STATE INSPECTOR PRAISES LYNN COUNTY SCHOOLS

C. L. Huckaby, State Inspector Visits County's Schools And Recommends Aid—School Good As Best

Prof. G. L. Huckaby of the State Department of Education was in Tahoka last week visiting the rural schools of the county with county superintendent, H. P. Cavenses to determine the amount of state aid that would be granted.

Following is the Department's report as given in the Lynn County News last week.

"Prof. Huckaby stated to a representative of the News Tuesday evening that he would recommend approval of the limit permitted by law to each of the schools he had visited.

"Prof. Huckaby had much praise for the schools of Lynn County. There are at least three respects in which they stand at the top, he stated. They have better buildings and longer terms than the average counties in Texas, and they have teachers for every school in the county. Every school in the county except one has a local tax rate of $1.00 on the $100.00 property valuation, he pointed out.

"Prof. Huckaby assured the News that the State Department of Education is doing everything possible to relieve the prevailing financial depression in this section of the state. In addition to allowing the limit allowed under the law for state aid, he stated that all inspectors in East Texas had been transferred to West Texas so that this portion of the state might receive attention first.

"Prof. Huckaby was very favorably impressed with the character of work that he found was being done in this county by County superintendents H. P. Cavenses. He felt that much of the credit for the high type of schools he found here was due to the efforts of Mr. Cavenses."

CARPENTER OPENS OFFICE AT TAHOKA MONDAY

The index is this week carrying card announcing the opening of the law office of C. R. Carpenter in the courthouse at Tahoka.

Mr. Carpenter has been a citizen of O'Donnell for several years, and is well-known and liked by a wide circle of friends. He returned from Austin the latter part of the week, having gone there to appear before the State Bar Association and receive his license to practice law.

The index joins with his other friends in wishing him much success and prosperity in his new career.

NAMES OF STREETS TRIBUTE TO PIONEERS

The names of the streets of O'Donnell were of so much interest to several persons that they begin inquiring around recently to the names of all of them, for whom they were named, and why. The result of the inquiry was that the Index is able to publish the correct name of each street and give a short sketch of the men for whom they were named.

As was altogether fitting, the streets were named for outstanding leaders of the community, pioneers who believed in the future of West Texas so strongly that they were willing and glad to put forth time, money, and effort for the development of this section. The naming of the streets was a gracious tribute to these old pioneers, several of whom have passed on to their reward. As many of the others are past the middle-age and are already speaking of themselves as "old men", the Index is glad to offer them this small measure of public commendation and appreciation while they are yet in themselves. While recalling to mind the name of the streets of our town, let us remember that the men for whom they are named were honored men, leaders and men of whom we still speak with reverence and respect. We are proud of them and the work they did, and we want the world to know it.

Beginning at the extreme west side of town, the first street was named Hester in honor of F. P. Hester, who was a pioneer farmer living near O. K. school. Mr. Hester is still living five miles south of O'Donnell now about seventy-five years of age. He is the father of Ernest Hester.

Vaughn street was named for S. Vaughn, a rancher northwest of O'Donnell. Mr. Vaughn built the first gin in O'Donnell. He was the father of Marion and Monroe Vaughn, and the grand-father of Mrs. Vaughn Shick.

March Street was named for H. T. Gooch, then a rancher with large land holdings west of town. Mr. Gooch is still one of the most prominent farmers in Lynn County, and with his pipe and dog Bowser, is a familiar figure on the streets each day.

Hahn Street was named for H. L. Hahn, present commissioner of Dawson county, and one of the leaders in school and public affairs. At the time the town was laid off, Mr. Hahn was proprietor of the hotel.

Doak, or main street, was named for C. H. Doak, founder of O'Donnell and a leader in civic enterprises. He is a landowner on a large scale, and still owns much of the original townsite.

Baldridge was named for H. E. Baldridge, now at Clovis, N. M. Mr. Baldridge had an interest in the townsite with Mr. Doak and still has much property in the town he helped build. At the time the town was surveyed and platted, he owned a ranch where J. M. Payne farm now is. He is the father of Mrs. Ben Small.

Small was named for Mr. George Small, who at that time was a rancher with his holdings about where T-Bar now is. Mr. Small is now in the lumber business at Livingston, N. M.

Sandifer Street was named for W. R. Sandifer, who surveyed and platted the town. When Sandifer died some three or four years ago, he was one of the first settlers in this part of the country, building his own home near Tahoka lake. He also surveyed and platted Tahoka.

Evans was named for Uncle Jess Evans, one of the first ranchers, with his headquarters on Wet Tobacco. He was the founder of the TIF ranch, building the lake by that name. He died five or six years ago in Kansas City. When Dawson county was organized in 1904, he was the first county treasurer.

Miles was named in honor of J. B. Miles, another of the pioneer ranchers. At that time his ranch was east of town, somewhere near his present farm, "Daddy Miles" as he is known to most every citizen of O'Donnell, is still one of the leaders of our civic affairs.

Stokes was named for G. E. Stokes, one of the prominent farmers of the county, and owner of much city property. Mr. Stokes is still actively engaged in farming, his land being located west of town.

Since O'Donnell is twenty years old this year, the Index considered it very appropriate that the founders of the town should receive their measure of public appreciation.

On the eve of the twelfth celebration of Armistice Day, we are being asked as Americans to show our appreciation of the sacrifices of our heroes, dead or living, by the wearing of a buddy poppy, the symbol of Armistice Day. These poppies are made by disabled veterans of the World War, bringing to mind, as nothing else could do, their bravery and unselfishness.

The story of how the red poppy came to be the symbol of Armistice Day goes back to November, 1918, even before there was an Armistice to lighten the burdens of a War-weary world, and it was a southern woman, Miss Moine Michel of Athens, Ga., who originated the idea.

The idea came to Miss Michel while she was serving on the staff of the Y. W. C. A. overseas headquarters at Columbia University. On Saturday, November 9, 1918, she was sitting in the headquarters office when a soldier came in and placed a copy of a monthly magazine on her desk. In it she happened to read Colonel McCarter's immortal poem, "In Flanders Fields." She was so stirred by the lines that she read it several times and then with a sudden inspiration she wrote the reply to it. Which is re-printed here below:

"You who sleep in Flanders Fields. Sleep sweet—to rise anew! We caught the Torch you threw And holding high, we keep the Faith With all who died. We cherish, too, the Poppy red That grows on fields where valor led: It is for all we here we stand; That blood of heroes never dries, But lies a lure to red Of the flower that blooms above the head."

In Flanders Fields. And now the Torch and Poppy red We'll wear in honor of our dead. Fear not that ye have died for naught; We'll teach the lessons that ye taught. In Flanders Fields. As she wrote she decided that she would wear a poppy for remembrance, and would ask others to do so. She asked her co-workers to do this, and all those with whom she came in contact were enthusiastic in their support. Then came the armistice, and Miss Michel turned all her energies to spreading the idea of the poppy as a national emblem. She presented the plan to other conferees and they straightway adopted it. She wrote to congressmen, women's clubs, educational institutions, begging them to adopt the poppy as a tribute to the men who had won the victory.

"Out of every great event of the world has come an emblem," she wrote, "Let us forget! Into this war went many emblems: The flags of nations, the Red Cross, and the Red Triangle, the service flag and pin now out of this war should come some symbol perpetually to remind us and unfailingly teach coming generations the value of the light of liberty and our debt to those who so valiantly saved it for us."

The Georgia State convention of the American Legion adopted the flower in 1920, and in September of the same year the national convention adopted the poppy as the National American Legion Memorial Flower.

But, just as the war was a war of many nations, the poppy has become an international emblem of the blood shed by heroes. In England, France, Italy, Holland, Germany, Spain, Belgium, Sweden, Poland, Greece, Rumania, Japan, China, Mexico, Asia Minor—in every corner of the globe these bright red poppies will be worn over the hearts of men and women, showing the love and appreciation of a world for the sacrifices of men.

Let us too wear this emblem of courage. Buy a buddy poppy, and pay reverence tribute to those who lie in Flanders' Field, dead, that you and I might enjoy life and liberty.

Let us too wear this emblem of courage. Buy a buddy poppy, and pay reverence tribute to those who lie in Flanders' Field, dead, that you and I might enjoy life and liberty.

LOCAL LEGION POST TO OBSERVE OCCASION WITH PROGRAM MONDAY

The Fern Allen Post of the American Legion, will observe the twelfth anniversary of the day, with a program at 8:15, Monday night, November 10th, at the I. O. O. F. Hall. Buddy L. A. Wilson, Liaison Officer of the Luther Powers Post No. 438, of Slaton, will deliver the principal address at the American Legion Armistice Re-education program, which will be held on the night of the 10th rather than on Armistice Day.

This meeting is being held by the Fern Allen Post of the American Legion along with every other post in the State on the night of November 10th, and will be one of the greatest demonstrations ever made by the Legion, greater even than memorial day observance, of the people of this great State.

Armistice Day is exclusively a day for the American Legion and former service men and women who have served in the World War, and it should be the day on which every man and woman who served in that emergency rededicate himself to the ideals for which we fought. This is a day made sacred by the American sacrifices in 1917-'18 and it is our plea that this day be kept alive in the memories of those who fought and survived and then dedicated themselves to the ideals in peace and the ideals of those who remain younger in Flanders Fields.

Plenty of entertainment, and program suitable for the occasion.

MISS HUFF SELECTED TO READ AT RECEPTION

In a recent letter to her parents, Miss Morene Huff sends the news that she has been selected by the head of the English department to read at the annual reception tendered C. I. A. students by the First Baptist church at Denton.

Miss Morene has represented O'Donnell as declaimer for the past two years, so that her ability is no news to home folks. However, it is indeed gratifying to know that other folks admire her ability also. Congratulations, Morene; we're proud of you.

MAN IN JAIL ON BURGLARY CHARGE

Complaint filed in the justice court at Tahoka last week against Bass Mullins of Lubbock, charged him with the burglary of the Singleton Hardware store a couple weeks ago. Mullins is now in jail pending the making of bond.

He was arrested at Littlefield on the charge of being drunk, and lodged in the city jail there. After the city had finished with him, he was taken to the county jail on the possibility that he might be wanted on other counts. A former Lubbock officer now on the Littlefield force recognized him as one arrested in Lubbock several years ago, and knew that he was the Mullins wanted here.

Deputy Sheriff Will Brown and city marshal McDaniels went to Littlefield and returned him. Most of the stolen goods were recovered.

Experts hope to be able to take the "flat" out of inflation.

O'DONNELL SCHOOL NEWS

Plan To Give Radio As Memorial The Junior and Senior classes of the local high school have canvassed the town this week securing subscriptions for standard magazines, planning to use their part of the proceeds give a radio to the school.

The Juniors were ahead in the contest Tuesday afternoon, but the Seniors were making all kinds of plans to beat them. Response to the subscription campaign has been gratifying, according to leaders of the two groups.

Our room mother came to see us on Friday and the afternoon was spent in games and telling jokes. At the end of the games, she passed packages to each member of the class, and each of them heartily enjoyed the candy and gum.

High Sixth: Our room mother, whom we elected at our first class meeting, came to see us Friday. Games had been planned for the afternoon, so the period from 2:30 until 4:00 was spent in a party in our room. At the close of the afternoon, Mrs. Koeninger served delicious pop-corn balls, which we greatly enjoyed. We hope she will visit us again soon.

EARLY RETURNS INDICATE AN OVERWHELMING DEMOCRATIC MAJORITY

With the lightest local vote in the history of the town, general election Tuesday averaged very little interest in O'Donnell. Election returns from over the State show that the same condition prevailed every where. Only 122 votes were cast at the local poll, with O'Donnell falling in line with the rest of the State for an overwhelming Democratic victory.

The other three were defeated by substantial majorities.

MRS. DOAK INJURED IN CAR WRECK SUNDAY

Mrs. C. H. Doak was painfully injured Sunday when the car driven by Mr. Doak turned turtle on the highway just this side of Lubbock, throwing her against the steering wheel and tearing her left ear almost from her head. She was severely bruised and shaken up as well, but the ear was the most serious injury. She was rushed to the West Texas hospital immediately for medical attention. Twelve stitches were necessary to put the ear back in place.

Mr. and Mrs. Doak were on route to Lovellland to spend the day with their daughter, Mrs. Major H. Rodeger, when the accident occurred. The road was exceedingly rough and Mr. Doak put on the brakes to pass over an unusually deep rut, and it is supposed that the brakes locked on the wheels jumped the ruts. At any rate, the car left the highway and took to the ditch, striking a bank and turning over before it could be stopped.

Passing motorists came to their assistance just as Mr. Doak had gotten out of the overturned car and was assisting Mrs. Doak out. Their car was righted and backed out of the ditch, and it took to be unharmed.

Beyond bruises and scratches and sore from the shock, Mrs. Doak is up as usual, and they both find amusing details connected with the wreck, which they tell to friends with many chuckles.

The easiest way to make time fly is to work hard.

WARN FARMERS AGAINST FALSE CLAIMS FOR NEW GRAIN SORGHUM

Farmers should not accept the claim advance for a new grain sorghum, called Grohoma, which has been offered at prices twenty to thirty times those of well-known and adaptable varieties, the U. S. Department of Agriculture warns. The claims in regard to the origin and value are sensational and inaccurate, according to specialists of the Bureau of Plant Industry say. There is no reliable evidence that Grohoma is superior to or will outyield other well-known varieties which have been tested and which may be recommended on the basis of experimental tests. Present information, says the bureau does not justify an exorbitant price for a seed of an almost unknown and untried crop.

This is the first season, says the bureau, in which seed of Grohoma has been merchandised to any extent. Consequently it is the first year in which the Department of Agriculture and the State experiment stations have had opportunity to test it in the experimental plots. The crop has not yet been threshed and reliable reports of the yield of Grohoma are not yet available for comparison with the records of established varieties of grain sorghums. Specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, however, have observed in comparative experiments in many localities, and they have found that Grohoma is more easily injured by drought than are several well-known varieties of grain sorghums. There is no evidence available which indicates that Grohoma will outyield other varieties of milo and kafir even under normal or average conditions.

The grain sorghum specialists describe Grohoma as medium-late in maturity and unlikely to ripen safely north of Kansas, Missouri and Illinois. Grohoma has sweet stalks which are dry (not juicy). Under favorable conditions and in thin stands it develops large bushy heads, but they point out that large heads are not necessarily associated with large yields. They consider it probable that Grohoma is about equal to other grain sorghum in feeding value and that the Grohoma seedling and grain is about the same. They regard it as "fantastic" the stories of the origin of Grohoma, and say that the stories are not substantiated by the characteristics of the crop. They believe it is probably the result of a cross between feteria and some sorgo (sweet sorghum or "cane").

RAISE IN GASOLINE TAX OPPOSED

At the present time every state levies tax against gasoline, ranging from two to six cents a gallon, and it is forecast that total revenue this year will reach the record sum of $350,000,000. Gasoline is subjected to the largest sales tax of any commodity, with the possible exception of cigarettes.

However, many legislators are not satisfied with the present tax campaigns are underway in a number of states—namely Louisiana, West Virginia, Maine, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Washington, Nebraska, and Colorado—to push the tax rates still higher. In the beginning, when gas taxes were only one or two cents a gallon it was a popular form of taxation with the public and apparently many officials still believe that "one cent more wouldn't make any difference."

There are unmistakable signs that the public, long patient, is tiring of excessively high rates and perennial increases. The voters of North Dakota recently refused to increase the tax from three to four cents a gallon, and the disapproving voice of the public has been heard in other states.

THERE'S ALWAYS WEATHER

"Everybody makes mistakes or there'd be no need of rubbers to lead pencils," remarked the bromide philologist. "No, and the newspapers would not have anything to print."

Although the number of motor vehicles registered in the United States increased 76 per cent in the seven years from 1923 to 1929, grade crossing fatalities during the same period have remained relatively constant, ranging between a minimum of 3,149 in 1924 and a maximum of 2,988 in 1928. The fundamental reason for this showing, is the organized and aggressive safety work of the railroads.

The less tender and less expensive cuts of beef can be made into attractive and delicious dishes when they are cooked properly. Long slow cooking and moisture are needed to make the meat tender. Pot roast, Swiss steak, stews and similar dishes are among the ways of serving the tender cuts of beef.

AN EXTRA SESSION? ABOUT UNEMPLOYMENT ARCHAIC AND OBSOLETE GERMAN WAR DEBTS DIPLOMATIC SECRETS

complete cancellation, is a certainty in the future. The general belief is that the report on prohibition which the National Commission on Law Enforcement and Enforcement is now working upon, will be made sometime after Congress assembles. There are rumors that one of the members of the Commission threatened to resign unless this report was given precedence. The report will probably be sent to the President who will then transmit it to the Congress with a message.

It is interesting to observe that the State Department has finally made public the papers relating to our foreign relations in 1916. The document has been kept under lock and key because it contains the argument between Great Britain and the United States over neutral rights on the high seas. However, since the London Naval Treaty has been ratified, it was decided to release the papers. They reveal that President Wilson was near a break with Germany in 1916 over the signing of the Sussex. They also reveal a spirited stand against Great Britain's interference with neutral trade.

It was brought out that the War department in some of its flood control work on the Mississippi River has introduced the "Stagger System" whereby a greater number of men are employed on a certain job although for a fewer hours. For example, the use of 2,400 men for three days a week instead of 1,000 for six days.

The President has selected Col. Arthur Woods, of New York, to organize the unemployment relief program. He has been called on twice since the war and is thoroughly familiar with the work to be accomplished. Mr. Hoover feels that all public and private agencies should be brought into complete cooperation with the Federal Government in order that the nation may face the present depression in confidence and take care of the unemployed as rapidly as possible.

The Congressional battle of 1930 is about at an end. By next week this time the verdict of the people will be plain and a new congress will have been elected. It is worth noting however that the new congress, regardless of its political complexion will not convene in regular session for the purpose of transacting the country's business until December, 1931. As we commented before this is an inexcusable political condition and should be remedied as soon as possible.

Senator Norris of Nebraska, has proposed a constitutional amendment, which provides that a newly elected congress shall convene in the January following the election and that the President and Vice President shall also be inaugurated in January. Until this change is made our system of government will not be responsible to the people.

Paraphrasing, we might point out that under the transportation and communication conditions obtaining when the constitution was written the provision was wise enough but development and invention have so altered these vital functions of government and popular understandings of political conditions that the present constitutional provision is archaic, obsolete and positively dangerous. Reports continue to suggest a moratorium for Germany reparation payments, coupled with a similar five year suspension of the allied debt payments to the United States. While these reports have been circulated all over the world, they have been denied in Washington. Dr. Haacht, former president of the Reichsbank, has been in this country and in touch with American officials. The moratorium is viewed as a possible step to turn the tide of European depression, which, according to the European argument, would react favorably upon the American economic situation. The discussion emphasizes again the uncertainty of all payments arising out of the World War. European economists feel certain that drastic revision, if not Offsetting these favorable conditions, is the vast increase in deaths due to the automobile. It is forecast that a new high record of 36,000 will be established this year. However, hope is found in the trend toward modernization of traffic laws throughout the nation and the spread of laws requiring strict examination of applicants for drivers' licenses. Automobile accidents must be checked to complete an enviable national accident prevention record.

SPEED!

It is probably the consensus of expert opinion that the most remarkable result of the industrial age is the speed with which we make contacts of all kinds. We cross continents by motor car, by train, by airplane in less time than it took our forefathers to traverse a state. And—fastest of all—we can project our voices thousands of miles in a fraction of a second, by telephone.

Amarrillo Lady Rejoices Over Results Obtained From New And Different Compound

MRS. ETTER STANLEY

"For twenty years I tried to free myself of stomach trouble, constipation, kidney and liver trouble," said Mrs. Etter Stanley, 1220 West Fifth street, Amarillo. "Even specially prepared foods did not digest. Gases formed and bloating pains resulted. My kidneys were so weak that night risings were frequent. I had dull pains across my back. Neuritis gripped me and I became almost helpless at times and suffered untold agony from piercing pains. 'Konjola' seemed to just fit my case. Soon after starting the treatment I began to feel better. Now after finishing the treatment, I feel like another person. Food now digests."

PROGRESS IN ACCIDENT PREVENTION

Accident prevention—both the "why" and the "how"—is becoming better understood. There is hardly a major industry in the United States which does not realize that accident prevention is an essential factor in industrial efficiency—as much an economic matter as a social matter. In contrast to this, a few decades ago employers grudgingly took steps to prevent accidents, believing that it was an expense that produced no return.

Last year there was an 11 per cent decrease in deaths among children of school age, due mainly to the improvement and extension of safety education. Accident prevention and health promotion work has become a basic factor in the curricula of modern schools, and is achieving remarkable results.

A case is reported which presents an unusual problem of relationship among members of a certain California family. The man in the case has found a solution of the problem by giving himself up for bigamy.

Ten years ago he married a supposed widow, a Mrs. Stapleton, who had a 16-year-old daughter. He later learned that his wife had a living husband in Texas, he left her and married the daughter, who has since born him three children.

Recently he learned that Stapleton had recently died before the widow's remarriage, consequently he is himself with two wives on his hands, one of whom is his mother-in-law and the other his step-daughter while his three children are grandchildren of his first wife. Rather awkward situation for concerned.

PRODUCES A LIGHT BRIGHT AS SUN'S
Scientist Has Formula That Uses No Electricity.

Los Angeles.—Dr. William George Schnell, young scientist, claims a formula to produce light as bright as the sun's without the use of electricity. His invention assertedly is composed of the same atoms which compose the sun.

Doctor Schnell, University of Colorado and University of Dresden graduate, said the formula really was a reproduction of the sun itself.

"For," he said, "the compounds which make up my invention are composed of the same atoms as the sun. In some ways we even have the sun elevated for we can produce a hot or a cold ray as we desire."

Doctor Schnell said the test of burning wood by a magnifying glass had been equally successful with the sun and with his invention.

The inventor said he had illuminated entire rooms with his mysterious light and has conducted other tests to the entire satisfaction of noted scientists.

Doctor Schnell disclosed that he believes his invention eventually will eliminate all forms of outdoor electrical signs and lights, illuminate homes, cook food and assist mechanical work, through its X-ray qualities.

The formula for his light producer is very simple, he said, containing certain minerals which are mixed with oils and acids.

Rat Catching Cat Club Organized in Havre

Havre.—A Rat Catching Cat club has been founded here to breed rat-catching cats on a large scale on a model cat farm.

Doctor Lehr, who is a nephew of the great scientist, Pasteur, is the prime mover in the campaign for breeding rat catchers, and for the last four years he has been busy selecting specimens he considers best for breeding purposes.

The destruction of rats has become an international question of the greatest importance.

The primitive methods used up to this point or gas are not without danger to humans whereas Doctor Lehr feels a race of robust felines would be extremely useful especially against rats such as Havre, where so much is expected under sheds and it is difficult to destroy the colonies of the vermin grain and disease spreading animals.

Mystery Man Proves Costly to Taxpayers

Ashland, Wis.—Joe, a "mystery man" found in a snow bank with a fractured leg and skull here last year, has proved expensive for hospital and county authorities.

The fractures have healed but Joe's mind remains a blank, so far as physicians can learn. He speaks only two words of English, "Joe" and "cigarette."

Maintenance of the stranger by the county has made heavy inroads on its poor relief fund. The hospital has been forced to hire an extra stenographer to answer letters concerning him.

Discussions on his forehead and scars on his legs lead physicians to believe that he has been a coal miner in Pennsylvania, where the last few years' operations are peculiar to the industry.

Rat Attacks Ripe Old Age of Nineteen Years

Rochester, N. Y.—Like the babbling brook, Rough Neck, a cat, goes on and on. Rough Neck, fittingly named, is fifteen years old, and has endeared himself to Joseph Lashley, his master. Each night the cat is on hand to meet its master and each morning, if he alarms clock fails to function, it makes him by purring and clapping his forepaws.

Will Reach Destination

Rochester, N. Y.—A letter written in a local office and addressed "To the Editor of Boats on Canadice Lake" by N. E. Stone, now Reservoir, N. Y., was delivered the following day. To find the mail carrier the writer sent a man on the way to the Reservoir, Canadice and Honey Lake, with an arrow pointing to a spot labeled "Here it is."

Too Many Bachelors in Towns of Alaska

Seward, Alaska.—There are single men in one single town in various towns in Alaska, the 1929 census reveals. Some governmental offices opened during the last year have increased the bachelor population and the ratio is larger than in the statistics gathered two years ago.

Gov. George Parks has been interested recently in offers of young women from various large cities to come to Alaska to provide suitable homes might be available. Many of Alaska's single men who are permanently employed plan later on to send for a call for sweethearts within the state.

ARTICLE XXI MAKING TURKEYS PAY

Comparative scarcity at times of These Fowls When Most Wanted Shows Profitable Market: Problem Raising Birds Not as Difficult as Ordinarily Supposed.

Editor's Note—This is another of a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., St. Louis, Mo. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

"Can't they provide naught but this eternal turkey for our board, Good man? quoth dame Prudence when she saw a bit of a pet. 'Tis thinks this gloomy forest is full big beast to have in it all birds and beasts created since the Deluge!'"

Goodman Pennyfeather snatched up his Muscovy and retorted a bit acidly, "Beasts and birds are plenty in your forest and hostile Indians, too—white turkeys in plenty are at our very door. Nae-the-less I shall try again to appease thy impatience."

That might have happened in Pigrim days. Even right after the Civil War wild turkeys were so numerous in some parts of the country as to constitute an actual pest. They raided grain fields with such devastating effect that it was a problem to cope with them. Now quite the reverse is true.

Of course, no one is surprised to learn that the turkey is practically extinct. One would think however, that the periodical demand created by our great national feast days would cause poultry raisers everywhere to devote a considerable part of their time to turkey raising. I believe the reason that such is not the case is to be found in the oft repeated story that turkeys can only be raised successfully on great ranches and that, at best, they are so delicate and temperamental as to make them very hard to handle.

For those who have hesitated to take up turkey raising, or who have tried and failed, I want to make a number of recommendations. I will give a short digest of these recommendations and will be glad to answer further questions from any one writing me in care of this paper.

For breeding purposes use only thoroughbreds. Select the strongest and healthiest birds. Do not mate more than 10 to 15 hens with one male. Use incubators for best results. You never have to wait for an incubator to get broody and it will give most uniform results if properly regulated. Use no eggs over ten days old. Practically all the big commercial turkey raisers use artificial brooders. The most up-to-date ones can be closely regulated so that, barring accidents, results are fairly certain. It is always a gamble, however, to brood young poultry with such temperamental creatures as turkey hens.

A brooder house on skids is ideal as it can be moved about to fresh ground from time to time. Stake off four temporary runs, one on each side of the brooder, and rotate the poulters from one run to the other. Leave them about a week in each run. Between 200 and 300 poulters can be accommodated in a 12x14 brooder house. For heat, use a hard coal stove or any other heating arrangement that will maintain an even temperature of about 80 degrees.

When poulters are about 8 weeks old they may be transferred to rear lots for about an acre being set aside for each 150 to 200 poulters. These grounds should be where chickens have not been allowed to run and should be fenced so chickens cannot get in with the poulters. Feed nothing the first 24 to 36 hours; 36 to 48 hours, short grass on the sod, tender greens and butter-milk or sour skim-milk; 48 to 60 milk or sour skim-milk; 60 to 75 mixed with equal quantity of dry stale (never mouldy) bread crumbs. Feed this every two hours, removing it in 20 minutes. On the third day feed as on the day following with addition of mash composed of finely ground cornmeal, wheat bran, wheat middlings and beef scraps in equal parts by weight.

or a baby chick starter commercial mash may be fed instead. Feed the green in hoppers with plenty of fresh stuff always available. Continue this mash feed with plenty of greens at all times. From day to day feed a little scratch grains, gradually increase the quantity. Scratch grains should be given sparingly, however, as young turkeys do not require a great deal of such feed. See that a good supply of fresh clean water is always near by. Never allow poulters to drink from stagnant pools.

When poulters are about 8 weeks old, shift to rearing grounds if weather permits, and put on following ration: Equal parts of corn meal, ground oats, wheat middlings, wheat bran and beef scraps fed in hoppers. Give birds plenty of skim-milk to drink. Keep shell and grit before them at all times and never stint on fresh green stuff of suitable kinds. My experiments prove that baby turkeys can be successfully raised on foods that are successfully fed to baby chicks. If your present method of raising your baby chicks is successful, use the same method with your baby turkeys, which should be successful also.

Finally, enlarge your runs from time to time and keep moving flock if possible to provide fresh feeding grounds.

Texas has 900 million acres of virgin pine and about the same amount of standing hardwood timber with 3 1/2 million acres of second growth pine and 2 1/2 million acres of second-growth hardwood.

Texas made the greatest population gain in its history in the 1920-30 decade, percentage increase being 24.1 per cent.

Texas has the largest helium gas plant in the world, the largest child amale manufacturer and canning plant, the largest ice packing plant, the largest single oil refinery and the largest cotton smelter—to give only a few of the "largests."

Texas Utilities Co. is constructing a new power plant near Abernathy, 20 miles north of Lubbock, to serve a large area in that section of Texas. The plant is designed for an ultimate capacity of 45,000 kilowatts, making it one of the largest in the state.

San Benito is to dedicate its new air port with a formal celebration November 11. A high-powered beacon already has been put in operation. Sweetwater will have its dam across Bitter Creek to supply the city with water, completed about December 1, solving the city's water problem for many years to come. Due to the late frosts and ravages of insects the Texas Pecan crop this year will be only about 14,000,000 pounds.

The new $300,000 stadium at Fair Park, Dallas, was opened by Texas Argies and Tulane. It has a seating capacity of nearly 50,000 and was completely filled at its first night game between Dallas High Schools teams. Taylor is to have a museum.

MRS J. W. CAMPBELL, Reporter

MARY LOUISE SINGLETON SIX YEARS OLD

Little Miss Mary Louise Singleton celebrated her sixth birthday with a party Monday afternoon, entertaining thirty of her friends at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Singleton.

After admiring the many dainty gifts, the small guests played all kinds of games, spending a pleasant afternoon. Balloons were given as favors. At a late hour, dainty refreshments of cake and hot chocolate were served to:

BIRTHDAY DINNER FOR MR. SCHOOLER SUNDAY

Mr. Joe Schooler was the guest of honor at a lovely dinner Sunday at the home of his mother, Mrs. R. H. Schooler, when his daughter, Miss Rebekah, prepared a birthday celebration for him.

The charming old home was profusely decorated with autumn flowers and the dining table especially was a thing of beauty. The ladies of the family spent a very busy week making their preparations for the occasion and trying to keep the whole affair a secret from the honoree, but the result of their work was well worth the effort.

Miss Rebekah, assisted by her mother and others, planned and served an elaborate three course dinner, beginning with tomato soup, continuing through baked chicken, dressing, gilet gravey, fluffy potatoes buttered carrots, candied sweet potatoes, peas with pimento cranberry sauce, moulded fish salad, and hot rolls, and ending with apricot whip topped with whipped cream, and angel food cake.

In addition to the wonderful dinner, Mr. Schooler received a number of gifts.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Nick Schooler, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Gibbs and children, Mr. Stewart Schooler, Mrs. Sue Wilkerson, Mrs. R. W. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gooch, Billy and Alice Joy Schooler, Vivian Pearce, the honoree, Mr. Joe Schooler, and the hostesses.

GHOSTS AND GOBLINS SET PLACE FOR GAY HALLOWEEN PARTIES

The Halloween season was observed in O'Donnell with all the usual elaborations of the original theme. Ghosts, goblins, witches, and jack-o-lanterns overran the town Friday night, with a number of parties in full swing.

Thursday Club

One of the most elaborate and enjoyable events of the season was the party for members of the Thursday Club, Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ritzenthaler. Mrs. E. L. Sorrels was joint hostess with Mrs. Ritzenthaler.

Ghostly footprints led from the end of the walk to the porch where the unearthly visitor waited to greet the guests, his jack-o-lantern head illuminating the entrance. Safely inside the door, the guests were greeted by the sight of vases, bowls, and baskets of autumn flowers, ranging in color and variety from delicate rosebuds to immense shaggy-headed chrysanthemums.

Tallies further carried out the Halloween motif as the guests were directed to their places at game tables. Before beginning the games they were directed by the hostesses to perform an amusing stunt. Each table was given a quarter of an apple, which one member was to peel, another core, another to cut in halves and the last to eat. The table which finished and whistled Yankee Doodle first was declared winner, and awarded balloons and noise makers.

With all traces of formality broken, games of forty-two were played with great enjoyment. As a further break in the usual routine of parties, the hostesses announced that a new club was to be organized, the Black Cats' Society, and Roy Gibson was elected Chief Howler. In his official capacity he directed the last of the contests, a cream-lapping contest between three of the men; Naymon Everett won over Marshall Whitsett and J. W. Campbell and was given a prize. The Chief Howler announced that all the Black Cats who desired refreshments would indicate the desire by meowing, and a chorus of howls was the unanimous answer.

Refreshments were as clever as the rest of the party. Waldorf salad topped with whipped cream was arranged under small tripods, the red apple giving the appearance of fire and the cream that of smoke, while the witch stood by to watch her brew. Sandwiches and hot punch were served as accompaniments.

Those present for the occasion were Messrs and Mmes. Glen Allen J. P. Bowlin, Jim Campbell, John Earles, Naymon Everett, Roy Gibson, M. B. Hood, A. H. Koeninger, B. O. Stark, Hal Singleton Jr., Marshall Whitsett.

Mmes Rayburn, Wilks and Hubbard Entertain

Another social event when the Halloween theme was the clever party Friday evening when Mmes. C. A. Rayburn, Cecil Hubbard, and Roy Wilks were joint hostesses to a number of friends at the home of the latter.

The shade on the front door was rolled high, presenting to the view of the coming guests a ghostly figure waiting to greet them. Several of the more timid ladies positively refused to accept the extended hand and those who were bold enough to do so could not repress a few squeals and quails.

When most of the guests had arrived Mrs. Wilks announced that a circus was in the next room, feared to the circus, asked what animal he or she cared to see, and then faced to the circus, asked what animal he or she cared to see, and then faced with the desired object. Mr. Hubbard won all the prizes by asking to see a humming-bird.

Various other stunts and contests, were enjoyed before dainty hand-painted tallies in Halloween colors were given to the players. Eight tables of forty-two were in play for several hours.

At a late hour, delicious refreshments of pumpkin pie and coffee were served to Messrs and Mmes. M. B. Hood, Naymon Everett, B. M. Haynes, Guy McGill, Bill Jones, E. O. Stark, Roy Gibson, Paul Welch, Irvin Street, C. P. Collins, J. W. Campbell, L. R. Smith; Mmes. Grady Gantt, G. D. Hicks, E. D. Holman, and Geoffrey Holman.

Tell the merchants you saw their ads in the Index.

T. E. L. CLASS HAS SOCIAL MEETING FRIDAY

Mmes. C. R. Brock and Roy Wilkes were co-hostesses Friday afternoon to members of the T. E. L. Class of the Baptist church when they entertained with a halloween party at the home of the latter.

Halloween decorations were used throughout the reception rooms. Mrs. W. E. Vermillion taught a splendid lesson from "Child Life", after which the present entered in a business meeting. It was decided to hold a rummage sale Saturday November 8.

Delicious refreshments of pumpkin pie and hot chocolate were served to Mmes. Anderson, Earles, Lanart Rayburn, Mansell, Rueling, Hinkle Fortner, Musick, Vermillion, Gantt, and Street.

Mrs. Boss Johnson was the much surprised guest of honor at a party last Friday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Moore.

In league with the other conspirators, Mr. Johnson refused to join in Halloween merrymaking unless he came late in the evening. When Mr. and Mrs. Chas. McConal drove by and asked them to "come and go out to Moore's with us." Mr. Johnson confessed great reluctance, but at last consented to go. When they arrived at the hospitable home of the Moore's, Mrs. Johnson found a party in her honor in full swing.

Many clever gifts were presented to her, and the remainder of the evening was spent in games appropriate to the season.

At a late hour chocolate topped with whipped cream was served with angel food cake to Messrs. and Mmes. Boss Johnson, Chas. McConal, Alvin McLaurin, and Harvey Line.

VEDA SHUMAKE ENTERTAINS

Elaborate decorations in Halloween colors and motifs and unusually clever games were features of the party last Friday evening at which Miss Veda Shumake was hostess to a number of friends at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Shumake.

The guests came in costume and masked, which added to the fun. After being greeted by the ghostly reception committee, they followed a string through devious windings until it led them through the back door and through the house into the reception rooms, which were decorated with every conceivable Halloween emblem.

Games and stunts of all kind were played outdoors for sometime, and when the guests were summoned to the house they found a fortune teller awaiting them. The game ended with a contest. The winning couple received directions which led them to a bone in the yard, where they found still other directions which led them to the pirates' treasure chests, one for the girl and one for the boy. Miss Faye Tomlinson and Lawrence Tredway were the winning couple.

Dainty refreshments of home-made candies in Halloween colors, doughnuts, and hot chocolate were served to Merl Miles, Lorene Beach, Kitty May Garner, Modene McLaurin, Faye Tomlinson, Jewel Bean, Eugene Turner, Lawrence Tredway, Wayne Clayton, Earl Howard, Preston Davis, Harold Gibson, Earl Wayne Guye, Raymond James, Kirby and Thornton Musick.

CLASS PARTY AT HOME OF JIM ELLEN WELLS

The Seventh Grade enjoyed a lively Halloween party Friday evening at the home of Jim Ellen Wells. Each guest came masked and in costume, ready for fun. All kinds of appropriate games were played, and at a late hour refreshments of lemonade and cookies were served to Geneva Bean, Mary Hamilton, Maria Greenwood, Mary Lee Turner, Doris McConal, Dorothy Walls, Sue Melroy, J. T. Middleton, Nook Frost, Eugene Debenport, J. D. Hunt, Odwine Hasley, Glynn Payne, A. C. Hamilton, and Jim Ellen Wells.

MARJORIE MUSICK HAS PARTY

Little Miss Marjorie Musick entertained a number of friends with a Halloween party Friday evening. Guests came masked and in costume.

All kinds of appropriate games were played, and at a late hour dainty refreshments of sandwiches as plate favors were served to J. Verna Street, Billie B. McConal, Jeanette Bullard, Norma Ruth and Margaret Vermillion, Willie Joe Hubbard, A. C. Lambert, Weldon Carroll, Jack Nelson, Jack Melroy, Mack C. Bradley, Lometa Robinson, and Gwendolyn Hodges.

SILVER STABILIZATION

IMPORTANT
Senator Borah of Idaho says that the time is ripe to put through a silver and gold ratio acceptable to the leading nations of the world. He points out that there is a worldwide interest in silver as a result of the decrease in the supply of gold.

Senator Borah said, "A few days ago the Manchester Board of Trade addressed a petition to Premier MacDonald of Great Britain, calling attention to the fact that the volume of world business was increasing and the gold supply decreasing, and arguing that this would result in a fall of prices and an ever-increasing depression.

"If an agreement could be had it would lead at once to a full use of silver in India, China and other countries. Fully one-half of the human family wants to use silver and on any sound international agreement they would do so."

There has been great depression in silver mining since the World War. Any practical movement that would tend to stabilize the value of this precious metal, would be of great advantage to the United States whose Western mines are large producers of silver. Mining is a basic industry on which the prosperity of many states depends and it is the producer of new wealth strengthens the credit of this nation.

A GREAT ROAD CONFERENCE

The problems surrounding road building throughout the world were aired and discussed at the recent Sixth Annual International Congress in Washington, D. C. One thousand representatives from 41 nations attended.

Among the most important reports read to the congress were those dealing with the use of asphalt, tar and bitumen. In presenting conclusions regarding the use of these, it was declared that "the rapid increase in the adoption of surface treatments to produce thin mat surfaces, upon gravel, stone, and slag roads for light and medium traffic is probably the outstanding recent development."

This should be of great interest to the many states which are seeking a way out of the rural road problem. Agriculture has reached a point where year-round farm-to-market roads are essential to further progress, both social and economical. Five million of the 6,250,000 American farmers are now cut off from their markets during a part of each year by impassable roads.

Good surfaces of asphalt character can be laid over many existing roads at a low original cost, and maintenance costs are like small. Good roads are an investment that pay returns to the taxpayers in more prosperous farm conditions, in increased tourist travel and stimulated trade in small towns and villages.

WHERE WERE WE, NOW?

The audience held their breath as Jack Braveboy, the hero, killed the last of the Indians.

He staggered about; he almost fainted with loss of blood. Then he gazed about him. Suddenly his voice rang out with hope.

"See!" he cried, "the dawn breaks bright on yonder toponost heights!" The stage remained in darkness.

U. S. Population Center

Moves 25 Miles West
Washington.—The center of population of the United States has moved westward 25 to 30 miles in the last decade, census bureau officials estimate.

Although it will be several months before census statisticians determine the exact point representing the center of population, it is likely to be close to Ellettsville, Sullivan county, Indiana, a town of about 1,500 population, 20 miles from the western boundary of the state.

In 1920 the center of population was found to be 19 miles west of Whitehall, Clay township, Owen county, Indiana. In 1910 it was in Bloomington, Ind.

"We spend a lot of time dodging '15' for the impudiculous ones," says one employee. "We give them anything they want, if we have it."

WATERTOWN READY FOR BANK ROBBERS

Machine Gun Concealed at Strategic Point.

Watertown, S. D.—Bank robbers recently active in states of the North-west who attempt to raid any of the three banks of Watertown will have to come to town in a war tank, for they will have to face machine gun and rifle fire. Through efforts of bank officers the police department has been provided with a machine gun and two extra magazines of cartridges for direct protection of the banks. A second machine gun will be kept at police headquarters for emergency purposes.

The machine gun used for the direct protection of the banks has been mounted at a concealed point where it commands the intersection on which the street corners housing the banks. In the event of an attempted bank robbery the bandits would at once be exposed to the fire of this machine gun, which in an instant could sweep clean the street corners housing the banks.

In addition to this machine gun protection, eight citizens who are expert marksmen and possess high powered rifles have formed an organization and will cooperate with the police, and the sheriff and his deputies in protecting the banks.

Thus at the slightest alarm, should bank robbers appear at any of the banks, they would instantly be under a hail of machine gun and rifle bullets from which no living thing could emerge. "We are ready," said Chief of Police Olson, "to make it hot for any bandits who pick a Watertown bank to rob."

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE THIRTY SUN

"Do you have bad storms, or do you think you have had storms on your Earth?" the Sun asked Harry abruptly.

"Oh, I won't let that happen. Dear me, how your Earth people like to study me too. They have a grand instrument now called the spectroscope which scatters its blinding glare so they can find out a lot about me and they have something called the photosphere, too, which has shown them that I haven't a solid body. I knew it all along but they seemed glad to find it out."

Harry seemed to feel drowsy again, and the Sun, noticing this, spoke in a louder voice. "You get a scattering of the colors I send because of your atmosphere—it scatters them. Otherwise you'd probably get some white and blue lights from me. The white light you get from me is made up of rays of two or three colors which together give the feeling of white, and of course you get some of my golden light, too. But your atmosphere has a happy way of dividing up light waves."

"Dear me, dear me. I have all sorts of things that you have," the Sun boasted. "Oxygen, zinc, carbon, iron, nickel and others."

Harry was amused. He had expected to hear of other things with which he might be more familiar.

"I'm not only a worker," the Sun went on, "but I keep other workers too. That's quite an art you know—to get others to work as well."

"I never had it," Harry said, "and I've often wished I had."

"I have it," the Sun smiled. "I make the wind blow, for example."

"You do?" Harry was amazed. "I never knew how the wind blew or why it blew or where it came from in the first place."

"I'll tell you then. Oh, this is fun—to tell all this—to give a piece of news a person hasn't heard before."

The Sun changed his position slightly and Harry stretched on his feet. He wasn't feeling sleepy now.

"I make rivers go and I make the sea have waves," the Sun went on. "Honestly? You're not bragging?"

"Honestly. When you think your windmills are being helped I'm really attending to them too."

"When my rays warm up the air the warm air rises. Then as it rises, other and cooler air comes in to take its place and then you have wind—all due to me."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

AN HONEST DOUBTER

International Sunday School Lesson for November 9, 1930

GOLDEN TEXT:—"Thomas answered and said unto him, My Lord and My God." John 20:28.

(Lesson Text: John 11:14-16; 14:5-8; 20:24-29; 21:1-2.)

"A question mark is simply evidence that a man is beginning to think" is the remark of a writer which very appropriately applies to our lesson today.

In this age we are confronted with many criticisms and doubts. They are openly expressed and intelligently argued. They challenge faith oftentimes and become obstacles for many.

There are many believers today who treat a doubter or questioner as a sinner beyond redemption. This attitude is wrong. We are afraid it is produced by lack of assurance on the part of the professing Christian and a meager experience in practice. For surely, no confident Christian should be angry with an honest questioner, instead he should be able to state the reasons for his faith and endeavor point the way to the truth for the other.

We have no record of Jesus becoming angry with one who sincerely questioned him. He denounced those who were religiously hypocrites, pretending to believe what they did not practice. With the sinner or doubter Jesus was always patient, realizing that here was a soul to be won. Religion today does not require a belief which cannot be justified, although sometimes those speaking for religion put the emphasis on certain items in creeds and doctrines which have little to do with membership in the kingdom of God.

After John the Baptist was lodged in prison he wondered if Jesus was the great one he had expected and testified concerning. He sent messengers to Jesus with the question. The reply was to tell John the things that were being done, how the blind were receiving their sight, how the dead were being raised to life, and how the poor were having the gospel preached to them. This treatment of John's question shows no anger towards him. So, today, the Christian life is the highest answer to critics.

One member of the twelve apostles has come down to us associated with doubt. This was Thomas. The only information we have about him is contained in John's gospel, all references being given in the lesson text above. Thomas is only mentioned in the list of the twelve in the other gospels. Some think he was the twin brother of Matthew because their names are linked together, but this may have been only because they were companions on missionary journeys. Thomas is also mentioned in the Acts as one of the apostles. Tradition adds to our knowledge the story that he labored in Persia and, possibly, India, and died in one of these places.

Two months before Jesus was crucified he was east of the Jordan when news came to him of the illness of Lazarus. Just before this time at the feast of dedication the crowd in Jerusalem had sought to kill him for what it considered blasphemy. Jesus had gone away and now proposed to return to Bethany, which he did, and where he brought Lazarus back to life. We have a picture of Thomas here, realizing the danger, and yet determined to accompany Jesus even though he believed it meant death for them all.

Another picture of Thomas is given us during the last supper. Jesus had been speaking about the place in Heaven which he would prepare for his disciples and added, "whither I go, ye know the way." Thomas, honest and not afraid to confess ignorance, immediately inquired about the way and Christ answered that he was the way, the truth, and the life. It is not necessary to know all of God's plans but if we follow the example of Jesus in life we will reach the proper goal. Thomas did not understand clearly and he inquired. Mere acceptance without understanding would have been superficial whereas Thomas was not of that type.

The event which gave Thomas the name of "doubter" occurred after the crucifixion and resurrection. Jesus had appeared to ten disciples and when these related the experience to Thomas he stated positively he would not believe except he saw his body and witnessed the print of the nails and other wounds. The following Saturday Jesus appeared again while Thomas was present, and as in the occasion of John the Baptist, answered the doubt in the mind of his apostle without any evidence of anger. Jesus demands no unfounded faith. Seeing Jesus, Thomas became convinced and uttered the words in our golden text. The final glimpse of Thomas is given by John when he records another manifestation of Jesus to a group of his disciples and it is interesting to notice that Thomas is named immediately after Simon Peter, the recognized leader of the group. So, from doubt, Thomas had grown into a powerful faith and had become a leader.

The Handsome Man

By Margaret Turnbull

Illustrations by Irwin Myers
W. N. U. SERVICE

"Be quiet," the doctor told him peremptorily. He called downstairs in a clear incisive voice. "Bring that man up here."

Jack appeared, disheveled and befuddled, escorted by two village constables and the medical aid.

"Yeller says he's a friend of yours," the elder constable said to Roberta. "Caught him makin' off in a car 'at didn't belong to him."

"Sure thing," said the younger constable, who conversed without disturbing a wad of tobacco that unduly distended his long jaw.

"Know him?" Judge Arlett asked of the man on the bed but his glance included Roberta. Though very stout and resembling more than anything else one of the funny "tumble" toys invented for children, the Judge managed to give a pleasing impression and was a thoroughly friendly soul.

"Yes," said Sir George quickly, "only too well."

"H'mm," Judge Arlett took in Jack, the constables, Sir George and again Roberta. "Seems his tale is that he was helping himself because the lady told him to get a car, somehow, anyhow, to take you to the hospital."

Sir George looked from Roberta to Jack. His mind cleared suddenly. He had the girl to look after. This fellow might have, probably had, some black-mauling scheme up his sleeve. "Gentlemen," he said slowly, "would you mind guarding the door, while I ask your prisoner a question or two? If he doesn't answer them satisfactorily I'll hand him back to you with a much more serious charge to answer than trying to steal a car."

The two constables digested the request and the English accent before they glanced at Judge Arlett. "Seems reasonable," he remarked.

The two officers of the law, the doctor and the Judge slowly left the room. Roberta stood silently between Jack and the window.

"Wait!" Sir George looked up at Jack from the pillow. He beckoned with a bandaged hand and winced with the pain the movement caused him. "Come over to the foot of the bed where I can see you."

Jack, with a look at Roberta, did so. "Now, listen to me, for I can't be bothered repeating myself. I know who you are and what you are. It depends on how you conduct yourself in this interview, how much I tell Miss MacBeth—and the others."

Jack said something under his breath which finally became articulate as "Go as far as you like."

"I will. First, hand over the marriage license."

"What?" Both Roberta and Jack were startled. Jack looked at the girl with an angry scowl.

"I mean what I say? I'm not bluffing. I know Jack acquired one last week."

Roberta gasped. "What do you think you can do with it?" Jack sneered.

"Destroy it. Hand it over, because it isn't going to be used. Is it Roberta?"

"No," said Roberta shamefacedly. "Come, be quick," Sir George demanded. He felt rather rocky.

Roberta took a step nearer him. She looked down on the white bandaged face. "You ought not to talk so much."

he had misjudged Roberta! "Come," he said to Jack. "I haven't any time to waste."

"Who told you?" "She did."

"Oh, no! No!" Roberta's voice rang out violently. "You don't believe him, do you?"

"If you say you didn't," Sir George told her promptly, "though I own it did look like that to me at first."

"I never told him!" Jack laughed. "You dare to say—I did!"

Jack nodded. "Everything I know I got it from you, consciously or unconsciously. You told me several things that put me on the track and it needed only a little questioning about roads and cars and banks to get all I wanted out of you."

Roberta flung her forearm across her eyes and leaned against the wall. She could not face Sir George. She had been this man's tool. She had been a traitor in her own father's house. She had been tricked by Jack into believing the things he said against Sir George.

He was saying quite distinctly, though you could tell from his tone how tired he was, "Call them in, Roberta."

Roberta opened the door. She came back and stood near the bed as the men with the exception of the doctor, who had gone on his rounds, filed in.

"You will please tell this man before these witnesses that you are through with him utterly and forever."

"I am through with you," Roberta said between her teeth, "and if I were a man I would kill you."

"It's—" Jack wretched, though his blood was dark behind his olive skin. "fortunate, you're not, and I'm not done with you. I tell you before these witnesses that I have letters of yours, which you cannot deny. I have also a marriage license and your promise to marry me. Your coming all this distance to do it will make good reading in the newspapers."

Sir George turned to Arlett. "Shoot it out double quick, whatever it is you want," said Arlett, stolidly. "I've got a lot of things to do."

"Roberta, tell Judge Arlett that you are not going to marry our friend Jack."

"Nothing will make me marry him." "Well, that's plain," Arlett's tone was friendly. "Guess you've got your walking papers, so you may not take them quietly and go."

Jack walked toward the bed. "I can make trouble and I will. What you going to do about it?"

"Prove you a liar," Sir George said, quietly. "Roberta, get the paper in the right hand pocket of my coat, if it wasn't burned up."

"It's here," Roberta said meekly. She had a sudden vision—every time she looked at Jack—of what it would be like to go meekly back to the island and Green Bend, and a day or so later see her letters and promises embellishing the front page of the papers. Her father would suffer, and every one would know what a fool she had been.

She opened the coat pocket and took the folded paper out of it. She handed it to Sir George.

He feebly waved it toward Arlett. "Show it to him, Bobbie," he whispered, "and tell him two can play at that game and you were just spoofing this man. You never meant to do it. That is why I followed you."

She stared at him. "Did father send you?" Does he know?"

"No," Sir George whispered. "No one sent me. Do you think I'd let you down? Look at the paper."

"But why should you—" Roberta began and then suddenly conscious of the others, hurriedly unfolded the paper. She looked at it, gasped and turned to him. She opened her mouth to speak, but Sir George put his hand over it. "Give it to the Judge," he ordered.

"You're bluffing. This girl never intends to marry you."

Sir George laughed. It was a feeble laugh but it irritated Jack. "It's a bluff and you can't bluff me. I've got her letters and my story and I'll—"

He came up against Arlett and the two constables at the door. "You keep yourself to yourself!" Arlett said. "No pushing and shoving until this thing's straight. What do you want done with him, mister? I wouldn't argue with him no longer."

Sir George clung to Roberta's hand, but he refrained from looking at her. Try as Roberta would she could not free her hand.

"Roberta, my dear, Judge Arlett can marry us just as tightly and just as well as any person, and Jack and the constables will be our witnesses. Will you, Roberta?"

He asked it recklessly. Roberta would, of course, refuse, and demand to be taken home to her father, but at least it would silence Jack and make any attempt at blackmail impossible.

Roberta hesitated and as she did Jack laughed aloud. "You see!" he said to Arlett. "It's sheer bluff! The girl came with me to marry me and no one else. He can't save her face that way."

Sir George stared straight ahead of him, smiling, waiting.

"Judge Arlett," said Roberta, in a very low voice, "will you marry us now—and do anything you like with that—" She indicated Jack.

"Sure. We can fill him easy, after— (Ends In Next Week's Issue)

Only One Billion Shaw's American Builders Don't Neglect Cold Still a Queer World

Four banks are to combine in New York city, making a $100,000,000 concern that will have more branches than any other bank in America. It will not have more dollars, one billion being "small change" among institutions like the Chase, Equitable, National City and others.

All things, even staid finance, change. Once a great bank took pride in immobility, remaining on the same spot for a century or more. Now banks are in the chain store business, competing with drug stores, cigar stores and gas stations for the best corners.

To hold your place in this day, as Mr. Munsey said, it is necessary to keep moving.

Uncle Sam changes his views also. A few years ago he was chopping Standard Oil into little pieces because it threatened to become a billion-dollar concern, which was more than he could stand.

Now, American Telephone & Telegraph alone owns five billion dollars' worth of real estate, and has a billion-dollar franchise value, and Uncle Sam is calm. He has been in the billion-dollar business himself since the big war.

George Bernard Shaw revealed a list of the "eight builders of universe" at a dinner in honor of Professor Einstein. His list reads: Aristotle, Pythagoras, Copernicus, Ptolemy, Galileo, Kepler, Newton, Einstein.

It is a good list, although the future has still to pass on Einstein's right to a place in it.

Now might have crowded in Archimedes, who did so much for physics that for 1,000 years nothing of importance was added to his work. And he might well have included Descartes, one of the six greatest astronomers.

Dr. L. Steiglitz of New York, a brilliant physician and scientist, rebuked an elderly patient for neglecting a cold. The rebuke should be useful to all men past fifty. "Nothing could be more dangerous," said Doctor Steiglitz. "When you neglect a cold as fifty or over you deliberately endanger your life. A cold in itself may be easily cured with two or three days in bed. Neglected, it runs into pneumonia."

Mr. White, who died recently, was fifty-eight had a cold and went about for three days neglecting it, attending to business, and finally went to bed. Pneumonia developed and he died in twenty-four hours. He hadn't a chance. If he had gone to bed at the first signs of a cold, he would probably be alive and well now.

Men around sixty are full bodies, usually, but some of them do useful work, and are important to their families. They should heed Doctor Steiglitz' warning.

You are living in a world still primitive. Brazil reorganizes itself by violence, just as this country did 150 years ago, and the Brazilian mob in Paulo tears down the Chamberlain prison, as the mob of the French revolution tore down the Bastille.

In the Arctic German scientists, traveling peacefully on their dog sleds, were suddenly abandoned by their Greenland guides, who informed the Germans that there were demons on the ice. They knew it was the demons' chance in the weather. The Germans tried to persuade the Greenlanders that demons live in a hot country and couldn't stand the ice, but the Greenlanders know better. Their bell has frozen, not hot.

Mussolini has definite ideas about supplying employment and giving a good education to the nation.

In honor of the eighth anniversary of his march on Rome with the Fascist army, two thousand different public works are being announced, representing a cost of $100,000,000.

Those who scoff at church and Sunday school should consider the words of District Attorney Amel, of New York, who has had a lot of experience with racketeers and gangsters. He says: "The records show that, when questioned these gangsters state that they never attended church or Sunday school. I am not speaking of any particular church, but I do wish to state emphatically that the lack of church and Sunday school attendance is the direct cause of many of our young men being found in the criminal classes. In the church and Sunday school the young man will meet the right-thinking people and will be of great influence for good in later life. Do not take my words for it. Ask any rabbi, priest or minister, or any successful business man of today and see what he has to say. Do not get the opinion that only molly-coddles attend church and Sunday school."

CO-OP ACTIVITIES DEMONSTRATE VALUE OF QUALITY COTTON

Local Representative Texas Cotton Cooperative Association Believes Turning Point Reached

"Bread and butter" cotton with a dollars and cents value is now on the minds and in the future cotton production programs of Texas farmers and business men, according to W. H. Clark, local representative of the Texas Cotton Cooperative Association. The turning point from inferior cotton to quality cotton has been reached, he said, and "from here on out we may look for better grade and staple cotton from Texas farmers."

Although this most important factor in profitable cotton production has been long agitated, he said, "it took a long and costly demonstration of dollars and cents value to quality production the individual grower through the activities of the cotton cooperative marketing movement, to make it effective."

"This season, through the association's activities of locating Government licensed classifiers in all sections of the State and approving of cotton drafts for varying bases on the actual quality of cotton shipped, has brought the actual facts so closely home to the individual grower that he cannot ignore them longer," Clark said. "In grade and staple lengths quality cotton brings many dollars more per bale than inferior cotton, he stated, and it is this "bread and butter" or dollars and cents cotton that growers must produce if they can hope for any profit from cotton farming operations."

Mr. Clark stated that this single outstanding demonstration of the many benefits of cooperative marketing would mean millions of dollars annually to Texas growers and Texas business if generally accepted, which he said "now seems as a very likely possibility and probability."

FEED THE HUNGRY There appears to be considerable merit in the suggestion by William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, that some of the sixty million bushels of wheat now held by the Farm Board be used to feed the poor this winter.

This wheat was bought by the Farm Board and is being held in the hope that it may be sold at some future time at a higher price. Mr. McAdoo does not believe the price will be higher for a good while, so long as it is known that this surplus is still in existence, even though it is temporarily held off the market.

PADEREWSKI'S RETURN

Ignace Jan Paderewski, the world's most famous pianist, who will be 70 years old on November 6, has returned to America for a series of 72 concerts which will end next May.

In spite of his age, it is said that the veteran musician plays with much of his former brilliancy.

Paderewski is, not only a great musician, but an eminent statesman and humanitarian as well. In 1900 he established a urize fund for American composers in appreciation of the cordial reception accorded him in his numerous concert tours in this country.

During the war he devoted the proceeds of his concerts to the relief of Polish war sufferers later organizing Polish volunteers in the United States for service with the allied armies in Europe.

When the new Polish republic was organized at the close of the war, Paderewski took a leading part in its establishment and became its first premier. Although artistic skill and humanitarianism are rarely combined in the same person, Paderewski performed patriotic services of a high order during the first years of the new nation, of which he is a native.

While he has made much money in his lifetime his generosity has been so lavish that he is now, as he himself admits, a relatively poor man. His present tour is being made in an effort to place himself in more comfortable circumstances.

The affectionate regard in which he has been held by the American people since his first appearance in New York in 1891 will doubtless insure him the warm welcome to which his fine character and extraordinary musicianship entitle him.

MANY RADIO SETS Every other family in the United States has a radio, according to an estimate made by the Department of Commerce. The total number of sets in use July the first was placed at 13,478,600, whereas the number of families is supposed to be about 28,500,000.

The largest number in New York, coming next with 1,470,000, Illinois, with a few more than a million, and Pennsylvania, with some less than a million, follow. The number of sets, of course, varies with the number of people, although not exactly in proportion.

In all probability, the number of families having radio sets is increasing, which shows the importance of the proper control over broadcasting stations. These are limited in number by the wave lengths available and the openings are being rapidly acquired by private individuals or companies. It would probably be in the interest of the people for the Federal Government and some of the state governments to maintain such broadcasting stations.

Plan to make an out-of-doors play suit for the younger children this winter, to wear lined overcoats, over their winter clothing. The Bureau of Home Economics will tell you how.

In getting the house ready for winter, keep in mind its warmth, safety, convenience, economy of operation, and appearance. Let your fall housecleaning contribute to these ends in each detail.
