It is highly desirable that City's PUBLIC BONDED DEBT refinanced to take advantage of the prevailing low interest rates. City See'ty advised us more than a year ago that the bonds are of such a nature than they can be refinanc-ed. It is good personal business to gain lower interest --- it is business for the city, too. City's bonds should be sold to an investment firm. We lay no charges to ax-grinding (in fact we know such is not true) but it darn sure doesn't LOOK good for our bonds to be owned locally --- at the high rate of interest they (bonds) are drawing. It tends to warp our better judgement for friendship sake.

German Radio Takes New Tone Under U. S.

News, Education and Swing Replace Old Nazi Line: English Grammar Lessons Prove Popular Among Listeners.

> By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N.W., | in America, were banned up until Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON. - Gradually the net is closing in about the "ether traitors," American citizens who broadcast in English from Berlin and elsewhere for the Nazis before and during the war. Recently the (in)famous "Axis Sally" was taken into custody. She devoted her air time to making G.I.s feel homesick overseas by dwelling on the joys and comforts back in the good old U. S. A. Another traitor is "Kal-tenbach," an ex-Iowa boy who tried to awake nostalgia with corny realism about life down on the farm.

Then there is Constance Drexel who pretended to be a cultured member of the old Philadelphia family whose name she used as a pseudonym when she worked on American newspapers. She was really born in Germany and brought here by her father who became naturalized. She was known here as pro-Hitler before the war. She made one broadcast for an American network when I was in Berlin, but I helped to make it her last.

It is hard to prove treason. You have to have witnesses who actually saw the person in the act of broadcasting. When the Americans took over German radio our methods were far different. We used a proved weapon-the truth.

U. S. Controls Air Facilities

When active military operations changed over to occupation, the In-formation Control division laid down a three-point program. The plan was negative at first-the wipng out of all Nazi media, including radio, to make way for American media.

Next came actual broadcasting. The early broadcasts were very stark and stern. Decrees, regulations, warnings to the people. No concerts, no plays, no music. Now we are in phase two and the Germans are finding more variety along the radio dial. Entertainment, as well as news and education, is being provided by the ICD.

The third phase will begin when German radio stations are turned over to the Germans themselves, much as the newspapers have been direction under license. A military government official examines and criticizes the newspaper after it appears. Presumably, radio programs will be supervised in roughly the same manner.

The first station to be taken over by the Americans was Radio Luxembourg. It was in pretty good shape, for the Germans had left in too much of a hurry to do any bigscale demolition.

Next station to go to work for the army was Frankfurt; then Stuttgart; then Munich. When I was in Germany, because of trouble with land lines, the Munich-Stuttgart-Frankfurt network was not running regularly. Perhaps it is now.

Radio is supported in Ger-many as it was before the war, by a tax on each set. Why, I asked, couldn't a radio owner conceal his set and thus get out of paying the tax? I was told there was no danger of that. If anyone concealed the fact he had a radio, his jealous neigh-bors would tell on him. The Nazi squealing habit is still strong in Germany.

All programs at present are in the German language, except for a few in Polish for displaced persons in camps. There is a large proportion of factual world news broadcast and an increasing number of German musical programs.

On the educational side, there are talks by German officials, and American military government men. Some jazz and swing, and lately, plays. The program periods have been running as long as 45 minutes which seems a long time for American radio fans-and now they are being extended to one hour.

Poll Reaction Of Audience

At first it wasn't easy to find out whether Germans liked what they eters of approval and disapproval communistic comfort.

December of last year. However, reactions are coming in now, as the ICD conducts many secret radio polls-employing the methods of polltakers in this country. The surveys which I saw indicated that, on the whole, the programs are popular with the Germans-with certain reservations.

Take factual world news, for example. Germans are anxious to hear this, but they don't al-ways understand it. For 12 years they have been taught to be suspicious of all news. And yet, in spite of this skepticism, they are so saturated with the propaganda idea that in some cases they don't like facts.

This came out in a conference with teenagers who said they preferred the Russian broadcasts to ours. Asked why, they said there was too much propaganda in ours. I went over this answer with one of the psychological experts. He explained it this way: straight news without comment forces the listen-er to think for himself. This disturbs the German teenager, and he blames the program, calling it "propaganda."

English grammar lessons far outrun American music as radio favorites in Germany. All Germans want to learn English. This desire seems to stem from the long-range hope that some day America's gates will be open, and from the opportunistic feeling that the conquered can get along better with the conqueror if they're both talking the same language.

Zionists Wary Of Russians

For years, contending European nations have battled for the friendship and support of the Arabs. This struggle was intensified when, long before World War I, the Germans started their "drang nach Osten" and the British heightened their efforts to placate the Arabs in order to protect their empire's life-lines and to prevent a spread of a disaffection to the Moslems of India Now Russia steps into the picture. Reports from Baghdad tell us of the spread of communistic sympathies throughout the Middle East. And the Jews of Palestine find their troubles increasing.

The announcement of Britain's granting of independence to Trans-Jordania heightened Zionist resentment, for Trans-Jordania is a part of Greater Palestine and was supposed to be included in the territory allotted to the National Jewish

The Zionists claim the British action is part of a scheme to prevent the United Nations from creating a trusteeship of Greater Palestine which would include Trans-Jordania, as the old League of Nations mandate did. They also make the charge that the purpose is "to thwart Jewish rights by bolstering pro-Axis forces.

The Zionists feel too that Russia is playing a similar game. They point out the inconsistency of making friends with the Arabs, whose party leader in Palestine, Jamal Husseini, is calling for the reinstatement of the Grand Mufti, a Hitler collaborator.

In his testimony before the British-American inquiry committee Husseini said: "Germany was not our enemy and therefore we had no interest in the war," adding: "I've read somewhere that it was a Jewish war."

The Zionists believe they have discovered an additional reason for Russian animosity toward their efforts in Palestine. Like most of the causes of racial and other ructions, it is fear. They say that the Soviets are afraid that if the Palestine colony becomes a success it will prove an entering wedge for western capitalism in the Near East. There is really nothing in common between the feudalist, unprogressive Arab world and the economic and social principles represented by the Soviet system. The Arabs can't do the Soviets any harm but they could be used, the Zionists say, to hamstring what might bewhether Germans liked what they come a live and up-and-coming were getting on the ICD schedule of Jewish nation imbued with capitalbroadcasts. How Lobbies Thwart Peoples' Interests

THE PLOT-An overnight amend-ment to the deficiency appropriation bill-"providing that no part of this fund ($100,000,000) shall be available to the Rural Electrification administration for the making of any loan for the construction of a generating plant unless the Federal Power commission shall first certify there is not sufficient current available in the area concerned at reasonable rates.'

The Scene-Floor of the United States senate.

The Speaker - Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont: "I should like to say, Mr. President, that at no time has there been a more determined effort on the part of the utility interests to destroy farm co-operatives, and particularly the REA, than there is at this moment. At no time have they maintained a more powerful lobby in the city of Washington. We meet them in the corridors, we meet them on the elevators, we meet them downtown. I do not think they are aware that I know them, but I recognize a good many. At no time have they been more active in the construction of spite lines into REA territory which they previously had refused to serve, for the purpose of destroying the efforts of the farm population to better their own condition

"Propaganda against farm cooperatives is being distributed all over the country in every town of the United States and if we accept this amendment we will be aiding in destroying the effort of the farmer to help himself through rural electrification co-operatives.

The speaker - Senator Warren G. Magnuson of Washington: "The amendment not only incorporates 'quickie' language, but the same slick language was used by private power companies for years to justify the continuation of electrification being furnished by them to the farmers.

Would Hamstring REA Law

The amendment would have chopped out of the basic REA law all bargaining power of the REA against high private power rates. Its insertion into the deficiency appropriation bill, where it had no place, was supported by such sena-tors as Clyde M. Reed of Kansas, Guy Cordon of Oregon and Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee. Fortunately, it was defeated, 52 to 21, but it's an indication of how the power lobby works to obtain its ends.

And I like this argument. It is a part of the debate in the house which resulted in cutting the heart out of the Housing bill to provide homes for war veterans and others.

Cong. Luther Patrick of Alabama is speaking. "Mr. Chairman, I do not see how anybody can contend that to make an arrangement whereby prices would scale up, could provide the returning veteran a better approach to a home. You can argue that until the cows come home and it just will not pan out. There is nothing more natural than that there will be some subsidizing necessary once in a while when you are putting on a program like this, to properly adjust its economy. Yet congressmen are here who take fright at it.

Profits and Politics

"We are quite willing to appropriate billions to fight a war to save our hides and to draft these men to do the fighting, but since they fought it through we are not even willing to vote a drop in the bucket as a subsidy to see that they get a roof over their heads. . . . What gets next to us and scares us is the axgrinder's club our constituents with axes to grind; the ax-grinders' club gets busy; the men who believe the economy of this country rotates around the economy of their special business.

"They immediately get busy and commence to oppose this program. We have made a very careful study, and then, because it will cut profits for a few personal and influential friends at home a little, we forget the veteran and remember the friend! That is the God's truth and you know it and that is the opposition we are meeting right here today. I am going to face the facts and vote for this subsidy. You all promised to do the same, in effect. The veterans are not going to ask me for bread and get a stone, or ask me for a roof and get only poli-

Unfortunately the argument of Congressman Patrick did not prevail against a coalition of reaction-Democrats and Republicans. The Housing Stabilization bill to amend the National Housing act was wrecked until it bore no semblance of its original form.

These are just two instances of how lobbies sought to override progressive measures designed, one to help the farmer, the other, principally to help the veteran. In the one instance they were unsuccessful, in the latter they won. The Housing bill is now before the senate.

Washington

WAR NOT EXPECTED

WASHINGTON. - That the Tru-man cabinet is not looking for war in the near future, despite warlike talk, was indicated at a secret session of the senate military affairs committee recently.

When Secretary of State Byrnes and Secretary of War Patterson testified in favor of an extension of the selective service act, the figures they presented on planned strength of the army and navy were exactly the same as those presented early in January. In other words, they proposed an army of barely over a milon men by July of 1947.

The senators had expected that because of the complicated international situation a larger army would be asked for, but the war and state departments made no such request. When one senator asked how it happexed that there was no "emergency" planning, Sec-retary Byrnes refused to answer. fie passed the question to Secretary Patterson, who also did not reply.

WALLACE SPEECH CENSORED. It wasn't supposed to be known outside the cabinet, but Henry Wallace's speech at the Jackson Day dinner was censored - by President Truman himself. Wallace had one line in his speech which he thought would answer Republican critics. It read:

"Abraham Lincoln was not a member of our party. But he was certainly a fellow trav-

Truman thought such a reference to the martyred Lincoln might be misunderstood and cut it out. Wallace was glad to concur.

MEN'S SUITS

It still looks like a long wait before veterans can get the clothing they need. The office of war mobilization and reconversion will soon bring out a report on men's clothing showing a need for 40 million suits this year but production plans for only about 28 million.

The report will also show that first quarter production has been only about 5 million, and officials of the civilian production administration are worried sick that even the goal of 28 million suits for 1946 will

There is no sign yet that the increase in prices granted this month by OPA will mean more men's suits. There are indications, however, that large stocks of suits are being held off the market in the hope that price control will not be extended beyond June.

For years John L. Lewis has been one of labor's top negotiators. Usually he has his facts cold. Recently, however, while arguing safety precautions with Harry Moses, an important Pittsburgh mine operator, he said:

Why, Harry, your father is a good illustration of why we need these safeguards. Everybody knows him as a veteran coal man, and we've all seen him limping around for 50 years because of a mine accident. So how can you sit there and deny us the safeguards to prevent the same sort of thing from happening to other miners?"

"John," replied Moses, "I don't know where you got your information about my father— but it wasn't so good. I'll tell you how he hurt his leg. It wasn't in a coal mine, it was playing baseball. He broke his leg sliding into second."

NOTE - Bureau of mine officials heartily endorse Lewis' demands for better safety precautions in the mines.

DIPLOMATIC VICTORY

During the heyday of the Roosevelt administration, Vice Pres. Jack Garner gave a dinner for the late Will Rogers at which the cowboy humorist, commenting on a forthcoming international conference,

"This country has won every war, but lost every conference."

Recently, however, one inter-national conference closed at Savannah, Ga., at which the United States won every single round. It was the first world monetary conference, and the man responsible for the American victory was hard-hitting Fred Vinson, secretary of the treas-

FORTUNATE . . . Robert and Elly Lindahl and sons feel "fortunate" that they have a two-room apartment and can live in Denmark. Family income is about $1,600 a year, with $200 going for taxes. Pauline Frederick, WNU Foreign Correspondent, was a guest

EUROPE'S LITTLE PEOPLE - 1946

Copenhagen Most 'American' Of All Cities on the Continent

By PAULINE FREDERICK

COPENHAGEN.-Denmark's revered Grundtvig has said that this is a land where "few have too much and fewer have too little." Copenhagen is a city of one million, containing one-fourth of the population of the whole country. And I might add that American army men visiting here on leave are saying that Copenhagen reminds them more of an American city than any place they have seen over here.

My trip here was extremely worth while, for I had a chance to in any other country of Europe exmeet and get acquainted with Robert and Elly Lindahl and their two sons, Svend, aged three, and Palle,

The Lindahls live two flights up in a two-room apartment of a large red-brick apartment building. They have a single living room where they also eat, a smaller bedroom shared by the four of them, a kitchen with gas-range and cupboards and sink like those in thousands of American kitchens, a bath with shower. The Lindahls lean toward simple, modern furnishings in warm rusts and greens with colorful land and seascapes on the walls. It was February, but there was a bunch of golden forsythia on the coffee table. The blonde, bright-eyed hostess and it goes for taxes. The apartment with heat costs about $200 a year, with gas and electricity running $28. Robert went to work when he was 14, and in 1939 when he married Elly she was working in an office also

I noticed two books in English in their book-case. Both the Lindahls expressed regret that they had not been able to continue school where they would have learned to speak English, which was a requirement, so they are trying to learn to read the language a little as they find

Mrs. Lindahl says with real satisfaction that she is fortunate that she can bring up her healthy blonde little boys in a country where it is possible today to get more to eat than 'other war in Europe. * *

In fact, in the food line only the following are rationed: butter, sugar, brown bread, white bread, oatmeal, coffee, tea and cocoa. Since the liberation the butter ration has been cut from three pounds per person per month to two pounds because it is being exported. Each person is allowed about three and one-third pounds of sugar a month. Candy is scarce, especially chocolate. Each person may have a little less than three-fourths of a pound of bread per day, about one-half pound of coffee or cocoa and a little more her husband offered cherry wine in than one-fourth pound of tea per we toasted Denmark and month. The soap ration is one-third of a pound per person for personal Robert Lindahl is a clerk in the use each month, and the same office of the oldest newspaper in amount in soap flakes or powder for household use cept Belgium. It is not surprising

Svende and Palle Lindahl are having a chance to grow up in a little country that will offer them many advantages if there is not another war. (But there are many Danes who expect that the United States and Great Britain are going to get tired of their occupation job in Germany and withdraw, and in that event a new Hitler will soon come to power.) Because of the advance in medicine and hygiene, the average life span of these little boys should be 64 years, and if they have any sisters, theirs should be 66 years. If they decide to live in the country they will probably have a farm of from 24 to 120 acres, the size of most Danish farms. If they live in the city they will probably have two-room flats such as they occupy now, as that is an average city dwelling.

From olden times the Danish State has recognized its obligation to supervise and watch over the normal and physical upbringing of children and take special care of incorrigible and perverted as well as neglected and deserted young-

When it comes time to go to school, the Lindahl boys will find that not only are the secondary schools free, but instruction at un versities and other advanced institutions of learning is also free. When they are ready to take jobs they will find that 52 per cent of their fellow men are engaged in manufacturing and crafts and 28 per cent in forestry and fishery. They will find that they are living under a constitutional democracy. With fervence people here talk of their king who stayed with them during the occupation, while at the same time they cling ardently to their democratic institutions.

THE STORY THUS FAR: Sherwin rained Jordan might return to the cab-in but he did not want to leave the contry until he had evened the score with his cousin, Stenhart. He recalled De way his uncle had died, stabbed by a saile. Stenhart had sworn that he had sees Sherwin wield the knife. Perjury that brought prison-and escape by a At the ranch, Stenhart urged face to marry him at once, but she ssering. Still weak, Stenhart rides after bet. He saw Jane get off her horse and go up an old trail. He followed. When persin awoke he explored in the vicin my of the cabin and discovered an old care and a rope.

CHAPTER VIII

A man bound securely and hidden h that unknown cavern, beyond ach of the sun, beyond the sound of human voices, might taste someting of the misery of a prison! And, the stayed there long enough, he would-die. It was a scheme so simple and so hideous that it appealed at once to his ferocious passon for revenge. It would be easy, to, if only he could get Stenhart by himself; with all his wily skill in stielding himself at the expense of ehers, all his bravado, Stenhart sel Sherwin knew that! How the sifty eye had cringed away from his cousin's when he took the oath is court and-lied. Lied a young man into prison for life-for what? So that there might be no one to disgute that will, the will that the old uncle meant to change in Sherwin's or. To secure himself in that he had sworn to a lie.

He stood in the full glory of the morning. The far off heights were shorn of their shadows and melted lie peaks of gold into the golden By contrast the nearer hills were darkly wooded, glancing with lights and shadows, and far up an eigle soared. Something new and nighty swept into his soul; seemed to hear the voices of the wilderness crying to him: "Ventant his very soul was shaken, then he turned and walked to the far eige of the little clearing. There, through a window in the foliage, he glimpsed the lower road, running lke a white ribbon far beyond the ravine. As he glanced down at it he saw a man riding slowly across his vista and he gasped for breath. The splifted moment plunged deep down into the chasm of his hate-it was Stenhart!

He did not question why he came eus. Instinctively he knew that the man was on an errand of betrayal, but his own heart leaped fercely; he had seen him first, he was alone. Holding the rope upon arm, he felt for the pistol his shoulder-holster; knew it to be haded and ready. With a kind of savage joy he turned and began to descend the dangerous path on the ledge of the ravine, and its very ager thrilled him. How easy to thrust a man over here-in a strug-He glanced down at the boilbg water far below and smiled trimly; either way, his weapons were ready to his hand.

He did not walk fast, he took time to order his thoughts; the man should have his chance, a chance he had never given him, to fight for his life. Sherwin scorned to stab in the dark as the other did, to kill with lies! Imprisonment for lifeand he was so young then! He thought of the cavern, its gloom, its dripping walls, and he laid a caressat hand on the coil of rope upon is arm. Torn with the evil forces of his passions, sure that revenge was near, he turned the corner of the ledge and saw a figure coming loward him. Not Stenhart so soon! o, a slighter, younger figure, a white face, clear eyes-Jane! Jane, looking at his hardened ace, his grim lips, wavered. Her courage—which had been high ent down in sheer terror of him; e hated her-suddenly she felt it.

Then, having come so far, she would not be utterly dismayed. She came on weakly, catching at the trailing imbs of nearby trees. "I guessed where Mac had taken you. I've come to—ask you one question," she faltered, "I—"

She could not go on and he would not help her. He stood there looking at her and she saw only his hexorable eyes. At last she could not endure them; she lifted her shaking hands and hid her face.

"I came to ask you to-" voice broke and then rose almost to cry of pain-"to tell me that it isn't true!"

To what purpose?" he asked hoarsely. hoarsely. "You don't believe me.
Ask Stenhart; I know, you see, that he's with you!"

"With me?" She lifted her flushed face and looked at him, amazed.
"What can you mean? I'm alone."

Sherwin could not doubt her honsty; she did not know that she was

"He's behind you," he said gravely; "he dismounted on the lower road. I saw him just now."

She gasped, casting a frightened look over her shoulder. "I never thought he could ride so far. He'll—" she shivered—"he'll betray you!"

Sherwin laughed discordantly. "It wouldn't he could ride so far. He'll—" that long wouldn't be new; he began that long caught at that, trembling. "It was a lie? Please tell me that, tell me the truth—I want to believe it!" sence.

"So you can convince him?" Sherwin mocked her.

"He isn't here, I tell you; I came alone!" the girl cried excitedly.
"You came alone? Then come here and I'll show you the horse he rode." Sherwin turned as he spoke. Sherwin turned as he spoke, walking back toward that vista through the trees.

The girl, half dazed by his manner, unbelieving that it could be true that Stenhart was with her, followed him. They turned the shoulder of the cliff and saw the one clear vista of the lower road, seen over the cedar that thrust itself out below them.

"There's the horse," said Sher-rin, "and there he is! You see? He followed you, he's going back now he knows where I am."

"Oh!" Jane gave a little cry of horror. "He-oh, I can't think he'll tell the sheriff!"

"Can't you?" Sherwin's tone was tter. "You led him here." bitter.

The girl recoiled at that, not with the horror she had recoiled before,

Gently, almost reverently, he took her in his arms.

but with a flush of pride. Her blue "I did not lead him here," she said coldly, and turned away. She was in a tumult; how dared he accuse her of treachery? She started rapidly, retracing her steps.

She would not turn; she stumbled on. But he overtook her.

"Speak to me," he said brokenly. 'Forgive me-I thought I was strong, but I'm weak; I'm a beggar for a word of kindness. You came here-tell me, Jane, you knew it wasn't true of me?"

She stood still, looking down, pale and shaken. "You wouldn't answer me. Tell me that you're innocent-" she lifted her eyes to his-"tell me and-I'll believe you!"

He looked at her strangely, and he was still iron in his will to kill the perjurer.

"I am innocent of that crime," he She leaned back against the cliff behind her, panting, her face flushed and her lips trembled.

"Do you believe me, Jane?" he asked hoarsely. "Had I been guilty of that—I would never have told you that I loved you." She looked up and their eyes held each other. "I believe you, John," she said simply.

For one long moment they looked at each other thus and a strange change swept over the man. He felt it without knowing it, without recognizing this hidden thing that took possession of him; but suddenly the world seemed flooded with light and in it he saw only the face of the Gently, almost reverently, he took her in his arms.

Jim Keller, ready for breakfast, found no one about. He shouted to Ah Ling.

"Get me some coffee! I wonder where in mischief Jane is?" he added to himself, testily. Then his mind went back to yesterday and he remembered her face; she had said little, but he knew her well. "Con-found it," he thought soberly, "she's got a fancy for that fellow! My fault, too; I'd no business to have a stranger about, a man without credentials." He drank his coffee hastily and ate little. Fanny Sewell had spoken the day before of going away. Stenhart, she said, was well. Jim did not mean to let her go, but she was hesitating; he wanted her to marry hesitating; he wanted her to marry him but she wanted to work two more years. "Ridiculous idea!" Jim growled; "I need you more than these sick people!" She had not yet appeared and it angered him to feel that perhaps she did not want a tete-a-tete just now. He rose from the table, thrusting his hands into his pockets, and walked to and fro in the hall. He began to be more and more puzzled by his sister's ab-

"She went on horseback-long while ago," Teresa told him.

Jim thought of the rustlers. "Where's Mac?" He shot the question at Jose, who had come in from the stables with a message. "Gone down to th' corrals, Meester Keller." "Did you see Miss Jane go?" "Si, senor."

"You saddled for her, I suppose. Hadn't you sense enough to tell Mac? Jordan's somewhere about!"

"Meester Stenhar' go after her." Jim stared. That Stenhart was able to ride at all surprised him, but it was a relief to have him with Jane. Lately, Jim had felt that the girl was playing fast and loose with his friend. She would never marry Max, he thought. But this news was reassuring; if Jane-a daredevil rider-would slow her pace to suit a half sick man, she must be glad of his company. Jim walked out on the bridge; they might be coming home by now. The sunshine was wonderful, it dazzled him for a moment; then he saw Stenhart coming across the bridge, urging his horse, He was alone! Jim went half way down the slope to meet him. "Hello, Max." he shouted anxiously, "where's Jane?" Stenhart made no reply, he swung himself down from the saddle, looking haggard. 'Come into the house," he said thickly; "too many men about out here!"

Jim whitened; he had a strange foreboding. Without a word he turned with Stenhart toward the house, and once he had to steady the man on his feet, he was so exhausted. They entered the dim old hall and Stenhart flung himself into a chair, gasping. Jim stood in front of him with a set face.

"For God's sake, speak out Max!" he exclaimed. "What's up? Where's my sister?"

Stenhart, getting his breath, answered with cold fury. She's up the mountainside with Sherwin. Jim drew a hard breath. He was furious, but he controlled himself, sat down on the edge of his desk and looked attentively at Stenhart. It decurred to him that the man might be in a fever from undue exertion and not responsible. "Will you kindly explain yourself?" he said gravely; "you're speaking of my sister."

"I'm telling you nothing but the truth," Stenhart replied stubbornly. 'She and I had a quarrel this morning. She left me to go out on horse-back. I followed-I had it in mind to overtake her, to try to make it up-you understand?" he stopped, he stopped, biting his lips, and Jim made an "Go on!" he exclaimed.

he exclaimed. Stenhart did not look at him. He stared at the bright rectangle of the open door and his fingers drummed on the arms of his chair.

"She was a long way ahead, riding fast. I followed; she didn't know it. Presently she turned into a mountain trail and dismounted; I could see her through the trees. got down off my horse and followed; I thought to overtake her on foot more easily. The trail is difficult. It ascends sharply; I found it hard climbing and she got far ahead, Half way up I heard voices and stood still—I wasn't an intentional eavesdropper." He drew a hard breath. "I saw them—Sherwin had met her!"

Jim stiffened. "You mean that my sister, going out alone, as she often does, chanced to meet this-this convict?" Stenhart lifted a gray face; there was no doubt now of the misery in his eyes. "She loves him, Jim!" Jim struck his open hand on the desk. "That's an intolerable thing for even an old friend to say, Max!

Max met his eyes steadily. the truth, Jim!" And then he the truth, Jim!" And then he added chokingly: "I know!"

The sheer passion of that cry, its defeat, its bitterness, carried conviction. For an instant Jim, usually so even tempered, stared at him; then he swore softly and seized the telephone-receiver.
Stenhart snatched at his arm.

"What are you going to do?"

Jim shook him off. "Get the sheriff after him; I know about where Cutler is-Hello! Yes?" he began to talk into the receiver. Stenhart, who felt really ill, turned and poured a glass of water. He had drained it when Jim finished telephoning.

"Cutler left Manning's two hours ago, headed this way; he'll be here soon. I—Max, what are you going to do?"

Stenhart was at the door; Jim saw that he walked stiffly.
"Come back!" he exclaimed,
"you're ill."

But Stenhart was climbing into the saddle again; as he mounted he turned a white face toward Jim.
"I'm going to meet the sheriff; he doesn't get away this time!"

"Max—I say!" Jim wanted to direct this thing himself. Even in his rage he remembered Sherwin saving him that first night; but Stenhart was off at a gallop, swaying in the saddle. As his rage cooled he thought of Jane; he must get her before the posse arrived. He heard Stenhart's horse gallop across the bridge.

HOW JESUS' FRIENDS RESPONDED

LESSON TEXT-Mark 1:16-20; 5:18-20; 10:46. 52; Luke 5:27, 28.

MEMORY SELECTION—He left all, rose up, and followed him.-Luke 5:28.

Friendship calls for an exchange -not of gifts or possessions neces sarily, but of service, love and fel-

The friends of Jesus responded to the warmth of His affection and the appeal of His call, and they gave themselves in life and service to Many in the church have forgotten that part of the friendship of Jesus Christ. They want to count Him as their friend, they expect much of Him; but they give little or nothing in return. Their love is cold, their service indifferent, their witness powerless.

Not every one of Jesus' friends is called to be a preacher or a teacher. He needs those who will be His faithful followers, just a living testimony without special office or message.

To effectively present the contrasts of our lesson, we have arranged the verses in slightly different sequence. Among the friends of Jesus I. Some Became Preachers (Mark

1:16-20). These men had met Jesus before (John 1:35-51), but now He was ready to call them away from their daily occupation as fishermen and make them "fishers of men." Such a change was not an easy one to make. It meant the giving up of an established earthly calling, a place in the community, home life and family, for the service of the Lord. That was to bring persecu-tion, ridicule, poverty and loneliness. But "straightway they forsook their nets. Let the members of the church and pastors be on the alert to sense the call of God to young men and women to the ministry and to the mission field, and then let them do everything possible to encourage them on their way.

II. Others Became Followers (Mark 10:46, 52).

When Jesus came by, blind Bartimaeus began to cry, "Jesus, son of David have mercy on me" (v. 47). Many around him tried to hush his voice (v. 48), but he cried the more. Through that babel of voices Jesus heard him, stopped and sent for him, and healed him. The ear of our Lord is always attuned to hear the cry of the one in need. and His heart is quick to respond to his call. He can hear the cry of the repentant sinner through all the confusing sounds of our day Bartimaeus became a "follower" of Jesus. He probably had no position in the church, no call to preach, but what a testimony he had. (cf. John 9:25).

Jesus needs simple, steady fol-lowers. Men and women with a plain, effective testimony of salvation. The army of the Lord is not made up of generals and officers only. Perhaps we have more of them than we need.

III. Some Stayed at Home (Mark 5:18-20).

This striking story of the deliverance of the mad man shows the importance of testimony at home. The people had asked Jesus to leave (v. 17) because in delivering the maniac He had caused some swine to go mad and run into the

These men needed a witness, and the most effective possible word to them would come from the delivered demoniac. He wanted to go with Jesus, but at the Master's word he stayed at home. It is hard to leave home and loved ones to go afar to witness for Jesus Christ, but sometimes it is easier to speak for Him in a strange land than at home. Even Jesus found no honor in His own city.

If you are called to witness for the Lord in the small circle of you. own family or community, trust God to make that word for Jesus tremendously effective. He can do

IV. Others Left Home and Business (Luke 5:27, 28). Levi-better known to us as Matthew - was "a member of that hated group of renegade Jews, who served the Roman invader and helped him in his cruel work of wringing extortionate taxes from the people" (Earl L. Douglass), As a result, he was rich and undoubtedly had a fine home and every desirable material possession.

He had come to know Jesus and when the call came suddenly to follow Jesus, he did not hesitate; he did not stop to gather up his money; he did not sell his house; but he stood up and left all, and followed Jesus.

If Jesus really means every thing to a man or a woman there is nothing in this world that can hold him back when Jesus calls. He is ready to go to the ends of the earth, and let whosoever will care for the business, his posses-sions, everything (cf. Matt. 19:29).

Best Cooks Brighten Common Foods With Subtle Flavor Touches

Even the best cook sometimes notices that her family doesn't seem to be eating as well as it usually does. Is it her fault? Many a woman has asked herself this question at one time or another and occasionally she comes to me with this problem

Well, this is just a little bit difficult to answer. Perhaps Dad is busy or has a touch of the spring fever and just doesn't care for heavy foods. Or, the youngsters may be having a rugged time at school, and food does not appeal to them. Then again, no matter how good a cook you are, you may have fallen into a slump. Yes, the food may be cooked as well as ever, but perhaps there just isn't enough variety. You may be making all your own favorite dishes just a little too often, and they just don't seem as wonderful served once too often. Could that be it?

Well, if the latter is your problem, you'll particularly want to look at these recipes today. They're all designed to take the doldrums out of your meal and make even the most jaded appetite perk up and take an interest.

What about a lovely frozen salad as a harbinger of spring? It is colorful with fruit and creamy cheese and perches beautifully on a curly bed of greens:

Frozen Fruit Salad.

(Serves 6) 6 ounces cream cheese 1/2 cup salad dressing 1/4 cup chopped nutmeats 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper 114 cups sliced mixed fruits (canned)

14 cup cream, whipped Salt, if needed Lettuce or endive Maraschino cherries

Blend together cream cheese and salad dressing. Add nutmeats, green pepper and fruit; mix well. Fold in dash of salt and whipped salt and whipped cream. Pour into individual molds and freeze 3 to 4 hours. Serve each on a portion of lettuce or curly endive, garnished with the cherries. What about adding a little variety into the bread department? Here's an orange honey bread that can be served with cream cheese for change:

Orange Honey Bread. tablespoons butter or substitute cup strained honey tablespoon grated orange rind cups flour teaspoons baking powder teaspoon soda teaspoon salt

cup orange juice 34 cup chopped nutmeats

Blend the softened butter with honey. Add beaten egg and orange rind and mix well. Sift together the dry ingredients and add alternately with the orange juice. Add the nutmeats and mix well. Bake in a greased loaf pan, in a very moderate (325-degree) oven for 1 hour and 10 minutes. Serve with cream cheese or cheese mixed with orange marmalade.

Bananas and whipped cream, two of our favorite foods which all but disappeared during the war years, have returned to grace the table. I know you'll enjoy them both in this food-of-the-gods combination:

Banana Cake. (Makes 2 9-inch layers) cup shortening 11/2 cups sugar 2 large eggs
2 cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup sour or buttermilk
1 cup mashed bananas (2 to 3)

1 teaspoon vanilla Cream together shortening and sugar; beat in eggs. Sift together dry ingredients and add alternately with milk. Fold in bananas and flavoring. Bake in wellgreased layer cake pans in a moderate (350degree) oven for -30 to 35 minutes.

You will need 1 cup cream, whipped, and 2 bananas, sliced, for the filling. Or, part of the cake, preferably the center, may be filled with whipped cream and bananas and the rest of the cake iced with chocolate frost

We sometimes tend to overlook the simple dishes in our search for something really fresh and inviting. You'll know what I mean when you look at the next recipe for simple foods flavored with something special:

Mocha Bread Pudding. (Serves 6)

4 tablespoons coffee 1 quart milk

2 tablespoons butter 1 square unsweetened chocolate 2 cups coarse bread or cake crumbs

4 cup sugar

15 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Combine coffee and milk and bring to a boil slowly. Let stand to 10 minutes. Strain, add butter and chocolate to the flavored milk. Cook over boiling water until chocolate melts. Beat eggs, add sugar, salt and vanilla. Pour into greased baking dish or individual custard cups and set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate (350degree) oven for one hour, or until a knife inserted comes out clean. Chill, then serve with plain or whipped cream or peppermint flavored custard sauce.
