Ongoing city, school projects on agendas

Ongoing major projects of both the city and school are on tap for their meetings this week.

The school board will consider awarding a contract to build two structures at the vocational agriculture facility when it meets at 7:30 this evening in the administration building.

Improvement of water service and street repairs will be one of the numerous topics to be considered by the council when it meets at 7 p.m. Monday.

School trustees also will slate dates for public hearings on the 1990-91 budget and consider requests for budget changes.

Trustees are expected to accept the resignations of some faculty members, as well as hire new personnel during the called meeting.

Two other topics, student transfer requests and placement of teachers on Career Ladder levels two and three also are on tonight's agenda.

The council is expected to authorize the city administrator to purchase materials and labor to apply a slurry coating on existing asphalt streets.

Also to be considered is a request to authorize the administrator to advertise for materials and labor to install water lines which will loop water lines at Shiloh and Quail Valley, in an effort to improve water pressure in those areas.

A resolution will be offered authorizing to renew and extend the lease contract of Iowa Park Ready Mix at the sewer treatment plant site.

Six items are listed on the agenda under "administrator's report." They include:

- * consider supporting Wichita Falls' bicycle race through Iowa Park;

- * consider authorizing a fire department carnival;

- * consider authorizing travel to the annual Texas Municipal League conference in Corpus Christi in October;

- * consider a Burlington Northern proposal for city participation in upgrading railroad crossings; and

- * consider waiving the field use fees for a softball tournament to raise funds for a Basal Ball program.

POLICE ACTIVITY:

Three arrests reported here

It apparently was a week when violators didn't want to be caught by Iowa Park Police.

Besides a lengthy and speedy pursuit Tuesday of a motorcycle rider, two other arrests in which chases were necessary were included on the police blotter.

Gary Esiquio Bernal, 18, was taken into custody at 1:44 a.m. Sunday in the 200 block of West Bank.

Bernal was charged with evading arrest, and transported to county jail.

Shortly after midnight Tuesday, a 15-year-old boy was stopped after a block-long chase in the 200 block of South Wall.

The youth, who had reportedly told a resident of the neighborhood earlier he knew he was violating city curfew and would have to be caught first, was taken to juvenile detention in Wichita Falls on charges of curfew violation, evading arrest and resisting arrest.

Tuesday, police stopped David Brian Chizmadia, 25, on a traffic check and determined he had three outstanding warrants against him by the DPS in Dallas.

Chizmadia was released after paying $229 on the warrants.

Part of the Wichita Falls Fire Department's firefighting equipment wound up in an Iowa Park dumpster last week.

A resident in the 400 block of West Washington found two helmets and an oxygen mask, all with identifying markings.

When contacted, a spokesman for the department said someone had taken a complete suit from one of the stations there, including coat, pants, boots and gloves, as well as those items found.

Value of the suit was $1,500. The area was further searched for the other missing items, but not found.

Two thefts and three cases of criminal mischief also were listed on the blotter during the week.

A babysitter told police Thursday her rings were taken from her purse while she was taking care of some children recently.

The owner of a truck in the 100 block of James Drive said someone had taken a garage door opener and watch from his vehicle sometime Sunday night.

The owner of an unoccupied house in the 100 block of West Garden told police someone had entered the house, kicked in a wall, poured bleach on the carpet and also damaged the garage door.

A truck left parked at the high school last week was found Monday to have its windows knocked out and mirrors broken off, according to the report.

Twice this week, someone has caused damage at the laundry in the 300 block of West Bank.

The owner complained Monday that someone had damaged a shed door, and Wednesday reported someone had attempted to break into one of the coin machines.

City receives .45 moisture

Iowa Park received .45 of an inch precipitation from two showers during the past week, according to measurements recorded at the sewer treatment plant.

Wednesday's shower produced .10 of an inch, and .35 more was added Sunday.

The week's moisture brought the month's total to .95.

Some east and southeast parts of the city received additional moisture from a brief shower Tuesday afternoon, but not enough fell at the treatment plant to record.

DAMAGED POLICE CRUISER WON IN MEETING WITH MOTORCYCLE ... high-speed chase Tuesday through city ended west on US 287.

High-speed chase nets arrest

A 17-year-old former resident was arrested Tuesday evening and placed in county jail under a $50,000 bond following a pursuit through the city by Iowa Park police.

A.D. Sparlin Jr. was charged with fleeing, after he collided with a patrol unit on US 287 at the west city limits.

Sparlin, who was uninjured in the collision, was clocked while riding a motorcycle on First Street at 53 miles per hour, a 30 MPH residential zone, at 5:29 p.m.

Patrolman Mike Stark attempted to stop the rider, and the pursuit began. At times, the youth was said to be driving at speeds reaching 70 on several residential streets, before he left the city on the highway.

Officer Stark continued his pursuit, which went as far west as Harmony Road, and twice through the crowded highway rest stop area.

At least once, the motorcyclist drove against oncoming traffic in the wrong lane, attempting to avoid the pursuing officer.

The policeman had to end his chase because of the creek at the rest stop, and had started on his way back to the city.

As he crossed the median into the eastbound lane, Sparlin had also crossed into the same lane, and crashed into the front right fender and door of the cruiser.

Sparlin scrambled to his feet, and was chased by Stark and DPS Sgt. Alton Yeakley, who was off duty but had joined the chase in his cruiser.

The two subdued the youth, just as another DPS trooper and a county deputy sheriff arrived.

Leroy Threet, whose home is at the corner of Wigley Road and Access Road, said he looked out his front window "to see what all the noise was about," just as the two vehicles collided.

Threet said one of Sparlin's tennis shoes flew high into the air, that Sparlin rolled a couple of times in the bar ditch, scrambled to his feet and began running.

Sparlin was taken before Justice of the Peace Bill Robinson, who set his bond at $50,000, and was later transported to county jail. He was still there at noon Wednesday.

Sparlin now lists his address as a community in Alabama, and is said to be visiting here at the time. He is a former resident of Iowa Park and a student in schools here.

The motorcycle he was riding is registered to Scotty Grace, who lives on City View Drive in Wichita Falls. Sparlin reportedly was riding the vehicle with permission.

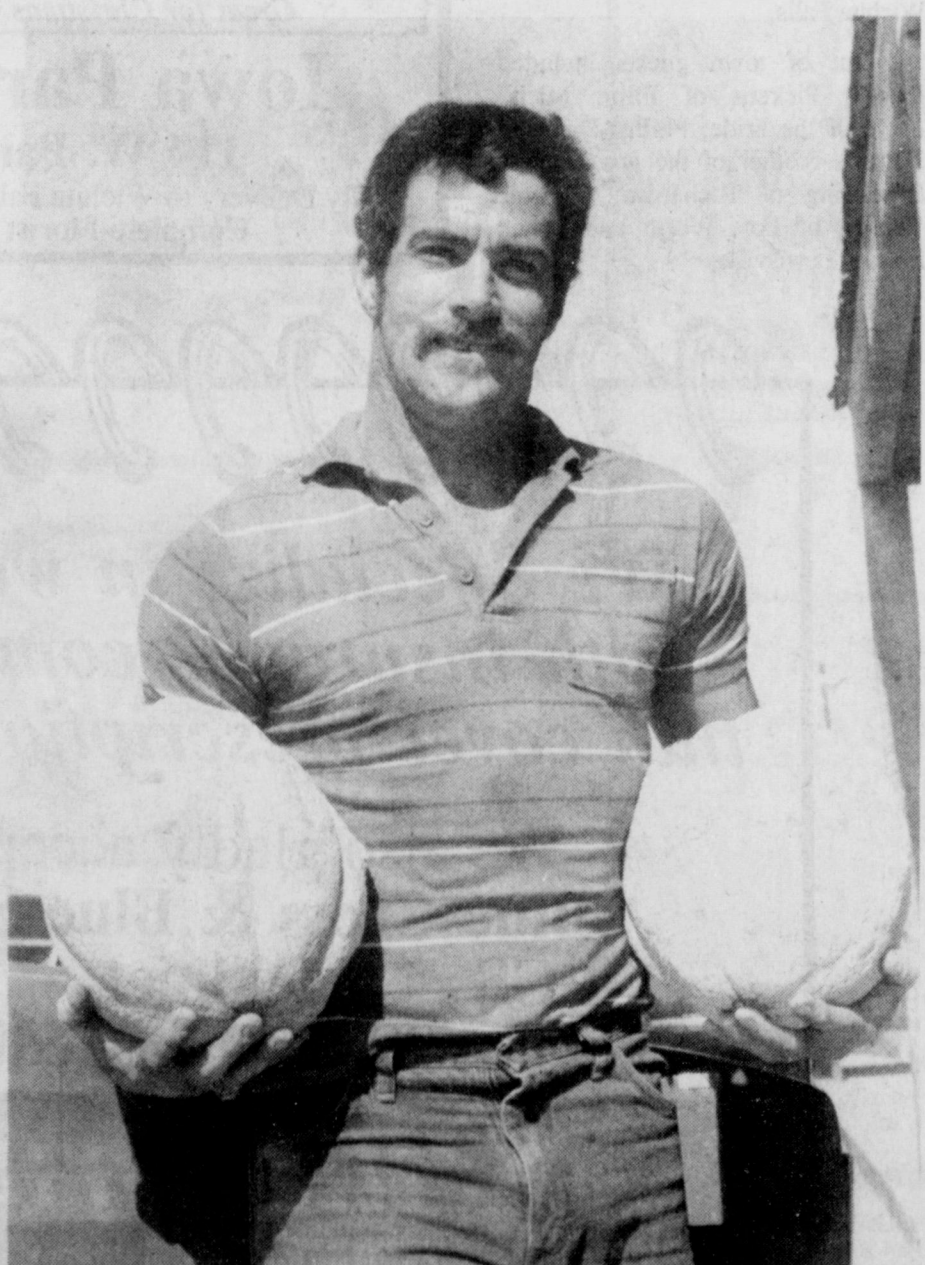

Police Chief Wayne Parsons said Wednesday he is working to determine if insurance on both the owner and the rider is available and will pay for the repairs to the patrol car.

Damage is estimated between $1,000 and $1,500.

No estimate of damage to the motorcycle, which registered only 4,000 miles, was available.

Chief Parsons said he had received several comments from persons playing volleyball at the sand courts on Fourth Street, of having seen the black motorcycle traveling at high speeds in that area, prior to the start of the pursuit.

PROUD PRODUCER - Mark Wicks likes to show the size of cantaloupes he produces in his organic garden at 800 S. Wall. These are 12 1/2 and 11 3/4 pounds. From a crop he raised with regular seeds six years ago, he saved the seed of one unusually-large melon. Ever since, those seeds have been producing melons ranging from 6 to 13 1/2 pounds, he says.

Foreign Student Exchange explained

Texas has been host to many foreign students this year, including Junko Toyokawa from Japan. Junko spent the school year with the Henke family in San Antonio, sponsored by the AIFS Scholarship Foundation.

The Foundation's cross cultural program invites American families to share their home with a teenager from Europe, Asia or Latin America. "A trip abroad without leaving home," the exchange enables a family to learn first hand about the customs and language of another country.

Participating students are carefully screened and prepared for the program. They have their own spending money and medical insurance provided by the sponsoring organization.

Students hope to spend a year living just as American teenagers, attending local public high schools and sharing simple, everyday life with their host families.

"I discovered what makes Texas so special," says Junko. "I hope other students have a chance to see the Alamo, the Rio Grande and San Antonio just like I did."

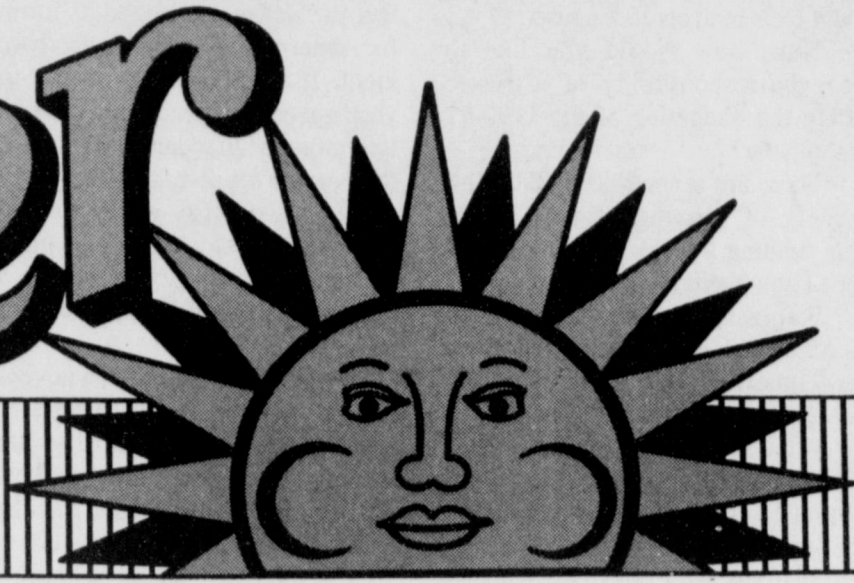

Students from Germany, France, Japan, Brazil and other countries are now waiting for host families in Texas. Host families need not have teenagers of their own and single parents are welcome.

Area families are invited to call the Foundation's local coordinator, Della Vadnais, at 817-696-2240 or the national office in Connecticut at (800) 322-4678 for more information.

As I See It...

By BOB HAMILTON

It's with a great deal of apprehension that I await disclosure of Iowa Park's school budget.

No, I've not asked Supt. Glen Mitchell for any details, feeling he wants to discuss it with his board first. Trustees don't like to find out what their budget will be by reading their local newspaper, and I can understand that.

But after the legislature adopted the disastrous House Bill 72 some six years ago, I can't be anything but suspicious about the new "reform" bill entitled Senate Bill 1, which goes into effect this year.

Even if I could get my hands on a copy of SB 1, it wouldn't make much difference. Officials were still making new interpretations of HB 72 three years after its passage.

You'll recall that SB 1 is the result of special legislative sessions in response to the state supreme court ruling that the time-honored method of financing public schools was unconstitutional.

We've seen a lot of publicity that most of the schools over the state will receive additional funding from the state, as result of SB 1.

Yet, on June 29, state Education Commissioner Bill Kirby told the Legislative Education Board, "There is no way to know" how much school districts could lose until they adopt their budgets in August.

Now, how would you like to have the responsibility of a trustee facing the budgeting of the 1990-91 school year?

There are several portions to the formula of arriving at how much state funding a district will receive. I don't know them all, but some.

For instance, Sen. Teel Bivins of Amarillo, in a speech recently in Perryton explained one portion of the formula as being a tier system.

If a district's tax rate this year is at least 54-cents per $100 valuation, the state will increase its allotment per pupil from $1,500 to 1,900.

Districts with rates between 55-cents and 91-cents will receive additional guaranteed funding of $20 for every penny over 54-cents up to 91-cents.

Because Iowa Park taxpayers approved that bond issue last year, our tax rate will likely be at least 91-cents. That means the state's basic funding will be $2,620 for each pupil enrolled.

Bivins didn't mention, however, that the state has changed its formula for determining a school's enrollment. It will be based on the total year's average attendance, instead of one month's attendance, as has been the process for several years.

So, does that mean the local district will not receive any money, or part of its money, based on the tier system, until sometime in the summer of 1991?

As I've said before, whatever the legislature approved in the form of additional funding to local districts, it wouldn't actually be "new" money. It wouldn't really cover those mandated expenses that came from HB 72, such as increased teacher salaries.

Until they reach a "cap" that was established in that bill, each classroom teacher received an annual increase of $1,140. That alone raises Iowa Park's budget expenditures each year by some $100,000. And it does not include any increases for administrators or professional and paraprofessional support personnel.

I noticed that dates for the public hearings on the 1990-91 budget will be set at a board meeting tonight. The posted agenda, however, does not call for any discussion on the proposed budget itself.

If I've given any indication that Iowa Park's board of trustees are the only ones facing budgeting problems this summer, I didn't mean to. Every board has the same problem.

I suspect Granbury's board president summed up the situation for what is going on around the state when he said, "We'll have to have a lot of meetings. We'll be scratching our heads."

Worth Quoting

They came to Hereford Tuesday and presented themselves as "Global Walkers for a Livable World," calling their effort "a journey to raise environmental consciousness."

What they didn't tell the news media, when they came to the Cattle Feeding Capital of the World, was found in flyers which they sparingly distributed: A major goal is to ban meat consumption.

Hey, pardner, them's fighting words in Hereford, Texas! Perhaps that's why they didn't emphasize the anti-beef message here, but you can bet it will be a major thrust as the walkers move on east.

The group concentrated on recycling, wind generators, solar-powered batteries, holistic medicine, recumbent bicycles and native American issues in their booths Tuesday night at "A Living World Fair" in Dameron Park.

But their primary solution to environmental problems, according to the literature offered by some of the walkers, is for Americans to quit feeding grains to livestock, as well as poultry, and go on a vegetarian diet.

One of the group said there were about 80 members of the Global Walk. Just how many aspire to the vegetarian way of life and the philosophy of banning meat consumption was not known. Nor did they provide a flyer to the newspaper -- it was brought to The Brand by a local citizen.

"Sixty million people will starve to death this year; the same number could be saved if America reduced its meat consumption by 10 percent," is one item in the brochure.

The propaganda reports that 1.3 billion people could be fed by the grain and soybeans eaten by U.S. livestock, but there was no explanation how this could be accomplished. The literature contained one disclaimer: "This is not to say that eating any animal flesh is intrinsically bad - that is a personal, moral issue. But the facts in this flyer clearly indicate the immediate and dangerous wastefulness associated with the livestock industry and the massive consumption of meat."

At least us beef eaters are happy to learn that it's not intrinsically bad to eat flesh!

These walkers have the right to express their views, but, if the group is united on the banning of beef then they should so advertise what they are about. It seems to me they took advantage of our hospitality to spread a message the majority of us didn't care to hear.

4th Street residents are active in fighting neighborhood crime

Residents of North 4th Street have decided to take a positive step in fighting crime in their neighborhood.

At a recent Neighborhood Watch meeting the group decided to periodically print a "Neighborhood" news letter.

In addition to containing crime prevention information, the news letter will have descriptions of persons seen in the immediate area who act suspicious.

Dee Dee Alderman, local Crime Prevention Officer, said, "This is a fine example of how residents can help protect themselves from the possibility of being a crime victim."

Those interested in getting involved with Neighborhood Watch, who need residential or business securities, or those needing crime prevention material should contact Officer Alderman at the Iowa Park Police Department.

Cook of the Week

Mrs. Randy Laudermilk

When she's out of uniform, it would be difficult for a stranger to know the occupation of Connie (Mrs. Randy) Laudermilk. The slender, brown-eyed blonde is a patrol officer for the Iowa Park Police Department.

Connie has been the Holliday correspondent for newspapers in Archer City and Wichita Falls, and was secretary for an oil field related business. But, she says that she always wanted to be a police officer.

Connie started working for the local department as a dispatcher. Then she was the Crime Prevention officer, which led to her present job as a patrol officer.

Connie grew up at Kamay and is a graduate of Holliday High School. Her parents, Raymond and Jan Morgan, now live at Lake Diversion.

She and her husband, Randy, a welder for Washex, have lived in Holliday 10 years. Their children are 11-year-old Sommer, a PeeWee cheerleader for the Holliday Little League; nine-year-old Eric, who is active in football, baseball and golf, and Sissy, who is six years old and on the drill team.

Connie said that she likes to cook in the wintertime, but Randy takes over during the summer months when he can cook outside on the grill.

Peel, pit and mash avocados. If the guacamole is not going to be used within an hour or so, reserve one pit. Stir in the grated onion and chopped chilies. In a separate bowl, grate the warm eggs over the butter and work in the mayonnaise with French whisk. Gradually add the contents of the other bowl; taste and salt.

Locals to attend conference on aging

A local forum for the Texas White House Conference on Aging (TWHCoA) will be held for the public Aug. 1 at 1:30 p.m. at Red Door Citizens Center, 1008 Burnett, Wichita Falls.

The forum, co-sponsored by North Texas Area Agency on Aging and the Texas Department on Aging, will provide citizens an opportunity to discuss key issues affecting older persons and their families.

Ten representatives from Iowa Park's Friendly Door Senior Citizens will attend the forum, according to Myrna Robinson, director.

"Similar forums will be held over the state, and the feedback gathered in local communities will be examined during the Texas White House Conference on Aging next fall," said Rhonda Pogue, director of the Area Agency on Aging at Nortex

Regional Planning Commission. "We're encouraging adults of all ages to attend. Aging is an issue that will ultimately affect all of us."

Topics to be discussed at local forums may include important issues, such as health, including the cost of care and medicines; community and social services, including in-home services and senior centers; housing, including nursing homes; economic security, including Social Security and employment opportunities; and social well-being, including intergenerational and volunteer issues.

"We want to have some grassroots input on these and other issues that will affect our elderly population in the next decade and in the next century," said Ms. Pogue. "Voices we hear at our local forums can be instrumental in shaping future policy."

Forums being held around the state will be completed by Aug. 15, and the Texas White House Conference on Aging is scheduled for this fall in Austin. A date for the national White House Conference in 1991 has yet to be called by President Bush.

Several other national forums on aging have been held in Washington since 1950, with official White House Conferences held in 1961, 1971 and 1981.

According to Gary Cook, chairman of Texas WHCoA Executive Committee, Texas' conference will be held whether or not a national event is scheduled.

"The statewide conference, along with the local forums that precede it, represents an opportunity for Texas to take the lead in addressing the needs of an aging population in a changing society," Cook said.

Police Chief addresses Evening Lions

Chief of Police Wayne Parsons was a guest speaker of the Evening Lions Club Tuesday. He was introduced by Gordon Callahan.

He introduced his talk by telling of his background, with special attention to his education and training for the position that he now holds. He made it very clear that he wanted educated police officers, who were community-oriented. He said he now has 10 police officers, four dispatchers and a temporary dispatcher working in the department. Parsons said his main goals were to have more officer training and to keep the same service in spite of the tight economy in the area at this time. He said he would like to have better report writing and was trying to avoid cutting the police force.

The major part of the program was given to a question and answer period which gave the members an opportunity to get acquainted with him, and it also gave Parsons an opportunity to find out what the members expected of the police force. He said, "I am asking the citizens of Iowa Park to be my watchword."

He said the drug program was going to stay in the town and area and urged his listeners to be aware of the importance of reporting anything they saw that might be related to drug peddling or selling.

Grace has good quarter

W.R. Grace & Co., parent of Iowa Park's Cryovac plant, reported a sharp increase in the second quarter net income, up 16 percent to $51-million, as result of excellent overall performances from the company's specialty chemical and specialty business operations.

Sticking to native grass recommended

Brad K. Teplicek
SCS, Iowa Park

Many introduced grasses such as weeping lovegrass, kleingrass, old world and yellow bluestems, and bermudagrass, received freeze damage the past winter, reports Reggie Quiett, Vernon Area Range Conservationist.

For a period of approximately four months it was extremely dry and coupled with three to five days of subzero temperatures during later December, many of the grasses suffered.

Most noticeable are CRP plantings, but these are not the only stands of grass to suffer. Many pastures and range seedings received damage as well if introduced grasses were used.

Some of these grasses may come back with sufficient time and proper management while others may have to be reseeded. Each one will have to be evaluated individually to see what the needs will be. Those stands that produced two or three viable seed crops may come back on their own with proper management such as weed control and fertilized as needed.

Knowing that the type of weather we had this past winter will occur every seven to 10 years, it may be advisable to take a closer look at native grasses. The native grasses are here for a reason, they are adapted to where we live and can withstand our climate.

When CRP first started, the seed prices of native grasses skyrocketed due to a large demand and short supply and many producers elected to go with the cheaper introduced species. Prices of the native grasses have come down and are very affordable compared to past years.

It may take a little longer to get native grasses established, but once established, they will stick with you unless continuous grazing pressure forces them out. Native grasses can be used for pasture plantings and perform very well if managed correctly.

One of the native grasses of 10 overlooked as a pasture grass is switchgrass. This grass is best adapted to the sandy type soils and has tremendous potential.

If an introduced grass, such as kleingrass, is used as part of a range mixture with native grasses, consideration should be given to limiting the introduced species to no more than 25 per cent of the total mix. If the weather does kill or damage the introduced species, the remaining 75 per cent are native species that will continue to provide grazing.

According to Quiett, often times we think that we have a new introduced species that is going to be a miracle grass. These all have their places, but let us not overlook what was growing originally, our native species.

Maybe the greatest gift you could give your family would be to open your door this year to an international high school student. Imagine what you will learn, as well as what a young person can learn about America from you, your family and your community.

High school students all over the world dream of traveling to America to study and to experience our way of life. VICTORIOUS IOWA PARK SENIOR LITTLE LEAGUE ALL STARS

TOURNAMENTS

Seniors advance to sectional

Iowa Park's Senior Little League club will play at 2 p.m. Friday in the sectional tournament at Midland.

The club's opponent will not be known until a tournament currently underway in the same city produces a winner.

Iowa Park knocked off two strong clubs at Farmers Branch over the weekend to advance to the sectional.

The team edged Westside Fort Worth 5-4 in Saturday's opener, and then Sunday took 7-3 measure of The Colony for the meet title.

Little League playoffs provide for a team to continue play until it has suffered two losses. Thus far, Iowa Park has not lost a playoff game.

The winner of the Midland meet will advance to the state tournament at Waco. Dates of that tournament were not known by the team leaders.

Mickey Mantle advances to state

Despite being their first year in competition, Iowa Park's Mickey Mantle club is among eight teams competing this week in the state tournament at McKinney.

The locals are to take on one of two Dallas teams in the double elimination meet, starting at 3:30 p.m. today.

McKinney and Arlington each will have two teams entered, while El Paso fielded the other club.

Iowa Park went undefeated in a district that has been dominated the past six years by Burkburnett, to earn a berth in the tournament.

The locals have amassed a 21-10 season record. However, nine of those losses were to outstanding Oklahoma teams. The other was to one of McKinney's teams.

Mickey Mantle teams are composed of players 15-16 years old.

Iowa Park Optimist Club is funding $200 per day for the team's expenses at the tournament, according to Coach Ray Sefcik.

Season ends for Major team

The season came to a screeching halt for the Iowa Park Major Little League All-Stars Friday night.

And, instead of the the local 11 and 12 year olds advancing into next week's tournament level, Graham will be hosting their own meet.

Graham defeated Iowa Park 10-3 Thursday night, and came back with a 14-4 victory Friday for the District Four title.

And that was the same club Iowa Park had knocked into the losers' bracket earlier in the week, 5-2.

To get into the finals, Graham had to beat Stamford 13-5.

Chris Norris suffered the Thursday night loss, giving up 13 hits, only one base on balls, and striking out four batters.

Graham left only four runners on bases in the game, as compared with six in two innings the previous meeting of the two clubs.

Iowa Park had four hits, two by Robert Klinkerman and one each by Cory Thompson and Todd Yeager.

In Friday's final game, Klinkerman pitched the first three innings, allowing only three hits. But more importantly, Graham had eight runs to cross the plate before he turned the mound over to Thompson.

Thompson was tagged with six hits and six runs.

Iowa Park was credited with five hits: a double by Klinkerman, and two each singles by Corkey Petty and Jake Dillard.

Iowa Park's defense turned three double plays in Friday's loss.

Senior girls dropped by Graham

Graham's senior girls' softball team duplicated their junior team's success of the previous week, as both teams won their tournaments held here. The champions edged Iowa Park 21-18 in the first round, and Thursday earned the title by knocking off the locals once more, by a 26-9 margin.

Graham advanced to the sectional tournament that began this week at Weatherford.

Head Hawk Len Williams almost earned the nickname "stubby" last week while using a table saw. The piece of wood he was cutting misbehaved and the backs of his middle and ring fingers on his left hand were cut to the bone. Damage is described as minimal, however.

'Star party' is crowd pleaser at McDonald Observatory

The planet Jupiter was setting in the western horizon of the Davis Mountains just as 99 elementary students from El Paso arrived at McDonald Observatory.

Mark Bridges, senior publicist at the observatory, began the evening's tour of The University of Texas at Austin's most celebrated research facility with a description of the giant planet and an overview of other celestial objects the students would see through the 14 and 24-inch visitors' telescopes once the sky was completely dark.

"So Jupiter is the evening star?" someone asked.

"For the time, yes," replied Bridges, explaining the progression of the planets through the heavens and the ways a planet could be identified by the naked eye.

"Your eyes are time machines," Bridges said. "We'll be looking at galaxies as they appeared millions of years ago, when the light you'll see actually left them." Bridges then directed the students' attention overhead to the star Arcturus.

"That star's about 35 light-years away, so the light we're seeing right now started its journey about the time your parents were born," he said as the students watched in amazement.

Thus began another "star party," a special offering of the observatory to visitors, the Texas public schools and other large groups.

For more than 50 years, the observatory's public information office staff has been conducting tours of the heavens as well as the observatory domes that sit 600 feet above the visitor center.

Because non-scientists get only one chance a month to see images through the 107-inch research telescope, the star parties held three times a week are the best opportunity for visitors to look directly through an eyepiece in the time-honored but outdated fashion.

That astronomers have liberated themselves from the eyepiece is one of the many facts that inquisitive students quickly perceive when they visit the observatory.

When they toured the main dome, the children from El Paso's Hueco and Vista Del Sol elementaries were scanning the 107-inch telescope for an eyepiece before Bridges had reached that part of his presentation. Eyepieces are no longer used, he explained, because a special television camera attached at the focal point will produce an image vastly superior for research purposes.

"How do you keep the mirrors dust-free?" asked one child.

"How long did it take to put the telescope together?"

"How do you get it to move?"

"What's that thing up there?" asked one girl, pointing to the f9 wide-angle secondary mirror that can be put in place by an overhead crane to decrease the telescope's focal length.

Bridges, apparently pleased with the quality of inquiries from such a young audience, answered a final question on careers in astronomy by saying that he preferred the role of astronomy teacher to researcher.

"The money's not all important--it's the job," he said.

The El Paso students also had the opportunity to view a number of celestial objects, including the M13 star cluster ("looks like a bunch of salt on the table," said one student), the Ring Nebula, the double-star Alberio at the foot of the Northern Cross, and for the finale, Saturn. The clear view of the ringed planet through the 14-inch telescope easily elicited the most startled reaction from the students.

Remarkable attentiveness of the large group of nine-to-12-year-olds was easy to understand once their teacher, Linda Casbeer Chew, explained the criteria for selection to the summer camp that she supervises.

Chew, a 1974 graduate of UT Austin, had obtained a $2,700 National Science Foundation grant through UT El Paso to interest minority elementary students in science, math and engineering. The McDonald trip was one of the activities during the weeklong camp, which also included building a solar box that could bake beans and making a solar collection unit.

Every child who really wanted to attend the camp was able to do so, Chew said. To be selected, a student was required to fill out an application and write an essay explaining why he or she wanted to attend the camp. As it turned out, there was room for exactly the number of students who followed through with the application requirements.

"We wanted kids who would stick with it," said Chew, adding that the camp was intended not only for ethnic minorities, but also for female and disabled students of elementary age. Not all the students were high achievers, she said, but all were the type of kids who "would come and work at it."

Some, of course, were high achievers as well--such as the student who said his father had shown him how to locate the Orion Nebula.

Although a trip to the observatory and the Davis Mountains is of tremendous educational value for any group of science students, getting there can be difficult. El Paso schools are at an advantage because the drive can easily be made in an afternoon. But school groups 600 miles away in East Texas could almost as easily visit Cape Canaveral.

The remoteness of the observatory deters some visitors, but it is a blessing for astronomers because the sky is unobscured by city lights.

The observatory may be inaccessible to many far-away Texas schools, but the McDonald staff tries to increase the accessibility of astronomy itself by offering teachers a packet of materials providing organized lab activities and other hands-on astronomy projects. The packet, which costs $9.95 contains instructions on how to watch the sun safely and build a sundial on the ground, how to run a computer program that will show the position of the sun at any time and day of the year; how to know when and where the moon will rise, and in which phase; and how to find the constellations.

The packet includes an "armchair tour of the universe," a data sheet on the solar system, an article on the pseudoscience of astrology, a discussion of the moon's phases, and a group of pamphlets describing research at the observatory.

Also included are resource lists for astronomy instruction at all grade levels, bibliographies on astronomical topics; and an invitation to subscribe to a newsletter on teaching astronomy titled "The Universe in the Classroom."

"The best part of my job is showing people that the sky is as much a part of their world as the volcanic rocks or javelina they're possibly seeing for the first time," said Bridges. "It's just that the moons, planets and stars are much more distant."

"Astronomy is accessible and interesting at any level of understanding, from constellation and meteor shower observing to professional research at observatories like McDonald," he said.

For information on the teacher packet or to schedule group visits to the observatory, Bridges can be contacted at (915)426-3263.

FOOTBALL CAMPERS - Twenty four youths turned out for the week-long Mean Green Football Camp at Iowa Park High campus.
