FORMULA FOR FUN AND FROLIC

Aryone out there remember the sainted days of yore when the national pastime was playing "chicken" in a souped up Chevy? Anyone remember souped up Chevies?

How about goldfish swallowing, flagpole sitting, or that most re-vered act of heroism -- playing hooky to go skinny-dipping in the creek? How soon we forget.

In fact, we seem to have run out of really fun ways to misbehave. Protest marches and riots are already old-fashioned and nobody cares who wears what-or who doesn't-any more.

Therefore, I am proposing a whole new set of malicious misdeeds for public consumption. The only rule is non-violence, if you please. Sadism went out with pedal pushers, flag burning and antenna snapping.

Watch Out For Windstorms!

Windstorms—from hurricanes and tornados to severe thun-derstorms and high wind gusts—are among the most common and most dangerous weather phenomena.

Windstorms lash at everything in their paths, and every-one should be familiar with safety precautions for those com-mon to their area. However, windstorms are particularly dan-gerous to mobile homes. Statistics show that almost 13,000 mobile homes will suffer more than $1,000 each in damages from hurricane winds alone in an average year.

mobile homes will suffer more than $1,000 each in damages from hurricane winds alone in an average year.

According to the Mobile Living Communications Center (MLCC), one of the most effective means of reducing mobile home wind damage is to install tie downs. Tie downs are a system of steel straps or cables which connect the mobile home to anchors imbedded in the ground. A combination of over-the-top ties, which pass over the home, and frame ties, which attach to the I-beam of the frame, is usually used.

Allen Pearson, Director of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center, says, "Almost any time a windstorm strikes, the mobile home court or park where preparations have been inadequate becomes a scene of utter devastation. And it's unnecessary. I believe that 90% of all wind damage to mobile homes could be prevented by solid construction and proper tie down."

To encourage mobile home owners to tie down their homes, the Mobile Living Communications Center has designated June as Tie Down Month in thirty-six states registering high windstorm damage to mobile homes in the last decade.

Tie down equipment should be selected according to the size of the mobile home and to soil type and windstorm conditions in each area. It can be installed by contractors or by mobile home owners. Cost for equipment ranges from $90 to $150 in most states. Contractor installation costs vary with location.

"Wise Up—Tie Down", a brochure outlining tie down equipment and procedure, is available from MLCC at P.O. Box 3431. Chicago, Illinois 60654.
