It is known that singers and musicians are to be found near O'Donnell, but most of them are modest and do not boast of their prowess. However, the local Rotary club entertainment committee desires to have them on these Tuesday noon programs, and to those that will volunteer, it is desired that they notify either President S. F. Johnson or W. G. Forgy.

Food Stamp Plan Here Is Dropped

TAHOKA, April 9 (Special) — Judge Chester Connolly on Tuesday received a communication from Forrest M. Wright of Lubbock, Area Supervisor for the Agricultural Marketing Administration, to the effect that the application of Lynn County to be included in the Food Stamp Plan would have to be denied for the reason that the House of Representatives at Washington had cut the funds short for this purpose.

Judge Connolly states that, as he understands it, there were about eleven other counties in this section of the state in which the Food Stamp Plan was to go into effect on May 1, and that the action taken applies to all of them.

Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Hohn were in El Paso over the week end visiting Mrs. Hohn's brother, Marvin Payne, who is in the army there.

Write-ins Win In Elections Here

Despite lack of general interest in both the city and trustee elections, changes were made by the voters for the places on the tickets. Only slightly over 50 votes were cast in the trustee election, which was a landslide compared to the 11 cast in the city balloting. Delbert Mires, a write-in candidate, was a winner for one of the places on the trustee board, taking the place of T. R. Tune. Shack Blocker retained his place.

W. T. Huff, telephone company manager, had his name written in also for a place on the city council, and won over Cliff Lambert. R. O. Stark was again elected.

4-H Club Gold Star Girl Named

To Wanda Jean Tyler, yard demonstrator for the Wells club, goes the honor of being a Texas Gold Star 4-H Club girl for 1941. This honor will entitle her to wear a Gold Star Pin and to be designated a Gold Star Girl of this state for life.

This pin is an emblem of achievement and of the confidence that club members have in her, since the selection was made on the basis of work accomplished and on the leadership ability she possesses.

A girl who is completing at least her third year of club work, and who has successfully carried on a demonstration is eligible to be considered for the award; that is, if she has not previously received this honor.

Each girls' club having a member eligible may select a candidate for the award.

From the candidates presented, a committee composed of council members and club girls select the winner.

The pin will be presented by Miss Maurine McNatt, County Home Demonstration Agent, sometime in the summer. The Lynn County Home Demonstration Council planned to pay her expenses to the State Farmers' Short Course, College Station, Texas. Should there not be a short course because of the war she will receive some compensation. She was one of the county representatives at the short course last summer.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Tyler.

CHARLEY WELLS NAMED AS NEW NIGHT OFFICER

Charley Wells was named as the new night watchman here by the members of the city council Thursday night. His nomination was approved by business men and citizens alike.

Wells is expected to make O'Donnell a good officer, and to give his best.

Food For Freedom Program Slated In Tahoka April 25

A "Food for Freedom" program is to be held in Tahoka Saturday, April 25, from 2:30 p. m. until 4:40 p. m. under the sponsorship of the Home Demonstration clubs of the county.

The program will be of interest to every woman in Lynn County, and every one is invited to attend, so announces the publicity committee members.

Sam Floyd Seeks Office Of Sheriff

Sam Floyd, well-known Lynn County citizen, this week announces his candidacy for the office of sheriff.

He has been a resident of this county for 26 years, coming here with his parents in 1916 from May, Brown County, when he was 14 years of age. The Floyds settled a few miles southeast of Tahoka and the family has lived in that vicinity ever since. Sam was just a youth when they came here. He attended the local schools, and since becoming grown he has been farming. He is married and has two children.

For several years he was employed by the old West Texas Gin, and since 1939 he has been bookkeeper at Tahoka Co-operative Gin.

Mr. Floyd is a likeable fellow, and has many friends scattered all over Lynn County. He has had much experience in office work, in meeting the public, and has an ambition to make Lynn County a commendable record as sheriff, for which office his experience and ability should qualify him.

In making his announcement, Floyd said: "I expect to make this race on my own merits and not on anyone's demerits. If elected, I promise to do my very best to make a hand for all of the people."

He expects to make a thorough canvass of the county. Because of circumstances beyond his control, he is unable to campaign much now, but he expects to see all voters before election day. He asks that all citizens give his candidacy careful consideration.

Albert Williams Died Wednesday

TAHOKA, April 9 (Special) — After a four week's fight for his life against the ravages of an incurable disease, John Albert Williams of Draw, 48, died at 4:42 p. m. Wednesday in the Lubbock General Hospital, and his remains were brought by a Harris ambulance to Tahoka to be prepared for burial here.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Methodist Church here this (Friday) afternoon by Rev. Jesse Young, pastor at Draw.

Death resulted from cancer of the stomach. Mr. Williams became ill about five weeks ago and was taken to the hospital on Tuesday, March 10. On Saturday, March 21, surgeons made an incision with the intention of removing the cancerous tissues but found that an operation would be futile and closed the opening. While fighting bravely for his life.

Rain, Snow Brings 1.70 Inches Total Of Moisture

Climaxed by a heavy snowfall Wednesday night, and preceded by light rains that day and late Tuesday, a total of 1.70 inches of moisture fell here to break a drought of several months' duration.

Rainfall totaling .85 of an inch had fallen prior to Wednesday noon, and the remainder came up about 12 o'clock Wednesday night, so reports Ben Moore, observer for the U. S. Government.

Traveling was hazardous Wednesday afternoon and night on the highways, and only a few motorists dared to buck the fury of the snow-storm.

Weight of the snow caused some damage to trees over town when the accumulation broke off smaller sized limbs.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Merchant Vessel Losses in Atlantic Cause Shortage of Shipping Crews; India Dissatisfied With Cripps' Plan; Observers Ponder New Jap Strategy

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

BATAAN: Defense Vigorous

Most serious attack against General Wainwright's Bataan defense had been launched in the form of a land attack ordered by General Yamashita, whose men had remained quiescent altogether too long to satisfy Tokyo, who soon might have carried another hara kiri to be carried out.

But the Japs found that the men who had served MacArthur so well were the same ones working under General Wainwright, who proceeded to make a quick shift in his front, to get reinforcements to the beleaguered spot and to meet the Japs with the bayonet.

So vigorous was the hand-to-hand fighting that Japanese dead had littered the battlefield, but the American line had held firm, and was not reported pierced at any point. Wainwright had admitted to the loss of a few advance positions, that was all.

WAR AT SEA: Whittling Away

The German U-boats, perhaps with some Italians working with them, were the only sea force of the Axis which was causing any lasting concern to the Allies, as the Japanese fleet was rapidly and constantly being whittled down to American size, while our fleet was growing larger by about two warships daily. Best news was the navy's announcement that a total of 28 Axis submarines have been sunk by U. S. military and naval forces up to April 1.

The Japanese air fleets were suffering losses of five to one. Pearl Harbor was already twice avenged in ship and plane losses, and the general outlook of the battle against the Nipponese was more favorable looking as time went on despite the map-showing of conquered territories.

The U-boats were continuing their ratio of sinkings along the Atlantic coast for a wide area, but some hopes had been expressed that the loss of the port of Saint Nazaire might be a costly blow to the Nazis, and that the arrest of a spy ring in Brazil might make it more difficult for the U-boat skippers to find targets.

The sinkings by U-boats still was not exceeding our commissioning of new merchant vessels, but it was making it constantly more difficult to get skippers and crews. Congress had before it a bill to award sailors hero medals for bravery at sea in torpedoings of the same type as those awarded to navy heroes.

While many seamen were brave enough in newspaper interviews, it was getting increasingly hard to man ships with survivors of torpedoings, and the shortage created by those who had died at sea had to be filled by new trainees, for the most part.

It was one of the worst war bottlenecks, and the army and navy were combining in a coastal patrol to which small boats were to be added in an effort to sweep the subs out of America's shore lanes.

One plan brought forward was to haul oil and sugar up the East coast by the inland waterway in boats of 80 to 300 tons, and in shallow-draft barges.

This traffic could be carried out safely and profitably, surveys had showed.

LABOR:

Both the American Federation of Labor and the C.I.O. had sent messages to General MacArthur in complete support of his command there, and this was held in most circles to mean general support for the war effort.

In the meantime the senate had backed up the administration's antagonism to tampering with the 40-hour-week law, and it seemed that this effort to take away from labor its chief gain since the last war was doomed to defeat.

JAPANESE: Plans Obscure

The certainty felt by Germany that the Japs were going to move into India with their major offensive instead of Australia gave rise more and more to a feeling that perhaps the landing of substantial reinforcements in the "down under" continent may have given the Japs pause, at that.

It was certain that the Japs were having more success in Burma than they were around Australia, and the view was held that perhaps the Japanese might keep a "token force" north of Australia, and a considerable naval power there, to immobilize the Americans and Aussies.

At the same time, these observers had held, the Japs might turn their attention to India, and profiting by the difficult efforts Britain had had to line up the Hindus on their side in the forthcoming battle, sweep in with their military and win their way to the Persian gulf.

Chief drawback to this view was the fact that the Japs were said to have only half a million soldiers in the entire Southwest Pacific, perhaps enough to attempt an invasion of population-scarce Australia, but surely not enough to spread out through a country populated with 390,000,000 people.

Unless the Hindus were more than passively opposed to the British, unless they were willing to welcome the Jap invaders with open arms, it would be a hopeless task to attempt occupation of the whole subcontinent, any more than the Japs had been able to do anything in China with far more troops.

Therefore many took still a third view, that neither Australia nor India was the prime objective of the Japs, but Siberia, to open a new front against the Russians in the first place, and simply to hold and attempt to develop the East Indian resources of oil and rubber, while doing their real fighting back of Manchukuo.

If either of these objectives, however, were carried out, instead of the occupation of Australia, it was pointed out that it would play into the hands of Australians and Americans, whose ultimate objective was an offensive against the Japs—not merely holding their own.

INDIA: Dissatisfaction

Whether India was finally to accede to Britain's wishes or not it still had been evident that the rank and file of the Indian people had been vastly disappointed with the mission of Sir Stafford Cripps and the message he brought them.

Virtually, they pointed out, it was the same as that offered them back at the beginning of the war, with the sole difference that Britain was committing herself to the giving of India of some form of dominion status, while heretofore Britain had merely said she would "talk it over" after the war.

It wasn't apparently so much that the Hindus wanted their freedom now, but it was that they didn't want to be put into the position of having to fight for their freedom under the direction of the British, and as a vassal state.

The Indian leaders wanted Britain to give them the right to organize, finance and carry out their own defense, with the aid of Britain and the other Allied nations.

To this, Sir Stafford Cripps had indicated he had no power to accede. Gandhi and Nehru both being quoted as saying they hoped for a settlement, and other leaders joining them in this hope.

Back of it all was the Hindu desire to carry out a "passive resistance" to the Japs, figuring on their own enormous numbers and their dark and devious ways of doing things to beat the Japs rather than to attempt the seemingly hopeless task of organizing the country militarily for a battle with planes, tanks and guns.

'Gen. Heat' in India

Temperatures go sky-high in India in the summertime, and the men who work in India's iron and steel industry must have almost super-human stamina to withstand it. Here two punjabi tongmen stand in front of a "man cooler" fan in the Tatas plant at Bombay, which provides armament for the Allies.

My Week
by Eleanor Roosevelt

U. S. HEALTH
Several months ago, I spoke at the Town Hall in New York city with various other people, on a subject which seemed important to all of us—"What Must We Do to Improve the Health and Well Being of the American People." The Town Hall offered prizes for 1,000-word essays by adults, and by young people below the age of 21. I have just heard that the first prize in the adult group was won by Dr. Jacob Sobel, a well-known New York pediatrician.

He based his essay on the point of view that only the nation which has healthy children has a future as a nation, and included a detailed, specific plan for a better health and education program. The reason I am telling you of this particular essay is that his premise seems to me one which we should consider very carefully today.

The tendency is to feel that anything which is not directly connected with war production, the building of ships, airplanes or other military equipment and the induction into the military services of an ever-increasing number of young men, is of no importance in the war effort. If we fall into this misapprehension, we may find ourselves not only handicapped in winning the war, but very much handicapped in winning the peace.

The best machinery in the world has to be handled by intelligent people, and unless we continue the services we have set up for better health, education and recreation for the children and young people of today, not only the future of the war, but the future of the country is in danger.

We should learn something even from our enemies. Germany has paid great attention to the very things which we are already neglecting in our haste to make war, something which can only be won on a military basis and has nothing to do with what happens on the civilian side of the picture. Just the other day, I found in the crowded industrial areas near San Diego and Los Angeles that one of the most agitated questions was how day nurseries and nursery schools could be set up. The lack of them slows up production on the part of the women, many of them mothers, who are employed in the aircraft factories. "Welfare activities" seem to have military importance.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Since I missed the morning plane for San Diego, I took the train and the trip was not without interest. The first person to speak to me was Mrs. Bancroft from San Diego. She and her husband have written a book on Southern California. They studied the bird life of the region for years, incidentally becoming very familiar with the geography and the Mexican people. Their knowledge has been of use in our preparation for defense and she was kind enough yesterday to send me her husband's book, which I know the President will enjoy.

I enjoyed also talking to a freelance writer, who is evidently the kind of man who does not think that you can put your liberalism up in camphor balls when the going is hard and take it out unharmed when difficulties come to an end. One hears this argued so much these days, that it is sometimes difficult to decide where common sense and patriotism end and self-interest begins.

Southern California is very beautiful with its flowers and waving trees and houses covered with vines.

'WILL OF THE PEOPLE'

All travel today is more or less uncertain and may be interrupted. I discovered this on my trip across the country, when just beyond Tucson, I learned that the plane was almost entirely filled with ferry pilots. I think there were just two other civilian travelers besides me, who had been allowed to make the trip without interruption. One of the boys had an advance release of Mr. Archibald MacLeish's speech, and it was passed around and read.

It led to much discussion, but there was general agreement with his thesis that the will of the people determines the final outcome of any war. I think the will of the people is pretty well set in this country, except for occasional slight confusions created by certain interests on one side or the other. They may succeed temporarily in gaining some particular point of interest to their group, but if we hold to the old theory that it is impossible to fool all of the people all of the time, we shall probably feel that whatever is the truth will eventually reach all the people.

AFFECTION FOR 'HOMELAND'

Strangely enough, I suppose if you live long enough in certain places, their very familiarity makes you feel an affection for them. In spite of the beauty, which I acknowledge and enjoy when here, I never have any desire permanently to leave the countryside which for me has been "home" during most of the years of my life. Nature is not so kind, winters are hard, summers are sometimes too hot, sometimes too cold, the lot of the farmer and gardener is always a gamble, and yet I like the change of seasons.

THE SIGN OF DEPENDABLE SERVICE FOR ANY CAR OR TRUCK

Today, more than ever before, this sign beckons all car and truck owners who want the skilled, reliable service that comes with: (1) trained mechanics, (2) quality materials, and (3) reasonable service rates....You can expect this kind of service from your Chevrolet dealer because, for years, Chevrolet dealers have had the largest number of "trade-ins" and therefore the widest experience in servicing and conditioning all makes of cars and trucks.

ORGANIZATION OF CLUB WORK

REGISTRATION STATION, April 8 — The nation is saluting its 4-H Club members who are doing war service on the home front. About 75,000 of these boys and girls are Texans, according to figures from the State Department.

5-11, is also a good time to give recognition to the thousands of other people who are contributing to the success of the 4-H movement, in the opinion of H. H. Williamson, director of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service.

He explains that there are 2,836 men who are giving their services as adult leaders for the 1,971 boys' 4-H Clubs in the state plus 2,223 women who are serving as sponsors for the 2,610 girls' clubs. "It's all volunteer work. These local leaders get no financial compensation but the satisfactions of helping build future leaders and of community service," Director Williamson explains.

How this oil with its modern synthetics—man-made betterments—triumphed in the Certified Death Valley Test. Why it out-mileaged five others more than 2 to 1 . . .

A PEBBLE starting an avalanche that wrecks a town can illustrate one big thing to you about getting full mileage from your oil change this Spring. (Spring change is a serious "must," all authorities warn you.)

Now folks in the hills take care not to give pebbles any start. And by changing to Conoco Nth motor oil you are taking care not to let thickening mush get a start in your crankcase. The added modern synthetic . . . man-made Thiathene inhibitor in Conoco Nth . . . is aimed to inhibit or ward off the very start of bad "jelling" that often drags down mileage these days.

And still another synthetic in Conoco Nth has long been noted for its magnet-like way of attaching OIL-PLATING to inner engine surfaces. OIL-PLATING isn't all constantly draining down. Then instead of plain fluid-type oil film alone, which comes and goes, your engine can have this steadfast OIL-PLATING besides . . . Oil film sliding between OIL-PLATED engine parts!

What's gained in engine life and oil mileage? You can judge from the impartial Death Valley Test. Conoco Nth ran up more than twice the mileage averaged by five big-name quality brands—each run till engine was ruined. Conoco Nth out-mileaged the next-best by 74% and another by 161% . . . certified.

What's the best oil mileage you'd hope for in your own car? See if Conoco Nth doesn't deliver. Your Conoco Mileage Merchant knows your correct Spring grade. Change today. Continental Oil Company

SHE LOVED A SPY

by SYLVIA TAYLOR

THE STORY SO FAR: Joan Leland, secretary, in love with her night-club employer, Karl Miller, is horrified when he shoots his business partner, Eric, and she is sickened when he tells her he has a wife in Germany, and is acting as a Nazi spy. When she threatens to call the police, he reminds her, her finger prints are on the gun, implores her when he asks her to pick up the pieces, and she will keep silent. And unless she will keep silent he will continue her work, she will be charged with the murder. When his manager, Paul Sherman, who had been a friend to Joan, backs him up, the terrified girl agrees. Later Paul secretly reveals to her he is really an FBI agent and she promises to help him trap the higher-ups in the spy ring. Police find Sybil's clothing and a suicide note near a bridge and Paul suspects Karl is holding her hostage. Meanwhile Karl hires a beautiful girl as a singer, who turns out to be Paul's run-away sister, and who innocently betrays him. Karl and Joan and Paul as they find a Nazi radio transmitter and bomber plans and places them under guard on board an old tramp steamer. Paul thinks Karl will transfer the stolen bomber plans to a submarine.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER XIV

Karl was dressed in white. In appearance and manner he was as smooth and impeccable as always. But the same qualities that once charmed Joan now disgusted her as she asked coldly, "Where is Paul?"

"Do you expect me to tell you?" Karl parried.

Where was Paul? This subject held her interest most. She dared not think what might become of her without him.

But the day passed, the night, the next day, and still she had not seen him. And the next morning as she saw Karl coming on deck, she demanded, "What have you done with Paul? I want to see him."

"All right," Karl agreed surprisingly. "He summoned a sailor and spoke to him in German."

A few minutes later Paul appeared. His coat and tie were gone and his shirt was open at the throat. He looked tired.

Karl spoke rapidly in German, then suddenly turned on his heel and walked away.

"Oh Paul!" Joan gasped. "Are you all right?"

"I'm fine," Paul said grimly. "Karl's just been trying to persuade me to join his little group. Both of us, for that matter. He thinks we'd be valuable to him in his spying business."

Then he glanced at her with a smile. "You sound almost as if you care."

"I do," Joan said. And suddenly she realized that she did care. That she cared terribly what happened to Paul O'Malley.

Five more days passed as the weather became increasingly uncomfortable.

"We're probably off the coast of Mexico," Paul said as he stood at the rail looking into the vast expanse of blue sky and water.

Without turning his head, Paul said in a low voice, "I have something to tell you. Do you know which sailor is called Thomas?"

"I think so. The one who brings our meals."

"Right. It seems Karl has something on him, forced him into service on this ship by blackmail. He's promised to help us, when the time comes."

"What time?" Joan asked, feeling suddenly chilled in spite of the tropical sun.

"If everything goes as I expect, it should be within two or three days."

"You still don't know how Karl plans to get rid of those papers?"

"Submarine," Paul said briefly. "Thomas tells me we're to contact it within the next twenty-four hours."

"There's a ring around the moon," Paul observed. "We're going to have some bad weather."

"Anything would be better than this," Closing her eyes against the heat, Joan leaned her head against the chair.

When she felt a hand over hers, she started. "Oh . . . Paul . . . Color flooded her cheeks.

"Joan," he said simply, "don't you know I'm in love with you?"

Relief and joy flooded her heart. Fatigue fell like a mask from her young face.

"I've been in love with you ever since the first day I saw you," Paul went on in his quiet voice. "But there was Karl . . ."

"Oh darling, that wasn't real. I didn't love Karl. I just thought I did. You must believe that, Paul!"

"Of course I believe it, honey," he said. "If I didn't, do you think I'd be telling you this? We O'Malleys are cagey people."

She smiled in the darkness.

"If we ever get out of this mess," Paul continued seriously, "will you marry me? It's not an easy life, you know, Joan. I'm gone a great deal and my job's dangerous. I haven't much to offer."

"You have all I want," Joan assured him. "And Paul, we've got to get out of this now. There's so much to live for . . ."

Karl's voice broke through the night. "What a romantic little scene this is. Too bad that you two must be separated."

Joan felt Paul's warning hand upon her arm but she burst out, "What do you mean?"

On deck, Joan had to cling to Paul to prevent the wind from sweeping her off her feet.

"I have been listening to your charming conversation," Karl told her. Joan could see the outline of his white suit in the darkness, the glow of his cigarette. "Since you seem so well informed about my plans, it might interest you to know that when that submarine leaves this ship, Paul will be on it."

"No! You can't do that?"

She could imagine his smile as he said, "I am really quite jealous, Joan, that you can transfer your affection so quickly. I would prefer that Paul is safely out of the way so that there is nothing to interfere with our friendship."

Paul's hands clinched on the arms of his chair, but he said nothing. Joan understood then that it was better to pacify Karl than to antagonize him further.

Her hand grasped Paul's tightly as Karl disappeared around the corner of the deck. "Is he bluffing?" she whispered.

"Of course he is," Paul replied calmly. "It would be easier to get rid of me entirely than to put me on another boat. I wouldn't be any asset to Karl on a submarine."

Joan slept little that night. The ship began to roll and shudder as it met the seas that increased as the night went on. A sharp wind swept the deck. Black clouds raced across the moon and the sea splashed and hissed as it lashed over the prow.

Paul's finger tapped on the wall. Joan moved closer to the thin boards that separated them and called, "What is it?"

She did not understand his reply but realized that his door was being unlocked.

Presently Paul's head appeared in her door. "Thomas is here and knows where those papers are. We're going to get them," he said.

"Karl will find out," she warned.

"Karl and the captain are drinking below. They won't bother us."

"Take me with you. Please! I'm afraid."

Paul hesitated, then said, "All right. Maybe it would be better."

On deck, Joan had to cling to Paul to prevent the wind from sweeping her off her feet. The decks were slippery from the spray and the waves rose like black liquid mountains. As they proceeded cautiously, Joan dared not look out into the night. It was total blackness, and sky and water seemed blended into one evil force from which came the howling wind and spray.

At last Thomas unlocked a door and crossed the room. "They're in here," he whispered, indicating a small wall safe. "I know how to open it."

He handed the papers to Paul. "Do what you like with them! I hate Karl Miller!" In the glow of the flashlight his eyes gleamed.

Paul rapidly sorted them.

"What are you going to do then?" Joan asked.

"I'm going to change them—the plans for the bombing plane at least."

"We should meet the submarine tomorrow," Thomas said, looking fearfully over his shoulder. "But with this weather we may be off our course."

Paul seated himself at the small wooden table and handed a flashlight to Thomas. "Hold it as steady as possible," he ordered. From his pocket he drew a small bottle, a brush, pen and ink.

"What are you doing?" Joan asked, watching the grotesque shadows cast on the wall as Paul's fingers moved deftly over the paper.

"When I get through with these plans they won't know whether it's a bombing plane or a washing machine."

Once Thomas opened the door to listen, but only the wind greeted them, blowing the salt spray into their faces, and he shook his head. "This is going to be a bad one," he predicted, forcing his shoulder against the door to close it.

Paul finished his work and replaced the plans carefully in the safe. Joan was surprised to see him put the other papers back in their respective envelopes.

"These papers are probably going to Europe," Paul explained as he shut the safe.

Thomas nodded. "That's right. That's the way Karl always does it. Then they can't prove anything."

Paul threw the circle of his flashlight upon the door. "I can prove it this time."

"That's what some of the others thought," Thomas whispered, "but I've never seen anyone double-cross Karl and live to tell about it!"

"Let's get out of here," Paul said, taking Joan's arm.

The three of them made their way back and crowded into Joan's small cabin. Thomas stood by the door listening. "I guess Karl won't come on deck on a night like this," he said.

"There's nothing to do now but wait for morning," Paul said. "And I want you to get some sleep, Joan." He put his arms tenderly about her shoulders. "Will you try, honey? Thomas and I will be right in the next cabin. Knock on the wall if you need me."

Wide-eyed, Joan lay awake listening to the thunder and the wild hiss of water as it flooded the deck. The sensitive ship seemed like another human being as it fought its valiant battle against the storm. Creaking and groaning, it pitted its strength against the double blows of wind and wave.

Dawn. The sea had subsided but rain still fell from clouded skies into the gray water. Outside Thomas had reappeared at his post and paced the wet deck with measured tread, his sharp eyes searching the seas. It was seven o'clock when Paul and Joan finally went to the small lounge which served as a dining room, and Thomas brought their breakfast.

"Any news?" Paul asked as Thomas poured the coffee.

"Karl is with the captain," the sailor reported. "They've communicated with the submarine by radio. We should meet them in three or four hours."

Paul rose. "Do you think you can keep Karl occupied in the captain's quarters for a few minutes? I'm going to the radio room."

"I'll try. But the radio operator is a tough guy. Doesn't speak a word of English either. He'll turn you right over to Karl."

Paul smiled. "I don't think so."

"Be careful," Joan begged, knowing that to ask for an explanation would be useless.

Paul bent down to kiss her. "Don't worry, dear. I know what I'm doing. I'll be back soon."

When he had gone Thomas paused in the doorway. "He should be more careful. He doesn't even carry a gun!"

"Karl took his gun away, and if he had another Karl would find it."

Thomas came closer. "But if you had a gun, Karl wouldn't suspect."

"What do you mean?" Joan whispered.

Thomas touched his pocket. "I have one here. I've had it for the last month, but it doesn't do me any good. If I gave it to Mr. O'Malley, Karl would find it but you might be able to hide it away. May come in handy."

Joan was thinking rapidly, not of herself but Paul. It would be a safeguard for both of them. "Give it to me then," she told Thomas.

He handed it to her and she put it in her pocket.

"Good luck!" he said and was gone.

Joan did not tell Paul about the gun. She was afraid he would not want her to have the responsibility. She remembered the last occasion she had held a gun in her hand. The time Karl shot Eric and made her pick up the gun to have her incriminating fingerprints on it.

"Why so quiet?" Paul inquired. Absorbed, she had not heard him return.

She smiled. "Nothing, darling. Just thinking."

"About me, I trust."

He drew her into his arms and kissed her. "I love you, Joan!"

She felt as though his love built a high wall between her and the rest of the world.

"I'm afraid you'll never have an easy life," Paul warned. "I'll be away a lot and sometimes I won't be able to explain where or why. You'll have to trust me."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE MISSION OF THE SEVENTY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:1-7, 17, 21-34. GOLDEN TEXT—The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth laborers into his harvest.—Luke 10:2.

Working with Christ for the salvation of men has been the privilege of believers since the time He chose the twelve. We learn today that there were at least seventy more whom He considered dependable and worthy to be sent forth. Knowing how brief was the time before His death, the Saviour called, commissioned, and cared for them as they went two by two, personally to evangelize "in every city and place."

I. Sent to Serve Christ (vv. 1-3). Prayer is back of the calling of laborers for Christ. God waits for His people to lay before Him the need, and to enlist His grace in moving upon the ones who can best serve Him. There is mystery here which we cannot fully understand, but it is perfectly clear that prayer is the power which has been given to the church with which to "move" the hand of God. The reason the laborers are so few, even in our days is evidently, then, because there has been so little prayer.

Observe that the Lord sent His servants "two by two" so that they could encourage and assist each other. Christian work is best done in Christian fellowship. The "star performer" or the "lone wolf" may be acceptable in business or social life, but he has no place in Christ's program, unless by His special call and guidance for some particular task, such as pioneer work.

He sent them to go "before His face"—what a glorious place to be! That means that He was watching over them, expecting them really to "labor" for Him. But notice also that in loving thoughtfulness they were—

II. Sustained by Christ (vv. 4-7).

It is well when workers go out that they have proper backing. We speak of the "board" which is behind our missionaries. That is right and proper, but above all there must be the assurance of the provision and protection of Christ.

They were not to be concerned about money. Christ had already moved upon the hearts of His people to see that the laborer had "his hire"—which was food and shelter (v. 7).

Time is what life is made of, and the servants of Christ were not to waste it in lengthy oriental salutations (v. 4), or going from house to house to be entertained, thus losing much time and strength.

Nor was he to strive or become angry if some one did not receive him and his greeting of "peace" (v. 6). In any case his word would return in blessing upon himself (v. 6), and he could go on to another house. The point of all this is that the expectation of the Christian servant is from his Master, Christ, whose business requires diligence and haste (1 Sam. 21:8b).

The outcome of such service is revealed in our third point.

III. Successful Through Christ (vv. 17, 21-24).

The seventy returned rejoicing that even the demons were subject to them in Jesus' name. He still has power over the demons of our day. Would that the church wielded that power more effectively!

While it is a great thing thus to see the power of God at work, Jesus told them in verse 20 that an even greater thing is to have one's name written in heaven. That means that we ought to be much concerned not only about having our own names written there, but the names of all those whose lives we touch—at home, at work, anywhere.

The secret of the disciples' victory is found in the statements which Christ in all humility and honesty made about Himself (vv. 22-24). He is the one to whom "all things are delivered"—unlimited in authority and power. The mystery of His person and work is not something man can think out or fully comprehend (how foolish have been the attempts to do it!) for He is God. The fact that the Father had revealed these things to the seventy humble, ordinary men caused Christ to magnify His Father's name in praise and prayer. Spiritual insight (vv. 21, 24) is something only God can give, and often He can give it in full measure only to humble and lowly men. "Men like D. L. Moody, who became spiritual giants, were usually humble men from lowly walks who gave themselves wholly to God" (B. L. Olmstead).

Need to Slow Up

The world is going too fast! Even the Church needs to slow up for it is attempting too much in social programs and is losing spiritual poise in many places. Paul said to the Church, "Put on the whole armor of God." The whole armor takes time to put on, yet it is dangerous to leave off any part of it.—Rev. A. E. Gregory.

15208 Yoke-Front Dirndl Frock.

A NEW and different yoke treatment brightens the top of the "teen-age" frock which we present today. A clever detail, this yoke carries a front opening for the bodice and in addition gives that originality which younger girls seek in their fashions! Pattern No. 1520-B is bound to be regarded highly by the younger set anyhow, because it also presents that very popular feature—the dirndl skirt—in this case a dirndl skirt with a snug fitting belt which ties in back with sash ends.

"That's no excuse for desertion, Mose," said the judge. "The law gives a woman the right to talk all she wants to."

"She does? What does she talk about?" inquired the court.

Your gas range is ideally suited to modern "waterless cooking" which saves vegetable vitamins and minerals. Because of its flexibility you can regulate the heat to any degree you need.

So use your gas range wisely—and follow these simple rules for food that is really health-giving:

- Cook vegetables in as small an amount of water as possible.
- Bring to boiling point quickly over high gas flame.
- When boiling begins, turn gas flame down and boil gently.
- Use covered utensils to keep steam in.
- Do not use soda, as it destroys vitamins in vegetables.
- Cook vegetables as short a time as possible.
- Serve foods soon after cooking.

No doubt about it— CERESAN COTTONSEED TREATMENT PAYS!

There's everything to gain, and nothing to lose, when you plant CERESAN-treated cottonseed! CERESAN generally reduces seed rotting, sore-shin and certain other surface seed-borne diseases; commonly gives stronger stands; usually increases yields, often 10 to 25%. Oklahoma Agricultural Experiment Station, Stillwater, quotes progressive planters as reporting that treated seed often "pays for itself by allowing lower seeding rates, by simplifying the planting operations, and by improving the regularity and quality of the stand." CERESAN costs little, is easily applied. Get it from your dealer to treat your own seed, or buy seed marked with the Ceresan Certificate Tag.

TREAT OTHER SEEDS, TOO! Use Semesan Jr. for corn; New Improved Ceresan for small grains; Semesan for vegetables; Semesan Bel for potatoes.

Honey Flavors This Fruit Bran Bread
(See Recipes Below)

Substitute Foods

Most vital question every homemaker is now facing is how to substitute certain available foods for shortages. Sugar shortages and reduced supplies of fats, oils and certain imports make it necessary for every one of you to revise your meals in some respects and use substitutes.

Although sugar rationing is to be in effect, you will still be able to get some of it. There are also good substitutes for it such as honey, molasses and corn syrup all of which may be used very easily for cooking and sweetening purposes. Still another excellent source of sugar is in the dried fruits which you can use for dessert to get your daily quota of sugar.

Select recipes which have less eggs, sugar and butter, for although there may not be an actual shortage of all these items, they may be expensive.

Fats are extremely valuable in the current emergency, and you are advised to save as much of fats and oils as you can. Be sure that your butcher puts in all the scraps of fat and trimmings off the meat you buy. You can take these pieces home and clarify them for use in frying, flavoring or actual cooking.

If you have blithely discarded the scraps of butter off the butter plates after dinner, lunch or breakfast, then remedy your habits immediately. Even if you do not use the butter scraps as table butter, these can be used for flavoring vegetables, or in larger amounts for cooking and baking purposes. Be sure the butter is kept in the icebox or at least in a cool place so it will not become rancid.

Butter and its substitutes will be available, but you should plan to use these foods sparingly. You can substitute the corn and vegetable or even mineral oil for salad dressings if you are unable to obtain olive oil.

Cheeses which have been formerly imported are available only in limited quantities, but American made cheeses are coming to the fore, the Bleu and Camembert cheeses being of excellent quality.

Soybeans are becoming a popular, nutritious food during the current emergency. Here is an excellent recipe for:

Soy Bean Yeast Bread.
(Makes 1 loaf)
1 cup milk
1 cake compressed yeast
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon fat, melted
1 teaspoon salt
3/4 cups wheat flour
1/4 cup soy bean flour

This Week's Menu:

- *Old Fashioned Boiled Dinner
- *Pineapple-Nut Salad
- *Fruit Bran Bread
- *Baked Pears
- Coffee
- Tea
- Cookies
- Milk
- *Recipes Given

Scald milk and cool to lukewarm. Pour over yeast and sugar in mixing bowl and let stand for 1/2 hour. Add melted fat and salt and the flours, beating them in well. Knead the dough for about 10 minutes on a lightly floured board. Cover and let rise in a warm place for 1/2 hour, then knead again for 1 minute. Repeat the rising and kneading process twice more. Shape into a loaf and let rise again in a greased pan until double in bulk or about an hour. Bake in a hot (400-degree) oven about 50 minutes.

Honey or molasses along with fruits rich in carbohydrates contribute to the sugar content of this fruit bread:

*Fruit Bran Bread.

- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup honey or molasses
- 1 cup buttermilk
- 2 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 1/2 cups bran cereal
- 1/2 teaspoon soda
- 1/2 cup chopped figs
- 1/2 cup chopped dates
- 1/2 cup raisins
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts

Beat egg well, add honey or molasses. Add bran and buttermilk. Sift the dry ingredients and add to first mixture with fruit and nuts. Stir only until flour disappears. Bake in a greased loaf pan with waxed paper placed at the bottom before the mixture is poured in. Set the oven at moderate (350 degrees) and bake bread for about 1 hour.

Simplicity will be the keynote of meals so in keeping with that theme, I am including two desserts using fruit flavored with honey.

Broiled Grapefruit.

Wash and dry grapefruit and cut in half crosswise allowing 1/2 grapefruit per person. With a sharp knife cut around and under the entire pulp being careful to leave all the membrane on the shell. Cut down each side of each section loosening each section completely. Lift out center section or core. This leaves only the separated sections in the shell. Spread the top of each half with honey and dot with butter. Place under a broiler flame in moderate oven until honey begins to caramelize and all ingredients are blended together. Serve hot.

*Baked Pears.

- (Serves 8)
8 pear halves
1/4 cup lemon juice
1/2 cup honey
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons butter

Arrange pears in a shallow baking dish. Pour over lemon juice and honey. Sprinkle with cinnamon and dot with butter. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven until tender, 20 minutes if uncooked pears are used.

*Old Fashioned Boiled Dinner.

- (Serves 8)
5 pounds corned beef brisket
1 white turnip
1 head of cabbage
8 onions
8 carrots
8 potatoes

Cover meat with cold water and heat rapidly to the boiling point, then remove scum and reduce heat. Simmer until tender 3 1/2 to 4 hours. Prepare vegetables, cutting turnip into eighths. Peel potatoes, carrots and onions. About 45 minutes before meat is done add vegetables and cook them until tender.

Serving Well Cooked Food.

Warm plates for hot main dishes and well chilled plates for cool salads and desserts can put over the simplest meal and make it a success. A few bits of canned leftover fruit with a dab of leftover jelly will make meat platters an attractive garnish, or sprigs of parsley, watercress, or celery tops for meat and vegetable platters do big things to tempt weary appetites.

The True Role

The true role, in determining to embrace or reject anything, is not whether it have any evil in it, but whether it have more of evil than of good.

There are few things wholly evil or wholly good. Almost everything, especially of government policy, is an inseparable compound of the two, so that our best judgment of the preponderance between them is continually demanded.—A. Lincoln.

True Greatness

It is great, and there is no other greatness—to make one nook of God's creation more fruitful, better, more worthy of God; to make some human heart a little wiser, manlier, happier, more blessed, less accursed.—Carlyle.

Nature Rewards

All those who love Nature she loves in turn, and will richly reward, not perhaps with the good things, as they are commonly called, but with the best things, of this world—not with money and titles, horses and carriages, but with bright and happy thoughts, contentment and peace of mind.—John Lubbock.

From where I sit...

by Joe Marsh

BEST storekeeper I ever knew was a fellow named Sam Abernethy. Sam's specialty was to take over some run-down store that somebody else had given up as a failure. Then Sam would turn it into a gold mine.

"But the most important thing of all," he used to say, "is to remember who's Boss!"

"You may think you are Boss of your business... but you're not. The Public, your customers, are the real bosses... and you've got to run your business the way they want it."

That little statement of Sam's made a big impression on me... particularly since it certainly seemed to work so well in Sam's case.

And Sam isn't the only one. I see the beer industry feels the same way... certainly, the brewers believe in running their business the way you and I would like to see it run.

Folks like us like to see beer sold in clean, quiet, decent places.

Well... the brewers feel the same way about it. They don't want their beer sold in wrong surroundings. They know it doesn't pay. And they know it hurts the good name of beer.

I was reading the other day how the brewers and the beer distributors work together and cooperate with law enforcement authorities. The idea is to make careless beer retailers clean up their places and practices... or close up.

It's a good plan... and it seems to me it ought to work. I understand it is already in operation in a number of states and is being extended.

It's a mighty fine thing when a great industry has the gumption to do a job like that on its own initiative. And if Sam Abernethy was right, the brewers should be mighty successful... because they're running their business the way the public wants to see it run.

F S A Leader Urges Buying Of Bonds

Contributions to the Nation's war effort being made by the farm families co-operating with the Farm Security Administration in Lynn County cannot be measured in amounts of Defense Bonds and Stamps purchased by these low income farm families, in the opinion of Miss Allie Mae Tipps, home management supervisor for the FSA.

"Few farm families being assisted by Farm Security are financially able to invest greatly in bond and stamp purchase," Miss Tipps said. "Yet these people are making many sacrifices and they are contributing very materially to their nation's all-out program to blast the dictators."

"By producing greater quantities of foods, and by building up their own strength, security and physical well-being, they are the men behind the men behind the gun."

"War-time shortages are not entirely new to these people," Miss Tipps continued, "because they seldom have experienced abundances of anything. And yet, they are learning and striving to conserve materials vital for the war effort."

Miss Tipps explained the Farm Security Administration calls for helping farm families contribute to civilian defense by wise use of money and time, avoidance of waste and conservation of resources.

A homemaker, for example, who makes over a dress, who repairs old furniture, who makes curtains and wearing apparel from low cost material, who buys wisely and practices the common-sense economies known to our pioneer grandmothers is making a contribution to victory.

Williams...

life, Mr. Williams seemed to realize, however, that it would be a losing fight.

In his boyhood days he had united with the First Christian Church at Garland, Dallas County, where his parents and family then resided, and remained true to his profession of faith until death. He was also a member of the Masonic order and will probably be buried with Masonic honors.

Mr. Williams leaves as survivors his wife, four daughters, two sons, his father and mother, seven brothers, and other relatives. The daughters are: Miss Helen Williams, who is a student in Texas Tech, Mrs. Jo (Pat) Hensley, Sue, and Linda Jean Williams, all of Draw; the sons are Marshall and James of the family home.

Mr. Williams was born on April 3, 1894, in Bedford County, Tennessee. He came with his parents to Garland, Dallas County, about the year 1900. Along about 1913, the family removed to Stephenville. Young Mr. Williams taught school in Erath county one year and then joined the U. S. Navy, in which he served two years or longer. After being discharged he went to Scurry County, where he taught two years. While there he was married to Miss Gussie Parsons on June 6, 1922.
