William Cook from Bluegrove to a new church in Wichita Falls. Harold C. Perdue, son of Rev. and Mrs. Guy E. Perdue of Iowa Park, to be pastor at Bluegrove. Rev. Jake Shelly to fill a vacancy at Vashti.

Harold C. Perdue graduated from MU last spring and is now in his first year in Perkins school of heology, MU. He will continue his studies and will work as a stulent pastor at Bluegrove on weekends. Harold is 20 years old, being one of the youngest men ever to be appointed to a Methodist church. After his graduation last spring Harold traveled with one of his professors from SMU and did research work on the people who had a part in the government in Texas in the early days. This research carried him to all the larger universities of the East and Northast and to the Library of Congress n Washington.

Those who heard Harold at the ocal church a few Sunday nights ago predict for him a bright and helpful future in the ministry.

★ Soil Conservation

Conservation irrigation of the Rufus King farm of Kamay was studied by those assisting in the operation of the Gordon T. West farms. Loyd Tepfer and Walter M. Mathis, farm managers, Gordon T. West jr. accompanied by A. L. Miler of the water district and Elvy Sargent of the oil Conservation Service made the tour.

West is interested in developing portion of his leveled land to irrigated pasture. Kentucky fescuegrass with alfalfa is proving most profitable for King.

The group also visited the coasta! bermuda on the Earl Lehman farm of Iowa Park, and the grass plots on the Experiment Station. Thirty five acres of coastal berniuda on Park Area club members met the Lehman farm has furnished graze during the growing season

Ponds recently completed include one for Loyd Bell of Iowa Park farming Mrs. Inez Cole's farm: Blenn H. Bear of Burkburnett; the Roller estate of Bacon Switch; P. G Krohn estate of Electra; Merle T. Waggoner of Wichita Falis; Edward Schlaffke of Electra; and W. W. Hageman.

John Hund of Wichita Falls will level an additional acreage early his year. Hund leveled about six acres last year and produced about 9 tons per acre of Atlas Sargo ensilage. John makes good use of barnyard manure and uses commercial fertilizers.

year tenure as president of the Iowa Park Council of Church Women expired. In looking back over the work of the organization during that time I realize that whatever success was attained was due in large part to the efforts and cooperatoin of the officers, chairmen and members of the council.

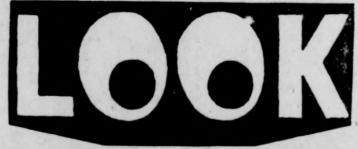

It is my desire to express publicly at this time my deepest appreciaon and thanks to the business men of our town and to everyone wno had a part in promoting and furthering the work of the Iowa Park Council of Church Women while I was presi-

I urge everyone to co-operate with Mrs. Rollins Woodall, the new president, and her slate of officers as beautifully as you did with me. May the church women in our community find inspiration in working together to the end that all the world may know and follow the Master.

Mrs. Earle Denny was leader and presented Mrs. Gibbons Brubaker in a devotional using the 13th chapter of I Corinthians, the theme of love. The period was ended by the group reading the club collect. Topics assigned to members were iiscussed at roll call. Officers to lead the club in 1953-54 were elected: Mrs. James A. Sewell, president; Mrs. Charlie Metz, vice-president; Mrs. Dave O. Harbour, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Sam Hill, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Richey Abernathy, parliamentarian. Members to the executive committee are Mines. Taylor George and S. L. Denny. Functional committees will be named later.

The fine arts contribution was two cowboy numbers sung by John Rollins Woodall of the fourth grade in the local school. He sang "Home on the Range" and a "Round-up

Mrs. China B. Smith discussed "Parents' Responsibility in Character Development." Her source of information was a compilation of results of student findings from using fictional families and their problems. This study was made in Washington State college under a grant from the Palmer Foundation for studying parent and child relationships

Mrs. Smith stressed the value of a child growing with a feeling of security through his being trained in his responsibilities in his relationship to the family unit; thus earning his rights as an individual. He should develop a feeling of respensibility in all matters of family interests-its problems as well as the sharing of its pleasures.

Mmes. Richey Abernathy, Earle Denny and Charlie Metz enacted a religious skit "By Still Waters" depicting the present day family so overly anxious to accumulate the material things of life that the spiritual values are being neglected to the extent that the worship of God has faded into the background as minor considerations.

The session was ended by the group enjoying a social hour with the hostesses.
