SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Dissatisfied with the quiet life in his home surroundings, Athol Meldrum, young Scotsman who tells the story, leaves his mother and brother, Garry, to seek his fortune. At San Francisco, practically penniless, he takes a laborer's job, and meets a fellow adventurer whom he dubs, and who is a preceived whom as the Predigal

CHAPTER II.—The Prodigal is anxious to join the rush of gold seekers into Alaska, and Meldrum agrees to go with him after he (the Prodigal) comes back from a visit to his wealthy father in the East. Athol, in great need, is befriended by Jim Hubbard ("Salvation Jim"). When the Prodigal returns, the three men join the stampede into the Frozen North, the Prodigal and Hubbard financing the outfit.

CHAPTER III.—Among the motley crowd on the boat is a young girl obviously out of place. She is traveling with her grandfather and a hard-looking couple named Winklestein, who figure as her uncle and aunt. Athol has an opportunity to befriend her, and she tells him a sad story of her life. She is journeying into Alaska to take care of her grandfather, who is obsessed with the idea of getting rich in Klondike. Her name, she tells him.
is Berna.

Klondike. Her name, she tells him is Berna.

CHAPTER IV.—Landing at Skagway, Athol's party at once takes the trail. In a snowslide on the Chilcoot trail, which Berna and her companions had taken, hundreds of lives are lost. Fearful for Berna's safety, Athol hastens to the scene. He finds the old man dead and learns that Berna is prostrated. Madam Winklestein refuses to let him see the girl, but he leaves a letter for her. At Bennett Berna begs him to marry her, to save her from the harsh fate she foresees. He is unwilling to take such a decisive step, and tells her they must wait.

CHAPTER V.—Some days afterward Berna tells Athol Madam Winklestein plans to sell her to "Black Jack" Locasto, millionaire miner of evil reputation. While realizing how greatly he loves the girl, Meldrum, in a mixture of emotions, filinches from the idea of immediate marriage, and they agree to wait a year, though Berna is fearful. Reaching the gold fields. Athol and his party find the claims "I taken."

CHAMPER X.—In the hospital, recovering, Athol learns from Dongan, a fellow patient, that Berna is in the greatest danger from Locasto, Athol steals from the hospital and reaches the Winklestein cabin. There he faces Locasto, but is unable to save Berna. After a long convalescence Athol learns, that Berna has been living with Locasto as his mistress, and is now "on the dance halls," Locasto having left Dawson. In the Tivoli dance hall.

CHAPTER XI — Explaining his inability to keep his engagement. Athol pleads with her to forget the past and marry him, but she refuses, declaring herself unworthy. Athol threatens to join her in a life of sin, and on her continued refusal to marry him, does so. In the midst of his dissination he is the victim of a woman's jealous rage, almost at the moment he learns of the death of his mother. Recovering, Athol finds himself in Berna's home. She refuses to consider his offer of marriage, but lives with him.

CHAPTER XII.—With Doogan Locasto is returning from a prospecting trip. His brutality has driven Doogan almost insane and while Locasto sleeps his companion stuns and binds him, takes all the provisions, and leaves him to die. Locasto frees himself, takes the trail, and, almost at his last gasn, reaches the cabin of "Salvation Jim." Athol and a friend are visiting Jim. They revive Locasto, but his left hand has to be amoutated. CHAPTER XII.-With Doogan

CHAPTER XIII.—Locaste leaves Dawson. Athol finally prevails on Berna to marry him, and the cere-mony is set for the next day. Then, with no warning of his coming. Athol's brother. Garry, arrives.

He was in New York a week ago. He's down and out. Blood-poison ing set in in his foot after he got Outside, and eventually he had to have it taken off. He's got a false mit for the one Mac sawed off. But you should see him. He's all shot to pieces with the 'hooch.' It's a fright the pace he's gone. Seems to have a terrible pick at you. Seems you have copped out his best girl, the only one he's ever cared a red cent for. Said he would get even with you if he swung for it. I think he's dangerous, even a mad man. He is leaving for the North now, so be on your guard."

Locasto coming! I had almost forgotten his existence. Well, I no longer cared for him. I could afford to despise him. Surely he would never dare to molest us. If he did-he was a broken, discredited blackguard. I could crush him.

He was coming be on the way. back to the scene of his ruined fortunes, and God knows with what schemes of vengeance his heart was full. Decidedly I must beware.

As I sped along with a jingle of bells, my spirits rose. Things were looking spiendid. The mine was turning out far better than we had expected. Surely we could sell out soon, and I would have all the money I wanted. My life-struggle was nearly over.

Then again, I had reconciled Garry to Berna. When I told him of a certain secret I was hugging to my breast he would capitulate entirely. How happy we would all I would buy a small estate near home, and we would settle down. But first we would spend a few years in travel. We would see the whole world. What good times we would have. As I spun along, I thought of how changed it all was from the Bopanza I first knew. How I remembered tramping along that side slope, packing a sack of flour over a muddy trail, a poor miner in muddy overalls! Now I was driving a smart horse on a fine class min?. I was a man of business, of experience. Higher and higher my spirits rose. How fast the horse flew! I would be at the Forks in no time. I flashed past cabin windows. I saw the solitary oil-lamp and the miner has book or filling his pipe. Never was there a finer, more intelligent man; but his day was The whole country was falling into the hands of companies. Soon, thought I, one or two big combines would control the whole wealth of that land. Already they had their eyes on it. The gold-ships would float and roar where the old-time miner toiled with pick and pan. Change! Change!

I almost fancied I could see the monster dredges plowing up the valwhere now men panted at the windlass. I could see vast heaps of tailings filling the creek-bed; I could hear the crash of the steel grizzlies; I could see the buckets scooping up the pay-dirt. I felt strangely prophetic. My imagina-tion ran riot in all kinds of wonders, great power plants, quartz discoveries. Change! Change! Yes, the stamp-mill would add its thunder to the other voices; the country would be netted with wires, and clamorous for far and wide. Man had sought out this land where Silence had reigned so long. He had awakened the echoes with the shot of his rifle and the ring of his ax. Silence had raised a startled head and poised there, listening. Then, with crack of pick and boom of blast, man had hurled her back. Further and further had he driven her. With his advancing horde, mad in their lust for the loot of the valley, he had banished her. His engines had frightened her with their canorous roar. His crashing giants had driven her cowering to the inviolate fastnesses of her hills. There she broods and waits. But Silence will return. was given the land that she might rule and have dominion over it forever. And in a few years the clamor will cease, the din will die away. In a few years the treasure will be exhausted, and the looters will depart. The engines will lie in rust and ruin; the wind will sweep through the empty homes: the tailing-piles lie pallid in the moon. Then the last man will strike the last blow, and Silence will come again into her own.

Yea, Silence will come home once more. Again will she rule des potic over peak and plain. She is only waiting, brooding in the impregnable desolation of her hills. To her has been given empery of the land, and hand in hand with Darkness will she return.

. . . . . . . As I drew up at the hotel, the clerk came out to meet me. "Gent wants to speak to you at the phone, sir."
D was Marror of Dawson, an old-timer, and a friend of mine.

"Hello! Say, Meldrum, this is Murray speaking. Say, just wanted to let you know there's a stage due some time before morning. Locasto's on board, and they say he's heeled for you. Thought I'd better tell you so's you can get fixed up

"All right," I answered. "Thank you. I'll turn and come right back."

So I switched round the horse. and once more I drove over the glistening road. A grim fear was gripping me. Of a sudden the shadow of Locasto loomed up sinister and menacing. Even now he was speeding Dawsonward with Well. I would get back and prepare for him.

There came to my mind a comic perception of the awkwardness of returning to one's own home un expectedly in the dead of night. At first I decided I would go to a botel, then on second thoughts I determined to try the house, for I had a desire to be near Berna.

I knocked gently, then a little iouder then at last quite loudly. Within all was still, dark as a sepulcher. Curious! she was such a light sleeper, too. Why did she not hear me!

Once more I decided to go to the hotel; once more that vague, indefinite fear assailed me and again I knocked. And now my fear was becoming a panie. I had my latchkey in my pocket, so very quietly I opened the door.

"Berna," 1 whispered.

No reply. That dim, nameless dread was clutching at my heart, and I groped overhead in the darkness for the drop-light.

Instantly the cabin was flooded with light. In the dining room I could see the remains of our supper lying untidily. That was not like her. She had a horror of dirty dishes. I passed into the bedroom -Ah! the bed had never been slept were on the third floor. Through the transom I could see his light was burning. I knocked faintly.

There was a sudden stir. Again I knocked. Did my ears deceive me or did hear a woman's startled cry?

There was something familiar about it--Oh, my God! I reeled. I almost fell. I clutched at the door-frame. I leaned sickly against the door for support.

Heaven help me! "I'm coming," I heard him say. The door was unlocked, and there stood. He was fully dressed. He looked at me with an expression on his face I could not define, but he was very calm, "Come in," he said. I went into his sitting-room. Everything was in order. I would have sworn I heard a woman scream, and yet no one was in sight. The bedroom door was slightly ajar. I eyed it in a fascinated way.

"I'm sorry to disturb you, Garry," I said, and I was conscious how strained and queer my voice sound-"I got back suddenly, and there's no one at home. I want to stay here with you. if you don't

"Certainly, old man; only too glad to have you.

His voice was steady. I sat down on the edge of a chair. My eyes were riveted on that bedroom door.
"Had a good drive?" he went on genially. "You must be cold. Let you some whisky." I held the glass with a shaking "What's the matter, old man? You're ill.'

I clutched him by the arm. "Garry, there's some one in that

"Hold on-"Leave go, man! I'm going, I say. You won't hold me. Let go, I tell you, let go-Now come out, come out, whoever you are-Ah!"

It was a woman.
"Ha!" I cried, "I told you so, brother, a woman. I think I know her, too. Here, let me see-I thought

I had clutched her, pulled her to the light. It was Berna. Her face was white as chalk, her eyes dilated with terror. She trembroke it. "What have you got to say for yourself, Garry?" I asked. It was wonderful how calm he

"Looks pretty bad, doesn't it, brother?" he said gravely. "Yes, it couldn't look worse."

"That's so." He rose and turned up the light of a large reading lamp, then coming to me he looked me square in the face. Abruptly his casual manner dropped. He grew sharp, forceful; his voice rang clear.

"Listen to me. I came out here to save you, and I'm going to save you. You wanted me to believe that this girl was good. You believed it. You were bewitched, befooled, blinded. I could see it, but I had to make you see it. I had to make you realize how worthless she was, how her love for you was she was, how her love for you was a sham, a pretense, to prey upon you. How could I prove it? You would not listen to reason: I had to take other means. Now, hear

"I laid my plans. For three months I tried to conquer her, to win her love, to take her from you. She was truer to you than I had bargained for; I must give her credit for that. She made a good fight, but I think I have triumphed. Tonight she came to my room at my invitation."

"Well. You got a note. Now, I wrote that note. I planned this scene, this discovery. I planned it so that your eyes would be opened, so that you would see what she was, so that you would cast her from you—unfaithful, a wan-

"What have I done! Try to be calm, man. What have I done? Well, this is what I've done, and It's the lucky day for you I've done it. I've saved you from shame; I've freed you from sin; I've shown you the baseness of this girl." He rose to his feet. "Oh, my brother, I've stolen from you your mistress; that's what I've done." "Ob, no, you haven't," I groaned. "God forgive you! She's not my God forgive you! She's not my -not what you think. She's my -not wife!"

I thought that he would faint. His face went white as paper and he shrank back. He gazed at me with wild, straining eyes.

"God forgive me! Oh. why didn't you tell me, boy? You should have trusted me. You should have told When were you married?"

"Just a month ago. I was keeping it as a surprise for you. I was waiting till you said you liked and thought well of her. Oh, I thought you would be pleased and glad, and was treasuring it up to tell you."
"This is terrible, terrible!"

His voice was choked with agony. On her chair, Berna drooped wearily. Her wide, staring eyes were fixed on the floor in pitiful perplexity. "Yes, it's terrible enough. We were so happy. We lived so joy-ously together. Everything was perfect, a heaven for us both. And then you come, you with your charm that would lure an angel from high heaven. You tried your power on my poor little girl, the girl that never loved but me. And I trusted you, I tried to make you and her friends. I left you together. In my blind innocence I aided you in every way-a simple, loving fool. You came like a serpent, a foul, crawling thing, to steal her from me, to wrong me. She was loving, faithful, pure. You would have dragged her in the mire. You-"

"Stop, brother, stop, for heaven's sake! You wrong me.' He held out his hand command ingly. A wonderful change had come over him. His face had regained its calm. It was proud.

"You must not think I would have been guilty of that," he said quietly. "I've played a part I never thought to play; I've done a thing I never thought to have dirtied my hands in the doing, and I'm sorry and ashamed for it. But I tell you, Athol-that's all. As God's my witness. I've done you no wrong. Sure that? I did what I did for my love for you, for your honor's sake. I asked her here that you might see what she was-but that's all. I swear it. ### LIGHTS GOLDEN JUBILEE

CELEBRATION

The Nations of the World joined with the United States in comthe greatest of Edison's inventions, the incandescent lamp. In the spirit of the Jubilee, West Texas lemonstrated its fillingness to fol-

In honoring the Man of Miracles, Light's Golden Jubilee was one of he greatest tributes ever paid to a man, living or dead, because it celebrated the deeds of a man whose acheivement splace him with history's greatest men. While he has led no armies into battle nor conquered countries, he wields a reamed. He commands a devotion more sweeping in scope, more world-wide than any living man.

Honor had already been accorded to this "Great National Asset." Three hundred thousand visitors naugurate Light's Golden Jubilee, May 31, at Atlantic City, Niagara Falls dedicated its Fifth Annual Festival of Lights to Edison. Here, besides the elaborate street and city lighting, a battery of searchlights aggregating 1,440,000,000 candle power brilliantly illuminated the Falls. The National Air Races at Cleveland were dedicated to Edison. Our country's largest convention the National Convention of the America nLegion, was dedicated to him. Besides the acceptance of the Honorary Chairmanship of Light's Golden Jubilee by the President of the United States, our government has issued a special two-cent postage stamp to commemorate the occasion. The manner in which this stamp has been received by the country at large is evidence of the great interest on the part of the public. More than 350,000,000 stamps have been sold since June 5th.

Rarely is it possible for grateful people to express to a living man their appreciation of his gifts and accord him the friendly tributes which are beyond all bronze and beyond all marble. The celebration, no matter how large, for the event it has commemorated, has but partly glorified this Man of Miracles.

October 21st was the exact 50th Age of Light? Anniversary of Mr. Edison's successful experiment. On that eventful night the attention of the World was focused upon Dearborn where Henry Ford has started the foundation of a perpetual tribute to Edison. ### CENSUS EXAMINATIONS ANNOUNCED

Washington, D. C., October 16 1919.—The United States Civil Service Commission has announced that it will receive applications until November 2 1929 for certain temporary positions in the Bureau of the Census in Washington, D. C., in connection with the Fifteenth Decennial Census.

The positions for which examinations are to be held are junior clerk junior calculating machine operator, and junior tabulating machine operator, with an entrance salary of $1,440 a year, and under card-punch operator with an entrance salary of $1,260 a year.

These examinations are open to all citizens of the United States, both men and women, who meet the requirements.

It is expected that a large number of appointments will be made The length of service will probably range from one to two years in most cases but in no case will it extend beyond December 31, 1932.

Full information regarding these examinations can be obtained from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C. or from the Secretary of the United States Civil Service Board at the post office or customhouse in any city.

Millions of Miles of Constant Testing

to maintain the outstanding quality and dependability of The Chevrolet Six

In spite of the fact that a million Chevrolet Sixes have already been placed in the hands of owners, and have proved their performance and stamina by billions of miles of service over every type of highway the nation affords-the Chevrolet Motor Company continues to take new Chevrolet Sixes from the assembly line at the factory and subject them to pitiless testing on the roads of the General Motors Proving Ground!

This passion for proof-this consistent refusal to accept any tests as final-is one of the fundamental reasons for the overwhelming popularity of Chevrolet cars. For in no other way is it possible to make the Chevrolet Six so sound in design and materials-so dependable in performance-and so economical to operate!

If you are considering the purchase of an automobile, come in and see the new Chevrolet. You will find that it is more than a Six in the price range of the four. In every way it is a finer car than you ever thought possible in the low-price field!

Ermal was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Stuteville of Brownwood and at the time of her death was an employee of the Southwest-Mr. and Mrs. Newcomb left for ern Telephone Co. She was born February 22, 1907 at Baird, Texas, but moved to Brownwood while yet a child.

Those who knew her best will always remember her as a quite, modest, industrious Christian character. Always faithful in church and Sunday school attendance, ever ready to assume and fulfill her part of all responsibilities, they knew she could be depended upon. The many earnest prayers in her behalf, acts of kindness and beautiful floral offerings were but testimonials of the esteem in which she was held by her employers and friends.

She is survived by her father and mother, two sisters, Miss Jimmie Stuteville and Mrs. William Day, two Brothers, Milton and Floyd, all of Brownwood and a host of other relatives and friends.

Every effort was made to restore her to health and all that medical skill and loving hands could do, was done; but God in His wisdom knew best, and took back the soul that He had given to bloom here such a few years; leaving behind to the heartbroken relatives and friends only a sweet memory.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon, Oct. 10, at the Belle Plain Ave. Baptist church of which Ermal had long been a faithful member. The song service was by members of her Sunday school class, each of them wearing a pale pink rosebud in her memory, and pall bearers were six

There are two kinds of happiness. The lesser consists in find-ing the work for which you are fit and doing it.

The greater, reserved for a few, is working for others.

Watch young and delicate birds very closely as they are most susceptible to the deadly roup germs. The same is true of fowls suffering from common cold or catarrh. The throat and nasal passages, being already sore and inflamed, are easily infected. Sick birds, no matter what th eailment, should always be isolated. They can be much more effectively treated when away from the flock and they cannot contaminate the healthier ones if the disease should prove to be con-

Should any of your flock begin to show symptons of roup, no time should be lost in starting measures to prevent further spread. All houses, pens, coops and runs should be thoroughly cleaned and sprayed with a strong solution of a good coal tar diup and disinfectant. Droppings, litter and trash of every description should be removed and burned. All unnecessary equipment of every kind should be removed from houses and yards. Every piece of equipment for supscrubbed and disinfecteed. All this sounds like work and it is, but the saving is decidely worth the work required.

As the inroads of this deadly disease have been known to wipe out as high as 95 per cent of a flock, every owner of a poultry flock should learn to recognize the symptoms. At first they are much like those of a simple cold or catarrh, but more fever, dullness, prostration and loss of appetite. First symptoms are a watery nasal discharge difficult breathing with wheeze sound and constant shaking of the head to dislodge accmulated matter.

After two or three days the discharge from the nose becomes thicker and gives off a characteristic offensive odor. The nasal passages then become so clogged that the bird must breathe through its mouth. A discharge will also run from the eyes. This discharge gradually becomes thicker, causing painful swellings below or in the eye which often destroy it. As it hardens, this discharge may gather in such quantities that the head is swollen to twice its normal size. uite frequently these deposits will press down the roof of the mouth so that the fowl cannot swallow. In some cases there s a canker deposit of yellowish matter on the tissues of the mouth and throat. It is easily removed, however, and should not be confused with a deposit of similar appearance which is a symtom of

As soon as any fowl is known to be sick, put it at once to itself as far from the flock as possible and give it one full teaspoonful of epsom salts to remove cold and fever from the system. If the bowels have not moved by the following day, repeat the dose. Give one roup pill night and morning. Wash the affected eyes, nose and mouth once a day with a solution made by mixing one with a solution made by mixing one teaspoonful of dip and disinfectant in one

Real Compressed Natural Gas Delivered Anywhere

STARGAS, containing the elements of highest heating value, is extracted from pure natural gas and STARGAS means more than a fuel . . . it means a service! Cylinders are delivered in sets of two, and when one cylinder is exhausted, it is only necessary to turn a valve and begin using from the other, while the company replaces the empty cylinder. STARGAS is convenient, safe, reliable. STARGAS service is a public utility service.

> Of course, there are questions, dozens of them, that space will not permit us to take up here, . . . but you have only to call upon us to have them answered immediately. Find out now what STAR-GAS will do for YOU. See actual STARGAS demonstration at ...
