City okays tax abatement

The Iowa Park city council Monday night joined all the other taxing entities in Wichita County in encouraging growth in employment by passing a tax abatement proposal.

Action followed installation of two new aldermen and the reorganization of

The resolution on tax abatement provides for a period of tax relief to any employer starting a new business or adding to present facilities which would require a $100,000 investment and create at least 10 new jobs.

Most of the other taxing entities in the council, except the local school district, have already approved similar Administrator Gary Jones said the program is a county-wide effort to stimulate employment in the short term, and add to the tax rolls after the abatement period, usually 10 years, expires.

Tax abatement does not affect any businesses or industries presently on the tax rolls.

Two newcomers were sworn in on the council, along with an incumbent. The new aldermen are Mark Raby and Bob Hamilton. They, along with Virgil Woodfin, were elected May 4.

Outgoing aldermen Johnny Coker and Diane Robnett were presented plaques for their many years service on the council.

Mayor Wayne House said Coker, who was first elected in 1982, and Mrs. Robnett, elected in 1985, hadbeen faithful in their capacities.

He said his calculations were that Coker had attended 218 meetings and Mrs. Robnett 146 since being on the council, adding those figures did not include work sessions and other activities they are called upon to be present.

Prior to the outgoing aldermen stepping down, however, the mayor asked the council to take action on all old business, including awarding of bids. Those actions included:

conditioning ductwork at the Recreational Activities Center (RAC), to James Lane Air Conditioning, for $4,798; * RAC vinyl wall covering bid to

A-Deal Buildings, $1,296;

* Chlorination and declorination facilities for the wastewater treatment plant to Control Specialist, $29,193.

* And sale of a Ford truck cab to Joe Fairchild for $210, and sale of a trash truck body to Bell Processing for

Also approved, but after a lengthy discussion, was a bid by Ralph Garza Concrete to construct concrete valley

Ralph was the low bidder, $7,557.25, and McGrath Brothers Concrete bid $8,260.25.

Questions were raised about the bid of Garza, who reportedly underwent Chapter 7 bankruptcy, and still owed some local businesses.

Administrator Jones assured the aldermen he had checked with the city attorney, and said that legal action should have nothing to do with the awarding of Former mayor Johnny Crawford, who was elected as alderman last year, was elected mayor pro tem. He fills the position held by Coker since his first year on the council.

House appointed Aldermen Charlie Helms and Woodfin to serve on the RAC council, of which the mayor also is a member. RAC delegates on the council are Billy Gilmore and Dolores

A third resolution was adopted, along with the tax abatement program proposals. It provides for a drug abuse program for city employees.

Pre-employment physicals are required under the adopted program, which will be borne by the city at a cost ranging from $75 to $90 each.

The council voted to authorize the administrator to advertise for bids on floor coverings for the RAC building.

Aldermen denied a request to exempt a resident from the required garbage collection fee. The fee is charged to all homes and businesses in the city that have active water connections.

Police investigating armed 'gang' fight Gang fights? In Iowa Park? That's right. There was a gathering on one of the community's school

The gathering took place at the designated time of 2 p.m. Saturday, at Kidwell Elementary.

Ever heard a youngster, regardless of age, say that? I've been hearing it even before moving here. In fact, I've been hearing long before moving here, even in cities like Plainview and Amarillo.

I've heard it quoted by parents of youngsters living in Wichita Falls, and even in Dallas and the Metroplex.

Ever wonder what kids did back when there were no organized activities such as Little League, Recreational Activities Center, YMCA, YWCA, youth soccer, basketball, football, swimming pools, church youth activities, etc., etc., etc.?

They made do. That's what.

Kids could create an entire day's enjoyment out of a stick and can. Girls could see the most beautiful image of a doll out of a bound bundle of rags. They found real enjoyment and enlightenment out of reading books.

They could actually sit quietly and listen to conversations of elders.

If you see a youngster running around late at night, likely getting into trouble or trying to find some mischief to commit, I've got a pretty good idea of where the parents are and what they're doing.

We can't change the world overnight. It takes time. It takes love. It takes attention. It takes caring. It takes what real families are made of.

And it takes an entire generation. A lot of good people already see the problem. They're working, either as Sunday school teachers and helpers, as volunteers in youth programs, as Scout leaders, as 4-H leaders, and in many, many other ways.

And they're frustrated.

Time after time, I will have a Little League coach remark to me, "All we do is baby sit. The parents just drop off their kids for practice or games, and then, if we're lucky, they'll show up in time to pick them up after we're through."

There are programs available for parenting.

STREET PROJECT UNDERWAY - Workers began Tuesday removing the asphalt surface on Vogel, in preparation of resurfacing it with concrete. The project is expected to be completed in about two weeks.

Worth Quoting

From one of the best, to one of the

That's what will happen to Wise County's representation in the Texas Legislature if the House approves recommendations from the Legislative Committee on Redistricting.

The plan calls for Wise County to be moved from the district of Rep. Ric Williamson and placed in the district of Rep. Charles Finnell of Holliday. That would be a disaster that Wise County would be forced to live with for the next decade.

While Williamson is consistently ranked as one of the best representatives in Austin, Finnell is rated as one of the worst. Texas Monthly magazine called him "furniture.

Personalities aside, it is ludicrous to place Wise County in a district that stretches all the way to Vernon and Quanah and includes a small part of Wichita County -- undoubtedly because Finnell lives there. We are being used as a pawn to give Finnell enough population to form a district.

Wise County doesn't have much in common with those fine folks now represented by Finnell. Our future is with the Fort Worth-Dallas-Denton area, not Wichita Falls.

For example, how would Wise County be most affected -- by the closing of Carswell Air Force Base or the closing of Sheppard Air Force Base in Wichita Falls. It doesn't take a rocket scientist to answer that question.

Nor does it take a rocket scientist to figure out why we're in the mess in the first place. Wise County is the only county in Finnell's district with any growth over the past decade. The rest have lost population or remained static.

Wise County, with almost 35,000 persons in the last census, is twice, three times and even 10 times larger than some of the counties in northwest Texas represented by Finnell.

Wilbarger County, which includes Vernon, had 16,448 citizens in 1980 while Montague County, our neighbor to the north, had 18,047. Hardeman County (Quanah) had 6,131 and Foard County (Crowell) had 1,830. Baylor County (Seymour) had 4,612 and Jack County had 7,345.

Another example of why it's a bad idea: Wise County is part of the North Central Texas Council of Governments which includes Fort Worth, Dallas, Denton, Weatherford, Lewisville and other area cities in future planning efforts. The counties in Finnell's district are part of the Nortex Regional Planning Commission, headquartered in Wichita Falls.

It's not time to panic yet. Williamson said Monday. "This is just the first move in a long chess game." But with the public hearings on the redistricting plan set for this week, some Wise County folks quickly got off a letter to Rep. Tom Uher of Bay City, saying the plan was bad for Wise County. Among the first to do so was Bridgeport school Supt. John Brooks.

Josh Josserand of Rhome encouraged Southeast Wise County Chamber of Commerce members to write or fax the redistricting committee to express dissatisfaction with the proposal. "Our fortunes are tied south and east of us," Josserand told chamber members

If Wise County must be moved, we need to be part of a Fort Worth or Denton district -- or how about Wise, Parker and Hood -- three counties directly affected by Fort Worth growth patterns?

After having been blessed with quality state representation for the past decade with Rick Williamson and his predecessor Bill Coody, it's sad to think about our future influence in Austin under the present redistricting plan. ROY EATON

Helping nonprofit organizations is goal of center

"Helping nonprofit organizations operate at their peak efficiency will be our goal at the North Texas Center for Nonprofit Management," center director Dee Decker said.

"Our area of service will be Archer, Baylor, Clay, Wichita and Wilbarger counties. In this start up phase of operation we are seeking to identify and survey all nonprofit organizations in these counties to determine how we can best be of service," she said.

The Center became a reality this spring due in part to the statewide initiative begun by the Meadows Foundation in Dallas. This is the ninth such center begun with the assistance of the Meadows Foundation which is the largest foundation in Texas.

While over 1,150 institutions have received grants, the Foundation has been particularly interested in imaginative innovative ways to solve community

WHEN TIGHTER BECOMES LOOSER

I have a friend who likes to tighten all the nuts and bolts on his car very tight. The trouble is sometimes he tightens a nut so much he strips the threads. Of course, the nut turns around freely then and hold nothing in Parents need to learn to adopt reasonable, right and common sense standards for their children. To believe that strictness and ultra-conservative restrictions are good in themselves is a simple error. If you "tighten up" on kids too much over a long period of time, tighter becomes looser. Kids may decide to abandon all our standards when they find they cannot obey our arbitrary and strict orders. Parents of these children are amazed when their offsprings turn out to be loose, libertine, and licentious. Our tight rules can produce looser lives.

Once there was a group of monks who decided to become hermits and live life on the meager existence they could extract from the soil. In such a rustic setting they thought they could not sin, being apart from a contaminated society. Everyone of them became tired of the simple life and boredom set in. They returned to the cities to engage in worse licentious conduct than they had practiced previously. Jesus did not retreat from life; He lived life victoriously. Jesus did not avoid people; He tried to help folks live better more mindful of God and their fellow

Our absolute standards of right or wrong have to be those of the Bible; our relative standards must be based on good practical common sense. If we try to enforce on our children, the religious community, and ourselves of which we are a part tighter and tighter arbitrary standards, there is a point when tighter becomes looser.

High school contests are never predictable. Iowa Park defeated Graham twice in Dist. 4-AAA baseball. Brownfield did the same to Seminole in Dist. 3-AAA. Yet, the Hawks lost 12-9 in bi-district, while Graham wholloped Brownfield 17-0 in only five innings Tuesday in Abilene.

LOSE 12-9 TO SEMINOLE

Hawk rally falls short at Abilene

In a game of surges and changing in the top of the third, tied the score in leads, Iowa Park's Hawks wound up their 1991 baseball season losing 12-9 to Seminole Tuesday afternoon at Abilene.

The young Hawks -- they have only two seniors on the squad -- had advanced to the bi-district contest as champions of Dist. 4-AAA, while the Indians were the runners-up of Dist. 3-

The lead changed hands five times. Iowa Park jumped out ahead with a big, four-run second inning, fell behind 5-4 the bottom, but fell behind by one in the

They jumped into the lead in the sixth, but suffered a disasterous seventh inning and could score only two more runs in the desperate final inning rally.

Seminole was credited with nine hits and four errors, while the Hawks had seven hits, but also seven miscues.

Jeremy Carroll led Iowa Park's bat swingers, with two hits in three official at-bats. Both were singles.

Jason Miller went one for two, while Robert Denton, Gary Green, Tony Lozipone and Scott McNeely were all one for three.

Denton had the only extra-base hit, a dramatic two-run triple that rolled to the foot of the fence 400 feet from home plate. That shot gave the Hawks their last lead, 7-6, in the sixth frame.

In their big fourth inning splurge, Green walked and Todd Pulley's sacrifice bunt succeeded when Seminole's pitcher pulled the first baseman off the bag with his throw.

Carroll singled to load the bases, and Miller was credited with the first RBI when he walked.

McNeely then singled and was credited with a pair of runs scored. But befor his hit, Pulley stole home to score.

The Indians took the lead in their next at-bat, 5-4. Their rally was partially credited with the jeering of their late-arriving student fans apparently rattling pitcher J'Bill Merrick, combined with three Hawk errors. Seminole had four hits, all singles.

With one out in the sixth, Seminole changed pitchers after Miller walked. But the first batter the reserve pitcher faced, McNeely, also walked.

That is when Denton connected with his booming drive that fell between the center and left fielders.

The Indian rally in the seventh started with the leadoff batter walking, followed by a single that scored the runner on base.

Then, with one out, Merrick walked the fourth batter, and when the fifth attempted a sacrifice bunt, an error allowed him to get on base, as well as the second batter to score.

The next batter also was safe on a sacrifice bunt, and that was followed by another batter walking.

With two outs, Coach Daryl Frazier called Chad Thompson to the mound to relieve Merrick.

Thompson was immediately tagged with a double and single, before getting the third batter to fly out deep in center

With visibility hampered because of the sun setting and no lights on Abilene Cooper High's field, the Hawks tried one more rally. Pulley walked and stole second base. Lozipone reached first on a "Texas League" fly. But Pulley was called out, on a disputed play, attempting to steal third.

Carroll followed with a walk, and Miller singled in Lozipone.

But the next two batters struck out, leaving two runners on base and three and started walking about having better educated students.

to bureaucratize the educational system, things are not going to change until parents and kids change their attitude," he continued.

"In addition to politicians trying

Dawson doesn't hesitate to speak his mind about HB 72 and some of its ramifications.

He says the attitude that the more money the school has from the government the better the education, just isn't always true. And he adds, "Neither does the attitude that everything has to be entertaining or the child doesn't learn. Some young people are told, if the subject is difficult, just don't take it."

As Dawson leaned forward in his chair and interlaced his fingers, he mused, "Just go by any high school and you can hardly find a place to park because the parking area is full of students' cars. Especially to boys, a car is the most important thing they can have. We've gotten into the pattern of just wantng to have fun and not wanting to learn, and the trouble is that a lot of students have little encouragement to think differently.'

Dawson says many time the school system gets the blame for things that can not be helped because of a mandate handed down from the government.

"Forms after forms have to be filled out and sent to Austin. You are told how many students you can put in a room, and though there are not as many students as in previous years, because of that ruling, there has to be classrooms added to comply. It requires more expenditure. A lot of patrons do not understand why," the former principal said, adding, "It puts the superintendent between a rock and a hard place."

Dawson says he had very little difficulty with students. "I just always considered I was the boss, and let the students know that I was.

It is unusual you never hear criticism about Dawson, but he says, " I know there are a few people who might not consider me a friend, but I have so many I know are my friends, I just may not know about the others."

The most behaviorial problems that were difficult ones, were in the late '60s and early '70s, Dawson said. "In those years, and even now, it is almost impossible for the school to maintain a dress code. When the boys started wearing their hair so long and the girls began wearing their dresses so short, it created a problem. I've told them to go back and look at their pictures in those years and see how they looked. Most of them admit they didn't look so good."

He continued, "We had those who would skip school or talk back to a teacher that I would have to reprimand. Of course, you don't use the paddle anymore, that is a no, no."

He said one of the most trying times he can remember was when the Red Cross was at the school taking blood. A third of the students were in the cafeteria at the second lunch period, a third were in class and others were waiting to give blood or were in the process when a tornado was sighted south of town and the alarm was sounded. Trying to get the needles out of the students' arms and get all of the students to the eight underground class rooms in the high school was a very trying time.

If Dawson has a hobby that he gives time to, it is the North Texas Men's Chorus, and he loves it. He is the lead tenor in the chorus.

The chorus gives many programs for organizations and churches and a trip is planned the last of June for Palo Duro Canyon.

Dawson and his wife devote a lor of their time to their church, First Baptist, where he serves as a deacon and is Sunday School Superintendent. Mrs. Dawson works with the Girl's Auxiliary.

In addition to their daughter. Mary, who lives in Austin and their son, Robert of Dallas, the Dawsons have four grandsons. The extra time they have is spent going to see them.

But the North Texas Chorus, visits to their children, or his church work. doesn't deter Dawson from his daily walk. He works that in for sure.
