heir reserve units activad for the Air Force, Army and Marine units in the nort An there was a lot of talent. Well, the snows don't fall on the ewer lands around Anchorage as early as you might think. In fact, it early as you might think. In fact, it dide start snowing that year until the day before the big game. Our field had no grass. It was really more sand.
The powers to be decided the morning of morning of the game that the four or five inches of snow cover should be cleared off. At the time, it sounded like a pretty good idea.
Except.... everyone had forgotten the ground was still not frozen. So when the big equipment started when the big equipment started blading the snow off, the sand was soft, and ridges were created. All over the field.
The ridges were exposed to the cold, more than the level ground And cold, more than the level ground. And frozen sand ridges become razor frozen sand ridges become razor sharp.
We had gloves on, as well as stockings on our legs. So no one was cut by those sharp ridges. But there wasn't a uniform, all of which were purchased brand new for the game, usable after it was all Not even to practice in. That satin-like finish snags and cuts easily. Yeah, my team won the game. Our prize? We got to play another game. This time on grass. At Hamilton AFB

One more quirk about weather That dadblasted strong wind Tuesday afternoon knocked a bucket-full of still green pecans out of my trees.
Hope you other pecan growers Hope you other pecan growers were more fortunate. This year's crop were more fortunate. This year's crop was going to be a poor one, as it was.
