Mrs. Oscar Lochridge had as weekend guests her daughter Mrs. Warren McDonald and grandson Tod McDonald of Dallas.

Garden Club

Mrs. James A. Sewell presented a most interesting program entitled "Organic Gardening" to the Iowa Park Garden club Friday in the home of Mrs. D. C. Bondurant.

She said to get nutritious food, man must feed the soil with good compost. He makes it by gathering residue organic materials which, fortunately are in abundance all about him, and by controlled methods of decomposition, a form of nature magic which puts Aladdin to shame, he transfers it into a rich brown earth.

The searcher after the compostable will go into the strangest places. He will clean out the shop of a butcher in order to retain the sweepings of sawdust saturated with an aroma of meat and entrails which are rich in nitrogen. He will do the same for a lazy neighbor's chicken house if he can exact the chicken droppings as his payment. He will go to a barber shop for the hair cuttings, to a restaurant for coffee grounds, to a fish market for fish offal.

He will all but mow the neighbor's lawn for grass clippings. He will gather rubbish, trash, refuse, debris, decaying animal and vegetable remains, cast-off materials — anything decomposable.

He will forget pride, dignity and his delicate sensibilities, so long as he comes into possession of the kind of detritus matter which will turn into a proper compost.

Mrs. Sewell gave the club the recipe for Day-to-Day to 2-Week compost:

First Day
 Your basic material can be one of a number: leaves, spoiled hay, weeds or grass clippings. To this should be added one of the nitrogenous materials (manure is best) and any other material available. In the editorial experiments, equal parts of leaves, grass clippings and manure with a liberal sprinkling of natural rock powders, were found to work very well.

Remember too that leaves tend to mat down, slowing the composting process. They should be mixed with other material. Shred everything — including manure — with a compost shredder or a rotary mower; mix materials together and place in a mounded heap.

If your materials are low in nitrogen, be sure to add a sprinkling of dried blood, cottonseed meal or other nitrogen supplement on each series of layers.

Second and Third Days
 By now the heap should have begun to heat. If not, add more nitrogen. Bury a thermometer in the heap to check temperature. Keep the heap moist, but not soggy.

Fourth Day
 Turn heap, check temperature, keep moist.

Seventh Day
 Turn it again, check temperature and keep moist.

Tenth Day
 Turn it once more. The heap should now begin to cool, indicating that it is nearly finished.

Fourteenth Day
 The compost is ready for use. It will not look like fine humus, but the straw, clippings and other material will have been broken down into a rich, dark, crumbly substance. You may want to allow the heap to decay further, but at this stage it is perfectly good for garden use.

Mrs. Pete Koonce directed the business meeting and reported the club has won two awards in District competition:

First place on Scrapbook
 Directors' citation on president's report

She also read an invitation extended to the club from the African Violet Society in Wichita Falls.

Plans were made for Garden club members to visit the Japanese Botanic Gardens in Fort Worth, April 17.

Mrs. Sewell displayed a beautiful mass-line arrangement using spring flowers.

We Must Attack Crime at Its Roots

"The problem of crime is routinely stated as a problem of law enforcement. But the fact is that crime is OUR problem. Enforcement's failures are OUR failures. Whenever a crime is committed in Texas, there are factors to which every Texan has contributed.

"When family life is so crushed by poverty, when drug abuse is allowed to drag young men and women into drastic measures to satisfy the craving for narcotics, when police are hampered by unenforceable laws or are not well equipped or trained, crime becomes the responsibility of every one of us.

"The traditional methods of combatting crime are symptomatic. And they will not suffice for the future. We must put our ingenuity, or industry and our energy to work to attack crime at its source. We must apply all the knowledge, all the resources at our disposal to elimination of the roots of criminal activity.

"We must streamline our courts. We must give our law enforcement personnel the training and equipment they need. We must guard the rights of the accused, and we must prosecute with vigorous and fair litigation every inditce, in order to make a beginning toward a more effective effort to reduce the tragedy of law-breaking throughout Texas."

Concluding lesson on the Gospel of Matthew developed the theme of "Being Disciples" when Women's Society of Christian Service met at United Methodist church Tuesday morning, with Mrs. Dave Whittington as leader.

Portraits of the 12 disciples, mounted on a large bulletin board made an appropriate background for the discussion.

Characteristic of disciples were listed as: called by God, are as little children in trust and dependence, are not perfect but are forgiven sinners; are servants, supported by God, well trained, who are to go unto all people.

Opportunities for disciples to be in mission were described by Mrs. J. W. Farmer as she told of Jay's Sunday afternoons spent in calls at Park Manor and in hospitals; by Mrs. Ronnie Waters as she outlined objectives of the Young Life clubs and Neighborhood Evangelism groups; by Mrs. Bob McClelland describing block evangelism; and by Mrs. Whittington as she gave information as a member of the Lay Witness organization.

"You are a missionary or you are a mission field" was theme of a challenging message presented as a taped recording made by Larry George telling of his and Mickey's call to special Christian service.

Mrs. S. B. Keeter called the meeting to order and gave the opening prayer. Mrs. Gordon G. Clark, assisted by members of the Cleo Hines circle, will take cakes to S.A.F.B. hospital this week.
