This week The Baird Star comes under new ownership and new management. The undersigned purchased the plant and good will of the business from Mr. S. W. CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT (HJR18)

Texas counties today must operate under tax provisions set up when the State Constitution was adopted. It was amended last in 1906 ... Conditions and demands have changed vastly since that time.

REMEDY IS AVAILABLE

The 1943 Texas Legislature, without one dissenting vote, approved a tax reallocation amendment to our State Constitution ... It would permit county officials, after a vote of its citizens, to readjust tax levies to meet today's new demands.

HERE IS LOCAL SELF GOVERNMENT

The amendment is not binding on any county. It can not become effective until after any given county's tax payers have so authorized by special election . . . The present limit of 80c per $100 is retained.

INCREASED VALUATION PREVENTED

Many Texas counties face the necessity of increased revenue for imperative county government functions ... unless readjustment of tax levies is obtained through this amendment, the only alternative is an increase in rendition value of taxable property.
