their fraternal feelings to be disrupted by their wives or their friends.

"5. Training of sons. Morality is of primary importance.

6. Selection of friends. Do not select friends who are interested only in drinking and eating. One should be willing to assist one's friends in time of distress.

"7. Marriage rules. One should be careful to choose a wife from a good, moral family. "8. Relations of the family to society. Private affairs must not be known to the public. "9. Sobriety. Do not drink or gam-

Escaped Soldier Patient Kills Self After Siege

PORTLAND, ORE. - An escaped mental patient, Sgt. George Farnum from the Roseburg veterans' hospital, held city and county police at bay with a .38 caliber pistol, forced them to throw tear gas into his room in downtown Portland and finally killed himself after twice shooting at officers called to subdue him.

Famous 'Fighting Lade' Is Placed in 'Mothballs'

SEATTLE. - The carrier Yorktown - the famous "Fighting Lady" - was placed in "mothballs" with the reserve fleet in a brief ceremony recently.

Her skipper, Capt. M. E. Brow-der, told the 58 "Plank Owners"men who were aboard at the com-missioning — that "we in the Yorktown are proud to have been a part of the greatest fighting fleet of all time."

Nazis Still Busy At Hitler's Game

Fuehrer Followers Continue To Spread Propaganda.

FRANKFURT, GERMANY .- One way or another, followers of Hitler still play a not-too-dangerous game of ridiculing the American occupation power and trying to win Germans back to the Fuehrer's philos-

Though German night clubsnoticeably those which cater to curious Americans - nowadays find it 'profitable" to caricature Adolf in little skits, Hitler's postwar agents occasionally inject dramatic anti-Allied propaganda, in strictly German movie houses.

For instance, an official U. S. army report relates occasional efforts to cast doubt on Allied-made films designed to show Germans the horrors of Gestapo Chief Himmler's murder factories.

In Erlangen recently, a concentration camp movie was shown in the local cinema. There was a scene of men filling in a mass grave. The army report said:

"Suddenly a patron gets up excitedly and says aloud to his wife so that the whole audience can hear: "That's me there filling in that grave. They were not concentration camp victims, but victims of an air-raid attack on Nuernberg which I helped bury.'

"Exclaiming, 'Euch a swindle,' he leaves the cinema with his wife. Half the audience follows him."

That is how it is done. The army foesn't take this sort of anti-Allied propaganda too seriously, because it takes time to combat years of Nazi indoctrination.

Atomic Rays Go Step Beyond Miscroscope

WASHINGTON. - Taking up where x-rays and microscopes leave off, by-products of the atom ic bomb promise to answer more of the secrets of life.

Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, the army's surgeon general, made this forecast in commenting on plans to make available to medical researchers relatively large amounts of radio-active iso from the uranium piles of the Manhattan atom bomb project.

Kirk said that elements such as calcium, phosphorus, sulphur iron and a score of others can be "tagged" with small amounts of the isotopes and then followed through the body by means of their emission of beta and gamma radiation.

The latter is the same as x-radiation.

'Medical scientists would like to know more about how calcium and phosphorus are used in building teeth and in uniting fractures, how iodine is used by the thyroid gland, exactly what happens when or more of the glands of in ternal secretion start malfunctioning, how the process of wound-healing is carried out," Kirk said.

"Such questions and hundreds of others whose answers are now among the secrets of life wait radio-active isotopes for clarification."

Mother of Four Found Shot to Death in Auto

WOODBRIDGE, N. J .- The slacks clad body of an estranged mother of four, her head torn by two heavy caliber bullets, was found recently slumped in the front seat of a sedan parked in a lonely woodland road near Blair road.

She was identified by Assistant Middlesex County Prosecutor James S. Wight as Mrs. Catherine Scuttieri, 33, who, Wight said, had been living in an apartment in Rah-

She had been separated from her husband, Joseph, for six months, Wight said. The couple had four children: Carman, 14; Doris, 12; Patricia, 10, and Eleanor, 4, living with their father. Police were seek ing for questioning the owner of the

Bandits Divest Victims Of Trousers in Robbery

CHICAGO, ILL. - Two young gunmen, dressed in flashy clothes, stole the trousers and the $7,900 contained in wallets found in them, from four men at the Mc-Lean Motor Sales company recently. The bandits walked into the office, herded the four men into a corner and ordered them to take off their trousers and hand them over. They removed wallets from the trousers and left. Outside, the gunmen jumped into a car owned by one of the holdup victims, Joseph Herstein. As they moved away, they tossed out the trousers.

IRATE OVER PROSTITUTION

WASHINGTON.-Admiral Ni is trying to hush it up, but a h row has broken out in the nav chaplain division over alleged d crimination against chaplains wi combat records, some of whom has been denied admission into the re ular navy and others transfer to minor posts.

Four well-known chaplains ready have resigned as a result he dispute. They are:

Capt. William A. McGuire, Cath alic chaplain of the 11th naval de rict at San Diego-a 29-year nave reteran who served as fleet chapla at Pearl Harbor at the outbreak he war.

Capt. Maurice Witherspoon, Preoyterian, former All-America for oall star at Washington-Jefferso college and one of the most popular chaplains in the navy.

Capt. William W. Edel, Methodist who also chalked up a fine recor as a combat chaplain. Capt. Raymond Drinan, Catholic former chaplain of the battle scarred airplane carrier Enterprise In addition to the claim of combat chaplains that they are being relegated to minor roles while their non-combat culeagues get the top commands, many also are sore over the navy's failure to crack down on prostitution in Japan.

A number of Protestant and Carl olic chaplains who served in to acific contend that the navy is abetting the growth of prostitu in Tokyo by an indifferent policy is regard to the Yoshiwaras.

These chaplains further charge that those who have fought prosting tion in Tokyo have been discipl for their efforts - among them Comdr. O. B. Cook, who was trans ferred from Tokyo to Guam.

PAUL PORTER A-BOMBED Chester Bowles, who strpped out of government after tough years of battling inflation, is a close friend of Paul Porter. The two fought side by side—Braiss as economic stabilizer, Purter as administrator of OPA. When wles resigned, Porter, left to fight the inflation battle alone,

"I now feel," Porter told his former chief, "like a native whom the navy forgot to remove from Bikini just before the atom bomb exploded."

FILIBUSTER AGAINST A-BOMB

It's Southerners who have the reputation for filibustering, but three northern Republicans are condu ing a filibuster more secret and just as skillful as that of any Dixie Dem ocrat. It's against the atom con bill-vital to the nation. They know the house the senate-approved McMahon b for control of atomic energy if a comes to a vote; so for two weeks three Republicans have kept the bill bottled up in the military affairs The three filibusters are Parnel Thomas of New Jersey, Forrest Harness of Indiana and Charles Elston of Ohio.

Many committee members gave up an evening for a special session in order to complete the bill and give the U. S. a poiicy to back up Barney Barneh in the United Nations.

Half an hour after the time set for the meeting they lacked a quo-rum, and Ohio's recalcitrant Elsten would not let them proceed. Only one more member was needed.

Finally Congresswoman Clare Booth Luce of Connecticut phoned that she was on her way to the committee room from her office five floors above. But while she was in the elevator, Elston grabbed his hat and left so there still would be no quorum.

Thus a dozen conscientious congressmen were forced to waste more than an hour, and Bernard Baruch was left high and dry before the United Sations with no law on the statute books to back him up.

IRKED OVER PALESTINE It wasn't announced, but Prime Minister Attlee sent a confident message to President Truman in forming him that British troops had taken repressive measures against Jewish elements in Palestine. However, the message arrived only after British troops already had moved in. Attlee asked Truman for a public statement of support, but the President was so irked at the way Attlee acted first and advised him afterward, that he phoned acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson and told him to issue a statement keeping American skirts clear of the Brit-looks at his art career. It was five years ago that Mickey decided to take up the easel and start mixing the paints. He saw a movie based on the life of Gauguin in which a man in middle age left fame and fortune to become a painter in the south seas. Mickey decided to become a painter in the United States where he is known as "a tough little guy."

And what about his 45 years? Well, in Mickey's opinion age is the best thing that can happen to a man. It gives him some sense. He no longer wants to sit around in a night club, or think only of blondes and champagne. Age helps a man know what he can do - and ought bling Elizabeth, N. J., home, surounded by canvases and shelves stocked with books. He paints and occasionally writes. But then he worries about his grammar-and remembers that he was kicked out of school for fighting when he was the eighth grade.

Painting is different from writing, and Mickey is considered by critics as one of the outstanding contributors of primitives at the American contemporary artists' gallery, where he has had two exhibitions. One of his best collections were painted on this 50,000 mile USO tour through South America, Africa and India where he served as a master of ceremonies for a sports show.

Got a Scare Once. One day he was painting on Victoria beach in Central Africa during that tour. He had set up his easel on the sand and started painting when all was quiet. He painted for a while when he sensed something and heard a twig snap. When he turned around there were about 2,000 natives standing there watching him, not saying a word. They turned out to be friendly, but curious.

Still taking it a little easy because of a touch of malaria he contracted while on the USO tour, Mickey is glued to his studio. He's serious about his painting. Some of these days it will make him some money, he feels.

But he's glad that he was a boxer and managed to save some money, he admits.

IN THESE UNITED STATES

Badger Is Known as the 'Co-Op' Town of Iowa

It's as easy to say as "Buster has the mumps" In fact "Cooperative" should be either the first or last name of the little town of Badger, Iowa, (population of less than 400 in 1940). The first co-operative program in this center of Lutheran background was the stock and grain association, started almost 40 years ago.

Although this organization met with difficulties and epposition dur-ing the first few years, it survived by realizing its advantages of cooperation as a community builder. By 1914, the association had been reorganized as a Farmers Grain Elevator company which has operated efficiently and successfully ever since.

Another venture of long standing is the Co-Operative Telephone company which has been going for more than a quarter century, and then a petroleum co-operative organization in 1930 with a capital of $6,000. The latter firm does hundreds of thou-sands of dollars worth of business annually, since it deals in farm machinery as well as petroleum prod-

A Co-Operative Bank.

Another similar development is the co-op credit union started in 1939 "out of necessity, to provide the Badger community with needed banking services." Although op-posed by the banking interests of Iowa at the outset, this group per-sisted wisely, although slowly, until the bank which it operates is one of the safest and most stable in Iowa, according to the state bank exam-

Finally, there is the co-operative food store handling meats, groceries and electrical appliances. Its carrying ABC co-op labeled goods as-sures patrons of quality and safety according to government grading standards. Folks know they aren't likely to get gypped in this or other co-op trade and relations that characterize Badger.

Other co-operative possibilities are being considered by Badgerites. Entertainment for the teenagers and a playhouse for young people are being talked about. That's the way it seems to be done. A few people get the idea, throw it out to others, and all get together and discuss it as a possible development of, by and for the community. In this way, the people meet their major needs to the extent that problems and difficulties that spotlight most rural communities are seldom heard of in Badger.

When wanting a hunch on how a producer or consumer co-op can be made to work in a rural center, write or go to Badger.

Man Remembers Dentist After Decade Passes

SUMNER, WASH .- Most toothaches are forgotten in 10 years, but Dr. C. L. Tolefson, a local dentist, recently received a check from a man he had treated a decade ago.

The dentist had forgotten all about it, when a letter with a money order came. A search into the office records disclosed the name of the patient and the forgotten date.

The letter explained that the man had bought a money order several years ago and was going to send it to the den-tist. At that time the packing plant where he worked closed and he lost his job. He cashed the money order in order to live. But after several years, and attendant prosperity, he had the money to spare, and "hoped the doctor would forgive him for the delay."

Climbs 273 Steps Each Day-to Knit

ERRATA, MISS. - Mrs. Merle Lucille McDaniel has to climb 273 steps to get up on top of the world, but the quiet she gets for her knit-ting makes it worth the long pull.

Mrs. McDaniel is a fire watcher for the forestry department. Her office is a cabin perched atop a 120 foot tower.

The tower originally was built at the start of the war as a lookout post, a lookout for enemy planes. Her husband got the job of spotter. However, it wasn't long before the war department deemed a Japanese invasion of southern Mississippi as unlikely. So Mr. McDaniel back to railroading and Mrs. Mc-Daniel took over the post for the forestry department.

She keeps regular office hours atop the tower, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily. Most of the time she just knits and reads. But a few minutes every hour she scans her 20 mile territory with binoculars.

Jimmy Durante at Yale

Jimmy Durante was a guest at the Yale commencement exercises the other day. The Yale classic festivities coincided with the opening of Jimmy's latest movie "Two Sisters From Boston" in the college town. Both Yale and the picture people made the most of it. No result was announced officially, but observers say Yale lost another Believe it or not, the class of 1913 adopted Durante. And in one of the class costumes "The Schnozzle" paraded in the traditional commencement parade, did his stuff at the annual ball game and was photographed being welcomed by Pres. Charles Seymour of Yale and Mrs. Seymour, a distinction not recorded by the photographers in the case of Trygve Lie, secretary of the United Nations, and many notable Americans present for honorary degrees.

Proving that by the scale of cockeyed values existing in this screw-ball age there is no limit to how far a radio celebrity and Hollywood star may go.

News that Jimmy Durante would be a Yale commencement figure drew out greater crowds than any commencement in years and there are those who insist that the closing line of the famous old Yale theme song was rendered "For God, for Country and for the Schnozzle."

Love and Flagpoles

America must be getting back to normal. A couple were married on top of a flagpole the other day.

Marshall Jacobs, a pgofessional flagpole sitter and Yolanda Cosmar, the girl of his choice, went through the wedding ceremony of the year at Coshockton, Pa. The edding numbers were announced "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" and as "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" and "I Love You Truly." We would have recommended "Don't Fence Me In" and "Upsie Daisie."

Evidence of a return to daffiness in this country is most comforting. And we needed a demonstration of true and unswerving love and devotion. When a bride goes up to the top of a 176 foot flagpole for her man that is it.

Why America Is Great

"I have seen magnificent universities in America. I have seen its wonderful laboratories and its museums of which old European cul-ture would be proud, and I have also seen Lions' club luncheons where full-grown men, imitating lions, roared upon command. It is a curious country." - Ilya Ehren-burg, visiting Russian writer.

We know a Lions' club, Ilya, in which a college dean leads the roar-ing and a laboratory chief tosses his head while he roars like a Nubian

"If you put a foot on this deck, I'll shoot!" she was saying. "The law allows it. You're boarding my ship against my will."

Dick thrust his head above the rail. The men hadn't reached the deck yet, but were hanging ever the side, with heads in view. The girl was facing them, with a defiant glitter in her eyes, and an ugly-looking automatic in one hand.

Tucu saw it and hesitated. Ordi-narily he would break a weman with as little compunction as he would a dog, and ride roughshod over her opposition; but the one facing him was no ordinary creature. She was cool and collected, pointing a gun at his heart with a hand that did not tremble.

"Y'father asked us aboard, lady," Tucu replied after a pause, an insinuating reasantry in his voice, "an' we is a because o' that. Where's he one?"
"I told you I was in command here," was the short, curt reply. "That's sufficient. Now get back!" Tucu glanced aft and then for-ward. "Where's the crew?" he asked, smiling.

Then, as if drawn by common impuse, they turnot and gazed at each other.

The girl woman paled slightly through her tan, but answered un-hesitatingly: "There's 10 crew aboard. No one but father and me. Now you know the cruth."

It was a bold challenge, delivered in a voice that never quavered. Dick smiled his admiration. She was capable of handling the situation. He made a bet with himself that she would force the men back through sheer will power and bra-

But neither the girl nor Dick had figured upon the craftiness of old Tucu. Anticipating some such holdup, the half breed had been playing for time until two of his men could work unobserved along the side of the schooner and climb up the rigging back of the girl. Neither of them was aware of this until her father, the demented skipper of the schooner, suddenly turned up again and announced his presence with glee. He had seen the two Caribs crawling up and instead of repelling them he rushed to offer assistance.

Captain Bedford Babbles Too Much

"Come aboard, mates!" he cried. "I'll help ye. It's a great prize I've picked up-so much money that I don't know what to do with it. Come aboard, an' I'll show ye."

The game was up. The girl turned a horrified gaze at her father, and then swung back again just in time to see Tucu make a leap for the deck. As if determined to punish him for his audacity, she opened fire at short range. With a growl of pain, the half breed dropped to the deck, with one arm limp and use-

"Damn her. Break her neck, Burley!" he growled. But Black Burley had no inten tion of facing the gun pointed at him now. He dropped out of sight be-hind the bulwark, crowding those back of him into the water. She would have driven them into their boat at the point of her gun if the two, helped on deck by the old skipper, had not attacked in the rear. When she saw them running toward her she gave a little cry of alarm, and for the first time seemed to lose her nerve. Tucu raised his voice at the two Caribs, urging them to the flank attack. The crash of the pistol had evidently stunned Captain Bedford, for he stood helpless and amazed with mouth wide open.

Dick at this juncture decided to cast his lot in with the girl. The two Caribs had to pass close to him. When the first came abreast of his hiding place, he shot out a leg and tripped him. The second partly stumbled over the first. Quick as a flash Dick landed a blow with his fist on the point of the man's jaw, and completed the fall.

Both were armed with long curved knives that for ugliness refieved them of their weapons. Then giving the first one a kick he ran in the direction of the girl, who, with Tucu, had been watching him with amazement.

"Keep them covered!" Dick alled. "I'll take care of these two. called. Shoot the first head that bobs up."

Encouraged by the assistance that had so micraculously come to her, the captain's daughter turned more fiercely than ever upon the leader. "I'll give you ten seconds to get over that rail," she said in a men-acing voice. "If you're not gone by that time, I'll kill you like I Black Burley thrust a head above the bulwark. A bullet buried itself in the woodwork so near that he dropped out of sight again. "One!" began the girl. "Two!"

Tucu growled and showed his teeth; but his eyes were upon Dick. whose interference had aroused him to furious hatred. "I'll cut y'heart out, y'traitor!" he breathed thickly. "Three! Four!" counted the girl

At the seventh count, Tucu picked himself up, slowly and painfully, and made his way over the side. Dick returned to the disarmed Caribs, and with their own knives as weapons drove them into the sea. When they had disappeared, leaving the deck cleared of all enemies, he hurried to the girl's assistance. She was peering over the side of the schooner to see if the crew were leaving in their boat.

"Keep back!" Dick warned. "They may shoot!"

She nodded and stepped cautious ly behind the bulwark for protection. Dick glanced around for some weapon. A loose spar, as heavy as a man, and twenty feet long, at-tracted his attention. Picking it up, he carried it to the side of the schooner, and with a heave threw it outward so that it just grazed the top of the rail.

It rolled over with a clatter, car-rying everything with it. There was a growl and scream below that informed him his ruse had succeeded. In its descent the long spar had knocked three Caribs into the sea, and falling on the lugger's small boat nearly smashed the bottom out

Captain Tucu evidently decided that retreat, until he could reorganize his forces and plan a new at-tack, was the better part of wisdom, He bellowed a command to his men to pull away from the schooner, and a few moments later Dick and Captain Bedford's daughter saw the boat returning to the lugger.

They remained motionless and st lent watching until the boat had drawn off beyond pistol shot. Then, as if drawn by common impulse,

The girl was quiet and sober, her eyes regarding him inquiringly, almost suspiciously. There was no hint of a smile on her face. events had tested her courage to the breaking point, and the strain was apparent in the fine lines drawn around the lips and in the heavy circles under her eyes.

Tucu Will Return, Dick Predicts

"We've got rid of them for a time." Dick said, glancing in the direction of the lugger, "but they'll return."

She nodded, following his eyes: then turning to him again, she asked: "Were you with them?" "Yes," he admitted, "but not of

She frowned and raised her eyes inquiringly. "They picked me up a few hours ago," he explained. "I was about dead—been in the water for four days and nights. When they rescued me," he added, smil-ing at the recollection of it, "I wasn't in a mood to inquire for credentials. I was glad to get any help. Later I found out what they were. "What are they?" she asked

"Carib fishermen, beachcombers, sea scavengers, pirates — almost anything and everything." "I see," she murmured thought-fully. "Then you think they want to steal this schooner?"

"They took it for an abandoned derelict at first," he replied truthfully, "and, of course, as such it was their legitimate prize. They were surprised and disappointed when they saw you and your father aboard it."

"I can understand that," she replied, "but when — when I ordered them away, they didn't act as if—if—" She stopped and frowned again. "But you said they were sea scavengers and pirates," she added, nodding. "I suppose that means they intend to take the schooner anyway, lawfully or unlawfully."

"I'm afraid so. Captain Tucu, I imagine, isn't the kind to be easily discouraged. If he's decided the schooner's worth it he'll return later. Besides," soberly, "he has another reason for making a second attempt."

"What is that?" she asked. He laughed and shrugged his shoulders. "For one thing he'll want to get even with me for interfering, and second to get hold of those jewels I told him about."

Justice for the Baby

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

"FIVE years ago I wrote you about my expected college baby," writes Frances, from an Arkansas town. "This baby was the result of a winter of reckiessness, I see that now. But I had joined a free thinking group in college, and the thought that a woman is not privileged to have a child and raise that child, without the farce of a few words pronounced over her and some man by a justice of the peace, was ridiculous to me. Your advice was to have the baby privately, and give it out for immediate adoption, but I loved the thought of a child all my own, and determined to go home for the summer, acknowl-against so-called illegitimacy is outgrown. "Well, some of the circle saw things my way and some didn't. My dearest girl friend stuck to me and adored Sylvia, who is an exquisite child, now nearing five. My mother was wonderful, quiet and sympathetic, anxious for me to get in touch with the baby's father, which was out of the question, but helpful all through. Certain cousins and aunts turned up their noses. I got a good and war job, made lots of money, could do everything for Sylvia. My father died a few months after I got home, and Mother lived with

"Well, here's the present problem. What nobody but myself even | doesn't sound too safe a guardian, knew was that Sylvia's father was married when I met him; I did not know it until we had been lovers for some time. He and his wife came to our town a few weeks ago; they are childless, and they want

"Meanwhile, I have fallen truly in love with Karl, an engineer who is going to Norway for three years. He thinks it unwise for us to take the baby, and would be glad to have me give her over to her father. The equasion in this that nobody takes into account is my feeling for my beautiful, affectionate little girl; we have never been parted, she depends on me, and her possessive 'my mommy' is always on her lips.

"Her father will stand no halfmeasures. She must go to him unconditionally. She must not see me again, and believe, as she grows older, that she is his wife's child. I am torn two ways, agonized by this decision. The man I want to marry is in every way my ideal— strong, quiet, tender and wise. He is half-Norwegian, and the prospect of life at a great construction plant in his father's country sounds good to me. Only about Sylvia is he adamant. We will have other children, he says, and he will never love her as he does them.

A CHILD'S FUTURE

Frances has a peculiarly diffi-cult problem. She is about to be married to an engineer. They will go to Norway where he has a contract lasting several years. Everything would be splendid excepting for Frances's illegitimate daughter. The child is now five, and very cute and loveable. Frances has been able to care for her since she was born. Karl, Frances's fiance, doesn't want the child. He wants Frances to surrender Sylvia to her father, who is willing to take her, as he is married and childless.

This would seem to be a practical solution, but Frances doesn't like to be parted from her daughter, nor is it likely that Sylvin would be happy away from her mother.

Miss Norris replies that the child's happiness and future should be the first consideration of her mother. In the present situation, goes on Miss Norris, it would probably be better to try to build up friendship and affection between Karl and Sylvia, so that he may be willing and even glad to take her to Norway.

."What is the best way out of this for us all?"

The best way out, Frances, was very possibly your surrender of the baby before you ever saw her face. If she is what you describe, charming and lovable, some adopted mother and father would all this time have been giving her a child's right, love and security. It was your decision that deprived her of this, and put you in today's position, with today's hard choice before you. Whatever you do, there is pain in it for you, and in the solutions you suggest there seems to be small consideration for the child. Long ago she should have been placed beyond the reach of these disturbing and upsetting changes.

A married man who could have a love affair with a college girl and the wife who knew herself cheated will not make too loving a mother. Why not place this small girl with some kindly woman forsay a year, marry your Karl and go to Norway. Make him so loving and efficient a wife that he will want, some day, only to make you happy. When you get your child back, once in your home, Sylvia will make her own way. Her own father and his wife seem to me unfit guardians. It would be a super-human wife indeed who could truly love the child of her husband by a younger woman. She has never had children, and would not understand Sylvia, nor his fatherly indulgence of Sylvia. Steer clear of them entirely, and between now and your wedding day, try to build up between Sylvia and Karl, friendship that may solve all this with no separation between you and the child at all.

Since you are independent enough to face the age-old crisis of Sylvia's birth five years ago, face this one too, always keeping in mind that nothing else matters except that the child shall be presently established in a loving and permanent home, with a chance to forget the wrongs and changes that have upset her babyhood.

Shelter

Mussolini is dead, Hitler is still missing and Hirohito is taking orders from an American soldier, but mortal craving for power appears to have survived World War II. Any individual who can find somethi that a great many people need, and figure out a way to keep them from getting it, has put himself in a "key position" able to make a lot of peo-ple suffer.

One thing people need acutely right now is shelter. Shortages of lding materials and the scarcity of skilled workmen have combined to make housing about the rarest commodity in common use. It is an every-day necessity, too. People have to have a place to live and ey will pay whatever it costs to get in out of the weather, or they will take whatever shelter they can afford. Humming and Hawing

Comes now proposed legislation to protect home buyers and home builders from inflation, by govern-mental controls. Administration of rulings always brings delay, and more delay. Now we need housing, and more housing. Natural, com-petitive safeguards will provide bet-ter protection against inflation than rulings, as certainly as sturdy walls will keep out more cold than red tape.

The strategy is to fix ceiling prices on residential property, new and old, to allocate building materials and regulate the transfer of new real estate. Allocating materials means giving somebody a right to say who can build and who can't. A crafty "co-ordinator" with such authority could soon have a great contains the state of the more fallow citizens doing his bid. authority could soon have a great many fellow citizens doing his bid-ding. America needs a V-B Day on bureaus.

Ceiling prices on old residential property is an absurd idea. There is nobody in my state able to umpire the transfer of old homes in my town, much less yours. Such laws are only made to break. A legal ceiling on new-home prices might be easy to express in a mathematical curve but its results would be bad. It would tend to cheapen construction and encourage jerry-building.

Clamping down on the sale of vacant lots would surely be wrong in point of expedience. It would till much precious time. Service men are coming home now, not after next year. They want places to live, no later than they can get wife and baby out of the in-laws' spare room. They are entitled to a home and ought to have it as fast as their local builder can meet their needs.

Pocketbook Care

I don't want to see today's new Guessing at Prices

I don't want to see today's new home makers (least of all service men) pay three prices for houses but natural competition among builders would prevent it if they could get materials. Paying a premium for promptness in a time of eme gency is a trivial matter com-pared to the "highway robbery" we are courting in shoddy houses, built cheaply to sell under a ceiling.

Government's moral obligations Government's moral obligations to home-seeking servicemen are three: (1) Help builders get good building materials quickly to make suitable, small homes, (2) Begin no public works to busy the building trades until the home need is relieved, (3) See that mortgage money is not carelessly thrown around. Bank loans ought to be easy on well-built houses and impossible on poor

Can Fruits and Berries This Easy Way

Fruits A-Plenty!

Among the most envied women the past few years were those with large stocks of their own canned fruit. Yes, commercially canned fruit has been a mighty rare commodity during the war, and it's still scarce. If you plan now to do your canning. you'll be among the lucky homemakers when shortages really become acute during the fall and win-

There are few pleasures greater for the cook than those jewel-like ripe fruit will be quarts and pints of luscious fruit on mushy. That's the pantry shelf. And besides, it's very easy to can fruit because they are acid and easy to prepare. You have a choice of two pre-ferred methods, and you are not limited to a pressure cooker in case that is causing you some worry. A fruit, hot water or boiling-water bath, as it's sometimes referred to (because Fruit the water must be kept bubbling merrily above the jars all during processing) is very adequate for canning fruits and tomatoes. As you may know by trips to the fore, you can buy one of those large kettles fitted with a rack and a cover to hold anywhere from ur to six or even eight jars. If you don't want to buy a water-bath, you can rig one up yourself with a washboiler and a rack. Some women have even found lard pails satisfactory because they are deep enough to let the water come the required two inches above the jars, and still broad enough to take four pints or quarts easily, depending upon their height. Selection Important.

I can't stress too highly the importance of having the freshest possible produce for canning purposes.

Perhaps it is best pointed out in this way. You know the rapidity with which fruit spoils as soon as it is picked. You also know how important it is to have unspoiled fruit placed in a can because it easily spoils when preserved if there are bacteria there that begin working. Blemish-free fruit will take less time to put in cans, and the chances of spoiling are cut down. Besides that, the appearance of the fruit is better.

LYNN SAYS:

Making the Syrup.

Fruit may be canned in just plain water, but if you have any sugar at all (those extra canning stamps for sugar!) make a syrup, even if a very thin one for canning fruit. The syrup mellows them and brings out true flavor.

Here are some proportions for the lighter syrups which are popular this year: Light: 1 cup sugar, 314 cups wa-

Moderately light: 1 cup sugar, 2 Medium: 1 cup sugar, 115 cups

To make the syrup, combine the sugar and water and allow to boil for five minutes, without stirring. Remove scum and use to fill jars. You'll need from % to 1 cup syrup for each pint of fruit after it's packed in the jar.

If desired, juice may be extracted from fruits and berries by crushing, heating and straining. No sugar is needed.

Methods of Packing.

Fruits may be cold-packed for anning prior to processing. This means that raw fruit is packed cold into the jars, then processed in the boiling-water bath or pressure cooker. This is suitable for many fruits and berries, and is usually used by women who have a lot of canning to

The hot-pack method is sometimes used for fruits. This means precooking the fruits in the syrup a short time before packing in the jars and processing.

The open kettle method gives beautiful fruit, but is not often used today because there is too much danger of contaminating the fruit after it is cooked and transferred to the jars. In this method the fruit is cooked thoroughly in an open ket-tle in the syrup and then placed in the jars and sealed.

JESUS AND THE SABBATH

LESSON TEXT — Exodus 20:8; Mark 1:23-28; Matthew 12:9-13. MEMORY SELECTION—This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will re-wice and be glad in it.—Psaim 118:24.

"The Sabbath was made for man," and was ordained of God for the good of man's body and soul. It was intended to be a day of glad fellowship with the Lord.

Since the Sabbath - the seventh day - was essentially one of rest and worship, the principles which surrounded it and directed its life may be applied to our day of rest, which is the first day of the weekthe Lord's day.

That word "rest" sounds a little strange in this busy world of ours, and yet it is an important one. It means quiet for the struggling one. calm for the troubled, repose for the weary, cessation of labor for the worn-out one.

God in his infinite wisdom saw that without rest man would soon destroy himself, and he made provision for one day in seven when labor should cease and man should be free for that recreation of soul and body which should fit him for the labor of the week.

L A Day of Holiness (Exod. 20:8). God gave his people a holy day to balance up their days of labor and to bring blessing to their souls. On that day he decreed that they should come apart from their labors, turn from secular interest and turn their hearts and minds to the unseen and the eternal. Man would become so engrossed in the things of this world that he would soon forget; therefore, God commands him to stop and worship. That should be sufficient to cause his people to "remember" the day "to keep it holy."

Notice that the day of rest was to be not only for the family, but also for servants and for visitors. The employer who unnecessarily operates his factory or office on Sunday violates this commandment. Note also that the man who is to rest on the seventh day is supposed to work on the six days. Some neglect to do both.

This matter of keeping the Lord's day holy is one which has tremendous implications in the lives of our children. Many men and women who have had built into their own characters the stalwart virtues nurtured by family attendance at divine worship have not only forgotten their own continuing need, but are destroying the interest of their children in church attendance.

in one's own life, but to lead one's children astray is an appalling responsibility. Let's keep the Lord's day as a holy day.

II. A Day of Helpfulness (Mark

The formalists of Christ's day, the Pharisees, had overlooked the heart of God's law and the holy living which it was intended to produce, and had bound up even the observance of the sabbath (which was intended to be a day of rest and gladness) in such a mass of technical "thou shalt not's" that it was a day

The accusations against the disciples because they had taken and eaten grain was not on the ground that they had stolen, for the law (Deut. 23:25) guaranteed that right to the one who passed through his neighbor's field. The Pharisees contended, however, that the disciples had worked on the Sabbath in picking and hulling the grain.

God's laws are helpful laws, and it is only when men pervert them, or add to them their own traditions and interpretations, that they become burdensome to anyone who is God-fearing and obedient.

III. A Day of Healing (Matt. 12:

Jesus made it clear that healing of the body (yes, and of the soul) was most appropriate on the Sabbath day; in fact, that is the very

The healing of the man with the withered arm revealed that back of the Pharisees' professed concern for the Sabbath was a real hatred for Christ. It is an appalling thing that in the house of worship on the very Sabbath day, these men, outwardly so religious, were plotting against our Lord.

Jesus cuts across human hypocrisy and hatred to declare that the true keeping of the Sabbath is to do the work of God. No work of necessity (like plucking the grain) or of mercy (like healing the withered arm) is ever out of place on the day of rest.

A word of caution is needed, for some have sought to interpret this Scripture as providing biblical ground for doing all sorts of things on their day of rest. That day is for man's good, not for his detruction. His greatest good is served by rest, worship, spiritual development, Christian fellowship, and the doing of deeds of necessity and
