NEW UNIFORMS - Iowa Park High's Mean Green Marching Machine made their debut in their newly-acquired uniforms Friday night at the football game. The uniforms also have a pair of black trousers for concert appearances.

Year's biggest weekend just around the corner

The biggest and busiest weekend of the year for Iowa Parkans is only a week away.

Plans are being finalized for the annual Iowa Park High School homecoming and Chamber of Commerce Whoop-T-Do.

A central theme observing the state's 150th birthday will be used throughout the weekend.

HOMECOMING

A series of activities are being planned for homecoming this year, including a bonfire.

Activities get underway Thursday evening with the bonfire, something that's been missing from homecoming activities the past few years.

It will be held in the block cleared of trees, between Third and Fourth streets, and just north of Ken's Pizza.

A huge pile of trees is already there, and students, working through the city, will be picking up additional brush this weekend to add to the pile.

Those with brush to be picked up can contact Kyle Long, a member of the Student Council, at 592-5915.

The bonfire will be lighted at 8 p.m.

This year's theme for the parade Friday afternoon is "Hawks - A Texas Tradition." Members of the 1969 state championship football team are asked to participate by riding on a special float.

Deadline for float entries is Monday. Anyone wishing to participate can contact the high school office.

The parade will form at 4 p.m. at the junior high, and get underway at 4:30.

Friday night's game will pit the Hawks against a team they've never defeated, the Porcupines of Springtown.

It was the loss to the Porkeys year before last that cost the Hawks a playoff spot, and knocked them into a tie for the title last year.

The homecoming queen will be crowned at the ball game. Students will vote on the candidates next Thursday.

Members of the Ex Students' Association will hold their annual banquet and business session the following evening in the high school cafeteria.

At the banquet, classes with years ending in "6" will be honored.

One such class, the Class of '46, is planning a special reunion, according to Joe Chandler.

The group is to meet at the Boston Tea Party in Wichita Falls Friday evening for dinner and the same location Saturday morning for breakfast.

Additionally, classmates and friends will hold a reception from 1 to 4 p.m. that Saturday at the Texas Electric Reddy Room.

WHOOPT-DO

The Chamber of Commerce originated the Whoop-T-Do about 16 years ago, to give homecomers something to do between the football game Friday night and the banquet Saturday night.

Non-profit organizations were encouraged to set up booths similar to a carnival, offering activities as well as a medium for earning money.

This year's event, held in the 100 block of East Cash, will have a central theme of Sesquicentennial.

Old-time games, contests and activities will have an old-fashioned flavor, such as encouraging everyone to dress in pioneer costumes. Awards will be presented the best-dressed man, woman, boy and girl.

Special medallions have been ordered as prizes for this and all the other events.

For the first time, the Annual Whoop-T-Do Fried Okra Cookoff will be held, with prizes going to the best-cooked fried okra and also to the best showmanship setup.

The cooking must take place at the cooksite, which will be the newly created parking lot west across Wall Street from the city hall.

Open to individuals and groups, registration for the contest can be made by contacting Dee Blackwell at the Chamber office, or be at the site, by 10 that morning.

Also a first this year will be an Old Time Food Fair. Participation is open to any individual, for a 25-cent-per item fee.

The event will be held during the morning hours, and winners will be named hourly.

Categories include baking (pies, cakes, breads) and canned goods (jelly, jam, pickles, vegetables and fruits).

Two divisions, one for adults and the other for juveniles, will be judged. Medallions and ribbons will be awarded.

Those interested in participating can contact the Chamber office, or Joni Whitis, 592-9034.

"This event will give our older citizens, as well as younger citizens, a chance to show off their skills," said Mrs. Whitis.

First event of the day will be the Annual Turtle Trot. Open to any youngster in the third grade or younger, the winning turtle will receive a $25 award which is provided each year by Tanner-Aulds Funeral Home.

Other highlights will include performances by the high school and junior high bands, high school choirs, Friendly Door rhythm band, Sheppard AFB Drum and Bugle Corps; Wichita County 4-H Drill Team and Demonstration; Rosellen's Cloggers, Bluegrass music by The Ramblers, students of Studio KG, and a flag-raising ceremony at the Farm Bureau office.

Hawks travel Friday, meet ranked Panthers

It's been a long time since Iowa Park has met Seymour on the football field.

In fact, some of the Hawks were not even born when the two last played.

Not since 1969 have the Hawks and Panthers played each other. It may have taken Seymour all these years to get over that 53-7 thrashing from the state champion Hawks.

But the two clubs get together at 8 p.m. Friday, in Seymour. And the game will be a test for both clubs.

Seymour is the pre-season favorite to win Dist. 9-AA, and is currently ranked sixth among AA teams in the state by the Associated Press.

That's a reverse situation from the last meeting of the two teams, when the Hawks were state-ranked and Seymour unranked.

The Panthers, under former Hawk assistant coach James Ivy, have earned their ratings this year. They are undefeated, having taken measure in the season opener against Class A Knox City, 44-0, and last week defeating Abilene Wylie, 31-14.

It was Class AAA Wylie that knocked off Breckenridge, 26-12, in the first week of play.

The Panther coaching staff has even more Iowa Park flavor. One of Ivy's assistant coaches is Phil Corless, another former local resident, who scouted the Hawks last Friday.

Seymour's pre-season ratings were based on the fact the club had size and experience, returning 14 starters and 18 lettermen from a 6-4 season in a district that produced the state champion, Electra.

Leading the Panther ground corps is tailback Mark Peters, 6-1, 190, with 4.6 speed in the 40.

Jon Hrcirik is a two-way returning starter, calling the signals on offense and playing in the secondary defensively.

Experience and size in the line is evident in Greg Blankenship, 195, Mike Griffin, 175, Royce Woods, 200, and Reed Slaggle, 205.

The Panthers have allowed only 182 yards rushing thus far this season by their two opponents.

While the Hawks are 1-1 thus far this season, both their opponents have been Class AAAA teams.

Dropping their season opener to Burkburnett, 14-6, the Mean Green rebounded last week with an impressive victory over highly-rated Graham, 14-0.

The stingy Hawk defense allowed the Steers, who had amassed a whopping 375 yards rushing in their 32-6 win over Stephenville, only 43 yards rushing and 69 passing.

Coach Davis Baugh has used two quarterbacks in both games this year. He starts Brad Huff and then changes the offense, to the confusion of the opposing defense, by bringing in Scott Davis.

Sales tax still up

As it has most of the past two years, Iowa Park continues to lead the other three cities of Wichita County in sales tax gain.

Iowa Park received a $11,102.73 check recently for sales made in July and reported to the state comptroller office by Aug. 20.

The same month last year, the check was for $10,004.16, according to the report.

Thus far this year, the city has received $116,872.78, which is a gain of 11.2 percent over the same period in 1985, $105,106.11.

Wichita Falls is the only other county city reporting a gain for the year, 3.12 percent. Electra is down 29.05 percent and Burkburnett trails last year by 2.7 percent.

Four of the six towns in Archer County which collect sales tax also show a decrease in sales from last year.

Of the four, Holliday has the largest decrease, 26.22 percent. That community has received $48,521.55 in rebates thus far, as compared to $65,762.51 last year.

Lakeside City tax collections have decreased 11.57 percent and stand at $6,121.83 this year.

And it's been effective, because all three touchdowns scored by the Hawks this year have come with Davis at the helm. Two of the TDs have been passes by the senior.

The change Davis poses for the opposing defense is that he runs the option, while Huff is not known as a runner.

Davis put pressure on the Steer defense by tucking the ball after getting outside the end on three rollouts and gaining 36 yards.

And when he opted to pass, he connected on three of five attempts.

A combination of the Hawks' newly-found offense and its established defense completely dominated last week's game against Graham. Iowa Park got off 53 offensive plays to only 33 for the Steers.

Chamber to obtain brochures

The Iowa Park Chamber of Commerce will have new, full-color brochures it can distribute in response to inquiries about the community.

Directors of the Chamber were told Monday the brochures which have been in use almost 20 years will be replaced by next week.

Funding of the brochures was provided by the Iowa Park Industrial Development Corporation, which allocated $3,600 for the project, according to Wayne House, who made the report.

Printing of the out-dated brochures were funded by Texas Electric Service Company, as part of its community development program.

Volunteers are being sought to assist in directing the various games and activities being planned for next week's Whoop-T-Do.

Carol Hayslip, who is in charge of that portion of the activities, said help was needed from those who were not already obligated to work in other booths.

Mrs. Hayslip can be contacted either at Independent American Savings or through the Chamber office.

Robert Palmer, Chamber vice president in charge of the Whoop-T-Do, said non-profit organizations were still reserving booth spaces, and an all-time record number of activities may be recorded.

Palmer said he has turned down an unusual number of commercial exhibitors and food vendors who wanted to be involved.

President Frank Gossett appointed Allen Gilstrap and Gene Jordan to audit the IDC books, a responsibility of the Chamber.

A committee of three, James Edwards, Mrs. Hayslip and Bob Hamilton, was appointed to nominate new directors to serve three years.

Directors whose terms expire this year are Bud Burch, Dr. Richard Carver, Bill Chandler, Glen Mitchell, Gilstrap, Tommy Key, Rip Smith, Bill Steger and Philip Welch.

Directors decided to hold the annual all-membership luncheon Nov. 10 at the County Agriculture Building.

Three new members have joined the Chamber during the past month, it was reported. They are Allstate Insurance, All Occasions Flowers and Gifts, and H & R Block.

Participants are sought for Bike-A-Thon ride

Iowa Park residents are encouraged to participate in the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital "Wheels For Life" Bike-a-thon, slated to be held the morning of Oct. 11, starting at the Iowa Park City Hall Park.

This year's ride honors a leukemia patient at St. Jude named Jaime.

Sponsors will be asked a sum for each mile completed by the riders. All riders turning in money will receive a certificate.

Those raising $25 receive a certificate and St. Jude t-shirt. When $75 is raised, the rider receives a barrel tote bag, t-shirt and certificate.

All money raised will be sent directly to St. Jude Hospital.

Riders wishing to participate can obtain forms from Steven Parkey at Bradford Elementary, Scott James at the junior high and Ricky Byrne at the high school.

Members of Boy Scout Troop 38 will be assisting with the Bike-a-thon, as their community service project. The Scouts will also ride in the event.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Decker are co-chairmen of the local project.

Smoke alarms program topic

Randy Brown, an Iowa Park resident who is a member of the Wichita Falls Fire Department, presented a program on smoke alarms for members of the Amity Study Club.

He showed a video tape, "Countdown to Disaster," and in stressing the importance of smoke alarms said that in fire-related deaths, there are more casualties from smoke inhalation than from the flames.

A fire department needs to be at the scene within the first five minutes to save a house, and in less time to save a mobile home. The ideal situation is to have a smoke alarm on every level of a home, and one in each bedroom. There should be at least two in every home.

The club's first meeting of the year was held Monday evening in the home of Mrs. Dan Johnson, with Mrs. Jerry Denton serving as co-hostess.

During a business meeting, directed by Mrs. Lee Hale, president, new yearbooks were distributed, and plans for a booth at the Whoop-T-Do were discussed. Mrs. Joe Ward gave the meditation, "Magic of Enthusiasm." Each member answered roll call by revealing the name of her secret pal.

After the meeting was adjourned, members were served refreshments.

Garden Club has style show

A humorous style show provided the program for the Iowa Park Garden Club Friday morning in a meeting held at the Tom Burnett Memorial Library.

The members who took part were Mrs. R. F. Bartow and Mrs. Robert Illingsworth, and the guests who took part were Mmes. Joe Laird, H. I. Burrell, Billy Martin and Harrel Sullivan. The piano accompaniment was furnished by Mrs. Glenn Gwinn.

Mrs. Jimmy Gilmore directed the business when yearbooks were distributed to members, and it was voted to have a "bakeless" bake sale at the Whoop-T-Do.

Luncheon was served to 21 members and nine guests.

The next meeting will be Sept. 26 at the Highland Cemetery memorial building and Mrs. B. J. Gilmore will give the program.

We support the HAWKS

As I See It....

By BOB HAMILTON

I don't guess anyone ever looks at the volume and issue number we print on the front page each week, except maybe us.

But I've got to call them to your attention this week. It's very special to all of us at the Leader.

With this issue, we're starting our 18th year of publication in Iowa Park!

To the consternation of some, but the approval of others, we've lasted 17 years in business here. And we feel we're just getting started.

Our family was young when we rented that U Haul truck and made the big transition from the South Plains community of Littlefield, back in September of 1969.

And while we still feel young, I must admit that I have grandchildren older than our youngest children were back when we relocated.

Though some may feel 17 years is a long time, it should be pointed out that a rule of thumb established by our "oldtimers" is that one must live here 25 years before they lose the title of "newcomer."

These have been 17 great years. We've watched, and reported, the many changes of our community, and with very few exceptions, all those changes have been beneficial to our citizens.

It appears our business community has reduced in numbers, but when we realize how it has spread out and no longer centralized, we've grown. Certainly we've grown in houses and numbers of families, as has the beautiful Wichita Valley.

True, school enrollment has not kept up with all the additional homes and apartments that have been added, but that only indicates the national trend of smaller families.

One major change I've observed over the years has been the competitive attitude of our business people.

Businessmen had a defeatist attitude when we moved here. "We're just too close to Wichita Falls," they would say when approached about advertising their merchandise.

Well, we seldom hear that any more. And I hope our newspaper has played at least a small part in the change.

One thing I constantly notice, at such times as high school homecoming when former residents return to visit. They're always glad to come back, and they're always impressed with changes and improvements that have taken place.

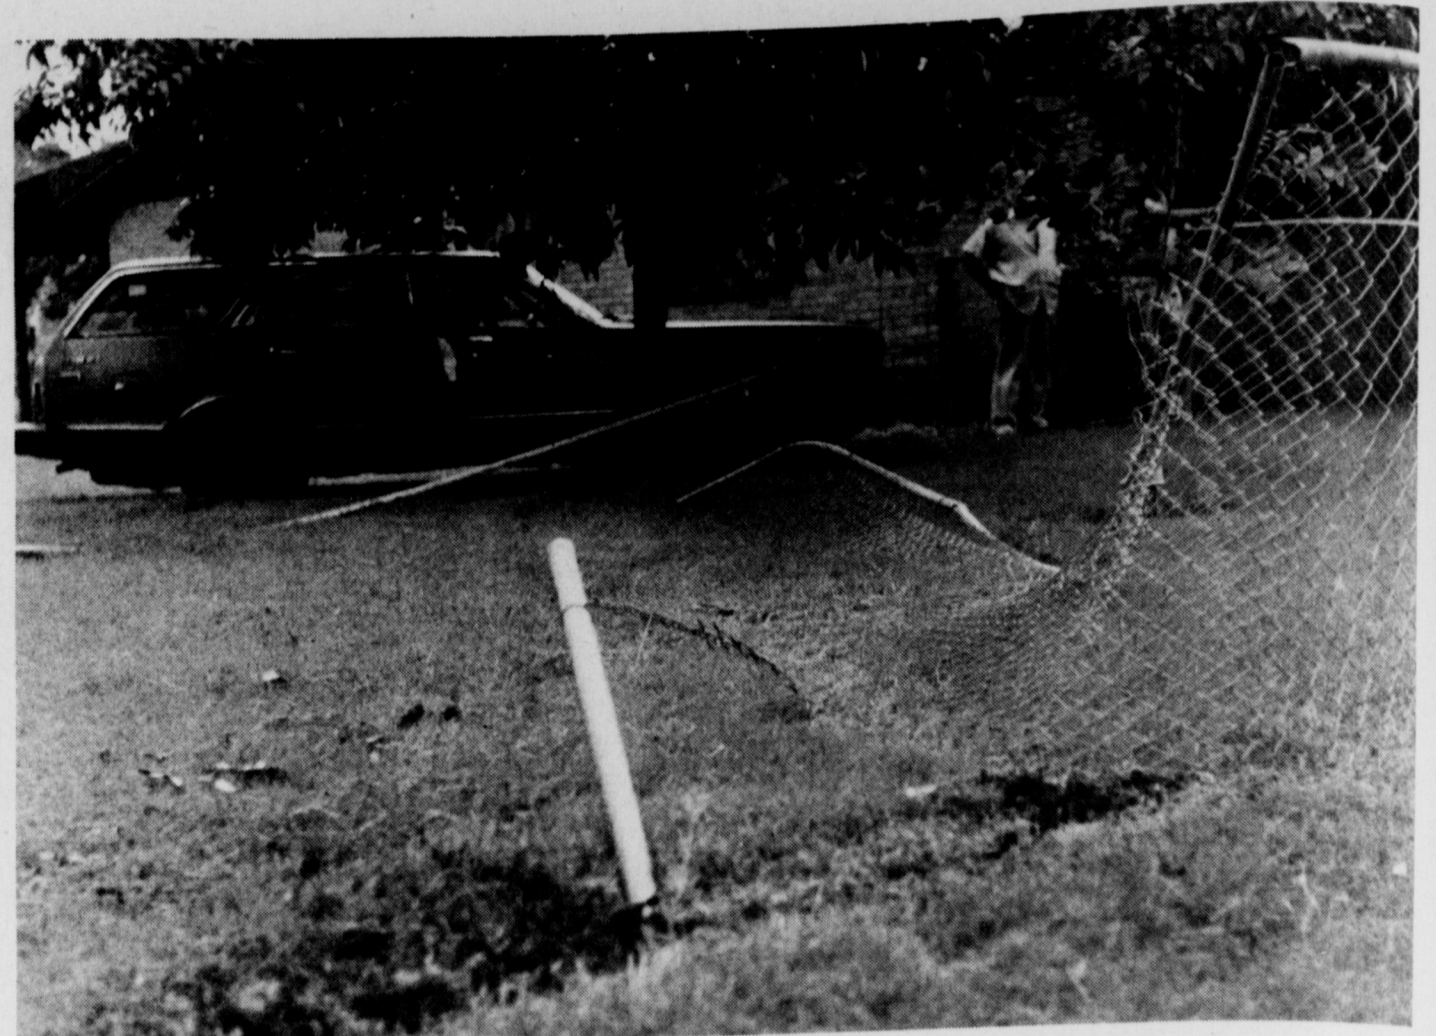

I'm looking forward to next week's homecoming. Over these past 17 years, I've developed a lot of close friendships with many who have moved and I enjoy "catching up" with what's happened since our last meeting.

While this past 17 years has been enjoyable, fruitful and a wonderful experience, I look forward even more to the next 17 years.

And, hopefully, the 17 years after those.

Thank you for your friendship, your loyal readership and your patronage.

The highlight of these past 17 years has been your friendship and knowing you.

BACK YARD ACCIDENT - John Dormier was struck by this station wagon about 7:25 p.m. Monday, when the vehicle left Louisa Street and plowed through the fence. Dormier, who suffered a broken arm and other internal injuries, reportedly underwent surgery Tuesday in a Wichita Falls. Driver of the vehicle, identified as Cecil Gilmore, a juvenile, told police he lost control when he attempted to miss a cat in the street. Police were continuing their investigation Wednesday.

Finnell wants 'rainy day' fund to be established

State Rep. Charles Finnell said this week he is co-sponsoring legislation which would establish a "rainy day fund" for the State of Texas to avoid future budget shortfalls.

"House Joint Resolution 4 by

Thefts, vandalism are reported

Two thefts and one case of criminal mischief were reported during the past week to local police.

Chains and boomers were reported stolen Wednesday from Barbour Trucking. The incident was reported by Burney Shepley.

Two window air conditioners were reportedly taken by renters when they moved Friday from 120 James Drive.

Roger Brown said tires on his vehicle were slashed Friday night while parked at 402 W. Jefferson.

Two male juveniles were arrested for public intoxication Friday night at Hawk Stadium. They were later released to their parents.

Rep. Schlueter and myself would set aside a contingency fund to deal with projected state budget deficits in the future," Finnell said. "With our state budget so closely tied to the price of crude oil we need to provide some means of protecting ourselves from similar predicaments in the future. HJR4 would allow us to do this."

Finnell said the proposed rainy day fund has several advantages, including providing a more stable environment for business.

"Companies would be encouraged to locate here in Texas because they will not be subject to sudden new taxes or reductions in state services. Also, our bond rating would improve because we would be considered a more stable investment by financial institutions.

"But the real winners would be the people of the state of Texas," he added. "We would no longer be held hostage to the price of crude oil in financing the necessary operations of state government."

Finnell said it would take a two-thirds majority of both the House and Senate to release money from the proposed Texas Economic Stabilization Fund which would ensure the money would not be spent carelessly.

If the resolution passes the Legislature it will provide for a referendum in November of 1987 on a constitutional amendment to establish the fund.

Annual cotton tour scheduled tomorrow

By DAVID FINLEY
County Agent

"It's time for another cotton tour and this year's should be good. With current rains, the cotton has really "jumped" and is going to make more than was promised a month ago.

Producers across the area will get a first hand opportunity to see the local cotton crops Friday when the annual Wichita County Cotton Tour will be held.

This year's tour will begin with a sponsored breakfast at 7 a.m. in the Westward Ho Restaurant on Highway 287 near Electra.

We will have two guest speakers on this year's tour and they are Al Alexander, Area Agronomist from Vernon and Emory Boring, Area Extension Entomologist, also from Vernon. Both of these are experts in their respective field and will be on hand to make comments about the crops before we begin the tour and then again when we arrive at the tour stops.

There will be two tour stops again this year. The first will be at a farm worked by W.H. and Terry McAlister. It is located about two miles east and one mile north of Punkin Center on Lalk Road.

At this location, producers will get a chance to look at 20 cotton varieties. Among the group is one hybrid cotton. Varieties in this test include among others, Hurds, several GP varieties, Pioneer, Tancot and Lanhart cottons.

These same varieties can be seen at the second stop that will be at Raymond Schroeder's farm just west of Burk Burnett on Hwy. 240. This plot has 18 varieties that were planted on June 23.

Both of these stops should give producers an excellent opportunity to see how their favorite varieties performed this past year. It will also show them some varieties that they may not want to plant in the future as well.

Three-quarters inch rain recorded

Iowa Park received an additional three-quarters of an inch precipitation from two showers this week, according to measurements recorded by Virgil Woodfin.

In Sunday's shower, .55 was measured, and in a brief and blustery shower Monday, .19 collected in Woodfin's gauge.

Monday's shower was accompanied by a brief spell of high winds, but no damage was reported.

Council meeting is postponed

The city council has postponed its regularly-scheduled meeting from Monday to the following Monday, Sept. 29.

Council meetings are regularly held the second and fourth Mondays of each month.

Reason for postponing the meeting was that some council members would not be in town, according to James Barrington, city administrator.

Caywood, Pressler vows are solemnized Saturday

Miss Laura Lynn Caywood and Larry Irvine Pressler exchanged double-ring wedding vows Saturday evening at First Baptist Church with Rusty Stowe, minister of music, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B.T. Caywood of Wichita Falls, and the groom is the son of Elgin Pressler of Iowa Park, and the late Mrs. Pressler.

The wedding decorations were keyed by beautiful simplicity. The center of the altar held two large arrangements of white gladioli and leatherleaf supported by Grecian stands. At either side tall candles burned in twenty-branched oval candelabra trimmed with the greenery. A mood of hushed reverence in the decorations was felt in the unity candlestick completely covered with white lily of the valley accented with white wedding bells and satin bows between the three candles at the top.

The family pews were designated with plaques of leatherleaf centered with white satin bows.

Mrs. Glenn Schell, organist, and Miss Krista Cameron, soloist, furnished the wedding music. Mrs. Schell introduced it with favorite classical and sacred selections and accompanied Miss Cameron who sang "Doubly Good to You." The organist included the traditional marches in her offerings.

The bride was escorted and presented in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white bridal satin elegantly trimmed with ruffles and lace. The close-fitting bodice featured a lace-trimmed flowered neckline, stand-up collar, sheer illusion front and back yoke. The yoke in front was trimmed with Schiffli embroidery, sequins and simulated pearls and in the back with pearlized button loop closures. The elasticized puffed sleeves were trimmed with lace flowers. Venise lace accented the waistline of the gown, and baby ruffles of Chantilly-type lace adorned the skirt and chapel length train.

She wore a caplet of reembroidered lace sprinkled with pearls to which her lace-edged fingertip illusion veil was caught. She carried a distinctive bouquet of white stephanotis accented with a white lace background, sparkling pearls and glass flowers and centered with a mauve silk rose. The mauve and white silk ribbons fell floorward from beneath a white silk rose at the extremity of the cascade of flowers.

She wore the groom's late mother's graduating class ring for both "something old" and "something borrowed," her wedding gown for "something new" and the traditional garter for "something blue."

The bridal attendants wore daphne rose silk gowns, each designed with a sweetheart neckline, elasticized puffed sleeves, and a self tie that wrapped the bodice for a flattering look. The slightly-raised waistline led to the asymmetrical skirt. They carried colonial nosegays of mauve and bows accented with alstermeria lilies and matching ribbons.

Mrs. David Ozee served as matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Kim Kellett and Miss Laura Chandler.

The three flower girls were Jennifer Erskine, Theresa and Andrea Stone. They were attired in dresses of lustrous daphne rose rachel lace over satin. The necklines were trimmed with satin and the sleeves had snap closures. The drop waist styling of the dresses featured satin cummerbunds and bows.

They wore head wreaths of mauve and white rosebuds and ribbons and carried white lace baskets with mauve petals.

The ring bearer who carried the rings on a white satin pillow trimmed with lace was Jeremy Erskine. The best man was Terry Pape and the groomsmen and ushers were Jimmy Pressler and Wesley Tipton. They wore Miami vice-style tuxedos with white slacks, mauve jackets, white pleated shirts, mauve cummerbunds and ties.

The groom wore an all-white tuxedo with pleated shirt with wing-tip collar, mauve bow tie and cummerbund.

The bride's mother wore a mauve crepe dress with a long sleeved bodice trimmed with mauve pearls in front and a tea length skirt. She wore a white carnation corsage.

The bride's parents were hosts for the wedding reception held in the Fellowship Hall of the church, and the groom's father gave the rehearsal dinner Friday evening at Luby's Cafeteria.

The refreshment table at the reception was draped to the floor with white lace over white crepe. The striking centerpiece was a four-branched silver candelabra holding tall white candles and a bouquet of white carnations and mauve baby's breath placed on a gold mirror encircled with flowers in the bride's colors.

Other points of table interest were the cake, silver punch bowl and mauve napkins lettered in gold with "Laura and Larry, September 13, 1986" and "promise of a lifetime of loving, sharing and caring."

The three-tiered white cake featured one set of dividers, fancy scrollwork and garlands, pink roses with pale green leaves. The top ornament was highlighted with three pink satin wedding bells that seemed to ring out the joyous news of the occasion. They were under an arch of white silk flowers and leaves raised by crystal dais.

The wall behind the table was decorated with large and small white wedding bells and mauve streamers.

Mrs. Gary Erskine served the cake and Mrs. Michael Stone served the punch during the reception.

Another table in the room held a silver tray filled with an assortment of small cakes, silver bowls filled with nuts and mints, and the rice bag bells and cups.

Mrs. Wesley Tipton directed signatures of wedding guests in the church foyer that held a large arrangement of summer flowers, a tall gold candlestick topped with an ivory candle, white plume pen, book and ceramic praying hands.

The bride was graduated from Henrietta High School and is employed by American One Stop. The groom was graduated from Iowa Park High School, attends Midwestern State Univ. and is employed by Sheppard Air Force Base. After a trip to Fort Walton Beach, Fla., they will live in Iowa Park.

Church group's meeting has classroom atmosphere

The Fellowship Hall of First United Methodist Church assumed the atmosphere of a classroom Tuesday morning when Mrs. China B. Smith gave the second of a series of Bible studies. It was teacher-directed with student participation when Mrs. Smith continued "Daniel-The Tract for troubled Times" by Jorge Gonzales.

The teacher presented a tape of partial review of the historical chapters of Daniel dealing with war, domination and captivity during the time of Nebuchadnezzar and other tyrants.

Chapter 7 of the Book of Daniel on the tape was of apocalyptic nature or an unveiling of things to come. The tape showed that the chapter told the story of Daniel's vision of the four beasts, and his vision of God's throne of government and judgment. Mrs. Smith said that the interpretation of the visions as to whether they look as for as the end of time, or whether they were to have a speedy accomplishment, is hard to determine.

The study concluded with the thought that there is no way of determining the end of time, and the only way to prepare for it is to live spiritual lives every day.

Mrs. Betty Dyer gave a report on the Cooperative Christian Mission Event held in Bridgeport recently which she and Mrs. Dave Davis attended. Rev. Larry George was dean of the school which includes all of the North Texas Conference of Methodist churches. The purpose of the meeting was to present and study the literature chosen for study by UMW next year.

Twenty-seven were present.

Participation consists of a self-imposed study of safety conditions on the campus.

TSTA members hear report

Eight Iowa Park members of the Texas State Teachers Association attended a meeting in Wichita Falls Monday to hear a report on the special legislative session.

Ollie Besterio, TSTA state vice president, made the report and answered questions on the teacher appraisal program.

Discussed were prospects of changing the way money would be funded to the retirement system, and use of money from the Permanent School Fund.

Also discussed were plans for a political rally Oct. 4, as well as the Region Nine convention Oct. 18 at Midwestern State Univ.

Attending were Mary Helen Schell, Janet Martin, Gayle Cleg-horn, Denise Frerich, Kellie Gibson, Karen Whisnand and Carolyn Richter.

Cook of the Week

Someone has said "Pie is as American as the Fourth of July." The courageous mothers contrived "pyes" out of the few staple foods at hand during the first lean and hungry years in New England and Virginia. It is said that they sliced the top off pumpkins, scooped out the fiber and seeds, filled the pumpkins with milk and set them to bake on the open hearth.

Later, a greased pan filled with dry meal was filled with pumpkin diluted with milk and spices, and later, they added the pastry crust.

The "pyes" of New England were baked in a long deep dish called "coffin," and the "pye receipts" up to Martha Washington's day directed cooks to "first make your coffin." The first American pie pans were round to cut the corners, flat and shallow so pies would "go a long way."

As orchards were planted and food became more plentiful pies took on a new look, and today, they are not only delicious but they are glamorous and exciting.

There are a variety of pies for every taste and occasion and they are distinctively American. Some are new, others tried and tested. Speaking of new, Mrs. Dennis Bradshaw's original recipe for Toasted Pie was new to the Leader personnel and aroused new interest in the pie which prompted some history on the pie of early America.

Lyresa Bradshaw was graduated from Gainesville High School where she was twirler for the band and played the flute, winning several awards. She was in the Spanish Club and Honor English Club and interpreted as needed for deaf in Gainesville.

She and her husband, Dennis, who have Rainbows, a network marketing system business, moved to Iowa Park in 1980. She is currently secretary for the business and also a certified color and wardrobe consultant. They are members of the Trinity Baptist Church in Wichita Falls.

The couple have four boys, Chris, 13, Cory, 10, Cody, 5 and Caleb, 4.

Lyresa's hobbies are calligraphy, sewing, cross-stitch and handcrafts.

Mrs. Dennis Bradshaw

FROSTED PIE (Original recipe)

1 cup fruit cocktail
3 tsp. powdered milk
1 pkg. cornbread mix
2 tsp. sugar

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Lightly grease nine inch pie pan.

Drain fruit cocktail, reserve syrup. Add water enough to make 1/2 cup. Combine syrup and powdered milk until thoroughly mixed.

Make cornbread according to directions on package using syrup mixture instead of liquid; stir in sugar. Pour half of cornbread into pie pan, spread evenly until bottom of pan and sides are covered. Spoon drained fruit cocktail onto mixture. Add remaining cornbread mixture on top spreading to cover. Bake 20-25 minutes until lightly browned. Frost with Butter Cream Frosting, recipe below, or frosting of your choice.

BUTTER CREAM FROSTING

This will frost the Frosted Pie or one-layer cake. Recipe can be doubled or tripled as needed.

1/2 cup margarine
2 cups powdered sugar
1/2 tsp. vanilla
1 tsp. milk

Cream margarine, add sugar 1/2 cup at a time until crumbly. Add vanilla and milk, mix thoroughly. Add more milk, 1 tsp. at a time until creamy and thick.

POTATO CANDY

2 tbs. mashed potatoes, warm
6-8 cups powdered sugar
1 jar crunchy peanut butter

Place potatoes in large mixing bowl. Mix in powdered sugar 1/2 cup at a time until mixture forms thick ball. Place on waxed paper. Place another piece on top and roll into rectangles about 1/4 inch thick. Remove top wax paper. Spread top evenly with peanut butter until all is covered. Beginning with one end, roll tightly, removing wax paper as rolled. When firm, remove wax paper, slice about 1/2 inches thick and serve.

NO FAIL PEANUT BRITTLE

The secret to this recipe is the peanuts. They must be fresh shelled, raw with brown skin in tact.

1 cup granulated sugar
1/4 cup hot water

Rusty Bradley

A legend to those who best know him

By KARI COLLINS

Rusty Bradley is a legend - not by his own admittance - but by the testimony of those who know him.

The sparkle in his eyes contradicts the weathered lines on his face -- the man definitely has not been beaten by life, but enhanced by it. Rusty Bradley is endowed with a sense of humor not many have.

He has been more things in one lifetime than most people ever hope to be, but he wouldn't have it any other way.

Born in 1909 to Rado Chilton Bradley and Jack Bradley, he still lives on his family's original homestead. Since that year, Rusty has earned the respect of most every person who has crossed his way through his integrity, honesty and modesty.

In his lifetime, Rusty has been an author, pilot, rancher, founder, cowboy, a master teller of old cowboy stories and a host of other accomplishments - none of which he'll ever admit to being much good.

He has always had a lot of irons in the fire - branding irons and otherwise.

As the owner of R.J. Bradley Ranch at Kadane Corner, which he runs with the help of his grandson, Johnny Miller, Rusty got his ranching experience at a very early age. He was born in a house that sat on the ranchland that he now holds. Shortly after his birth, the house burned down.

Looking back, Rusty jokes, "My father always thought that my birth and burning down that house were two tragedies."

When Rusty was young, his father went to work for the XIT Ranch and rode the rough string at the wagon. He said, "He rode every horse that the other cowboys turned back, 'cause they didn't want to ride them on account of they was hard to ride and they kicked and pitched." Despite the more dangerous line of work, Jack Bradley got paid the same salary as the wagon boys - $35 a month.

Rusty says that after his dad lived at the wagon for three years, or 36 months, his father still had 34 of his paychecks. With those checks, he bought the first land that the Bradley family ever owned.

Rusty, who obviously has an immense amount of respect for his father, says of him, "He was foresighted enough, rather than to waste his money gambling and drinking and that sort of thing, he saved it and bought land and this is where he got his start at a good living. We think he's a pretty smart man."

Bradley inherited other parts of the land he has from his mother and father, some of which has been in his family for some 106 years.

About 1877, his mother's family, a pioneering family of the area, settled on a tract of land near Beaver Creek, after moving here in covered wagons from Missouri. Shortly after this, his father's family settled in the area.

Rusty's father was a very strong-minded man as far as education was concerned. When Bradley graduated high school in 1927, he was sent to Texas A&M Univ. The depression got worse, however, and Rusty had to come home after only two years. Of this, he says, "At the end of my second year, going into my third, I had to quit school and go to work so that we could make these land payments. My father was very calm and got it paid for."

After this, Rusty and his father formed a partnership. "I guess from that time on until he died, we had a real good relation-partnership. My daddy never, never lectured to me, he just set an example. I've always appreciated. . . that. He was, I guess, the finest man I ever knew. Regardless of how bad it was when he went to bed, he left all that business to be picked up the next morning and went sound asleep. I can't do that."

During the latter part of the depression, Rusty got a job at Fort Worth running a ranch. When the financial situation of his father's ranch got a little better, his mother's health began to deteriorate.

About 1943, Rusty moved back to his father's ranch and his parents moved away. "I took over the operation but always counseling with my father. We farmed for our cattle, we never tried to make much money. If we could raise some winter wheat pasture for our cattle and if we could raise some oats for our horses, we always tried to do that. We never concentrated our efforts into farming, we just tried to raise better cattle and this sort of thing."

Bradley Ranch has won numerous awards for land conservation, among these include he and his grandson, Johnny, receiving the Outstanding Conservation Rancher Award in 1984 by the Texas Soil and Water Conservation District.

"We have won some awards for taking care of the land but, God, we've done an awful job. The Indians were so much better about taking care of the land than we have been," he said. "I'm not talking about just Bradley, I'm talking about all the ranches. This land has deteriorated over my lifetime. The kind capacity of the land has gone down, and we think we're ranchers and try to be smart and actually, all of us have done a damn poor job of taking care of the land."

Although Bradley is a conscientious worker, he didn't go without a few fun times. While at A&M, he was kicked out of school three times.

The first time involved an incident regarding the doorknobs on the dormitory rooms where Rusty lived. During his freshman year, upperclassmen had forced the freshmen to spend the night outside in some pretty severe weather. So, Rusty and his roommate took all the doorknobs off the outside dormitory doors so that once you were outside you couldn't get back in.

"As we were stealing these damn doorknobs, there was a boy in the company stole some watches and other jewelry. Of course, we didn't know that and he didn't know we stole the doorknobs," he says, laughing. "Well they got the whole damn company out, Company E, and we was lined up out here and the officer with the army was getting the occupants of a room and taking them up to the room and searching. We thought they were looking for those doorknobs, but they were actually looking for the jewelry. We were sweating this out."

When Rusty and his roommate were finally summoned to their room, Rusty confessed that they were the culprits. "We lifted the lid on the truck (where the doorknobs were hidden) and the officer liked to have died laughing. That was the first time they kicked me and Knox out of school."

The next time he was kicked out was a misunderstanding. Rusty was in the infantry, but for the cavalry he rode horses that had become unruly; in cowboy language, they had become untrained. "A lot of the cavalry students were city boys and they didn't understand about horses," he said.

"All you need to do (with horses that have come untrained) is to shake 'em up and make 'em do the things they should have been doing all the time. On this particular occasion, the band was down there practicing on the parade ground and they were not in close formation, they were quite a distance apart. I rode this horse through this band and I didn't do it to be smart, I was just showing the horse that he needed to be distant. They took a very, very dim view of that. Of course, this is the second time I got kicked out and I'm not going to tell you about the third time. I made some lasting friends."

Rusty began his schooling at the RP University, which consisted of one room, holding nine or 10 students in seven different grades.

When his mother decided he wasn't getting the proper education at the university, she sent him to school in Electra. There he met Kathryn Lois Chaney, who is now Mrs. Bradley.

They celebrated their 56-year wedding anniversary on June 22. On the longevity of their marriage, Rusty says. "We didn't have any money - we were broke. We had a very simple wedding, but it seemed to work all right to last 56 years."

MR. AND MRS. BRADLEY WITH PRIZED SADDLE AND TROPHIES

During World War II, Bradley was in the Federal Aviation Administration, where he flew airplanes for them and the Navy. The F.A.A. then organized the Civil Air Patrol.

"We patrolled the convoy out of the Gulf of Mexico and what a lot of people didn't realize was that the Japs had developed a little miniature submarine and they were sinking a lot of this shipment in the Gulf of Mexico," he said.

"For some unknown reason, the authorities didn't want to release this information. I don't know whether they didn't want to give the Japs some comfort or whether they were worried about . . . the American people and what it would do to them."

What Rusty really enjoyed, but modestly downplays the real danger of, was test piloting. "There was a company that repaired airplanes that had been shot in combat or they'd use 'em in trainer programs and rebuilt them and they wanted somebody to test 'em before they turned 'em back to the government. So I done this (test piloted) for a couple of years. I really enjoyed it. It was good fun."

Of flying, he says, "I really like to fly. If you fly right and pay attention to what you're doing, it's quite a challenge. I haven't flown in an awful long time, (since) I lost sight in one eye."

Bradley's accomplishments in the field of arts and literature include the authorship of two books, 'Bridlewise And Otherwise,' volumes one and two. Both books are compiled of articles, written by Rusty, that appeared in the Western Livestock Journal, Salem Evening News, or the Western Horseman Magazine. Proceeds from the books, published in 1972 and 1978, respectively, all went to the American Cancer Society.

The articles weren't written by an amateur. They were written by a master teller of old cowboy stories who just happens to be able to find and express humor in his first-hand knowledge of ranching.

His books personify what ranch-life and people are really like with rare humor and philosophy.

As well as penning the books, Rusty is also responsible for the artwork in the first volume.

For a man who claims to get lost in a cow pasture, Bradley has numerous mementoes which attest to the fact that he is indeed a real cowboy.

Among these are several saddles, spurs and belt buckles won in the Stamford Rodeo among others places. Rusty's specialties were team calf roping and wild cow milking, with Odell Blackwell as his partner more often than not.

Despite winning these awards, Rusty denies his obvious talent. "My father could ride a bronc so easy, and Odell could ride a bronc so easy. I just kinda hover all over 'em and have a hold of the saddle horn hollerin' 'Whoa! I never was a first class cowboy."

How would Rusty describe himself? He had a story for that one too.

"I won this saddle down in Stamford and mother put it in the livingroom. Pat Bateman (of Bateman Ranch) came down to spend the night with us. He went in the livingroom and looked it all over and he said to me and to Mrs. Bradley, 'Rusty, that's a monument to a misspent life.' So I think that just about describes me."

Bradley was also one of the founders, along with Pat Bateman and Joe Huffington, of the National Quarterhorse Association, of which he was the second-year president.

The National Quarterhorse Association then merged with the American Quarterhorse Association to become the American National Quarterhorse Association, where he remains active.

Some of his other "trades" include carpentry and house wiring although he hasn't had much luck with the latter.

"When we built this house, I got a book from Sears & Roebuck called 'House Wiring Simplified.' It cost two dollars and I wired this house. (In 1985) we had a fire in the laundry room. She (Mrs. Bradley) thought we needed to rewire the house."

"To rewire the house 45 years later cost more than it did to build the house in the first place. . . this is what inflation had done," he said.

Although he didn't build the house, Bradley and his wife did build their kitchen. He said, "There's some things mama won't let me do."

"One time I came home and she had a picture of a rustic looking kitchen. She said that's what she wanted. I said, 'Hell, I can build that,' and so we did."

The Bradley home is a reflection of their lifestyle. Centered around family and tradition, their home displays numerous family photos, past and present, and many mementoes and keepsakes.

Displayed in their livingroom is one of the saddles Rusty has won over the years, and many of his other awards.

Rusty and his wife have two children, Bill Bradley and Mary Kay Miller.

Bill served in Korea as a captain and now owns a ranch at Childress.

Mary Kay is a graduate of Oklahoma A&M, where she recently received her doctorate in English and teaches.

Bradley claims that she is one of the best cowboys he's ever had on the ranch.

Mary Kay is the mother of four boys - Johnny, Peter, Phillip and Joe.

Johnny, his wife, Susan, and their two sons, John Bradley and Chris, live in Kadane Corner where Johnny is manager of his grandfather's ranch.

There isn't enough time or room to list all of Bradley's accomplishments, he's not finished yet. Let's just say he is a man with a lot of irons in the fire. Branding irons and likewise.

JEFF HUFF TAKES ON TWO STEER BLOCKERS TO TACKLE RUNNER

Hawks shut down Steers to up set the 'experts'

Iowa Park's Hawks, playing their first home game of the season Friday night, upset the predictions of the "experts" and defeated Class AAAA Graham, 14-0.

The Mean Green's offense came alive during the second quarter and, combined with a tenacious defense (spell that with a capital D), shut out the Steers before a near-capacity crowd.

Because of Graham's 32-6 season opener win over Stephenville and Iowa Park's 14-6 loss to Burk Burnett, the Hawks had gone into the game as the underdogs, according to the "experts."

But Graham's two all-state backs were held in check by the Mean Green defensive platoon, allowing the visitors only 43 net yards rushing and 69 passing in 33 offensive plays. The Steers gained only two net yards rushing in the fourth quarter.

A big part in the defense's domination was four interceptions, two by linebacker Dennis Phillips and one each by Steve Allen and Jeff Huff.

With the defense handing the ball over to the offensive platoon, the Hawk backs ate up time on the clock by getting off 53 offensive plays which accounted for 168 yards rushing and 36 more passing.

Both the touchdowns were scored by reserve fullback Jim Cummings, a junior who didn't even get his hands on the ball in the season opener.

Cummings carried nine times for 30 yards, one of those a determined six-yarder in the second quarter that lit up the scoreboard for the Hawks.

His other TD was a 10-yard pass reception from Scott Davis. He took the ball on the two, and bulled his way across the line with three defenders holding on.

Also holding the Steers in check was the punting of Scott Weaver, who averaged 45 yards on three kicks.

The Hawk offense sputtered through the first quarter as it did most of the Burk Burnett game, gaining only three net yards and no first downs. Meanwhile, Graham was racking up a pair of first downs while gaining 19 yards rushing and 33 more passing, completing all three aerial attempts.

But the Mean Green defense broke the spirit of the "Ragin' Red" in the second quarter, intercepting three of four pass attempts and holding the visitors to only seven yards rushing.

Linebacker Allen's interception set up the game's first score. The senior returned the ball to the Steer end zone, but a clipping penalty against Jeff Huff put the ball back on the 33.

It took only six plays to score, with the clock winding down to 19 seconds before the halftime rest period.

Coach David Baugh sent Davis in to quarterback on the scoring drive. The senior picked up 10 yards on the first play. After Cummings gained two, Davis hit the fullback on a 15-yarder to the Steer six.

Davis then threw an incompleton, followed by a pass to Richard Morath who caught the ball in the end zone, but his leap took him off the playing field.

On the next play, Cummings took the ball on a draw play and bulled his way six yards to the goal line.

Robert Adams then kicked the first of his two extra points of the evening, giving the Hawks a 7-0 lead as the two teams took their mid-game rest.

In the third quarter, after the teams had exchanged possession, Weaver boomed a punt from his own 19 to the Steer: 35.

Four plays later, Graham was punting from the 20 after behind-the-line tackles by Adams, Wayne Oltman and Charlie Stamm.

Starting their next drive from the Steer 44, the Hawks scored in seven plays, despite two penalties that cost 15 yards.

Davis ran for 11, followed by four plays by Danny Forman that gained 11 more. Davis picked up another 15 and then sent Chad Fielding around end 10 more yards.

Then Davis rolled to his right, drew the defense, and passed over their heads to Cummings for the TD. Graham drove all the way to the Hawk 13 yard line early in the fourth period. But Jeff Huff made up for his clipping mistake that cost Allen a touchdown by intercepting a Graham pass, killing the Steer scoring opportunity.

Iowa Park then ate up the remaining 8:04 of the game by mounting a sustained drive that took the ball inside the Steer 20.

Forman led the nine Hawks who carried the ball Friday night, gaining 57 yards for the evening on 15 carries. Davis gained 36, Cummings 30, Weaver 20 and Fielding and Eric Whitman each picked up 18.

Davis completed three of five pass attempts and Brad Huff completed one of three attempts.
