Clean-up to begin Monday on building

Though Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Wilson asked for more time to clean up the burnt building in the 100 block of West Cash, members of the city council Monday night disagreed and said the city would do it for them.

City crews are to begin clearing away the remaining structure Monday morning, according to James Barrington, city administrator.

The Wilsons had been notified last week that they were in default of their agreement with the city, and invited to make comments at Monday's regular meeting of the council.

Wilson said he and his wife needed more time, charged the city was giving them "a bad time" because hey were not residents of Iowa Park and that they have "been Christian and hard working."

Though he admitted the residue of the fire was an eyesore, Wilson charged that the city did nothing to the former owners for not cleaning he area but had been harassing them (Wilsons) since they purchased it. He pointed out there is another partially burnt structure in the south part of

Barrington, in response, said the ci y contacted former owner James Whi aker within 10 days after the Dec. 26, 1983 fire, to have the area cleaned, and added contact was made hree other times while he still owned

Alderman George Hammonds poin ed out that if the city did not go ahead and clean the lot, now that the Wilsons had failed to meet their part of the agreement, the city would fail o comply with the same agreement. A vote by the council was not taken un il members had met 38 minutes behind closed doors in executive session with the city attorney. Bu' when the council returned to open session, aldermen voted unanimously to undertake the cleaning process and place a lien agains' the property for all expenses.

Mayor Tim Hunter said later that only a short part of the executive session was concerning the Wilson building. The greater portion of the session dealt with the city providing legal counsel for three officers of the police department who are named in a sui Aldermen also voted unanimously o provide legal assistance for the officers.

OTHER BUSINESS

Council members voted unanimously, though reluctantly, to approve an agreement with Harper Perkins Architects for phase two of he city hall renovation project.

Alderman Bud Mercer said the firm's fee, which could run as high as 15 percent of the project's total cost, was too high. He said two other renovation projects in the city were cosing considerably less for archi ectual fees.

Council members agreed that the city was too far along on the project o change architects, but no one disagreed with Mercer when he said, "I 'hink we ought to look elsewhere in he future."

Also approved was a motion to sell wo lots to Billy Henson, the sole bidder in response to an advertisemen:. Henson offered $251 for two lo's he had thought several years he owned next to his home, but found from records they actually belonged o 'he city.

The council also agreed to advertise for sale an old fire truck the fire department has retired and been using only for parts.

A request for authorization to spend $4,975 for additional trash con'ainers and parts was approved.

A proposal that city employees who do not work in emergency capacity, such as the police department, be given all of Christmas Eve, a Monday, as a holiday was approved.

A public appearance by a representative of Burlington Northern Railroad did not materialize.

The representative, Danny Christian, was to request the city close the Wall Street crossing of the tracks, because it is unsafe due to no crossarms.

Mayor Hunter told the council he had earlier informed Christian the ci y was not interested in closing the crossing, both because Wall is a major connection with the south part of own, and also because a $263,000 repair project on the street in repair project on the street is planned. However, Hunter said Christian had told him he still wanted to talk with the full council, according to the

A touch of irony this week: I received two letters, one explaining why the author doesn't shop in Iowa Park and the other telling why we should shop here.

The first, by J.C. Bales, appears elsewhere on this page. He writes in response to a comment I made in this space a few weeks earlier, that taxes will increase if we don't do our shopping locally.

I'm blowing smoke, says Bales. I won't run the other letter, eventhough I wholly agree with it. The letter is unsigned.

But Bales' letter let me know that not all people understand business and economics, let alone loyalty to one's community. So I'd like to explain just how it works.

Look around town. It's changed a lot over the years. In a short period of ime... and talking a few months.... we've lost a dress shop, a grocery store, drive-in, lumber yard, and a couple of smaller shops.

Why? They didn't do enough business to keep their doors open. Oh, I disagree with Mr. Bales, that they weren't competitive with their prices. Our businesses have as low everyday prices as comparable businesses in the neighboring city. No, they don't banter their weekly bargains as loudly as some inWichita Falls, but they are competitive.

If one believes he can drive 30 miles round trip to save a couple of dollars on a purchase, he's kidding himself. It costs money to travel, in gasoline, wear on vehicle, insurance, what have you. And that's not including your time. But maybe time is cheaper to some than others.

However, the real issue is having businesses here locally, to serve shoppers when they are in need.

Any business must have volume to stay open. The amount of volume most times has to do with the price charged. The greater the volume, the lower the price.

My point was, in the previous column, that our taxes will increase if we don't deal with our local businesses.

Virtually every business in Iowa Park generates sales taxes. One cent ou: of every dollar spent here is returned through sales tax rebates

Why is the amount decreasing? Because, primarily the number of businesses we have is reducing.

So, businesses last year generated $87,480 in personal property and $120,222 in sales tax, amounting to $207,702 which helped pay the $1,130,350 city general fund budget. And this does not include the ad valorem taxes paid by the businesses. Because of the buildings and value of real es a'e where they're located, one can' rela'e home values as an equal. I would estimate that businesses generate, through ad valorem, personal property and sales taxes, over 30 percent of the total city budge'.

So, the fewer businesses we have, he more taxes on homes will have to increase to meet the budget necessary to operate our city.

Businesses also help with your u ili y bills. You didn't know that? Well, according to the formula used for rate making, a utility can set its ra es to generate so many dollars annually, based on the utility's investment in a community. Since businesses pay higher rates than homeowners, it stands to reason that he fewer businesses in a community, he higher home utility rates will be. And then there's the part businesses play in each community. Who is it that supports your soccer eams, football teams, baseball, baske ball and softball teams, school activities, 4-H and FFA animal projects, purchases uniforms for adul: and youth teams, buys calendars, tickets, candy, cookies, buttons and what have you?

Look in your child's school annual and see how many individual, non-business sponsors there are in he advertisements.

And I'll be the first to admit that he price you paid for your subscription to the Leader doesn't keep his business in operation. No sir, i's the advertisements placed by businesses that pay our salaries. Your subscription rate hardly pays for more than postage and handling.

A community is not people alone. A community is its people, the schools, is government and its businesses, none of which can stand alone.

Sure the stores are in Wichita Falls. Wanna run over there for that loaf of bread you forgot you needed for supper? How about the time you woke up with a terrible headache and needed some aspirin? Wouldn't it have been fun to just "run over" to Wichi a Falls to pick up a bottle, maybe at 3 in the morning?

Did you ever get all fixed up, take he day off from work, and go to Wichi'a Falls to have your eyes checked, only to find out you could make an appointment three months la er?

Try this one: call a Wichita Falls plumber at 10 p.m. when your commode is backing up into the living room and ask them to help you, right hen!

There's not a business in this community that expects all your business. They only ask that you shop hem. Give them a chance. In other words, "Shop Iowa Park First."

Then, if you don't find what you wan', or think you can truthfully save money by shopping elsewhere, that's fine. At least you gave your neighbor a chance.

And had you ever thought about he fac' that that same salesman or owner will be here in case you ever have to take your purchase back for any reason? Try that in Wichita Falls.

No, I take exception to Mr. Bales and others who think his way. I save money with every purchase I make here in Iowa Park. And I believe I've proved i'.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Mr. Hamilton

I don't buy the info you put in your paper a couple of weeks ago about people in Iowa Park doing their shopping out of town and taxes here in I.P. going up on that account.

Taxes are going up regardless of where people do their shopping.

You failed to write in your column he real reason people go out of town o shop.

If the merchants here would be more competitive with their prices people would not shop out of town. People are not fools they & I will buy where it is the best buy, namely Wichi'a Falls. You are Blowing smoke, Mr.

Iowa Park received $120,222 in sales tax during the past fiscal year. That helped out considerably on our city's general fund budget of $1,130,350. And we have budgeted $118,000 in sales taxes to be spent on this year's budget of $1,174,255.

I'm here to tell you that the people of Wichita Falls fully appreciate our purchases in their community that help their sales taxes.

But businesses aren't all sales tax. A lot of folks do not know that every business here pays a personal property tax individuals don't pay. Personal property is equipment used in the business, such as vehicles, cash registers, desks, etc.

In the past three years, Iowa Park businesses have paid the city $290,650 in personal property taxes. This does not include personal property paid by utility companies. ei her.

The amount is decreasing annually, 'oo. According to the records, personal property taxes paid in 1982 was $101,716. That dropped in 1983 to $99,422, and in 1984 to $87,480.

Boys and girls from cotton producing families in 32 Rolling Plains counties have an opportunity to become the "Youth Ambassador" for cotton and win a $1,000 scholarship in the process.

The youth ambassador competition is a new feature of the second annual Rolling Plains Cotton Show which salutes the importance of the fiber crop to the area's economy. It will be held Jan. 7-8 at the Wichita Falls Activity Center.

The show is co-sponsored by the Rolling Plains Economic Program, the Rolling Plains Cotton Growers Assn. and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said Ed Garnett, Extension district director for agriculture.

The youth ambassador contest is being sponsored by the growers' association to select a youngster who will be a spokesperson for cotton and represent the growers at various functions in 1985.

To compete, applicants must have graduated from high school last spring or be classified as a high school junior or senior this year. They also now have the opportunity to take a computer course while in High School and are trained on some of the best equipment available at this time. Our computer lab has 18 Apple II E computers with 9 printers available; one for every 2 computers. This course covers the basic terminology and programming techniques. A student can learn to be fairly proficient and to acquire a good basic knowledge of computer technology. In order to take the computer course, a student must have taken typing or be enrolled in typing as the computer keyboard is very similar to the typewriter keyboard.

The computer course is taught by Mrs. Bonnie Medlinger who also teaches business courses at the high school system. We are also fortunate to have four Apple computers in one of our math classes. These computers are used to better equip Trigonometry students as well as being used in the math tutoring sessions. A good number of software programs are now available for student use and it would appear that the high school computer class is as well equipped as any in the area and probably on a par wi h any in the state and should well equip the student who desires to learn this modern day phenomenon.

During the planning of the game, some concern had been expressed about tempers flaring, due to the full-contact rules. This, however, did no' develop either.

The two players who traveled the far herest to play, Steve Berry of Dallas and Mike Kelly of Mineral Wells, both said the miles traveled for both practice sessions and games were well worth the effort.

And there's already some discussion about a rematch in 1985.
