Many Young Men Are Volunteering

TAHOKA, Feb. 12 (Special)—Numbers of young men have been volunteering for service in the various branches of the armed forces of the United States the past few weeks, and Lynn county has been furnishing her share of the volunteers.

In addition to those mentioned heretofore, at least eight Lynn county men have recently volunteered for training in the Air Corps Advanced Flying School near Lubbock. They are: Samuel Edwin Coleman, who resides in this county near the Lubbock county line, who enlisted in the Flying School on January 17; William Howard Smith of New Lynn, who enlisted on January 18; Henry Aten Ahrens, Ralph Henry Kahlich, and Raymond Pete Kolodziejczyk, all of Wilson, who enlisted on January 22; and Joseph Lemuel Scott of Wilson, who enlisted on January 28; William Ray DeBusk of O'Donnell, who enlisted on January 28; and William Chester Line of O'Donnell, who enlisted on February 4.

Victor Kopecky, Tahoka, Rt. 1, enlisted in the regular army and was sent to Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, on January 13.

Coleman Lee Mayhall and James Edward Anderson of Tahoka, Rt. 1, also enlisted in the regular army on January 23.

James Robert Holloway of Redwine enlisted in the Navy on January 26, and is at the Naval Training Station at Norfolk, Virginia.

Sherrill Taylor Cavens of New Lynn enlisted in the Marines on January 30 and was sent to Oklahoma City for training.

It is possible that there are a number of others who have recently volunteered for service.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Golightly were in Austin visiting this week.

Mrs. Bobbie Sloan and Miss Kathleen White left Sunday for California.

Urges Germination. Tests On Seeds

Farmers who are saving cotton planting seed from their last year's crop should have a germination test run before planting time, urges Don Turner, county agent. Reports from the State Seed Testing Laboratory at Lubbock show that South Plains seed are running from 6 to 40 per cent germination because of abnormal rainfall last year. The average is about 28 per cent. "This will mean that a farmer will have to plant at least three times as many seed," Turner states. This condition prevails over the entire state and only in a few isolated spots are the seed germinating normally.

Having a germination test made is important so that a farmer may know how much seed to plant per acre. Some perfectly normal-looking seed are failing to germinate. If hegeri and mlo seed are being saved 'this year they should be tested also. Tests are showing that these two crops are germinating low. Kaffir and wheatland mlo seeds as well as sudan and redtop cane are germinating nearer normal.

Farmers wanting seed tested should send a pound sample with your name and address to the State Seed Testing Laboratory, Texas Tech, Lubbock. The seed will be tested and a report mailed to the farmer. No charges are made for making the test. "Be sure to send a representative sample," Turner warns. In cottonseed that have been stored and might have gone through a heat, take the sample somewhere near the middle of the bin. A sample taken from the top of the bin may not be representative.

Treating seed with an organic mercury dust before planting time to check seed decay and certain seed-borne diseases will improve the stand. Close culling is also recommended.

Agricultural Workers Hold Meeting

Agricultural workers of an eight-county area met in Tahoka at the county agricultural building all day Thursday for discussion of the Land Use Planning set up. In charge of the meeting were District Farm Agent K. J. Edwards and District Home Agent Kate Adele Hill, both of College Station, according to Don Turner, county agent.

The meeting opened at 9:30 a. m. and closed at 4 p. m.

Attending were county agents, home demonstration agents, Farm Security supervisors, Production Credit managers, Soil Conservation Service managers, and AAA representatives from Scurry, Borden, Dawson, Gaines, Yoakum, Terry, Garza, and Lynn counties.

Instructions Given Men Of Draft Age

TAHOKA, Feb. 12 (Special)—Estimates as to the number of men who will register for military training Monday, February 16 in Lynn county seem to vary greatly. It is certain, however, that there will be several hundred men.

The five chief registrars are: Truett Smith for Tahoka; B. M. Paymes, O'Donnell; S. A. Cummings, Wilson; Acie Bailey, New Home, E. W. Holloway, Draw.

Places of registration will be office of County Draft Board in Tahoka; B. M. Haymes' office in O'Donnell, Wilson School auditorium, New Home School auditorium, and Draw School auditorium.

In order to thoroughly acquaint all the chief registrars of their duties, Judge J. W. Elliott will conduct a school of instruction in the court house this (Friday) afternoon, beginning at 2:00 o'clock.

At the first registration held on October 16, 1940, there were about 2,500 registrants in this county. The number was cut down very materially by transfers, however, and the number assigned order numbers in this county was only 1,697, according to the secretary of the board. This included all male persons in the county ranging in age from 21 to 35 inclusive.

When the second registration was taken on July 1, 1941, which included all male persons who had become 21 years of age since the first registration, the number registering in this county amounted to only 62.

All persons between the ages of 20 and 45 who have not previously registered must do so on February 16th.

Many of those of the 20-21 age class, however, have already enlisted in some branch of the armed forces of the United States.

Practically all of those above this age up to and including the age of 36 have also registered previously. Just how many men there are in Lynn county subject to registration is problematical. Whether the number will be announced after registration day by the county board is yet uncertain.

In giving instructions concerning the registration, General J. Watt Page, state selective service director, has made a detailed statement, from which we quote as follows.

Registration of the individual should require a comparatively short time. The registrant will not be asked to fill out a questionnaire, but only to answer interrogations about his identity, his place of residence, his mailing address, his telephone, if any; his age in years and date of birth, place of birth, the name, address of the person who will always know his address, and his employer's name and address.

BOY SCOUTS DIRECT TRAFFIC—AND MAKE CITIZENS PAY FINES

Shrilling whistles and scurrying youngsters greeted autoists and pedestrians in O'Donnell Wednesday afternoon, and all were soon made aware that the Boy Scouts were directing traffic and collecting fines.

Especially collecting fines. Sums were assessed for varying small amounts, and those autoists having to fork over four-bits for a violation were glad O'Donnell had no traffic lights—and the ever present chance of running through a red light. The Boy Scouts would have loved a chance to tromp hard.

Mrs. Lois Watts of Odessa was a business visitor here Sunday.

Rabbi Garsek Talks To Rotary Feb. 24

Rabbi Isadore Garsek, of the Congregation Israel in Lubbock, and a former resident of Russia will be the speaker at the Rotary club here Tuesday noon, February 24, so the program committee has announced.

Not only is the full membership of the local club expected to be present, but several visitors are also expected to be in attendance. The securing of Garsek as speaker by the local club brings one of the most noted characters in this section, with a message that is up to the minute. Garsek, by a turn of fortune, was able to give the Rotary club an early dating due to an open date on his program of speaking dates. He is in such demand as a speaker by various clubs in West Texas that he is, dated weeks ahead.

Only a brief time will be taken up by other matters on February 24 in order to give the speaker all the time he needs.

Cicero Smith Takes Lead In Bowling

By taking three games from the Corner keglers, the Cicero Smith five went into the league bowling lead Monday night. Playing of set averages held down the scoring ability of the druggists.

The Whitsett Drug team barely managed to cop two from the O'Donnell Motor Parts Wednesday night and went into second place. The Parts team burned the boards in the first game and rolled one of the highest games recorded—having only one "flat" in the first 18 frames rolled, but their play fell off in the following encounters.

The standings should be further juggled next week when Whitsett meets Cicero Smith and the Motor Parts tackle a revamped Corner Drug team.

Cadet Jesse Bolch of Sheppard Field visited relatives and friends here this week.

New York Heartbeat:

It costs a lot to win a war, but it costs more to lose one. Traditionally, an American balks more at inconvenience than he does at sacrifice. But let's not fool ourselves. There is a difference between civilian discomfort and military sacrifice.

An empty sugar bowl is one thing, and an empty ammunition belt is another. An old second-hand car is a nuisance, but there is no such thing as a second-hand navy. Priorities are harsh, but remember that the marines ask only that they be the first to fight. Living quarters may be cramped, but American sailors are living in submarines.

Men who fly in high altitude bombers are giving more to their country than those who pay high income taxes.

Sallies in Our Alley: There was a night club fracas on Broadway one night, and a notorious character was pushed from the scene by a detective. "Whatcha shovin'?" he complained. The scene of the disturbance is best known for the gangsters it attracts. The detective looked over the audience and groaned: "This joint's got everything but an electric chair."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE HEALING MINISTRY OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—2:1-12. GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus . . . was moved with compassion toward them, and he healed their sick.—Matthew 14:14.

Man is more than a body. He is made up of body, soul, and spirit. In a physical world where he is so much in touch with physical nature, and the needs of his body are so much before him, he is prone to forget that there is within a spiritual nature which is his real self.

God is interested in both the physical and the spiritual side of man. He provides all that we need for our bodies, and above all, He meets the all-important spiritual hunger of man's inner being. We find the Lord Jesus in our lesson graciously touching both spirit and body of the palsied man in response to the faith of his friends.

I. Faith Brings a Double Need to Christ (vv. 1-4).

This faith-stimulating story faces us first with

1. An Impossible Situation. Incurably afflicted and helpless physically and far more deeply afflicted spiritually, this man had no one who could heal his body and restore his soul. Apart from the power of God in Jesus Christ his situation was hopeless, and thus he may well typify every one of us except for the grace of Christ.

Furthermore, his circumstances were such as to make it impossible for him to get to Jesus, who was there in his city. Even when his four friends came to his help and bore him to the house where Jesus was, they could not enter because of the crowds. So a journey begun in hope was evidently to close in despair. But wait, these men had

2. An Undeniable Faith. "Where there's a will there's a way." Where there is faith the obstacles may be surmounted. Having begun a good work they persevered in it.

Had these men been bound by convention or custom they would never have put their friend at Jesus' feet. They did try to make a proper entry through the door, but it was blocked. The way to Jesus is often closed, by some custom, a vain philosophy, or a religious ceremony. Let us, like these believing men, open the roof if necessary to bring our needs and our needy friends to Him.

Although mention is made only of the palsy of this man, it is probable that both he and they knew that his need was for a double cure, for he was yet in his sins.

They brought him to Jesus, where their

II. Faith Receives a Double Reward From Christ (vv. 5-12).

Immediately Jesus "saw their faith" (v. 5), just as He always does. God is on the lookout for faith and is quick to reward it. The twofold need here brought a double blessing.

1. Spiritual Cleansing. The man's physical affliction thus proved to be his greatest blessing, for it brought him to Jesus, who cleansed him of all unrighteousness. If he had not been palsied he might never have met the Lord. Suffering, then, may be a means of grace. That is more than a pious platitude, for it has been proved repeatedly in the existence of men and women.

Certain scribes "sitting there" (they were not doing a thing to help) began to reason in their hearts that Jesus was blaspheming because only God can forgive sin. Their theology was faultless and their reasoning was logical, but the premise of their argument was wrong. Only God can forgive sin, but Jesus is God, something which they in their wisdom did not realize or accept.

We (especially young people in school) should be careful that the fluent smoothness of some unbelieving philosopher's logic does not lead us astray, and away from God's truth.

Note also the solemnizing thought that Jesus knew what they were thinking in their hearts. Let us remember that "all things are naked and opened unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do" (Heb. 4:13). What does He see when He looks into our hearts?

The challenge of these questioning scribes is met by

2. Physical Healing. Forgiving sins was harder than healing the body, but these enemies of Jesus lived so much in the realm of the physical that He had to give them a demonstration of His almighty power which they could see. It was a gracious thing for Him to do, and perhaps necessary in those early days of His life and ministry.

Today, with all the light of history upon the work of God, we need to beware that we do not sit in the seats of the scornful and demand a physical sign before we will believe. God is doing great things in the spiritual realm even in our day, in which Christian men and women may share by faith.

 Now that we are at war, it is nothing less than our patriotic duty to put our shoulders to the wheel

Miss Maurine McNatt, home demonstration agent, who offers this pointed advice doesn't stop there, but tells you how to make one. Select a protected spot 20 to 40 feet long at the south side of a building, then spread one half to three quarters of a wagon-load of well rotted barnyard fertilizer over it. Ten to 25 pounds of 6-12-6 commercial fertilizer also will do. Spade it into the ground about ten inches. If the soil is fairly tight a row of sub-irrigation tiles made of tin cans or concrete laid six or eight inches below ground down the center will provide satisfactory watering.

The plot should be surrounded by a frame 12 inches high of new or scrap 1x12 lumber. A cover of wall canvas with a broad hem should be tacked at the back of the frame with provisions for fastening it securely across the front and ends. On chilly nights a wagon sheet, cotton sacks, or blankets should be used for added protection. Then level up the soil and the garden is ready.

Under ordinary conditions three to five plantings can be made yearly.
 Rows should be eight to 16 inches apart, planted the narrow way.
 Vegetables most common to a frame garden may be classified as quick maturing, moderately quick and slow maturing. For planting it may be divided into three general divisions.

No. 1. Quick maturing, 30-60 days:
 Tender green mustard; black seeded Simpson lettuce; scarlet globe radishes; bermuda onions (from plants or sets); double curled parsley.

No. 2. Moderately quick maturing, 60-80 days: King of Denmark spinach; lucullus Swiss chard; dwarf horticultural beans; Alaska English peas.

No. 3. Slow maturing, 80-90 days:
 Crosby's Egyptian beets; Nantes carrots; Wong Bok Chinese cabbage; sweet Spanish (from seed) onions.

Where the frame garden is of sufficient size, onions, cabbage, tomato or pepper seed may be planted, and then when plants are of sufficient size, in January or February, may be transplanted to the open garden. "As fast as you harvest one row of plants, replant it," Miss Mc-Natt advises.

Poultry
 Lynn county egg producers soon will begin buying chicks for their 1942 fall and winter laying flocks, and these are some helpful suggestions.

Only quality chicks should be considered. Buy quality chicks—that is, those which come from breeders and hatcherymen who are working to provide stocks from high-producing and disease-free flocks. As a guide in buying chicks, one should follow a rule used by livestock men and get full information about the breeding and performance of the ancestry. Heavy laying ability, like heavy production of milk and butterfat, is an inherited characteristic.

 Large production is not found in inferior stock, whether in poultry or cows.

Texas has as good poultry as can be bought anywhere. Management, of course, is a big factor but Texas poultrymen can take care of chicks as well as poultrymen in any state. Quality is the key, and quality doesn't come from cheap chicks.
 It is wise to buy Texas chicks and to get them as near home as possible. Texas has breeders and hatch-erymen who are doing an excellent job of improved breeding and are carefully testing breeding flocks against pullorum disease.

Plan Home Landscaping
 The present is a suitable time to make a landscape plan which may be carried out during this year's planting season. It is generally considered safe to transplant shrubs and trees after the first frost and until the next growing season begins. The planning and planting of the home landscape is an activity in which the whole family can participate and enjoy.

To develop a landscape plan successfully some knowledge is necessary for making it, and thought and attention to it are required. Miss Mc-Natt suggests a preliminary visit by the family to some well landscaped homes to observe and use some of the desirable features such as convenient arrangement of walks and drives, placing of shade trees to keep out the sun, screening of the work area from public view, and outdoor living rooms or play areas.
 It is a good idea, too for the family to make a trip or two to a nursery to study shrubs and trees which might be used in the landscape.

Each family should know the names of at least five shade trees, five evergreen shrubs, five deciduous shrubs, and five fruit trees which they would like to use in their homestead beautification. More or fewer plants than these may be used, but it is desirable to at least know those mentioned. It will be helpful to read aloud and discuss in the family circle some bulletins on landscaping. These may be obtained from the offices of the county extension agents.

Mr. and Mrs. Newell Hughes and James Newell visited Mr. and Mrs.
 Raymond Busby in DeKalb this tertain February 24th.

SHE LOVED A SPY by SYLVIA TAYLOR W-N-U-Release

THE STORY SO FAR: Joan Leland, secretary to Arthur Mulford, San Francisco importer, is amazed and angry when he discharges her without notice or explanation. Her sister Sybil, with whom she shares an apartment, loses her position also and Joan accepts a secretarial position with handsome Karl Miller, night club proprietor. He pays her well because of the unusual hours. She is fascinated and accepts his love-making. Later she meets his manager, Paul Sherman and his partner, Eric Strom, who both express admiration for her. Paul warns her against Karl but refuses to give his reasons. Returning to the office unexpectedly, Joan overhears Karl and Eric in a mysterious conversation. Paul drives her home and they quarrel over Joan working for Karl. Later Karl invites her to inspect a freighter, whose captain he knows. Both Paul and Joan's sister, Sybil, warn her against Karl. Paul is found following her. Now continue with the story.

"Ah! Miss Leland! You are alone, I see. And looking very beautiful as always—"

CHAPTER VI

Sybil shrugged. "There are a lot of people I don't trust. For instance, why is Paul Sherman following you?"

"I intend to find out tonight. He has an appointment at the club at ten-thirty. I'll try to see him alone for a few minutes. I'm going to ask him to explain."

"Karl probably knows about it already. It may be his orders."

"That's ridiculous!" Joan flared. "How can you dislike Karl so much? After he got you your job and has been so kind to you?"

"You're just tired, honey!" Sybil said as she put comforting arms about Joan. "You don't get enough sleep. You need more sun and fresh air. Working in that shut-in office with no outside windows is enough to make anyone ill."

"Let me alone!" her sister wept. "You don't understand. No one understands how I feel."

Sybil sighed as she went back to the kitchen.

But before Joan left for the office she had kissed Sybil affectionately, saying, "I'm sorry, Sybil! I guess I am tired. One of the things that's making me nervous is having Paul follow me all the time. I can't stand it any longer, and I'm going to settle it tonight."

Later when Joan hurried from the apartment and walked to the trolley line through the dark night, she felt strangely exhilarated. It was a thrill even to go to work when her boss was Karl Miller.

"The whole world is different when you're in love," Joan thought, and she pitied the girls who were neglected by this great emotion.

At the Club Joan paused to look at the crowd. The low ceiling was flooded with a soft indirect lighting. It was a pleasant intimate room. The dance floor was small but adequate. It formed a circle in front of the band which, according to Karl, was "going over big." The Club Elite was definitely a success.

The bar at one side of the room was crowded. Joan, glancing casually at the well-dressed men and women, saw Paul Sherman. She glanced at her watch. It was a quarter of eight. She had fifteen minutes before she was due in Karl's office. Now was her chance.

"Hello," Paul said. "Is it possible that you want to see me?"

Joan sat down beside him. "I have been seeing you almost constantly for three weeks," she said significantly.

"That's a tricky hat," Paul said admiringly.

"Be serious, Paul. You know what I mean. Why have you been following me?"

"Must have been two other people. Want a drink?"

"No, thank you," Joan exploded. "There's no use trying to evade the issue. I saw you down at the boat that night."

His brown eyes were serious. "You didn't tell Karl?"

"No! I didn't."

"Why not?"

"I didn't want you to lose your job," she confessed. "I couldn't believe that you meant any harm."

"That's very sweet of you, Joan! I appreciate your confidence."

"Well? Aren't you going to explain? If you don't, I'm going to tell him."

Paul looked at his watch. "We haven't time to talk now. You have to be in the office by eight, don't you? I'll come in later and we'll talk then. Meanwhile, please don't say anything to Karl. Promise me, Joan!"

"I won't if you'll explain."

"You have all the instincts of a detective," Paul laughed.

"That's what Karl told me once," Joan informed him. "I'll see you later!"

Karl Miller was in his office. The moment Joan entered, he drew her into his arms. "That's an adorable hat," he said, kissing her.

"I knew you'd like it!" She pressed her cheek against his. Impossible to think about Paul Sherman, impossible to worry, or even care what happened in the rest of the world when she was in his arms.

"I'll be out of the office until ten," Karl told her. "Try to finish those letters."

"Paul wants to see you at ten-thirty," she reminded him.

had lived. He was not an inexperienced boy in his twenties. Paul must be twenty-six or seven but he seemed a boy compared to Karl, Karl who was so sophisticated—so completely sure of himself.

"Stop thinking about him!" Joan scolded herself and, fitting a sheet of paper into her typewriter, she began to work.

It was almost ten when the door opened without warning. Joan thought it was Paul but it was Eric Strom, Karl's partner, who stepped inside. Joan had not seen him since the night he dined with Karl and her.

"Ah! Miss Leland! You are alone, I see. And looking very beautiful as always." Eric's voice was soft but his eyes regarded her insolently.

"Karl will be back any minute," Joan said quickly.

"I don't think so. I left him only a few minutes ago, quite absorbed in a business matter. Mind if I have a drink?"

"You're Karl's partner. It's your office, too." She was trying to control her dislike of him.

"You are very generous," Eric Strom said, but he did not open the bar concealed in the wall. Instead he approached her desk.

"You'll have to excuse me," Joan said, suddenly afraid. "I'm very busy."

But with a quick step, Eric was beside her. Drawing her to her feet, he attempted to kiss her. "You beautiful little devil!" he murmured. Joan was terror-stricken. She tried to scream but no sound would come. She pulled away with all her strength but Eric Strom only laughed.

"Let me alone!" Joan cried as she felt Eric's arms about her.

She was not aware that the office door had opened until a hand seized Eric and whirled him around.

"Paul!"

Paul's face was grim. "You dirty rat!" He smashed his fist full in Eric's face with a blow that sent him spinning across the room.

Eric staggered to his feet but there was a smile on his evil face.

"You'll pay for this, Sherman! You seem to forget I have something to say about this business."

Joan leaned weakly against the desk, sobbing.

"Shut up and get out!" Paul ordered, advancing toward Eric again.

And at that moment Karl Miller appeared in the doorway. His voice cut like a whip through the tense atmosphere. "What's going on here?" he demanded.

No one seemed inclined to answer him but he read the story in their faces. "I want to talk to Joan—alone!" She had never heard him use this tone before. His voice was edged with steel. His eyes were hard. He seemed another Karl, a man she had never known.

As Paul turned to go, Joan ran to him. "Thanks, Paul!" she said, her voice trembling.

But Paul did not look at her. His voice was strained. "Don't mention it!"

When they were alone, Karl said, "It won't happen again, Joan. I'll see that Eric doesn't annoy you."

Desperately she tried to regain control of her shattered nerves but sobs shook her. Karl put his arms about her and his touch was magic.

"Don't cry, Liebschen! There's nothing to be afraid of now."

She clung to him, feeling strength in his assurance. "Oh, Karl, I love you!" The words tripped over each other in stammering sincerity.

Karl Miller, pressing his lips against her white forehead, smiled.

The days of November marched by with astonishing rapidity. Joan was not bothered by Eric Strom again and her fears vanished. Karl was more attentive than ever, and Joan, with the radiant assurance of a woman loved, checked off each day as more perfect than the last. Sometimes she doubted her efficiency as Karl's secretary. She typed letters scarcely knowing what she was writing. But if she was inefficient Karl did not seem to notice it.

One rainy night Joan said to Sybil, "I've never been so happy in my life."

"It's too good to be true," Sybil prophesied gloomily. "I still don't like Karl. The more I see of him the less I trust him. And another one I don't care for is that Mrs. Murdock who runs the beauty shop."

"Is that Karl's fault? He got you the job. That's enough, isn't it?"

Joan had come home for dinner and Karl had told her she need not be back at work until nine, an hour later than usual.

"I never heard of such crazy hours," Sybil objected. "Karl certainly isn't very businesslike about the club. I don't see how he makes anything."

Joan walked restlessly up and down the living room. "Karl makes plenty of money. He's a very clever man." She glanced at the clock. "I think I'll go back early. Karl might need me." Shortly before eight she left.

Happily she opened the door of Karl Miller's office but the smile on her face faded when she saw that Karl was not alone. Eric Strom was with him.

"I'm just leaving," Eric said, and without a word to Joan he walked past her and down the corridor.

Karl did not seem surprised that she had arrived early. He made no comment upon her appearance. He read her thoughts, when he said, "I didn't think you'd want to see Eric, so I told you to come later."

Instantly she was reassured. It was kind of him to spare her a meeting with Eric Strom.

"Joan," Karl continued, with his quick smile, "I hate to ask you to do this on such a bad night but I can't leave the office and I want this package delivered." He held out a small leather portfolio.

"I don't mind, Karl! Where does it go?"

"Do you remember the night I took you aboard the freighter?"

She nodded and he went on, "I want it delivered there. Take a taxi and go immediately."

Joan fastened her coat and slipped on her gloves. "To whom shall I give it?"

"They're expecting you. Someone will meet you. Give him the package and come right back. You'll find a taxi outside." He kissed her briefly.

When she arrived at the pier Joan asked the driver to wait, and clutching the portfolio tightly, ran into the warehouse. She walked rapidly through the darkness, through the opening which led to the ship. There was no one in sight as she ascended the slippery gangplank.

She stood uncertainly for a moment peering through the misty darkness before she heard a voice. "Wer da?" She drew back involuntarily. The guttural voice frightened her.

Instantly a man appeared out of the night and the muscles of his scarred face relaxed when he saw who it was. "Miss Leland?"

"Yes," Joan faltered. "Here is a package from Mr. Miller."

"Danke schoen!" He saluted her and disappeared into the shadows.

Joan returned through the warehouse to the street. She shivered as the wind swept the rain in great gusts. Thank goodness, her taxi was still there.

Quickly Joan ran to it, opened the door and climbed in.

"Good evening," Paul Sherman said.

He was sitting in the corner composedly smoking a cigarette. "I thought you might need me."

"So you're following me again!" She felt his arm nudge hers in warning as he glanced towards the taxi driver. "Don't talk now!" he said under his breath.

"Take me back to the club," Joan ordered.

But Paul said, "Drive straight ahead till I give you further directions. And step on it!"

Joan sat in furious silence as the driver obeyed Paul's orders. They climbed the slope of Nob Hill. Not until they stopped at a hotel and were settled at a small table in the grill did she turn angrily to Paul.

"Would you mind telling me what is the idea of this? I happen to be working for Karl, and he's expecting me back at the office."

The room was warm and gay and there was a hum of voices.

Rotary Sponsoring Speaker On War

(The Lynn County News)

Dr. No-Yong Park, now a resident of Kirksville, Mo., is the speaker, and he has a wide reputation for his knowledge of Asiatic life and affairs, as a public speaker, and for his witticisms. In fact, he has been called a second Mark Twain by the New York Times.

The address is expected to be of especial interest due to the fact that our people are vitally interested in the war in the Pacific.

Dr. No-Yong Park was born in Manchuria, received his Eastern education in China and in Japan, and his post-graduate education in Europe and the United States. Although he holds a doctor's degree, he can speak with the man on the street. He is author of several books on China and the Far East, including "Chinaman's Chance," and re-treat of the West".

The speaker will appear in Tahoka as result of negotiations carried on by Lamesa, Tahoka, and Seminole Rotary clubs during the past few weeks, who are sponsoring an Institute of International Understanding. Dr. No-Yong Park's address is the first of a series of prominent authorities on international relations being brought to this section by the three clubs. Two of the speakers will appear on Wednesday nights succeeding the meeting here at Lamesa, and another will appear at Seminole.

The lecture will be in the Tahoka High School auditorium and will be available to the public. Tickets may be secured from any Tahoka Rotarian.

Guard Sponsoring Benefit Dance

(The Lynn County News)

Tahoka's unit of the Home Defense Guard this week is seeking funds for uniforms and other necessary equipment. The Tahoka city council and the Lynn county commissioners court have promised financial aid to the unit, but additional funds will be necessary, officers state.

The Guard is raising further funds through the sale of tickets to a benefit dance which will be held next Thursday night, February 12 at 9:00 o'clock at Tippit Roller Rink. Over one hundred tickets had already been sold at $1.00 each Wednesday, W. V. McElroy reported. Those who buy tickets but do not expect to attend the dance are urged to turn these tickets back to ticket salemen for donation to Service men. Ross Edwards' orchestra will play for the dance.

The company, under Captain Don Turner and Lieutenants H. O. Hargett and E. R. Edwards, held its third drill period Monday night with 63 recruits present. Many others have signed applications for membership in the company, but those who are not reporting for drill must be dropped, Sgt. W. T. Bovell announces.

There is still room for more men, according to Capt. Turner, who urges that more young men who will possibly become eligible for duty in the regular army in the next few months or years take advantage of this opportunity to get some training before their induction. High school boys are especially urged to join the Guard. Older men are also welcome, there being a number in the company now who are in their fifties. Work with the company will afford valuable training and exercise to the individual as well as a service to the county, section, and nation, Capt. Turner points out.

Several men from Wilson enlisted last Monday night.

The local unit has applied for membership in the Texas Defense Guard, and Tom Garrard, who is handling the application, received a letter this week from Lieut. Col. Neill H. Banister of the Adjutant General's Department, stating that Tahoka's application had been placed in the "live file" for approval some time in the future.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

United Nations Rush Reinforcements To Far East Battle Fronts in Effort To Check Spreading of Jap Attacks; Nazis Again Take Offensive in Africa

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Somewhere in the Pacific ocean, this dramatic picture taken of a U. S. navy offensive patrol plane carrier being circled by a navy dive bomber as it begins its anti-submarine duties. Note in the picture that on both the side and underpart of the plane there have been deletions of certain parts and insignia which might give information to the enemy. Also on the top rigging of the carrier you will notice further deletions for the same reason.

LUZON: Epic Battle

Hailed as an epic of warfare that would live in all history, the defense of Bataan peninsula and of the fortresses holding the entrance to Manila bay had been diverting large Jap forces needed elsewhere than in the Philippines.

The adding to MacArthur's embattled and smoke-begrimed army of a battalion of bluejackets and marines was welcome news and showed that perhaps not all of the men of Cavite and Olongapo had been withdrawn, but that they had been given a post of honor with the defenders.

Up on the Mariveles mountains they were entrenched, and no matter what strength the Japs hurled against them they were holding firm. On one moonlit night a whole regiment of small boats moved down the coast, using the same tactics that had hurled the British back on Malaya.

The effort was to get in on MacArthur's flank and confuse the defenders, at the same time signalling for an offensive on the central front.

But the shore defenders and artillery opened up on the Jap invaders, left scores of them struggling in the water, and the few that made shore were quickly mopped up by the Filipinos.

There was apparently at least one Japanese warship which managed to run through the eight-mile strip of water between the fortresses at the entrance of Manila bay.

One of the United States' intrepid torpedo boat skippers, piloting his tiny craft at close to 80 miles an hour, swept down on her in the moonlight, and launched two torpedoes which struck the ship. She is believed to have been sunk.

The attack was carried out directly into the glare of the warship's searchlights, and under the full power of her guns, but so skillfully did its skipper maneuver that she was not struck, and escaped with all hands to tell the tale.

WAVELL: And Reinforcements

The statement by General Wavell that "great reinforcements" were to arrive, and calling on the Singapore defenders to "defend the city as Tobruk was defended" was more than a little significant.

Tobruk was the bastion that held out for months despite being surrounded on three sides by Axis forces anxious to wipe it out, and finally was relieved by the allied winter drive.

Wavell's statement to the Singapore army smacked of a situation which might see sufficient reinforcements sent to Malaya to do the same thing, not only to relieve the garrison, but send the Japanese on the run again.

Whether this reinforcement was going to be sent to Singapore itself, or whether a method was to be found of striking at the Japanese rear, which might be lightly held, was not revealed but either method, it was pointed out, might work.

No British commentators felt that the war in the South Pacific would be lost utterly if Singapore was to fall, but the ability to hold the East Indies would immeasurably be weakened if this was to happen, hence Wavell's strong appeal to the city's defenders to hold out at all costs.

GERMANS: Not Out Yet

Reading endless stories of Russian successes in battles on the east front, and the continuous hammering back of Rommel's forces in north Africa had brought many over-optimistic souls to feel that the war was over, and that all which remained was some sort of mopping up process.

The turning of the tide in north Africa, and the success of German counterattacks in the Crimea showed that with favorable weather conditions the Nazis were still very much to be reckoned with.

The Crimea was a much warmer battlefield than the 40 below zero northern sectors, where the Russians, undiscouraged by the cold, and more at home in such weather, were able to hurl the Nazis back constantly on a wide front.

But the minute the weather moderated in the Crimea, they found themselves more or less up against a stone wall.

On the British and American forces was falling the brunt of the Japanese blitz, and its successes on Malaya and in the Philippines showed that this was no minor war, but an effort against powerful antagonists.

Therefore events generally pointed to what Washington had assured the people was coming—a long and bloody war, not to be lightly won.

Though, generally speaking, the news was not as unfavorable as it might have been, there was much less to be cheering about than there was to be worrying about, and the seriousness of the situation was apparently keenly appreciated by all those in power, including the President, his cabinet and the congress.

RUBBER: Keeps Coming

Although tire rationing was apparently here to stay, the rubber situation was relieved somewhat when it was announced that shipments from the East Indies were continuing at almost a normal pace.

A glance at the map showed that considerable areas of the Dutch East Indies were still technically out of the active war zone, and the defeat of the Japanese armada in the Makassar straits halted a Jap threat which might have halted much of the rubber shipping summarily.

Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce and Federal Loan administrator, was author of the statement that rubber shipments continued to be received.

He said enough had come in materially to increase the United States' reserve supply. For instance, since the war started, on December 7, he asserted that 114,000 tons of raw rubber had been received, truly a considerable amount.

He said: "We are unloading some every day, and rubber is being shipped every day from the Dutch East Indies. We will continue to get it as long as we can keep the lanes open, and as long as they can load it."

"Some rubber is still coming out of Singapore."

This was even after the city had gone under siege. The Japs had launched an air attack on Sourabaya, which was the only major Javanese port to undergo such a war blow, but it was recalled that it would take more than an air blitz to put a huge port like this out of normal action.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

Washington: A Portland, Ore., college president, Dexter Keezer, and a former editorial writer, has been made assistant administrator of the Office of Price Administration, directly under Henderson.

London: It was announced that Darlan, Vichy government head, had agreed to send two shiploads of aid to General Rommel in Libya weekly, putting the supplies ashore at Tunis.

New York: Tommy Manville, asbestos heir, to whom war was a side issue, announced he would take his sixth bride April 9, and would stay married this time. No. 6 would be, he said, Madge Lowe of Toronto, 23. She had been divorced.

Washington: Capital circles were stirred by reports that American aid to Russia had fallen below 50 per cent of the amount promised.

IT'S UP TO YOU TO JUDGE...

Q Most large organizations today have skilled men whose job it is to create a public opinion favorable to the organization and its products. This is known as the creation of good will — one of the most necessary ingredients in business. Q But the peculiar thing about good will is that it only comes to those who deserve it. In other words, asking the public for good will is 'n't enough; the business must be worthy of that good will through giving good service, through selling good merchandise, through maintaining fair prices.
