'On again, off again' car wash heading for court Thursday

There's good news and bad news for the owners of the proposed new car wash on West Highway.

The good news is that the board of adjustments granted variances on setback and fence requirements and instructed the city administrator to issue a new zoning clearance permit and building permit.

The bad news is that the developers have been issued a temporary restraining order through district judge Temple Driver, and nothing can be done on the project until a hearing is held next Thursday in 78th district court.

Action by the board of adjustments was taken Friday evening. The developers presented a request for zoning permit clearance Monday, and it was approved. Tuesday morning the original building permit fee was refunded, and a new building permit was issued and new fee paid, according to Steve Morath, city administrator.

Then, shortly after noon Tuesday, the court order was served on the city and each of the developers, Mike Longley, Gary D. Snow, Teddy G. Tomerlin and Ronnie Lee Wilson.

Petitioners for the judicial review and temporary restraining order were James M. Morris, Kenneth Garrett and Sue Garrett.

The restraining order prohibits the developers from doing any work or purchasing any supplies, materials or equipment for use in the construction or operation of the car wash.

The petition alleges there were not four votes cast when the board of variances acted on the variances, that incorrect basis was cited for the variances, that no evidence was presented before the hearing by the developers, that hardship of the developers was self-imposed and that the plaintiffs were not provided a due process for appealing the permit.

Only four members of the board were present Friday night. David Padgett was absent, due to a conflict with his vacation. Those attending included Donald Hill, chairman, Rip Smith, John Brown and Charlie Lee.

Four votes are required for any action to be approved by the board, and the plaintiffs allege that Hill did not cast votes during the meeting. Hill did instruct the minutes to reflect each motion passed, however.

At the outset of Friday's meeting, Morris was asked to make his presentation, and he did for some 48 minutes. Then Mike Longley was asked to give his side and he said he had no statement to make but would answer questions.

Board members voted to grant variances on the front, back and side setback requirements, and also the fencing requirement.

The front setback variance was said to be 21 feet six inches, but Morris disputed the measurement and said he measured 16 feet from the property line. The back setback was approved for 24 feet and the side, which adjoins another tract of land owned by the developers, to five feet.

Board members cited traffic safety as their reason for granting a variance from fencing the north side of the property, along Alameda, where vehicles will be exiting from the car wash.

Members were not certain the fencing was actually required, but took the action in case it was, they said.

The district court hearing next Thursday is to be held at 11:30.

Fund established to assist Watts

A fund to financially assist the Kenneth Watts family has been established at State National Bank.

Mrs. (Robbie) Watts, a rural mail carrier who suffered a hemorrhage in the brain about a month ago, remains in the intensive care unit of Parkland Hospital in Dallas.

She was scheduled for surgery early this week, but the action was delayed due to complications, according to a close friend.

Deposits can be made to the Robbie Watts Special Fund.

IOWA PARK

LEADER 25 Cents

Vol. 12, No. 45 IOWA PARK, WICHITA COUNTY, TEXAS 76367 THURSDAY, JULY 16, 1981

City to fight phone rate

The Iowa Park city council Monday evening joined with the Texas Municipal League in opposing the rate increase sought by Southwestern Bell Telephone, and changed their auditors.

With several members citing problems caused by service, or lack of service, by the telephone company, aldermen unanimously agreed to join the TML in fighting the rate increase to be heard by the Texas Municipal League.

Mayor Johnny Crawford summed the feelings of the council when he said "I think the PUC needs to be aware of our problems, and I plan to take them (the problems) to the PUC if there is no other way."

Acting on the recommendation of city administrator Steve Morath, council members approved changing of auditors. The new auditing firm will be Baines and Stringer of Dallas, which has audited municipal financial records for several cities, including Electra, for a number of years.

Though the total cost could not be discussed, due to "ethics" set by the state auditors' organization, a fee of $75 per hour was offered and an estimated 80 hours of work was mentioned.

The audits performed by a Wichita Falls firm have been increasing in cost, to approximately $16,000, and complaints have been voiced both about the cost and the format of the printed audit in recent years.

'61 reunion date changed

Date for the 20th reunion of the Iowa Park High Class of '61 has been changed to July 25, according to a letter mailed recently by Trish Heskett and Shirlene Berry.

The reunion, which was moved up a week, will be held at the Gateway Inn in Wichita Falls.

An informal get-together will be held in the Chandelier Room from 2:30 to 4:30 that afternoon, and dinner will be served at 7.

The meal and other expenses will cost $10 per person, according to the letter.

For those unable to attend, they are asking classmates to write letters telling about themselves, their families and what they have done the past 20 years.

Several committee appointments proposed by Crawford were approved by council members. David Pace was named to replace L.S. Whisnand and George Hammonds for James Whitaker on the planning and zoning committee; Delbert Todd and Jim Alsop reappointed to the parks commission; Robert Cole and Jerald Walsh were reappointed to the traffic safety council.

Aldermen approved the only bid submitted for grazing rights at Lake Iowa Park. Dr. Thurman Reitz proposed a lease of $8.05 per acre.

Also approved, after a 35-minute executive session, was the hiring of a new police officer, Dale Leslie Washburn.

The resident of 413 Valley Drive, Washburn, 23, is a graduate of Texoma Regional Police Academy, receiving his basic certification. His work experience has been a police officer at Van Alstyne, sheriff's deputy at Grayson County, and police officer at Howe and Whitesboro. He remained at the Grayson County position the longest, one year.

During a discussion concerning a fire substation in the south side of the city, a question was posed as to how many firemen live and work during the day in that area who could respond to a fire call.

The sub station has been proposed in case a fire call was received from the south side of town, and units from the station on the north side could not reach it when a long call train might be passing through the city.

A study of the past 18 months indicated 12 of 55 fire calls in the city were to the south side, and only three of them were structure.

A report is to be made at the next council meeting concerning firemen who would be available to answer calls when the city is cut in half by trains.

Auction Saturday benefits children

Joe Parker, rancher and banker of Byers, is convinced that because people know what the Crippled Children's Livestock Auction is all about—that of people helping people—then donations will keep pouring in. Parker, general chairman of the auction, talked about the need for "more donors and more buyers" in this final week before the Saturday event.

He's convinced, too, that despite hard times in the cattle industry, ranchers and farmers will "weather" out the problems and make this 13th annual auction the biggest one ever.

Sale time is 10 a.m. Saturday at Wichita Livestock Auction, 2509 Sheppard Access Road, Wichita Falls. Livestock and merchandise, such as paintings, bronzes from Shirley Wadzeck and Buck Brumley, area sculptors, handmade afghans, building supplies, livestock feed, western gear and many other items to attempt buyers, will be auctioned off to benefit North Texas Rehabilitation Center in Wichita Falls.

"We're really getting down to the end now," Parker said at the recent luncheon for auction committee members.

Committee members met to turn in merchandise and donations from businessmen, citizens as well as ranchers and farmers and to complete plans for the auction.

The cattle auction underwrites about half the budget for the rehab center, which is a facility to treat children and adults with physical handicaps, speech-language and hearing difficulties and language learning disabilities. Services are provided without regard for ability to pay.

Parker appealed to ranchers and farmers for livestock donations and said that committee members will see that livestock gets to the Saturday sale if donors do not have transportation. Any person wishing to donate may contact the county chairman or a committee member.

The MuleSkinners of Iowa Park will have barbecue sandwiches for good time were in the 100 block of West Cash until midnight. Revenue from the concession stands and donations will be used to purchase equipment for the department.

LARGEST TURNOUT of the three previous annual street dances sponsored by the Iowa Park Volunteer Fire Department was on hand Saturday night. Several hundred dancers and those who just enjoy watching others have a

FM 368 nears completion

A road-improvement project on FM 368, which was begun in January, will be completed within a week, according to a representative of the Texas Department of Highways and Transportation.

The project, which includes the widening of a bridge and reconstruction of approaches at Antelope Creek one mile south of the Wichita River and two miles north of FM 1206, was contracted by Timmins-Anderson of Wichita Falls.

According to the Highway Department representative, work on the project was delayed when other projects handled by Timmins-Anderson had exceeded the completion date, and the company sent all available equipment and labor to complete the work.

In the meantime, the section of FM 368 under construction was left unattended for a period of several weeks, and the amount of travel over the unpaved section created large chuckholes and a possible hazardous situation.

According to workmen on the site, three inches of road surface will be graded to create a crown, then repaving will begin.

York, Brock nuptial vows recited Saturday afternoon

Following a wedding trip to Cloudercroft, New Mex., Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wayne Brock, who were married Saturday afternoon at St. Paul's Catholic Church in Electra, will establish residence in Abilene.

Father David Johnson, pastor, and Rev. Bobby Gordon, a student at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, were the officiants for the impressive double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the former Miss Maria Catherine York, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. York Sr. of Iowa Park and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Brock of Sweetwater.

The bride was an exquisite picture in an original formal gown of white Chantilly lace worn over peau de soie. The pearl-sprinkled bodice was fashioned with a Queen Anne neckline edged in delicate Venise lace above a yoke of English net and a ruffle of pleated Chantilly lace. The long straight sleeves fit closely at the wrists with a wider band of Chantilly lace. Special skirt interest was created in a softly pleated panel in front with deep lace ruffles beginning at each side and cascading to a full cathedral length train.

The bride wore a white Southern Belle hat covered with matching Venise lace adorned with silk organza rosettes and seed pearls. White silk roses, stephanotis, gypsophila and green English ivy were chosen for the cascade bouquet which was a perfect complement to the bridal gown.

Adding a bit of special interest to her "something new" costume, she wore her mother's baby ring on her little finger for "something old," a friend's garter provided "something borrowed and blue," and she wore a good luck penny in her shoe.

The bride entered the church with her father who escorted her to the altar. On her way, she paused to pay tribute to her mother and to the groom's mother presenting them with long stemmed red roses.

A decorative setting for the ceremony was built around an altar arrangement of white gladioli, pink carnations and baby's breath flanked by seven-branched candelabra holding burning white tapers. The solemnity of the setting was emphasized through the kneeling bench where the bride and groom knelt during the scripture reading, and the unity candelabrum. The silk bows which marked the pews featured the traditional bridal white.

Parents of the couple expressed their sanction of the union by lighting the outer candles in the candlestick and left them burning for the couple to use later to light the center candle to symbolize their union.

The wedding music was provided by Denny Anderson, pianist, and Wendell Burnam, vocalist. For prelude selections, the pianist played "Fantasie," "Fur Elise," and "Clair de Lune." He accompanied the vocalist for his vocal offerings, "Always and Forever," "The Wedding Song" during the time the bride and groom were lighting the unity candle, "The Lord's Prayer" at the close of the ceremony, and "Follow Me" for the recessional. The pianist played "Trumpet Voluntary" for the processional.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Elton Wolter of Houston as matron of honor, and Mrs. Keith Brock of Sweetwater, sister-in-law of the groom, as bridesmaid. They wore identical gowns of pink eyelet fashioned with stylized attached capes that covered their shoulders and full gathered skirts. Claspings the dresses at the waistlines were wide sashes that criss-crossed in front and terminated in long streamers in the back. Pink rosebuds and baby's breath were featured in their nose-gays, and in their hair, they wore combs covered with pink silk blossoms.

The groom wore a silver Ashley tuxedo with white shirt, ascot tie, and a white rose and baby's breath boutonniere. Masculine participants and fathers of the couple wore tuxedos to match the groom's.

Keith Brock of Sweetwater, twin brother of the groom, served as best man and Bob Carlton of Abilene was groomsman. Mike McElroy and Billy Shelton, both of Abilene, ushered and seated guests.

The bride was graduated from Iowa Park High School and received a B.S. degree from Texas Tech Univ. in home economics. The groom was graduated from Sweetwater High School and from Hardin-Simmons Univ. at Abilene with a B.B.A. degree in accounting. He is employed as an auditor for the Department of Human Resources in Abilene and she is employed as a day care licensing representative for the same firm.

When guests arrived at the church for the wedding, they registered under the direction of Miss Marianne York, sister of the bride, at a table in the foyer covered with white lace over pink satin. The appointments were a crystal vase filled with pink silk rosebuds and baby's breath, a natural wicker basket decked with pink silk bows holding the white net birdseed bags tied with pink ribbons, the book and pink plume pen.

A reception honoring the couple was held immediately following the wedding in the Fellowship Hall and hosted by the bride's parents. The bride headed the receiving line and introduced her new husband to her friends. Parents of the couple stood in the line with them. Mrs. York wore a street length mauve Qiana dress accented with sheer sleeves and a sheer bow tie at the neckline that extended in streamers to the waistline. Mrs. Brock was attired in a light blue street length Qiana dress trimmed with white embroidered lace and long sleeves. Both wore white camellia corsages.

The refreshment table was draped to the floor with white lace over white crepe. The floral centerpiece consisting of an arrangement of pink and white carnations, cushion poms and gypsophila arranged in a crystal and silver epergne stood out beautifully in the decor. Complementary appointments were the crystal punch service, cake and pink napkins accented with silver Christograms, symbolizing marriage in Christ, above "Kenneth-Cathy, July 11, 1981."

Special beauty in the table was stressed in the four-tiered cake characterized by a florid style of ornamentation, drop garlands, shell borders and one set of sugar pillars. The tiers were abloom with pink and white cascading flowers featuring bridal trumpets, agapanthus, roses, stephanotis, petunias, gently contrasted with burgundy forget-me-nots, and the same blossoms were used in a cluster for the top garniture.

During the reception, refreshments were served by Miss Elaine Morrison of Beaumont, Miss Susanne Morgan of San Angelo, and Miss Kyleen Pelouquen of Abilene.

Tables where guests were seated for refreshments were covered with white cloths and held white candles afloat in pink water.

Houseparty members were Mmes. Gordon Griffith, Ray Sharpe, Daniel York Jr. and Anthony York.

The groom's parents were hosts for a catered rehearsal dinner Friday at the Chamber of Commerce in Electra.

Other out-of-town wedding guests were Mrs. Edith Brock of Clyde, grandmother of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Ramsey of Lewiston, Idaho and Elton Wolter of Houston.

Catlins to observe 50th anniversary

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Catlin are invited to attend a reception that will be held for them from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Garland R. Rusk to commemorate their 50th wedding anniversary.

The reception will be hosted by the couple's children, Mr. and Mrs. Rusk, Mr. and Mrs. James Riddlehuber, Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Catlin and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Catlin, and they will be assisted by the honored couple's grandchildren.

The former Vida Robinson and Cecil Catlin were married July 17, 1931, in Grandfield, Okla. He is an independent oil operator and they have lived in the Iowa Park community most of their lives.

MR. and MRS. CECIL CATLIN

They have 13 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Robertson, Patterson vows exchanged here Saturday evening

The candlelight nuptial setting at the altar of First Baptist Church Saturday evening for the wedding of Miss Tammie Jean Robertson and Mark Alton Patterson was characterized by a beauty that could not be described in words.

An abundance of votive candles twinkled in white wrought iron arched, seven-branched and spiral candelabra traced with boxwood studded with pink roses the length of the rostrum on either side of a center archway trimmed with the same greenery and roses and backgrounded by tree candelabra.

The picture was completed with the addition of two bouquets of pink carnations and leather leaf raised by tall white Grecian columns, and palm fronds in the lower altar as a contrasting accent. Church pews were decorated with white tapers burning in hurricane globes atop tall white standards trimmed with sprengeri fern and pink silk bows with trailing ribbons.

The double-ring ceremony was officiated by Rev. Howell Farnsworth to unite the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Robertson and the son of Mr. and Mrs. James "Bud" Patterson.

The foyer of the church where guests signed the wedding book upon arriving for the ceremony was decorated to create a summertime look. Doormen who directed guests to enter through the center door were Monty Todd and Wesley Todd, cousins of the bride. The doors on either side were centered with large pink satin bows.

The white wrought-iron garden furniture in the entry featured a round glass top table and two chairs with tall backs where Mrs. Russell Yarbrough and Mrs. Stan Clines, cousins of the bride, assisted guests with registering. The table was centered with a white bird cage entwined with silk ivy and pink apple blossoms sheltering two white feathered doves nesting in pous of white net.

Arnold Joe Robertson II and Leanne Lowrance, cousins of the bride, handed out the couple's wedding scrolls from white wicker baskets.

The musical setting was provided by Miss Lynette Flick, pianist, Miss Jane Dickey and Miss Michelle Mueller, vocalists. Miss Flick's prelude offerings included "Theme from Ice Castles," "Hawaiian Wedding Song," and "What A Difference You've Made in My Life." She played accompaniment for Miss Dickey's solo number, "You Decorated My Life" after mother's of the couple were seated, and for Miss Mueller's presentation of "Welcome to My World." The pianist included the traditional processional by Wagner and the recessional by Mendelssohn in her offerings.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father who presented her in marriage for her parents.

The soft glow of white chiffon with luxurious Venice lace artfully applied created the mood for the bridal gown. The scoop neckline, raised bodice and sheer sleeves were elaborately trimmed with lace appliques and pearls to complement the full skirt that flowed into a graceful chapel length train.

Her fingertip veil of illusion gently bordered with lace drifted from a Juliet cap of lace. To complete the picture, the bride carried a white Bible topped with a cascade bouquet fashioned of pink roses, gypsophila and streamers.

She kept bridal traditions by attaching to a ribbon in her Bible a ring that belonged to her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Clyde Robertson, and a pearl stick pin of Mrs. Fred Toler, her maternal grandmother, for "something old". She wore her mother's diamond earrings for "something borrowed"; chose her gown for the memorable day in her life for "something new", and wore the garter for the "something blue" accessory.

The bride was preceded to the altar by a maid of honor, three bridesmaids and a flower girl. Miss Mickie Gregg took part in the wedding as maid of honor. Miss Dana Hicks, Miss Wendy Hicks and Miss Laura Dowell were bridesmaids. The maid of honor carried a nosegay of pink sweetheart roses, baby's breath with matching streamers on a white Bible, and the bridesmaids carried nosegays of pink carnations and baby's breath on their Bibles which emphasized the beauty of their gowns. Styled-identically, the pink Qiana dresses were made with the popular natural waist bodices covered with lace, spaghetti straps and A-line skirts. To complete their costumes, they added lace jackets.

Miss Amanda Patterson, niece of the groom, the flower girl, wore a long pink sheer frock styled with ruffles that formed the sleeves and tiers of the long skirt. She carried a smaller version of the attendant's nosegays on a white Bible.

Cody Lowrance of Chico, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

The groom wore a formal slate gray tuxedo with tails, white shirt, and a boutonniere formed of pink rosebuds, leather leaf. All masculine participants wore slate gray tuxedos. Fathers of the couple wore white shirts and the other wore pink shirts.

Ran Yarbrough, the bride's cousin, served as best man. Three brothers of the groom, Micky Patterson of Anson, Ricky Patterson and Roger Patterson, both of Wichita Falls, were groomsmen. Duties of ushering guests to their seats were assumed by Rowdy Robertson, brother of the bride, Greg Patterson, brother of the groom, Royce Atchley and Russell Yarbrough, the bride's cousin.

The mother of the bride wore a formal georgette gown of mauve pink defined with a natural waist bodice. Victorian style neckline bordered with a self-pleated ruffle, long sheer sleeves and A-line skirt. The mother of the groom wore a long pink double knit dress with long sleeves, a pink lace stand-up collar and a full length jacket. Their corsages consisted of white carnations, pink roses mixed with baby's breath.

The postnuptial reception was given by the bride's parents in the Fellowship Hall of the church which was decorated in extremely good taste.

The bride's table, draped to the floor with white lace, stood out in the setting with striking beauty and charm. The centerpiece was a splashing pink water fountain surrounded by eight tall white cherub columns and topped with an arrangement of pink carnations and sprengeri fern with the greenery extending around the columns.

The five-tiered bride's cake with three sets of Grecian pillars was a queenly confection garnished with dramatic patterns of icing and cascades of pink frosting roses. The roses were used in a cluster on the top tier where a miniature bride and groom stood before a heart of pearls lightly touched with pink and white accents.

Punch was served with an antique silver ladle from the crystal bowl. The bridal napkins bearing the names of the bride and groom and their wedding date and pink bell-shaped mints added interest to the table decor.

Presiding at the bride's table were Mmes. Bruce Lowrance, Johnny Lowrance, Eddie Richardson and Dorene Huff, cousins of the bride.

Mrs. Ricky Patterson and Mrs. Micky Patterson, sisters-in-law of the groom, served at his table laid with light gray silk over charcoal gray crepe. The appointment with the greatest eye appeal was a cowboy boot filled with bearded wheat in the center, flanked by the chocolate cake set off with horseshoe frosting designs, and the silver coffee service.

A white metal three-tiered cart held the white lace rice bags tied with pink ribbons which were distributed by Wendy and Courtney Patterson, nieces of the groom. Elsewhere in the room, a white draped table held a five-branched silver candelabrum filled with tall pink tapers and nosegays of the bridal attendants to add extra beauty to the setting.

Houseparty members were Mmes. Doyle Parks, Larry Latimer, Jimmy Banks, Gene Lowrance and James Yarbrough.

The rehearsal dinner was given by the groom's parents Friday evening at the First United Pentecostal Church.

The bride and groom left the reception in their wedding clothes and went to the home of her parents to change into their traveling clothes as they departed for Ruidoso, N.M. They will live in Iowa Park. Both were graduated from Iowa Park High School and he is a self-employed contract welder.

Grandparents of the couple, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Toler and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Robertson were special guests.

As I See It....

By BOB HAMILTON

Who were those people and nations who jumped on the bandwagon in blaming the wrongs of the Shah of Iran for killing all those people, and are they saying the same things about the present government and the hundreds who have been executed?

And speaking about who said what, ... who was it who complained about the coolness and wetness of June?

Newspaper publishers keep a mental list of businesses and individuals we call "dead beats." They are the ones who want free publicity and never want to pay for advertising.

You wouldn't believe the offers we have for stories about products and services we receive through the mail. A newspaper could easily publish 20 to 30 pages each week, completely filled with dead beat material.

Monday's mail, for instance, included a news release, complete with photograph, pamphlet and personal letter to the editor, about a self protection aerosol that is better than a gun in case of a riot. The president of the company even offered a free sample, and then, as an enticement to get me to run the article, asked for my rate card.

The Imperial Sugar company has hired the services of a "public relations and advertising" firm to send out news stories all the time. This week's release was about making sun tea. Why would Imperial be interested in that? Simple, unlike some instant tea, if you like your tea sweetened, you have to add sugar.

The state comptroller Bob Bullock is one of the leading dead beats. He uses state funds to send out "news releases" regularly, and many of them take political issue with some other politician's ideas about legislation.

Some of Bullock's products are real beauts, such as one that came this week. With full color pictures on almost every page, the pamphlet which must have cost thousands of dollars to produce tells us "Why Texas Is Growing." Now, that's a dandy for a bookkeeper to put out for the public.

Bullock even hired his own personal public information man who believes his boss' name should appear within the first four words of any story coming out of the office.

One of my favorite dead beats is the professional organizations, like medical, legal, accounting and veterinary groups. They've got so many ethics that it's against their good name to buy or pay for an advertisement, but each, except for the legal, has a contest each year to give a plaque to the reporter writing the best story about their profession.

Cook of the Week

Planning family meals has always been, and always will be, a very special job for the homemaker. It requires a lot of thought to serve meals each day that have a healthful balance of the "Big Four" food groups.

A very personal responsibility lies in the hands of young mothers because they are educating their children to eat for a long, healthful lifetime; and early food habits begin at their own tables every mealtime.

In this time of tight economy, many homemakers are finding it hard at times to plan, prepare and serve a variety of nutritious meals without "leaving them limp and the kitchen in wild disorder." They are looking for food bargains on the shelves in the grocery stores and scanning daily leftovers with an eye to the food budget.

Wise mothers consider the family's food tastes and do not force certain foods on them. They have learned that appetites lag occasionally and that family members tire of eating inside all the time, so they plan an outdoor meal or encourage Dad and the children to fix a meal occasionally. The last idea is sure to cause the family's appreciation of the regular cook's efforts to grow with each of their own cooking adventures.

Evelyn (Mrs. Robert) Kinnett's recipes for the week suggest that she plans menus with an artist's eye by varying the color and texture of food combinations. She has a fondness for German foods and shares two of her favorite recipes this week.

A native of Wichita Falls, Mrs. Kinnett was graduated from Hirschi High School. She is continuing her education at Midwestern State Univ. where she is working toward a bachelor of science degree. She is also working as a technician at North Texas Dialysis Center. She is very interested in P-TA work and politics. She enjoys cooking, sewing and ceramics.

Mr. and Mrs. Kinnett are members of Faith Baptist Church. He works for Falls City Casing Pullers. They have two sons, Lonnie, a high school freshman, and Brian, a first grader.

Coal's our most abundant fuel . . .

let's go ahead and use it.

Volumes of bureaucratic regulations restrict our use of coal at a time when its use needs to be encouraged.

We Americans have always been forward-looking people. We've always kept our eyes—and our options—open.

An energy option we need to exercise is the use of coal to generate electricity. It makes sense: Coal is our most abundant fuel with known reserves that will last more than 300 years at present rates of consumption; its cost is rising slower than that of other fuels; and using it helps reduce our petroleum imports.

The largest obstacle to our continued development of this necessary resource is over-zealous government regulation. By imposing unnecessary measures this unrealistic over-regulation slows our progress, increases the cost of your electricity, and does little or nothing to protect the environment. For example:

- Present standards for coal plants require more stringent emission limits on a plant using low-sulfur coal than a plant using high-sulfur coal, which, in effect, provides an incentive to use "dirtier" coal and penalizes plants that use low-sulfur or "cleaner" coal.
- Regulatory documentation for a permit to mine coal in Texas in 1975 consisted of a single report about one-half inch thick. Obtaining permits for the same area in 1980 required volumes of reports.

We have the technology today to use coal cleanly and safely. It's plentiful and relatively inexpensive, if its use is not over-regulated. And we need the energy now.

LOUIS SEFCIK

By Bob Hamilton

Wheel chair no handicap to jeweler's happiness

An old description of a man who was a poor worker was "He sits on the job."

Well, Louis Sefcik sits on the job. In fact, he sits while feeding his livestock, while fishing and all the rest of the time. But he has to sit. He's paralyzed from the waist down, and he's no poor worker.

Louis, who owns and operates Louis' Jewelry, is like most all those who are handicapped: he's an inspiration to those of us who supposedly have no handicaps. His friendliness, his outlook on life, his willingness to help, his taking part in community affairs, cannot be overlooked.

But there's one thing he scorns: sympathy. As far as he is concerned, he isn't handicapped. It just takes him a little longer to get around than most.

During an interview, he asked this writer if he knew the definition of handicap. And with a gleam in his eye, he referred to a dictionary which stated, in effect, it was an equalizer. He was referring to the term used in sports, like horse racing or golfing, where the leader is burdened to allow the others an equal chance to win.

"There are not many people I'd trade places with."

"There's not many people I'd trade places with," he stated very frankly. "I don't like it (being restricted to a wheel chair) at all, but I've learned to put up with it."

Born early in 1934 on a farm northeast of Harrold, he led a normal life of a Texas farm boy. He went through all the grades in school at Harrold, played six-man football, basketball and ran track, and was in Vocational Agriculture.

And he graduated with his class, but there was a question for a while if he would be present for the ceremonies.

In October of his senior year, 1951, he had played a football game on a Thursday night, and left the next morning for Dallas to attend the state fair. The Vo-Ag group returned home Saturday, and he recalls he was hot and not feeling well. The condition remained through Sunday.

Monday, still feeling badly, he went to see a doctor. The diagnosis was that he was still feeling the effects of a bad bruise on a hip from Thursday's football game.

But Tuesday morning, he knew something was definitely wrong. One of his legs wouldn't respond when he tried to get out of bed. Straight to the doctor he was taken, and this time the diagnosis was corrected. Polio.

He had been able to walk into the doctor's office, by keeping his knee stiff. But when the doctor determined the problem, he was taken directly to Wichita General Hospital by ambulance. There, he was given a spinal tap and told to lie still. "The next morning I woke up about as I am now," he said, looking down at his lifeless legs.

Eventhough there were a number of polio victims in the hospital, the facility was ill equipped to give therapy at that time. Only one woman was working in the department, trying to work with all the patients.

Louis remembers making a strong friendship with the late Donald Cope of Iowa Park, who occupied the room next to his.

He remained in the Wichita Falls facility until mid-December, when he was transferred to the rehabilitation center at Gonzales. While taking therapy there, he continued his education. "I only needed three credits to graduate, and when I got back to Harrold in April, I was ahead of the rest of my class in math. And they told me I could graduate if I passed the tests in English and history," he recalled.

He was walking on crutches across the stage when he received his diploma in May, graduating second in his class. "The one who graduated first in the class was a girl who sat right in front of me," he quipped, implying he looked over her shoulder from time to time.

"I don't like it at all, but I've learned to live with it."

The next fall, he entered a watchmaking course which was offered at Midwestern University. After two semesters, the course was closed at the Wichita Falls school, and he transferred to Kilgore Junior College.

Asked how a big-fingered farm boy happened to choose a field working with small workings of watches, he said his aptitude test indicated mechanics.

"I think he (the counselor) told me

"I get along with kids better than anything...."

mechanical was number one, and mountain climbing number two," he laughed.

In 1953 Louis went to work for Bill Holder, the jeweler at Archer City. Things were going well for the young man on crutches, until yet another tragedy struck.

"About a year after I went to work for Bill, I got sick. Tests and x-rays showed I had TB (tuberculosis). There were some complications and a delay of about two weeks. Then one day a nurse came into the room and told me to roll over on my back," he recalled.

When he attempted to roll over, the muscles in his stomach somehow tore. Surgery was required. And the main cure for TB was rest, so he spent the next two years in bed.

It apparently was the lack of activity during those two years which caused Louis to completely lose what leg muscles he had remaining from his bout with polio. Leg braces and crutches could no longer support him, and he has been restricted to the wheel chair since 1955.

With the aid of a brace he wears around his waist, which he must return to Gonzales annually for a new one to be built, he opened his own store in 1956 in the building east of the present Discount Food Store. His former employer, Holder, helped him by stocking the store. He repaid his benefactor as he sold the merchandise. He remained in that location until moving to his present location in Park West Shopping Center 11 years later.

It was also in 1967 that he married his wife, Betty, who brought with her a ready-made family of three children: Audrey, Lydia and George Bushfield. Having a family was also good therapy for Louis. "I get along with kids better than anything. If I could get along with adults like I do kids, everything would be easier," he said.

He had seen a friend's car equipped for complete hand driving, and soon had one equipped for himself. He was confident of his ability to drive the automobile, but the problem was convincing his parents. Like all parents, his wanted to protect him from harm until they were convinced the car was safe to operate.

He's had two accidents driving his specially-equipped cars, and neither was avoidable or his fault. The first wreck, he was stopped at a stop sign, and the second, the other driver failed to stop at a marked intersection and hit him broadside.

He likes to tell the story of a discussion between Sam Fairchild, the body shop owner, and an insurance adjuster, after Louis' second accident.

The adjuster was playing it close and not offering to have some work done when Sam told him "Fella, the driver of this car hasn't taken a step since the wreck." He laughs and said the adjuster told Sam to fix whatever he felt was necessary.

The Sefciks lived on Vogel until 1968, when they moved to their home in the country. They lived near his father, who was ill, and Louis could help look after him and the livestock. "I still like going out and checking the livestock," he said.

"Just as soon as I had enough money, I bought me an old wooden boat," he said, concerning his love of fishing. He justified the purchase: "It's easier to travel in a boat on the water than on an old rocky bank, by far."

Louis loves to fish, and does just about every chance he can get. It is not only his one apparent vice, but also serves as a form of continuing therapy.

If he hasn't the opportunity to go with someone to a lake, he often wheels himself to a stock tank near his home.

Being relegated to a wheel chair presents some problems to Louis, but few of them are major. Stairs are his nemesis.

He gets in and out of his automobile as easily as he does his bed . . . by himself. Few projects around the home or shop are major obstacles. But he recalls once dropping his outboard motor he was attempting to lift onto a barrel. "Broke off the spark plug when it fell."

There are problems with flats on the bicycle tires of his chair. Anyone who has attempted to ride a bicycle, or wheel chair, in pastures or yards where there are stickers knows they are unavoidable. "I just take them off and patch them," he explains the remedy.

Asked what he misses the most, in not being able to walk, Louis responded "Seeing people jogging. I wonder, at my age, what it would be like."

Once, while taking therapy at Gonzales, he said he became depressed when he realized he was handicapped for life. But seeing others in his own, or even worse, predicament, plus the help of staff personnel in the clinic, helped him through that period.

Louis thinks little of being handicapped, nor has he allowed it to keep him from living a full and rewarding life. "I've got everything I need or could want. I'm happy," he said.

For those who know Louis, that's not a surprising observation by the wheel chair occupant who didn't even know 1981 had been designated as the "International Year of the Handicapped."

Bryant, Blackwell rites read by bride's father Friday evening

The Friday evening wedding of Miss Belinda Kay Bryant and Timothy Wayne Blackwell was keynoted by family sentiment when her father, who gave her in marriage for her parents, also officiated the double-ring ceremony, and brothers of the couple provided the vocal music.

The bride is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Fred Bryant of Wichita Falls, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Blackwell of Iowa Park. The Victory Baptist Church in Wichita Falls, where Rev. Bryant serves as pastor, was the setting for the wedding.

For the service, the altar of the church was decorated with a center archway traced with boxwood greenery. On either side were white tapers aglow in arch candelabra, and brass columns holding bouquets of yellow carnations, white daisies and purple statice. Aisle posts topped with candles and yellow bows marked the pews.

Prelude piano selections played by John Speed included one of his compositions, "3rd Movement of Mizpah," "Always," "Somewhere My Love," "A Time for Us," "Love Story," and "Sunrise, Sunset." He provided the accompaniment for "Walk Hand in Hand," a solo rendition by Paul T. Blackwell, twin brother of the groom, and another solo, "Can Two Walk Together?" by Marrion Bryant, brother of the bride. The pianist also accompanied the vocalists for a duet number, "Whither Thou Goest" and played the processional and recessional compositions.

MRS. TIMOTHY BLACKWELL

The bride carried a teardrop bouquet of spring flowers composed of white and yellow daisy poms, sweetheart roses, pixie carnations, purple statice and gypsophila to complement her formal white sheer organza gown adorned with lavish Venise lace trim.

Appliques of the lace graced the slightly raised bodice designed with a high lace neck, a V yoke outlined with tiny pleats and long fitted sleeves that terminated in ruffles at the wrists. The attraction of the full skirt was enhanced with a lace hem and three tiers of pleated ruffles that fell into a graceful chapel length train. The bride's chapel length veil of bridal illusion drifted from a lace-covered camelot cap.

She wore an heirloom pearl necklace for "something old," pearl earrings that belonged to her sister, Miss Belva Bryant for "something borrowed," wore her gown and garter for "something new" and "something blue" and slipped a penny in her wedding slipper.

The maid of honor, bridesmaids and candlelighter were attired in yellow organza gowns worn over yellow taffeta. In design, they featured ruffled front and back necklines, capelet sleeves, set-in waist bands, flared skirts, flounced hems secured at the back waistline with organza flowers. The attendants carried nosegays of yellow pixie carnations, purple statice and baby's breath, and the candlelighter wore a corsage of yellow pixie carnations and baby's breath.

Miss Belva Bryant, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Tammie Shirley, Miss Sherlene McLendon and Miss Sharon Brandt of Oklahoma City. Miss Karen Scarbrough lighted the candles for the ceremony.

The flower girl was Shannon Bryant, niece of the bride. She wore a floor length princess-style dress of yellow organza dotted swiss made with slightly raised waistline, gathered skirt with a flounced hemline, ruffled neckline and puff sleeves. The mid-length ruffled overskirt accented with ruffled tiers of Venise lace swept up one side and was joined at the waistline with a bow of dotted swiss. She carried a white wicker basket holding yellow pixie carnations, daisies and baby's breath.

James and Chris Blackwell of Walters, Okla., cousins of the groom, carried the rings for the service. They were clad in classic white Eton suits with knee length pants.

Paul T. Blackwell, the groom's twin brother, was his best man. Groomsmen were George Blackwell, another brother of the groom, Tony Franklin and Corky Scarbrough. Marrion G. Bryant, the bride's brother, was assigned duties of ushering.

The groom wore three yellow roses mingled with leather leaf and baby's breath for a boutonniere with his white Saxony tuxedo. The men who took part in the wedding were attired in brown summit tuxedos and light yellow shirts.

Mrs. Bryant, mother of the bride, chose a floor length dress of taupe sophisticated satin styled with V neckline bordered in Chantilly lace, high fitted bodice with contour-shaped waistline. The dress was topped with a loose fitting galloon lace jacket with full length sleeves. Mrs. Blackwell, the groom's mother, wore a formal yellow silesta chiffon gown fashioned with a raised bodice, Queen Anne neckline, long sheer sleeves and accordion pleated skirt. On their shoulders, they wore corsages of yellow sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Preceding the couple's departure for a wedding trip to Dallas when the bride travelled in a two-piece yellow and white dress and wore a corsage of spring flowers, the bride's parents honored them at a reception held in the Fellowship Hall of the church.

The oblong bride's table, covered with white lace over yellow, was centered with a five-branched candelabrum draped with yellow and white carnations, purple statice and baby's breath.

The four-tiered white cake, divided with three sets of columns decorated with lilies of the valley, was deftly frosted with trailing yellow roses on the sides and three rows of the roses around the base tier. The top ornament, a romantic design, featured a trellis covered with lace and pearl-centered daisies that formed a background for two kissing cherubs.

The white napkins lettered in gold with "Tim and Belinda, July 10, 1981" and the crystal punch service harmonized with the table decor.

The groom's table was laid with a floral-designed white lace cloth over yellow. It held the double-wedding bell-shaped chocolate cake, coffee service and two crystal baskets filled with yellow and white satin rice rosebuds.

Reception assistants were Mmes. Don Scarbrough, Phil Bess, Marrion Bryant and Miss Carol Wages.

The groom's parents were hosts for the rehearsal dinner at K-Bob's Steak House. The tables were laid with ivory lace cloths and decorated with spring bouquets and candles.

The newlyweds are both employed by B&W Sheet Metal & Roofing in Wichita Falls. She was graduated from Wichita Falls High School and he was graduated from Iowa Park High School.

The new Mrs. Blackwell was honored at two prenuptial showers.

Out-of-town wedding guests included Mrs. Zona Buckley of Marietta, Okla., grandmother of the bride; Messrs. and Mrs. Tim Brandt and Jill, Gene Landrum, Bob Bryant, Mrs. Sally Roberts, all of Lawton, Okla.; Mr. and Mrs. Claud Crossland, Tony and Traci of Burneyville, Okla.

Birk Circle meets

Mrs. C.E. Birk was hostess for the Tuesday morning meeting of the Lucy Birk Circle of the First Presbyterian Church and for the salad luncheon that followed. Mrs. L. Shelton was the presiding officer.

Miss Titia Belle Blanks taught the Bible lesson. She was assisted by Mmes. Gale Lowrance, Norman Nettleton and Edna Lemond in helping to develop the topic, "Exalted Through Suffering."

Miss Blanks stated that the remnant expressed their spiritual insight into the actual work of the Messiah as he performed it in his own suffering and, today, it is the believer who will be exalted because Christ suffered for him.

Trustees hire teachers, add baseball program

Several important topics were discussed and acted upon during the Holliday school board's regular meeting Monday night.

Three new teachers were hired, baseball was added to the high school athletic program for 1981-82, the board created additional responsibilities and set salaries for five departmental heads in high school to be named later, and principals Dan Owen and Bill Lee were given additional responsibilities and salary increases.

Gordon L. Turner, an Iowa Park junior and senior high math teacher, was hired to teach high school math. Martha Kay Higgins, currently teaching in Corsicana, was hired to replace Annetta Reusch as high school English teacher, and Patty Schulte was hired to replace Connie York as elementary and high school librarian.

After much discussion concerning the pros and cons of initiating a new baseball program in Holliday, trustees voted to add baseball to the athletic program. Athletic director Don Lucy is to name the coaches and submit a budget proposal at the next meeting when trustees will set the school budget for the 1981-82 school year.

There was some concern that starting a baseball program in Holliday will spread the athletes too thin with the addition of baseball to track, golf and tennis in the spring. Holliday, Archer City and Millsap are the only schools in the district without a baseball program.

One trustee mentioned that several parents of Little League ball players, among others, have shown great interest in starting a program in the school.

High school principal Bill Lee submitted his recommendations upon request for the creation of five departmental head positions. The head of each department, to be named later, will be given $400 increase over present salary. A motion to amend the increase to $500 was voted down, with Larry Finnell and Durhl Caussey voting for, and Mrs. Alice Carver, Jack Ayres and Gene Harmon voting against the amendment.

Elementary principal Dan Owen was named to supervise cafeteria and maintenance, and was given an increase of $2,331 over present salary. Lee was named to head the school's transportation, and his salary period was extended from 10 to 11 months, and $700 over present salary.

In other business, the vocational agriculture budget was accepted as submitted by advisor Cal Gauden. City National Bank of Wichita Falls was named bank depositor, and the student group insurance coverage was renewed.

The vocational agriculture budget, totalling $14,904, was accepted by the board. Major cost estimates in the budget are $4,000 for expendable supplies such as welding supplies, metal, wood, shop towels, cleaning fluid or solvents, $3,700 for teacher travel, and $2,000 for a covered stock trailer.

Don Talley of Talley Insurance acted as a consultant for the school in deciding which student group coverage to take. Heritage Insurance was accepted by the board. Rates for kindergarten through sixth grade are $12 for school hours only coverage, and $35 for 24-hour coverage. Rates for seventh through 12th grades and faculty, administration and non-faculty personnel is $16 and $38. Rates for senior high football coverage is $45.

City National Bank was named as depositor for a period beginning Sept. 1 and ending Aug. 31, 1983. Representing City National was Dean Swinney. Other banks bidding for depositor were State National Bank, represented by Bill Steger, and Parker Square Bank, represented by Tony Clark.

JOHN WILSON

Holliday man named officer

John Wilson of Holliday was elected recently as regional vice president for the Texas Association of Realtors.

Active in real estate in Wichita Falls since graduating from Midwestern State Univ. in 1972, Wilson has served in several capacities with the Wichita Falls Board of Realtors. He was named Multiple Listing Service chairman in 1976, president of the Board of Realtors in 1977, and Realtor of the Year in 1978.

Wilson is also active in civic affairs, serving as Board of Commerce and Industry Gold Coated Ambassador, and as deacon at Tenth and Broad Church of Christ.

Wilson and his wife Linda have two sons, Stephen and Shannon. He is the son of Mrs. R.R. Wilson and the late R. R. Wilson of Harrold.

Street resurfacing, police salary highlight meeting

Holliday city council Monday night set new police chief Lomax Campbell's salary and discussed resurfacing approximately two miles of streets.

After meeting in executive session to discuss personnel and the right-of-way project on Highway 277, council returned to open session before setting Campbell's salary at $1,250 per month.

Discussion of the right-of-way project included setting an estimate of cost to obtain a channel easement on approximately two and three-fourth acres owned by B.W. Stone.

According to city administrator Jim Hamill, independent appraisals have already been made, and mayor James Cook, precinct commissioner Yvonne Carter and a representative of the Highway Department will meet with Stone to work out a settlement. Street resurfacing was discussed, and Hamill was instructed to meet with Mrs. Carter and work out arrangements with Archer County to pave approximately two miles of streets. In past agreements, the city supplied the materials, while the county supplied labor and equipment.

In other business, liability and firemen's insurance was renewed through St. Paul Insurance Co. of Arlington, represented by Don Talley of Talley Insurance, at a cost of $5,448.

In addition, council tentatively agreed to tap an eight-inch water line at Randy Shanks' residence across from Jeter's Liquor Store; asked dump ground operator Pete Snyder to attend the next council meeting to discuss modifying dump ground hours; and by voice approval decided to work with Roy C. Ling in laying a six-inch water line across FM 368 to Old State Road for a present residence and with potential development in the future.

Lawmakers enter special session

State Rep. Charles Finnell returned to Austin Friday in preparation for the special legislative session which began Monday.

"One major issue facing us will be the drawing of the state's 27 congressional districts to reflect the demographic changes reported in the 1980 Census," stated Finnell, "and another item of emergency nature will be the extension of the Medical Practice Act, which includes provisions for the licensing and regulation of the state's physicians."

Other topics to be considered in this special session are repeal of the state ad valorem tax, the creation of a water trust fund from surplus state revenues, and revision of the property tax code approved in 1979.

Under the Texas Constitution, a special session is limited to 30 days in which to address the topics proposed by the governor.

Wichita Falls, Texas 76301
(817) 322-5560
Emergency Number 911

To help keep the cost of ambulance service down, and to upgrade our service to Advanced Life Support System (ALSS) which would allow your City and County to have Paramedics on our ambulances; Plumlee Emergency Medical Service, Inc. is offering to the residents of the cities and county with which we have contracted, a membership program for ambulance service.

This program is for Emergency and Doctor ordered ambulance service to Wichita General Hospital and Bethania Hospital only. Transfers and non-emergency ambulance service will remain the same.

At this time, the base rate for ambulance service to the hospital is $65.00. The base rate for service from the hospital is $55.00 plus $1.50 per loaded mile.

However, if you become a member, you will join at a rate of $50.00 for a single membership (individual) or $65.00 for a family of four (including two dependents under the age of 18 living with you). If you have more than two dependents living with you, there will be an additional charge of $10.00 for each dependent. There is no limit on the number of emergency or doctor ordered calls you may have during the year.

As a member, you will be charged 75¢ per loaded mile instead of the regular price of $1.50 per loaded mile. We would still have to charge for supplies that are used during the call.

If you have Medicare or other insurance that would pay the ambulance charge, as a member we will file one claim so that you could be reimbursed for your membership fee.

For transfers to other hospitals, as a member you would be charged one half the regular cost of the transfer.

In order for this membership to be made available, we must have a minimum of 15,000 members. All memberships that are received will be put in escrow and at the end of the deadline, if our goal has not been reached, your money will be refunded.

Why gas is so efficient:

Natural Energy

Natural gas works for you in its original form. It's a natural fuel, not manufactured energy. And the most efficient way to use it is in the form nature created. You'll save energy, save money, by making direct use of gas to heat your home, heat water, dry clothes and cook. And Lone Star can deliver all the gas you need for your home. It's another good reason to be glad you're served by the Lone Star system.

Gas. It's plentiful, efficient and right for the times.

Wire collector Lion's program

Riley Thompson gave an interesting program on one of his several hobbies, that of barb wire collecting, for the Evening Lions Club Tuesday.

He said that the need for farmers to separate their grazing lands in the U.S. became apparent around 1840 and that by 1850 barb wire was being manufactured in Ill. and sent west. He said that eventually each rancher had his own particular type of wire and that today there were more than 100 different kinds.

Thompson displayed about 36 different types of the wire that he has in his collection and gave the members and guests a stick of Brinks 2-Twist patented April 8, 1878, for a souvenir.

Jim Spears was received into the club as a new member and guests were Mmes. Sam Hunter, E.E. Wallis and Riley Thompson.
