In fact, poor posture may interfere with many body functions. It may cause some of the complaints that distress otherwise healthy men, women, and children.. So you can see that your general state of health and your capacity for happy and effective living are closely tied up with body balance.

> It is important fr children well as adults to maintain good posture. Good body balance is a part of good health, just as are good nutrition, cleanliness, exercise, and sufficient rest. As a part of their general education in godo health habits, hildren should be taught good posture. Hold your head up, chest up, abdomen in and your spine in a straight line. This may require effort and concentration at the beginning, but if you become posture conscious, you can make good posture a habit. And remember, an attractive, appearance depends upon it.
