Water bill dispute may dry up faucets

Residents of Country Hills Mobile Home Park may have been forced to go to bed last night without their baths.

City employees notified each of the residents, by hanging tags on their doors, Tuesday morning their water would be shut off if the park's water bill was not paid by 4 p.m. Wednesday.

The decision to cut off service in lieu of payment by the park's owner, Edwin Sneller of Wichita Falls, was the outcome of a 41-minute executive session by the city council Monday evening.

In addition to cutting off service, the council voted to void a contract with the park owner concerning water service that went into effect only two months ago.

According to Administrator

James Barrington, the park's April bill became due about the first of May, and another month's bill is to be mailed this week.

At Sneller's request, the city agreed to a contract about two months ago which dropped the requirement of a minimum monthly bill for each lot in the park, whether occupied or not. This, according to Barrington, was a savings to the owner of about $200 per month.

In return, the contract called for Sneller to pay the city in lieu of taxes, about $2,000 annually.

The main difference in what the city put into the contract, which was not what Sneller had requested, was that the park would continue to be charged out-of-city water rates.

The park is located east of the city limits on the old highway.

Barrington said city attorney Jay Cantrell was instructed to send a letter to Sneller Tuesday, informing him the contract would be terminated in 30 days, as specified in the document.

Country Hills Park has experienced other utility problems in the past, including having natural gas shut off because of plumbing problems and last fall being taken to task for allowing raw sewage to be turned loose in the old highway ditch.

Neighbors have also filed complaints about the park's open cesspool located north of the property.

Residents of the park are charged a flat rate for their water, which is figured into their monthly rent payments, and the park's water bill is supposed to be paid by the owner.

FINAL PHASE

City to seek bids for city hall work

The city council authorized Monday night the advertising for several bid items, among which was to remodel the exterior of city hall.

Architect Don Daugherty said he would have all plans and specifications completed by the end of this week for bidders.

The work, he estimated, would be completed sometime this fall.

Remodeling of the building's outside would complete a phased project that was begun some eight years ago to completely re-do the old structure.

Bids will also be sought for the purchase of a tractor/loader to be used at the sewage treatment plant.

A proposal to advertise for bids to maintain city parks and grounds for the years 1987 through 1990 was tabled, however.

Among the ordinances approved was one which established a minimum square footage for homes built in the three zones of the city.

Minimum footage for R-1 zone is 1,200 square feet, excluding garage or carport; 1,000 for zone R-2 and 900 for R-3.

Prompting the ordinance was a proposal by one contractor to build homes of only 750 square feet on property in R-1.

Another ordinance changed the zoning of a block of property between Third and Fourth Streets recently purchased by the city, from residential to public use.

The council's long-term plan is to build a community center on the property.

Concerning the proposed center, a meeting was set for May 27 in the Tom Burnett Library meeting room, to which a representative from every organization in the community will be invited.

Purpose of the meeting is to get input from the representatives, as well as to explain the desire of the council to build the center, which council members agree is needed here.

Mayor Tim Hunter told of meeting with three or four organizations already, to explain the city's general plan and receive feedback as to the organizations' needs.

Another ordinance approved the installation of no-parking signs on Johnson Road and Magnolia, in the area of Colonial Heights Apartments.

While another ordinance, which was approved, abandoned a 40-foot strip on East Park, where a garage has been found to be in the right of way.

The majority of the council gave the go-ahead to the Wichita Falls Model Airplane Club to develop the site of the landfill near Lake Buffalo Lake as a landing field.

The group had originally asked to build the field on the west side of Lake Iowa Park. However several fishermen and a neighboring land owner registered objections to that location.

Also approved was a contract to sell untreated water to Lonnie Scott, who plans to build a home on Harmony Road, by tapping the transmis-

Tax rebate check is up

April's sales tax rebate check was more than $2,000 greater than for the same month last year, according to the state comptroller's office.

Iowa Park's check for April was $16,765.25, as compared to one for $14,447.16 last year.

That brought the year's total of $68,453.84 to 11.57 percent over the $61,355.73 reported in 1985.

Wichita Falls stands at a plus 3.31 percent over 1985 and Burkburnett is 2.94.

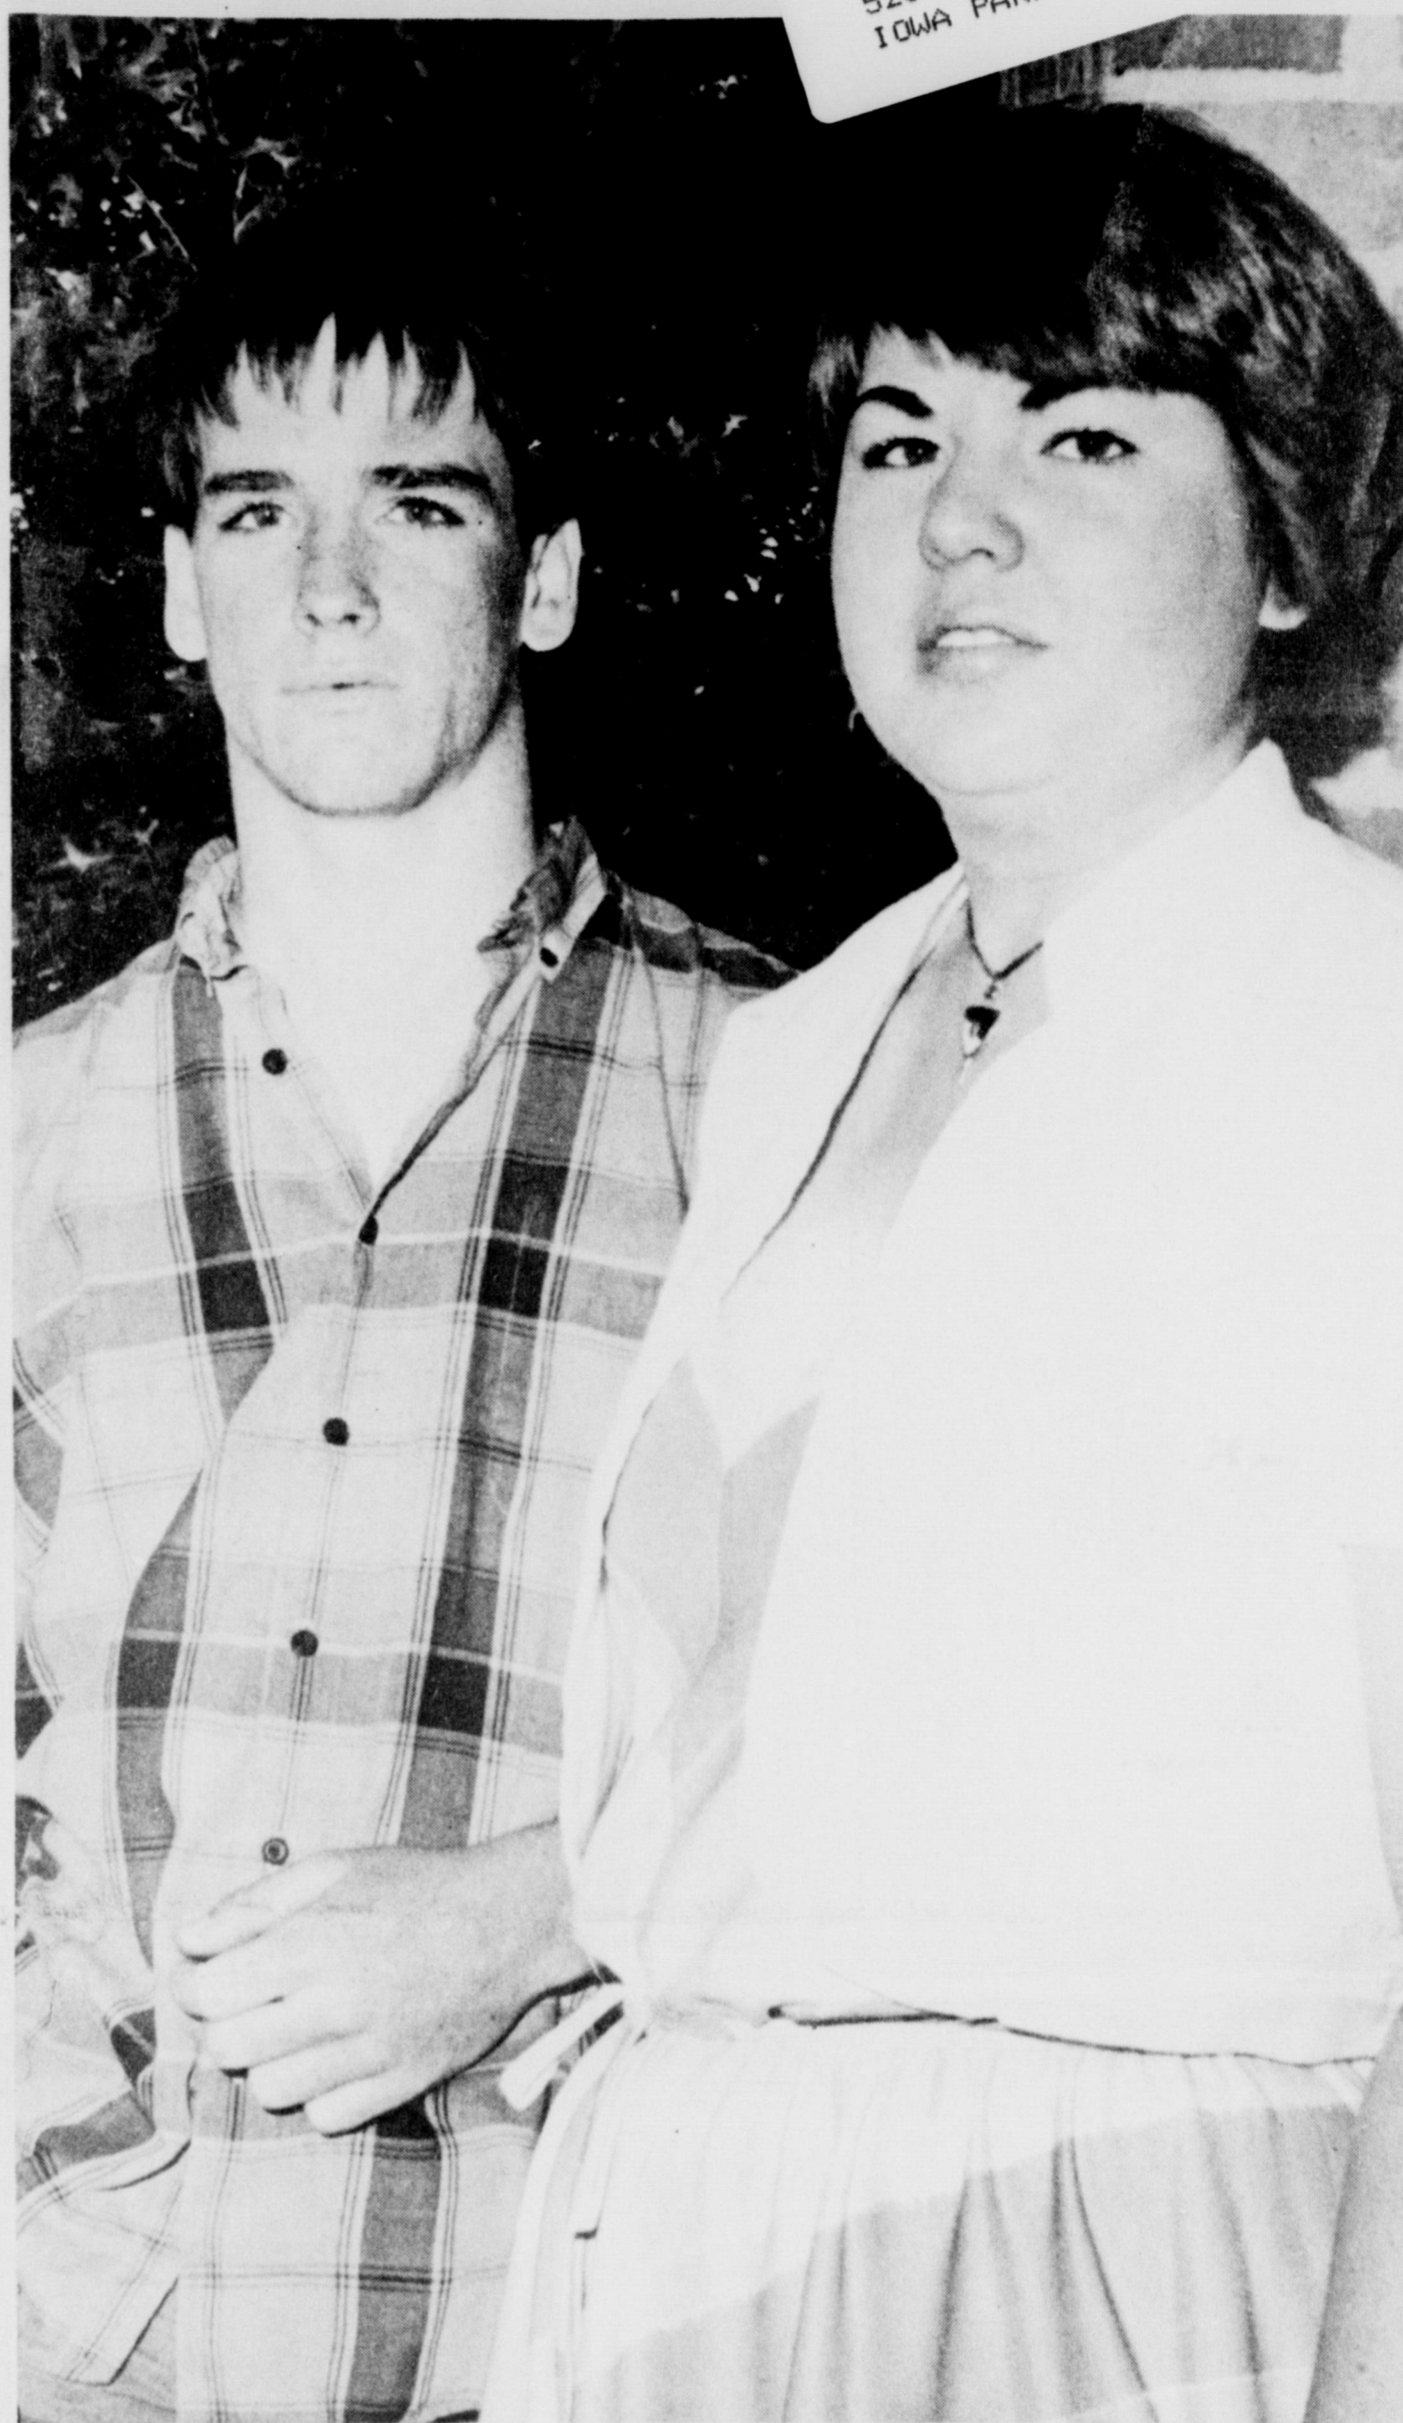

However, Electra's suffering from the lack of activity in the oil patch is indicated by a minus 14.12 percent when compared to this time last year.

Holliday is also standing at a minus, when compared with the four-month period of 1985, as are Lakeside City and Megargel.

Holliday's rebate check for last month's sales was $5,201.84, making the total for the year almost $2,000 less than last year, or a decline of minus 5.60.

So far this year Holliday has received $33,344.17.

Lakeside City is a minus 21.84 and Megargel 2.62. Archer City is a plus 7.33; Windthorst 19.22 and Scotland 25.50.

Teacher aides okayed during board meeting

School trustees approved the hiring of several aides and changed the school's policy concerning senior ring sales.

The board approved proposals to hire two remedial aides for Kidwell Elementary, a half-day aide for the resource room at Bradford Elementary, a resource room teacher and changing a half-day aides' duties to full-day at the high school, changing the school nurse's duties from two and a half days weekly to three, and re-employing the tax office secretary.

In the same motion, the board accepted the resignations of Raydean Mattis, John Ratcliff and Teresa Beckham, all at the high school, and Kidwell music teacher Sally Franklin.

Letters submitted by Mrs. Mattis and Ratcliff explained both were retiring.

The summer maintenance project proposal was also accepted. It included replacing light fixtures at the two elementary buildings, refinishing gymnasium floors, employing six youths to do a major interior painting project, purchasing built-in combination locks for installation at the junior high, and purchasing of copy paper.

Another proposal accepted by the board was advanced by Athletic Director David Baugh, to buy a rebuilt camera to film football games.

Baugh explained the camera is equipped to use larger rolls of film, which would provide a savings, as well as replacing two old cameras.

The camera would cost $2,750, of which the school will pay $1,750 and the Booster Club the balance.

Low bids to resurface the gymnasium floors were: $4,800 at the high school and $3,400 at the junior high.

Replacement of the elementary classroom lights will bring the candle power up to standard with the state requirements, trustees were told.

At a cost of $8,475, 158 fluorescent fixtures will be installed. Using energy-saving units, cost of lighting the rooms will be saved by $1,981 annually.

Louis Sefcik, local jeweler, asked the board to be given an equal opportunity to show his line of school rings at the same time a salesman from Fort Worth shows his.

Sefcik said students had told him over the years the salesman had given incorrect information to the students about the quality of his rings, and he didn't feel it was fair.

He also pointed out that he was a taxpayer here, but that his taxes were used to provide a sales forum for someone else to compete with him, since he has not had the opportunity to sell his wares at the school.

The board approved a proposal that the traveling salesman and Sefcik would be provided a joint room on a Saturday, where the rings would be shown simultaneously.

The date next year will be announced by Principal Richard Davis.

Prior to the beginning of Tuesday's meeting, a plaque was presented to former trustee Rusty Rusk for his "dedicated service."

Rusk, a long-time member of the board, chose not to seek re-election in April.

He told the board, "I wish you all the luck. I served during the good times," referring to the increasing cost of education created by the school reform bill and the loss of tax dollars brought about by the lowering price of crude oil.

Tax Collector Allen Shewmake reported 96.1 percent of the current taxes have been collected, an increase from 95.6 this time last year.

Early American crafts required for survival

Mrs. Herman Escue presented a program on early American crafts for the Philia Study Club in a meeting held Monday evening in the home of Mrs. Thomas Johnson with Mrs. Leon Biddy the co-hostess.

Fourteen members shared in the covered-dish meal on the patio before the program and were later served ice cream and cake fashioned in the shape and colors of Texas.

Mrs. Escue stated that the Pilgrims and early settlers did crafts needed for survival, using their individual skills for their needs, but their artistic vein came through.

The first craft she mentioned was basketry which is one of the most ancient crafts. The baskets are usually made from natural materials in the area, and baskets have been found in Utah dated 9,000 years ago, she said.

"Crochet is almost a dead craft, and probably one of the oldest forms of needlework," she said. It was not popular in the United States until the nineteenth century. It can be mounted in hoops or sewn to pillow tops.

Discussing the craft of embroidery, Mrs. Escue said that it could be traced back to historic times and it was most popular in the Middle Ages. The samplers in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries were used as a teaching device for young girls. The decorative embroidery was practiced by the rich. She observed that the cross-stitch and crewel embroidery are becoming increasingly popular.

Candlewicking, the next early

American craft mentioned came from Europe. The various patterns were passed from generation to generation and were used to create bedspreads. Mrs. Escue stated that in the farms of the eastern United States women used the materials that were easily available, such as bleached flour sacks and candle wicks to create their designs.

She described the craft of braiding as the simplest of decorative works, a fast craft with old rags and scraps being used for materials.

Mrs. Escue also discussed doll-making, quiltmaking, and veld quilting. She praised the early Americans for creating beauty and aesthetics from scraps, rags and natural materials.

The outgoing president, Mrs. Dean Maxwell, installed officers for 1986-88. She used a white-covered table holding long-tapered red candles to represent the officers and presented each with a white candle trimmed in red.

Those installed and the keys presented to them to signify the duties of the offices were: Mrs. Thomas Johnson, president, key to leadership; Judy Spring, vice president, key of stability; Mrs. Jim Rinehart, secretary/reporter, key of penmanship; Mrs. David Springer, treasurer, key of finance; Raydean Mattis, parliamentarian, key of order; Mrs. Jack Jordan, historian, key marked preservation.

Mrs. Maxwell closed the installation service with a poem "For a New Period of Service."

Butterflies are topic of Garden Club program

Mrs. Vernon Gilbert presented a slide program on "The Miracle of Butterflies" for a meeting of the Iowa Park Garden Club Friday morning at Texas Electric Reddy Room. The hostesses were Mrs. Frank Gossett and Mrs. Charlie Lee.

The pictures shown were of butterfly specimens from all over the world and revealed that butterfly bodies are very scaly, their feet are far lasting, the male is always a brilliant color and the female is a more dull color.

Mrs. Gilbert said that butterflies are important components of foodwebs throughout the world; and that over 65 percent of all flowering plants which includes food plants, would not reproduce if not for pollination. She said that butterflies rank second only to bee pollination.

The plants mentioned that attract butterflies were Queen Anne's lace, parsley, fennel, dill, periwinkle, phlox, verbena and impatiens.

Mrs. Robert Illingsworth gave some helpful suggestions on lawn care that David Finely, county extension agent, gave at a recent meeting she attended in Wichita Falls. These included water in the morning twice a week, using MSMA a bermuda and St. Augustine grass to kill the weeds.

Mrs. Lee presided during the business and gave the "Thought for the Day." Members named their favorite butterfly when they answered roll call.

Mrs. Jimmy Gilmore, chairman of the recent flower show, reported on its success and announced the door prize winners who were: Jessie Seay, Betty Smith, Brenda Traland, Diane Weeks, Nancy Willingham and Lucile Holm. She reminded members that National Garden Week would be observed the first week in June.

The next meeting will be held May 23 and officers for the next year will be installed at the meeting.

Shower fetes bride elect

A miscellaneous shower was given Saturday to honor Connie Lynn Stiles, bride-elect of Cameron Ray Honea at the Silver Square in Wichita Falls. The hostesses were Mmes. Randell Yarbrough, Denny Boland, Vance Nault and Miss Kristi Cooley.

Royal blue and white, the honoree's chosen colors, governed decorations in the room and on the refreshment table appointed with crystal and silver services.

Special guests were mothers of the betrothed couple, Mrs. Cletys Stiles of Iowa Park and Mrs. Andy Honea of Wichita Falls, and Mrs. Tommy Tarno of Archer City, sister of the groom-elect.

The couple will be married May 31 at the First Baptist Church.

As I See It....

By BOB HAMILTON

We've had a couple cases of vandalism with paint in the community recently that was both dumb and expensive.

One case was the painting of the water tower on Johnson Road, and the other was sidewalks and brick walls at Kidwell Elementary.

The water tower incident was more a surprise than the other, to me.

When that structure was built about 15 or so years ago, the city made a departure from the past and went to an additional expense to use Iowa Park school colors.

That was done for a number of reasons: 1) because the tower was just across the road from Hawk Stadium; 2) because the entire community was proud of its athletes; 3) because the city leaders felt no one would be dumb enough to mark up the school colors, both because of their own pride in the school and because of peer pressure.

Well, it worked for a long time. But someone, hopefully not from Iowa Park, finally scaled the fence around the tower, climbed its heights and used silver spray paint to do their stupid thing.

This not only violated the proud colors of IPHS, but the lamebrain took a clear chance of getting killed.

I covered just such an incident in the spring of 1968 at Sudan, when a star athlete was killed.

The local school trustees several years ago passed a policy of offering a $500 reward for information leading to the discovery of anyone doing acts of vandalism on any of the local campuses.

Well, for the first time, someone took the school up on the offer and authorities apparently have the culprit(s) who painted the Kidwell area.

As I understand it, the school will seek to recover not only the cost of cleaning up the mess, but the cost of the reward as well.

And that's as it should be!

I've heard things were getting rough for businesses over the state, with the oil bust, low prices for agricultural prices and steel businesses going under.

But the situation in Angelina County, over in northeast Texas, is apparently out of hand.

At least in the community of Fuller Springs.

Lufkin and Diboll are two of the more better known communities in that county.

Where I got my information about Fuller Springs was from this month's report from the state comptroller's office about sales tax collections.

It seems Fuller Springs, through April, is running a minus 99.84 percent behind this time last year in collecting sales taxes.

According to the report, that community had received $34,432.49 in sales tax through the first four months of 1985, but for the same period this year, has received only $54.21.

An even more graphic comparison is the fact that Fuller Springs' sales tax for April, 1985, was $6,820.43.

But according to the comptroller's office, Fuller Springs' check for last month was only 73-cents.

Times are apparently really rough in Fuller Springs, Texas.

Kindergarten screening set here next week

The annual screening and registration program of Iowa Park kindergarten age children is scheduled Monday and Tuesday at Kidwell Elementary School, according to Ron Woods, principal.

All children who will be five years of age by Sept. 1 should be screened. Parents who have not received an appointment through the mail are asked to contact the school at 592-4322.

A full year of special education for the three- and four-year-old children with a physical or learning deficiency is available, Woods said.

Eligibility for special education is determined by sight, hearing, speech, mental maturity or a physician's diagnosis.

Appointments are also requested with parents who believe their children are eligible for special education, Woods said.

Parents' Awareness group to meet

Second meeting of the Parents' Awareness Program will be at 7:30 p.m. next Thursday at the junior high cafeteria.

A panel of four experts on drug abuse will be on hand to speak and answer questions from the audience. Making up the panel will be Dr.

Daniel H. Bolin, family practice physician from Wichita Falls; Mike Grubbs, pastor of First Christian Church of Iowa Park; Judy Hutson, family counselor, Red River Hospital; Scott Reddell, assistant District Attorney for Wichita County, and Maureen Bass, counselor.

Volunteers asked to help plant flowers at library

A call for volunteers to assist in planting almost 500 bedding plants and shrubs at Tom Burnett Library this Saturday has been issued by Mrs. W.A. George, president of the Friends of the Library.

The project was postponed from last Saturday after a dispute about a sprinkler system installation was hashed out following Monday's city council meeting.

The dispute was between Gary Bradford, who was attempting to install the sprinkler system, and city code enforcement Larry Ashford.

According to Bradford's statement at the council meeting, he was in the process of installing the new system in preparation for planting of the flowers and shrubs when Ashford instructed him to stop because he was not meeting the city's codes for that type of installation.

Bradford alleged the city then covered the ditches dug for the pipe.

He told the council that if the flowers and shrubs are not planted this week, they would be lost, and $970 had already been paid for them.

After the council meeting was adjourned, Mayor Tim Hunter asked that a meeting be held to hash out the differences so that the project might be continued to completion.

Meeting with him were Mrs. George and Mrs. Luther Shaw, Ashford, Mike Price, public works director, and James Barrington, city administrator.

Barrington said the city will reopen the trenches and allow Bradford to do the majority of the work, which as agreed, will meet city codes.

Bradford, who has a contract this year to maintain the grounds of city hall, library and parks, is seeking a three-year additional contract. He explained there were several improvements he wants to make which would require more than one year.

Tax values change here

Estimated tax values of the Iowa Park school district, released this week by the Wichita Appraisal District, were about as expected by the school board....down.

The district lost approximately $16-million in oil values, close to $2-million in real estate, but picked up slightly over $1-million in personal property values.

The bottom line, tax collector Allen Shewmake told the board Tuesday evening, is a loss of $85,628 next year, if the tax rate is unchanged.

The City of Iowa Park is in much better shape, however, mainly because new construction, growth of the city's boundaries, and re-evaluations.

The city's values increased almost $3-million, and if the tax rate is unchanged, would generate slightly over $22,000 more than this year.

Iowa Park is valued at just under $94-million.

The school district's values dropped from $249,368,560 to $237,308,180, according to the printout.

Gas office closing here

Lone Star Gas Company is consolidating its business offices in the area in Wichita Falls, and will close here the end of this month.

Letters mailed to Iowa Park customers, signed "Lone Star Gas Company," were received this week.

Requests for service, emergency service and billing inquiries will be made by calling the office at 911 Lamar in Wichita Falls.

Patrons will have the option of paying their bills at the Home Place, located two doors west of the present business office in Park West Shopping Center, or by using a return postage envelope included with the bill, according to the letter.

Worth Quoting

Remember several years ago when two candidates for mayor of El Paso met in a bar in Juarez and while carrying on a conversation, shot each other under the table?

Well, evidently, politics haven't changed all that much in the border city of El Paso.

According to an Associated Press story out of that city, a crusty justice of the peace who ran his campaign from his favorite bar and an opponent who disapproved of the unusual choice of headquarters will be matched in a runoff.

But four other candidates all lost bids to gain the Democratic Party's nomination for office last Saturday.

Those candidates included one who's dead, two who were released from jail on bond and promptly continued campaigning, and another who complained he was not allowed out of a mental health facility to cast his vote.

As one bewildered reader wrote the El Paso Times newspaper before elections, "Good luck, El Paso. We are confronted with candidates who, if elected, will conduct our political affairs in a jail, a hospital, a lunatic asylum, a beer joint or a coterie. That's some of the good ones!"

With the drastic drop in the price of crude oil in an amazingly short period of time, experts on oil are coming out of the woodwork in droves.

And we're not sure all the so-called experts know the difference between a hole in the ground and a hole in the head.

For example, in a story published out of New York Thursday, an Associated Press writer was pounding on the theme to not count OPEC out of the oil picture and in one of his paragraphs stated:

"The lead time for bringing a well into production averages from five to seven years...."

That will be news to a lot of folks in Andrews. We've seen a local independent obtain a lease, secure a permit, line up his investors and a drilling rig -- and know whether or not he's got a well or a duster -- all in the time period of 90 days.

Some of the experts make sense: Boone Pickens told a group in Austin that the odds are 75 percent that by October the price of crude will average $18 and in 24 months $30.

And a Baylor economics professor discovered that from the state's overall economy, the drop from $15 down to $10 did not hurt as much as the drop from $25 down to $20.

But we understand the Amarillo oil man's statement to simply "hang on by your fingernails until it gets better."

sion line which carries water from Lake Buffalo to the city's treatment plant.

After discussing a proposal to trade some land with Daryl James, in the area of the developing public works site on FM 368, council members decided to move the city's fence, rather than trade the land.

A chain link fence, built by a contractor for the city, was extended onto James' property, causing the problem.

A request from the Iowa Park Softball Association, which uses city land on Bell Road for its fields, to be permitted to build a concession stand received council approval.

Council members amended their limit previously set to assist Tommy Key to fix the east wall of his building, after Key reported on six bids he had received from contractors.

Key's wall was exposed after the city purchased the buildings across Wall from city hall and tore them down. Members then agreed to do their part in fixing the wall, if Key would do a similar cosmetic project on the front and back of his buildings.

But the council had set a $2,000 limit on the city's part, which Key said would cost him more to do the overall project than he could afford.

Aldermen voted to increase the cap on the city's part to $4,000.

The council took no action on a request by property owner Jim Huff that the city correct a water pooling problem on Colorado.

Huff owns the structure leased to B&R Thriftway.

After Mayor Tim Hunter told Huff the city was not interested in paying for the whole thing, estimated by Mike Price to cost $16,000, Huff responded by saying, "We might work something out on it." t.

Because the city's next regularly-scheduled meeting falls on Memorial Day (May 26), the council approved a proposal to hold their next two meetings June 2 and 16, instead of June 9 and 23.

Cook of the Week

June (Mrs. Gary) Williams is one young cook who knows that hot breads can complement any meal, however simple, and make it fit for royalty. Two of her recipes for this week are Hot Rolls and Yeast Biscuits. The Bran-Banana Muffins could probably be used for bread as well as an hors d'oeuvres or dessert.

The banana, a favorite fruit for cakes, pies, puddings, salads and breads, has been listed among plants either cultivated or wild for more than 4,000 years. There was every incentive to cultivate the banana because the wild banana is unappetizing and disagreeably full of seeds.

At least two Assyrian carvings depict what looks like bananas, but both are of royal banquets and could have been in the picture only as an example of rare and luxurious fruits available to no one less than kings.

The first bananas of America were planted on the Island of Hispanola in 1516, but neither North America or in Europe was the banana, so commonplace to us now, available on a really general scale until after World War I.

However, commercial organizations of the banana trade had begun in the United States as early as 1895 when the Boston Fruit Company was organized. Perishable and difficult to transport, the banana was excruciatingly slow in making its way around the world. There are about 150 known species of the banana; the red banana and perfumed banana are thought to be the best.

June was graduated from high school at Eunice, N.M. and attended New Mexico Junior College. She worked for Associates Finance at Hobbs where she ran a computer.

She and Gary, who works in transportation for Conoco, have lived in Iowa Park for three and a half years. They are members of Faith Baptist Church. They have two daughters, Kim, seven years old, and Krista, four.

June is president of the Camp Fire Leaders Association and member of the district board. She is also a leader for the first grade Camp Fire Girls. She is a member of the library committee at Faith Baptist Church and a Vacation Bible School worker. Her hobbies are ceramics, swimming and exercising.

BANANAS NOT ENOUGH

Bananas and oranges may not supply enough potassium to balance the loss of potassium caused by certain diuretics used in the treatment of hypertension.

That's the finding of a research team from Temple University Health Sciences Center in Philadelphia.

The scientists say that a patient who needs 60-80 milliequivalents of potassium would have to eat about a yard of bananas every day.

That patient would get all the calories of a large number of bananas, but not enough potassium.

Compounding the problem is that most hypertensives are on low-salt diets, which reduce the amount of sodium available to make natural-source potassium absorbable.

The Temple team recommends that people on diuretics should take potassium chloride preparations (including salt substitutes) or potassium-sparing diuretics.

GETTING FIELD IN SHAPE IS TASK FOR PLAYERS AND COACHES
... but for no avail, as practice game with Nocona Friday was cancelled by rain.

Hawks play for title today at Bridgeport

The Hawk baseball club will go after the school's third Dist. 5-AAA championship of the year this afternoon at Bridgeport.

A victory over the Bulls would give Iowa Park the outright district title, to go along with the crown captured in football and tennis.

After having won the first half of the district round robin schedule with a 3-0-1 record, the Hawks go into today's 4 p.m. contest with a 2-1 record in the second half.

Should they beat Bridgeport, that would tie the Hawks with Vernon in the second half, but by virtue of the first-half win would give them the overall championship with Vernon coming in runner-up.

The Bridgeport game was to have been played April 29. But when the teams took the field, only one game official was present, and Coach Daryl Frazier chose to re-schedule the contest rather than attempt to play with only one official.

Should the Hawks win today, they will meet Dist. 6-AAA runner-up Merkel in the first round of the playoffs. Graham would play Vernon.

The Hawks got themselves into the playoff picture by shellacking Bowie 15-2 here Tuesday.

Junior hurler Robert Adams kept his season record clean by going the entire distance on the mound, giving up only one hit while striking out 10 batters and walking five.

Eric Whitman led the Hawk batting corps with three hits, all singles, including reaching base safe on one bunt. In all, Iowa Park had nine hits, including a double by Adams.

Bowie helped considerably by committing seven errors. Going into the second inning with a comfortable 6-0 lead, Adams committed an error that allowed both Bowie scores. He had struck out the first two batters, but then loaded the bases with walks.

The sixth batter hit a soft infield grounder which Adams easily reached in time to throw for the third out at any of the bases, but opted to lob to first base. His lob sailed high over Shawn Prices' head.

Iowa Park increased its lead in the bottom of the inning, however, to 9-2. Both teams went scoreless in the third, but the Hawks padded the score by six more in the fifth.

Biddy, Weaver head to state track meet

Stephen Biddy and Scott Weaver will be on center stage of Memorial Stadium at the University of Texas in Austin shortly before noon Saturday.

The two Hawks will be competing in the state track meet's high jump event, which gets underway at 11 a.m.

To get there, Biddy and Weaver won first and second place in both the Dist. 5-AAA and Region One meets.

This will be the first trip for either, but it's the second straight year for Iowa Park to be represented in the state UIL meet's high jump.

Only difference is, last year it was a Lady Hawk, Cindy Clanton. However, she failed to qualify this year.

For those planning to attend the meet, the high jump pit is located on the north end of the football field. Stadium seating is nearby for a close watch of the competition.

The two Hawks competed Saturday in a state qualifiers' meet at Abilene, finishing third and sixth. Biddy cleared 6-6, narrowly missing his career best of 6-8, which was the winning height turned in by a jumper from Jayton. Weaver cleared 6-2.

Asher Production has given up on its efforts to make a producer out of the No. 13 O.J. Cooper. It was a developmental try in the Wichita Regular Field, 8.5 miles east-southeast of Burkburnett. Spudded March 25, the well had reached a total depth of 1,383 feet.

Capacity crowd hears council pledge unity

A capacity crowd filled the Holliday community Center Monday night at the regular Holliday City Council meeting, most there to hear proceedings considering the removal of two aldermen, resulting from a complaint by a local citizen. The meeting ended not with the removal of the aldermen, but with the council's pledge to work together for the betterment of the city.

Howard J. Sweet of Holliday filed a complaint against Linda Willis and Jim Virdell accusing Willis of slander and using profanity against public officials and Virdell of using his office to further the cause of a candidate for justice of the peace, slander, inciting anger in a City Council meeting, among other things.

Before the proceedings began, alderman Melvin Bills called for the council and the city to work together to prevent tearing the townspeople apart, which drew a round of applause from the audience.

David Gossom, attorney for the City of Holliday, presided over the hearing. Gossom made it clear that the proceedings could be stopped by Willis or Virdell since the complaint provided by Sweet was not a sworn statement, and if the aldermen did not receive sufficient notice of the complaint to give them time to prepare a defense.

Willis stated that she had not been served with a copy of the complaint until Virdell gave one to her, but she and Virdell agreed to continue with the hearing in order to get the problems out in the open, with the stipulation that their attorney, James Cook, former Holliday mayor, could stop the proceedings at any time.

Gossom said the Texas Municipal League listed the official duties of a City Council member as voting and attending meetings. He also said the only grounds for the removal of a council member are incompetence, corruption or misconduct or malfeasance in office and the removal could only come with a two-thirds vote of the City Council.

When Cook read the complaint and questioned Sweet on each point, Sweet could not produce dates and, in some cases, examples of the allegations. When Sweet was asked if his complaint proved incompetence, corruption or misconduct or malfeasance in office, Sweet said it did not.

Cook then called for the entire complaint to be dismissed since it contained nothing that could legally remove a council member.

When aldermen voted the first time to dismiss the complaint against Willis, the motion was denied after it failed to get a two-thirds vote from the council, with only Virdell and Bills voting that the charges be dismissed.

Aldermen then voted on a motion to dismiss charges against Virdell, which was granted with votes from Bills, Willis, J.R. Franklin and Mayor Elizabeth Gorman.

When Gossom further explained the law regarding the removal of council members, Mayor Gorman made a motion to drop the charges against Willis, which was supported by a majority vote.

After the hearing ended, alderman Roy Pursur told Virdell and Willis that he had made the list of complaints against the two because he felt the way they treated City Administrator Brown Hudson was not right.

He cited an incident which occurred in front of the city hall in which Willis was allegedly using foul language in reference to Hudson. Pursur said that an Archer County sheriff's deputy wanted to arrest Willis and that city police had asked him not to do so.

Willis admitted that the incident had occurred, but that she had apologized to Hudson and Police Chief Juel Colbert afterward.

Numerous citizens made comments echoing Bills' statement made at the first of the meeting, saying that the city council needed to "get it's act together," and work together for the good of the city.

The council then pledged to work out the problems of the past, and work together in the future.

TEAMS test results discussed by board

At an otherwise uneventful meeting of the Holliday School Board, trustees heard TEAMS test results, discussed the budget, reviewed the appraisal instrument for the career ladder to be used in the next school year and accepted the resignation of a teacher.

Supt. Dan Owen reported that the school district would lose an estimated $31 million value next year in oil, resulting in a 40 percent loss.

To recover the loss, he said, it would take a 15¢ increase in the tax rate, if no other measures, such as budget cuts or using the surplus funds, were taken.

It was voted to use a reduction of force with a middle school special education teacher, since the enrollment in the program is down. The position is presently filled.

Counselor Walter Lemmons gave the results from recent TEAMS tests administered to students in the third, fifth, seventh and ninth grades.

Ninth grade students showed a 91 percent mastery of mathematics and reading skills each, but just a 71 percent mastery of writing skills. Lemmons said that the 71 percent mastery compares with the 50 some odd mastery as a state average.

Seventh grade students tested show an 84 percent mastery of mathematics, 92 percent of reading and 90 percent of writing.

A 92 percent mastery of mathematics was reported among fifth grade students. Reading was the classes strong point, however, with a 96 percent mastery in that field and 94 percent in writing.

Third grade students showed a weakness in their writing scores, reporting only a 57 percent mastery. A 91 percent mastery was shown in mathematics and a 92 percent in reading.

Principals reviewed the new appraisal instruments for the career ladder as required by the State with trustees.

An observation and evaluation record will be used to "grade" educators in several categories including instructional strategies, classroom management and organization, presentation of subject matter and growth and responsibilities.

Teachers will be graded in sub-categories as absent/below standard, standard expectation and exceptional quality.

They will be appraised by two separate appraisers on two separate occasions each, giving them an average score and overall summary performance score with which to place them on the career ladder.

After an executive session, trustees voted to accept the resignation of Leoda Lowder, music teacher for kindergarten through sixth grade.

Board members approved an overnight trip for the cheerleaders to attend a cheerleading camp in Waco during the summer.

Trustees discussed and tabled action on athletic insurance and a band trip for 1986-87.

Awards banquet slated Tuesday

The Holliday Chapter Young Homemakers of Texas will hold a Mother-Daughter Banquet and awards presentation at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the homemaking room of Holliday High School.

The public is invited to attend the dinner. It is not necessary to bring a mother or daughter.

Following the dinner, Toni Mahler, president, will speak, and elections for the 1986-87 year will be elected.
