City is divided by redistricting

For the first time in the 100-plus-year history of Iowa Park, the city will have two delegates in the Texas House of Representatives in Austin.

It became effective Sunday, when Gov. Ann Richards allowed the legislative redistricting bill to become law without her signature.

All of voting Precinct 32 was put in Dist. 69, represented by John Hirschi of Wichita Falls, while Precinct 33 remained in the 68th District of Charles Finnell of Holliday.

The Fort Worth and Denver Railroad is the separating line between the two voting precincts, and now the two legislative districts.

First-year representative Hirschi also picked up all of Burk Burnett in the plan.

Iowa Park remained in the senatorial district of Steve Carraker from Roby.

The redistricting plan must still stand the test of court suits that have been filed, however.

Suits have reportedly been filed challenging the redistricting plan by the Republican Party, Mexican American Legal Defense and Education Fund, Texas Rural Legal Aid and the Texas Civil Rights Project.

Republican Party Chairman Fred Meyer has said the redistricting will eventually be decided by the court.

Redistricting is mandated every 10 years after the federal census is completed, in order to reflect equal representation of the population.

However, since the redistricting plan was completed by the legislature, the Census Bureau has adjusted the Texas population count by adding 560,000.

Gov. Richards has said the legislature, which is to be called into a special session next month, can take up adjustments needed for the additional population.

Any adjustments are not expected to affect this community, however.

When asked how a community of 6,000 population like Iowa Park could be divided into two legislative districts, Dist. Judge Keith Nelson explained it was done by a computer located in Waco.

He said the populations are put into that computer, and population count by voting precincts are called for to make such a determination.

She shouldn't even be alive

By Myrna Smith

"There is absolutely no medical reason I should be alive today, according to my case history," declares Ruth Day, a "vibrant" young matron who has been in and out of hospitals since 1978.

Today, she felt good, tomorrow, it could be a different story. But, the blonde-haired, seemingly medical enigma, is determined she is not ready to say "die."

She takes 25 or 30 drugs a day, depending on how she feels.

"I have 'died' twice since I first became a perpetual hospital patient," Ruth said, with a bit of humor. Her heart has stopped two times.

When she was first diagnosed with cancer of the thyroid, she was selling cars in San Antonio, working in leasing and financing in particular. She said people who had something they couldn't get rid of could call her and she would get rid of it for them.

That may have been a precursor to what she tries to do today as a self-motivated volunteer, trying to help persons get rid of feelings of "no hope and no future."

She says she can easily understand and empathize with people. She can help them to know there are others who have had the same feelings and that through determination, she is still alive.

She has worked with many cancer patients through the years as the need has come to her attention. "I set out on a crusade to help cancer patients feel that there is hope and just because you have cancer doesn't mean you are going to die," Ruth said.

"There is one thing my illnesses have done, and that is make me have a new outlook on sickness and handicaps," Ruth said.

It was hard for her to accept the fact that she had cancer. After all she was a single mother with two children. Their father died when they were small.

She also sold pre-need funeral plans, and she continued to work until her customers had to help her out of her car and into their homes.

"When I told anyone I had cancer, it was like a death knell, people just knew I was going to die, and of course I almost did, but not necessarily from the cancer.

"I am very hard-headed, and I was determined cancer was not going to get the better of me," Ruth said.

A part of her thyroid was removed during the first surgery. The surgeon thought he had got it to it before it had done a lot of damage.

But, six years later she had to go back for a second surgery. It had invaded her endocrine system enough to do a lot of damage.

"When you are on thyroid medication, you have to get off of that for a month before you can have a scan done," she explained. "I had to take a massive dose of radio active iodine and then be in isolation for a period of time. Anything you take into isolation, a toothbrush, or whatever, you can not bring it with you when you come out. I had no visual human contact for that time. I guess if I got in front of a window and a light was beamed on me I would have glowed in the dark," she continued.

The second time the cancer was in her chest and on an artery. But she lived through the second surgery.

"Compared to what happened to me later, I felt like the cancer episode was a piece of cake," said Ruth.

Doctors have told her that she died twice, and that was only three years ago.

Sometime after the second cancer surgery, Ruth began getting sick again. Her hair began falling out. She had had rheumatoid arthritis for six years and it was progressively getting worse.

She finally had to sleep on a couch because she could not raise up off the bed. She had no appetite and became anorexic. "Due to my circulation, I got to where I could not walk," she said.

Because of the excruciating pain and extreme difficulty of breathing, she had to be taken to the emergency room in the middle of the night.

That was June 1, 1988. "This time I knew I was dying. I had really never thought about it before," Ruth said. Her blood pressure dropped to 14 and her heart failed.

This time the doctors found she had an enlarged heart and fluid around her heart. She was diagnosed with lupus and was put on steroids. That stay in the hospital was several months, and she was in and out of intensive care.

Her physicians were in consultation about what to do for her and were discussing putting in a pacemaker and a paracardiac window. Technicians had been coming to her room every day for an electrocardiogram. Three days before she was to have the pacemaker implanted, she had a dream that she was well.

"After that I told them I could not have a pacemaker because I was going to get well, and not to send the technician up to my room because I was going to him that day."

Ruth had been in the hospital six weeks. She could be put in a wheelchair, but was still too weak to maneuver it herself. An orderly came and wheeled her outside. "It had rained earlier in the day, and I'll never forget how wonderful the damp earth smelled," she commented.

The self-sufficient young woman began doing physical therapy in bed and later an attendant would take her to the physical therapy area and put her on a stationary bicycle.

"I was in a wheelchair, but just because I had improved that much still didn't mean I wasn't dying," Ruth remarked.

She maintained her sense of humor throughout her many ordeals. "I told them they could stop everything but my mouth. I did have to take speech therapy though. I still talked as much, but hardly above a whisper."

Ruth verbalizes with ease and enlivens her conversation with animated gestures. While in the hospital she put a sign on the back of her wheelchair, "Olympic Wheelchair Entrant," and when she was able to get about on her own in the chair, it was hard for the nurses to find her in her room because she would be out visiting other patients.

Later she was told that her cardio-

Four newly-hired teachers are Iowa Park graduates

Among the numerous items addressed during a meeting Thursday evening of the Iowa Park school board were the approvals of hiring six new personnel, accepting seven resignations and transfers of two employees.

June 27 was also set for a meeting to take their initial look at the 1991-92 preliminary budget, as well as hearing proposals from the Districtwide Educational Improvement Council.

Four of the six new employees are graduates of Iowa Park High School.

They include: Steve Stewart, high school special education/coach with two years experience at Forney; Steve Harris, high school science, no experience; Michelle (Crittenden) Byrne, third grade teacher, no experience, and Rebecca Roberts, fourth grade teacher, one year experience at Electra.

The other two were Caroline Looney, high school art, one year experience at Wichita Falls, and Anita McShan, Kidwell aide.

McShan replaces Sandra Lee, who has been transferred to junior high. The other transfer is Freda Bealls, who has been at Kidwell and will now be at the Transitional Learning Center at junior high.

Positions yet to be filled, according to Supt. Glen Mitchell, are a school nurse and speech teacher.

Resignations accepted included: Dean Kirkpatrick, high school coach/teacher; Jeanie Wilson, high school speech; Sonya Herrell, high school science; Lea Ann Hardy, school nurse; Vanessa Hutchinson and Sherri Williams, junior high resource aides; and Darlene Barrington, Bradford resource teacher.

Following a brief, eight-minute, executive session, board chairman Jerry Reed explained the district has no intentions to pursue purchase of additional property, and bids for construction of the district's new bus maintenance barn are to be opened Wednesday, June 26.

The 1991-92 school calendar was revised, in order to accommodate the five additional classroom days mandated by the school reform legislation. Students must attend 180 days, instead of 175, next year.

The additional days were taken from holidays and teacher work days that had been included in the calendar approved during the spring.

School will start Aug. 26, and the final day will be May 29.

Holidays include Sept. 2, Labor Day; Nov. 27-29, Thanksgiving; Dec. 23 through Jan. 1, Christmas, and Mar. 16 through 20, Spring Break, according to the new calendar.

Bad weather days, which will be used in case weather forces cancellation of classes during the winter, are scheduled for April 17 and 20.

"Common sense tells me to leave it (the revised calendar) like it is. It's almost the same as Wichita Falls (school district)," Supt. Mitchell told the board before their approval vote.

Board members also approved a resolution setting guidelines for tax abatements in the district. Iowa Park was the last district in the county to approve similar resolutions.

Tax abatement had previously been approved by the county and City of Iowa Park.

Complying with another mandate of the state's school reform bill, trustees named Keith Fisher the district's delegate to the new County Education District.

District tax collector Allen Shewmake told the board he had earlier that day mailed out 60 "demand letters" to taxpayers who had not paid their 1990-91 school taxes.

Also relating to the new County Education District, Shewmake asked $2,000 to enhance his office's computer in order to allow additional space for working with the newly-formed district.

The local district still has the responsibility of collecting taxes, but it now must be sent to the county district, complete with reports, and the local district's funding will be returned from the county district.

Pool offers swimming lessons

Details for swimming lessons to be offered at Iowa Park Bicentennial Swimming Pool, as well as other special activities, were announced this week.

Two-week sessions, offered in either morning or evening periods, will be held June 24-29 and July 1-5; July 8-12 and 15-19; July 22-26; July 29-Aug. 2; and Aug. 5-9 and 12-16.

The periods for those sessions will be 10:30 to 11:30 in the mornings and 6 to 7 in the evenings.

The fee will be $15 per student. Children must be old enough to stand alone in the shallow end of the pool to qualify.

However, co-manager Linda Gray said if enough interest is determined, a class for infants would be scheduled.

Special swimming fees will be offered to Wal-Mart and Cryovac employees and their family members on different days.

Wal-Mart Day will be Saturday, June 22, and Cryovac Day will be Saturday, June 29. Admission for their employees and family members on those particular dates will be $1 per person.

Every Wednesday is Little League Day at the pool. Any boy or girl wearing a Little League ball cap to the pool will be admitted for $1.

Adult swim sessions are 7-9 p.m. every Monday. Admission is $1.

Family memberships for the entire swimming season are welcomed.

Hearings to complete annexations

Second and final hearings on two requests for annexations into the city will be held Monday, when the regular city council is held in council chambers.

Owners of the properties at 401 E. Diamond and 1211 N. Bell Road have requested to be taken into the city.

The city's charter requires two public hearings after having received petitions from the property owners for annexation.

Two other public hearings also are on the council agenda.

One will be for the application for a grant to upgrade a portion of the sewer system, through the Texas Community Development Program.

The other will be held to receive input concerning the adoption of an ordinance to nominate an area of the city as a state-designated enterprise zone and to designate a reinvestment zone.

The council possibly will take action on the enterprise zone and reinvestment zone.

Two ordinances will be considered by aldermen concerning an existing ordinance that bans fireworks inside the city limits.

One would be to designate Lake Iowa Park as a site where residents would be allowed to set off fireworks, on July 4th only.

The other, if approved, would amend the fireworks-banning ordinance by deleting two words, "possess," and "transport."

A.D. Hambright asked the council at the June 10 meeting for the change, in order that he might store his intended business's merchandise overnight.

The current ordinance has no provision for possession of fireworks anywhere inside the city limits.

Two bid action items relating to the Recreational Activities Center (RAC) are on the meeting's agenda.

Aldermen will consider awarding bids for part of the new facility's furniture. Also, Administrator Gary Jones will ask permission to advertise and accept bids to construct curb and gutters for the RAC's parking lot.

Also related to the RAC, Jones will ask permission to increase a previously-approved bid price for floor covering. He explained a mistake in measurements provided to bidders would add $150 to the approved price, making the total $6,425.

Authorization to accept and make final payments will be considered on three topics.

The first is a final payment of $642 on the ground storage tank painting; processing a change order to Zack Burkett Co. for overlaying with asphalt an area of the RAC parking lot, estimated at $9,200; and approve a one-year agreement with a selected carrier of group health insurance for employees.

Vehicles must be moved from street repair areas

A schedule of street repairs has been announced by Mike Price, city public works director.

Price explained the city's project of slurry application on existing asphalt street surfaces requires that all vehicles be removed from the streets for the days work is scheduled.

Off-street parking in such situations is suggested and requested.

Dates and streets scheduled include: Thursday, June 20 - 900 and 1000 blocks of South Park (first application); 200, 300 and 400 blocks of South Park. Friday, June 21 - 100, 200, 300 and 400 blocks of East Diamond.

Monday, June 24 - 900 and 1000 blocks of South Park (second application); 100 block of West Lafayette.

Tuesday, June 25 - 100, 200, 300 and 400 blocks of East Lafayette.

Wednesday, June 26 - 500, 600, 700, 800, 900 and 1000 blocks of East Ruby.

Thursday, June 27 - 1300 block of Westridge; 1300 block of Edgemoor Trail.

Leader sets special deadlines

News and advertising deadlines for the next two issues of the Iowa Park Leader will be moved up one day earlier.

Because of conflicting dates and events, the paper will be printed, mailed and put on the news stands one day earlier than usual.

However, both the issues will carry their regular June 27 and July 4 deadlines.

Deadline for display advertising (ads with borders) will be 4 p.m. Monday. Classified advertising deadline will be 12-noon Tuesday. All club news is requested to be turned in by Monday afternoon, if possible.

The Leader will return to its regular deadlines with the July 11 issue.

City receives .26 rainfall

Light showers Sunday morning and early Tuesday deposited .26 of an inch in the rain gauge of Virgil Woodfin's. The month's total is now 2.89.

Cates, Boren vows solemnized Saturday in afternoon ceremony

A romantic ceremony was solemnized Saturday afternoon in the presence of family members and close friends when Miss Marye Alice Cates and Ronald Scott Boren recited their matrimonial vows.

First Christian Church was scene of the double-ring service officiated by Rev. Michael Grubbs, pastor.

Parents of the couple are Dorothy Cates and James Cates, and Linda Boren and Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Boren, all of Iowa Park.

Mrs. Bobby Byrne and Miss Brenda Copas registered guests as they arrived. Bobby Byrne and Jimmy Collazo served as ushers. They wore black tuxedos with black bow ties and cummerbunds.

The sanctuary was decorated to give the impression of entering a summer garden. A focal point of decorative interest was the classic beauty of a lighted cross above the altar area. This was emphasized by an arched candelabra, flanked by slanting candelabras, providing additional illumination beneath the cross.

Each of the candelabras were garlanded with lavender wisteria vines. A pair of white garden trellises, decorated with ivy and lavender cymbidium orchids, were placed on either side at the front of altar area. A large floral floor arrangement of assorted summer flowers was in front of the altar table, and several baskets of Boston ferns, completed the summer garden picture.

Grapevine wreaths, trimmed with magnolias, bell flowers and orchids, were hanging along the side walls of the sanctuary.

Pews were marked with mixed bouquets of magnolias, gardenias, roses, hibiscus, and anemones, trimmed with magenta pink satin bows and streamers.

The bridegroom, dressed in a white tuxedo, escorted his mother to her place before proceeding to the altar.

Mrs. Ronald Scott Boren
(Marye Alice Cates)

Kevin Frazier, the bride's nephew, was ringbearer. He was dressed in a white suit, accented with magenta pink bow tie and cummerbund, and carried the rings on a white satin and lace pillow.

Miss Amanda Frazier served as her aunt's honor attendant. She was attired in a tea length gown designed with a magenta pink bodice and a flowing white satin skirt. She added a pearl drop necklace that was a gift from the bridal couple. Her cascade bouquet was created of white gardenias and pink lilies.

The bride entered the sanctuary through an archway covered with lavender wisteria vines. She was escorted to the altar by her mother who presented her in marriage for her parents and family.

Her gown was fashioned of luxurious white satin and lace. The bodice featured a sweetheart neckline and short puffed sleeves trimmed with pearl-drop ornamentation. The low back was accented with pearl-drops, a butterfly bow at the waistline and cathedral-length train.

She wore a pearl halo enhanced with pearlized flowers and highlighted with a full tulle pouf. Her cascade bouquet was of white bridal roses, magnolias, gardenias and lilies, accented with English ivy and pearls.

Musical selections were presented by Brad Lewis and Mrs. Patricia Glover.

Following the ceremony, the couple was honored at a reception held in Fellowship Hall of the church.

The room continued the garden atmosphere decor used in the sanctuary. A majestic grapevine wreath, covered in assorted summer flowers, was hung above the fireplace.

Topiary trees, created of assorted flowers, and an assortment of small blooming plants and burning votive candles, centered the guest tables. A pair of teddy bears dressed as a bride and groom, a gift to the couple, were used to center the top of the piano.

Centering the groom's table was a topiary tree flanked by a pair of terra cotta ducks. The table also held the groom's Black Forest cake that was inscribed "Marye and Scott". Iced tea, with lemon slices floating on top was also served.

On the bride's table was a traditional all white tiered cake that was adorned with white gardenias and topped with a pair of white procelain doves. The cake was placed on tall white pillars with a small fountain beneath it. An arrangement of assorted summer flowers also was used on the table.

The food table was centered with a terra cotta garden statue of a water boy holding a small grapevine heart wreath, along with a mixed floral arrangement. An assortment of meat, cheese, vegetable and fruit trays were displayed and served buffet style.

Peggy Potter served as the reception hostess. Members of the houseparty were Michelle Byrne, Brenda Copas, Lisa Holloway, Tracy Van Winkle, Kayla Mills, Sheila Potter and Ruby Elliott.

The groom's mother was hostess for the rehearsal dinner, catered by The Branding Iron of Wichita Falls.

Both the bride and groom are graduates of Iowa Park High School. She is a self-employed hairdresser at Modern Style Salon in Wichita Falls. He is employed with James Lane Air Conditioning in Wichita Falls.

After a wedding trip to the Dallas-Fort Worth area, the couple will make their home in Iowa Park.

As I See It... By Bob Hamilton

In his letter to us this week, the political hack from Roby, Steve Carriker, not only exposed a degree of ignorance, but also gave in writing his reasoning that no one other than one who espouses the believed greatness of the Democrat Party is worthy of being appointed to a committee.

The ignorance has to do with the senator's definition of a journalist and what a column writer's responsibility really is.

Appropriate definitions can be found in the third college edition of Webster's New World Dictionary:

"journalist: a person whose occupation is journalism; reporter, news editor, etc."

For the senator's enlightenment, that etc. is an abbreviation for etcetera.

"etcetera: additional things or persons."

Additional things or persons could, according to those in my profession, include a publisher/owner and a column writer.

Webster defines a publisher as: "a person or firm that publishes, esp. one whose business is the publishing of books, newspapers..."

The word publisher comes from the word publish: "to make publicly known; announce, proclaim, divulge, or promulgate..."

A column writer, such as myself, does his level best to make known his personal observations, beliefs and opinions.

A column is not the same as a news story, which is objective. A column writer makes no pretense of being objective.

But the hick from Roby, who likes to think of himself as the savior of the 30th Senatorial District, has himself become a political columnist.

In order to have an appointment confirmed by a body such as the senate, the nominee must be supported by the elected official of the district. Floyd County's seat is Floydada.

So Carriker can't hide behind the fact that the majority of senators did not approve of Towery's nomination. Carriker himself killed the issue.

To say a Pulitzer Prize winner is not a journalist because he gives his personal opinion in a column is like saying a medical doctor is not a physician because he enjoys hunting ducks, or one who flies an airplane is not a pilot because he builds airplanes.

Carriker can give all the Bob Bullock style reasons for his actions he wants, but it all comes down to the fact that he is of the old good-old-boy-style politicians.

In other words, Carriker is not worth the spit Towery might deposit in an outdoor privy!

But, of course, that's just the opinion of this non-journalist column writer.

Shouldn't be alive

vascular system was really getting in bad shape and that her heart was damaged. "They said if I didn't get busy and do something I wasn't going to be here long," Ruth said.

"I decided that if I'm going to die, I'm not going to die fat, so I started walking. I could take only a few steps when I started. Now I walk two to four miles a day, depending on how I feel." She says she feels and looks much better since she left the wheelchair for the road.

Observing Ruth's exuberant personality, it is difficult to think about her having all of the health problems she has had, and continues to have.

"Well, usually the sicker I am, the better I look," Ruth commented. Her beautiful blue-gray eyes sparkled as she laughed and said, "Can you believe I've even been asked for a dinner date while I was in the cardiac care unit?"

She explained that the young technician who did her electrocardiograms said to her one day, "Seriously, as soon as you get out of here and are feeling better, how about having dinner with me some night?"

Ruth seems to have a special gift for making people feel better. "When they know the things I've gone through and that I am still here, they can't help but think maybe they can too. I know that not everyone has the inner strength to overcome their illness, but I can always try to help and encourage them.

"You would be surprised how many people have stopped me and begin telling me about their problems," she added.

Ruth grew up in Fort Worth in a "man's" family of funeral directors. Her great-grandfather started the business which was passed on to her grandfather and then to her father. Her brother owns the business now.

She was married to Vern Day in January. He is an electronics technician at the Wichita Falls State Hospital.

"He wasn't afraid to take a chance on me," Ruth commented, "we married just after I had been in the hospital for a week. We feel that God has brought us together. I gain a lot of strength from him."

Ruth is currently facing another dilemma. Her physicians say some of her medication needs to be changed and they are weighing the effects and side-effects of some new medication.

Ruth's main hobby is cooking, and homemade bread is a specialty. She has prepared meals for as many as 80 guests for a sit-down dinner. She also plays the piano.

She is a fanatical, compulsive list-maker. Ruth makes lists for the day, the week, the month, and what she can for the year. "I'd never get organized if I didn't make lists," she explains.

The Days are members of Faith Baptist Church. She will be helping with Vacation Bible School there next week. Also Ruth and Vern are currently planning to start a singles group to help them with their special needs, spiritual and emotional.

Ruth's daughter, Mrs. Mike (Kelly) Vuesta lives at Sheppard Air Force Base. They have two children, Jacob and Samantha and Ruth likes to spend as much time and possible with her grandchildren. Ruth's son, of whom she is especially proud, is Luke Smiley, a Navy SEAL, stationed in Norfolk, Va.

Ruth expressed her deep feelings, "I really believe that I have gone through my problems for a reason. I believe God wants me to be able to help others. I've had so many illnesses and have taken so much medication that I can tell what people are experiencing.

"I'm a firm believer in the phrase, 'Let go, and let God.' I also believe that if you decide you are not going to live, you won't.

"Too many people who are diagnosed with cancer immediately think of it as terminal. Well, look at it this way, for that matter life is terminal, but that shouldn't make them lose hope."

And this might be a good place to allude to that old spiritual, "Nobody knows the troubles I've seen. Glory Hallelujah!"

Carriker explains stand

Dear Editor:

Last week a letter appeared in the Iowa Park Leader critical of me and the Texas Senate in failing to confirm one of Governor Clements' lame duck appointments, a Mr. Ken Towery of Austin. It is the duty of the Senate under the Constitution to "advise and consent" in gubernatorial appointments.

The position for which Mr. Towery had been nominated is one specifically set aside for a "journalist", which Mr. Towery certainly was at one time in the past. Long ago, however, he crossed the line from objective journalism to become a crusader for his own political agenda through negative propaganda.

My only action in regard to his consideration before the Senate was to ask for a postponement in order to reproduce and distribute to the Senators excerpts from recent columns he had written in the Floydada Hesperian which he owns.

His writing, far from being objective journalism or even editorial advocacy, is blatant character assassination in the style of a tabloid tattle sheet. He assails Governor Richards as a "drunk" and makes dark and unseemly intimations about her divorce. He even went so far in one column as to characterize the Governor as kissing a homosexual "smack on the lips!", a fiction calculated to offend the sensitivities of a rural paper's readership.

After reviewing Mr. Towery's current "journalistic" endeavors, no member of the Senate chose to make the routine motion to confirm his nomination. The Senate concluded the position could be better filled.

The Constitution worked. Sincerely, Steven A. Carriker State Senator

Worth Quoting

For the past four or five months, Texans have been hit almost daily with stories out of Austin about an upcoming $4 to $6 billion deficit in the state budget.

We've heard it so often, most of us have come to accept it as fact -- taxpayers in the state will be tapped for billions more to pay for the expanded services of education reform, health, welfare, prisons and expanded programs mandated by the federates.

Tain't necessarily so according to Kay Bailey Hutchinson, our new state treasurer.

She's been going around the state with a different type of message: Texas does not need to enact massive new taxes!

Just another politician spouting off? Perhaps not!

When she was campaigning in Andrews last fall, she spent some time visiting in our office and we were impressed then that this woman's elevator went all the way to the top.

And you have to listen to someone who has earned for us taxpayers a $100 million in profit in four months. Through better investment management techniques, the state treasury is reaping greater-than-expected returns. Texas now ranks number one among the states in management of money market funds.

During the first four months of this year, the state earned a $100 million "profit" on invested taxpayer dollars. Mrs. Hutchinson expects by year's end this will total $300 million or about $120 million greater than in the past.

Tain't bad for a newcomer in the treasurer's office.

In Lubbock Friday, Mrs. Hutchinson said Texas does not have a deficit and will end this fiscal year with a $250 million surplus. She says Texas is at the crossroads: "If we go to a 22 percent spending increase and put in massive taxes, we'll become like other states that have let it get out of hand."

She says there are "common sense" solutions to the financial stresses ahead. She can envision major economies through restraints in spending, government consolidations, and raising to 100 percent from 95 percent the cap on our prison population.

According to her, these could form a $4 billion savings package that, with current revenues, would meet our needs.

Her statements came on the heels of two different plans tossed out by members of the Governor's Task Force on Revenue headed by former Texas Governor John Connally.

Connally's plan would raise $8.2 billion by levying a 2.35 percent business tax, hiking the gasoline tax from 15 to 35 cents per gallon, doubling college tuition, hiking the motor vehicle tax by a quarter cent, and adding a 5 cent per gallon aviation fuel tax.

A competing plan, offered up by former Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Jess

Hays of Dallas, both members of the task force, would broaden the sales tax, enact a 6 percent income tax on individuals, a 6.5 percent on corporations, a 4 cent aviation fuel tax to raise $10.6 billion.

Connally, in detailing his plan, said that state spending is expected to rise 25 percent over the next two years because of growth in Texas, federal government mandates, and court orders.

And to add to the overall confusion, State Comptroller John Sharp said that $1.6 billion can be saved as a result of recent "performance audits" of state agencies.

But weary and exasperated taxpayers in Texas can be assured of two certain facts in the overall picture: Our lawmakers will manage to spend every dime that is ultimately raised and (2) more dollars will always be needed.

Of course, there's one alternative that state lawmakers could consider. They could always fall back on another version of the State's Robin Hood bill -- avoid the heat by shoving all the new projected costs to the backs of local property owners.

If it worked for public schools, it ought to work for the state in general.

We could always divide the state into perhaps 26 super regions and make each region responsible for raising $2 billion as its share of projected 1992-93 state revenues of $52 billion.

And to think, just 10 short years ago, our state managed to scrape by on a spending budget of $21.5 billion.

Robin Hood, where are you?

Be aware of 'wet areas'

Agricultural producers, beware of "wet areas" in your fields and pastures.

Changes in the wetland conservation, or "Swampbuster," provision of the 1990 Farm Bill could cause you to lose eligibility for USDA farm program benefits, warns Mike Isbell of the local SCS office.

The 1985 Farm Bill started making wet areas "sticky" for agricultural producers. If a wet area was determined a wetland by USDA's Soil Conservation Service, and a farmer "converted" the wetland and produced an agricultural commodity, the producer lost eligibility for USDA farm program benefits.

The 1990 Farm Bill makes wet areas even "stickier."

Converting a wetland will result in loss of benefits regardless of whether an agricultural commodity is produced on the conversion. Benefits will be lost until the wetland is restored.

USDA has recently published rules to implement the 1990 Farm Bill. If agricultural producers certify an intent to use converted wetlands for non-agricultural uses, an exemption can be granted.

"Agricultural producers, who have wet areas suspected of being wetlands, should go to their Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office and ask for a wetland determination," says Pat Henson, assistant state conservationist.

The request will be referred to Soil Conservation Service, who will make the wetland determination. In many instances, wet areas will not be sufficiently wet to be called wetlands.

"We do have some wetlands in Wichita County," says Isbell. Final determinations are currently being made and these should be completed no later than early June.

Letters will be mailed to all producers who have wetlands. Where wetlands are found, the producer will be advised if the intended activity can be exempted. If the conversion cannot be exempted, the wetland will be outlined on a map, and the producer advised not to make the conversion.

To avoid unnecessary expense and headaches, agricultural producers should request wetland determinations on "wet areas" before making any "conversions" if a determination has not been made.

USDA personnel will make determinations of wetlands, conversions, and exemptions. Foremost, they will work with producers to maintain their eligibility for farm program benefits.

Luna's work on display

By Myrna Smith

Mrs. Richard (Peggy) Luna, a member of the Iowa Park Arts and Crafts Club, has two of her dolls on display at Tom Burnett Memorial Library. They will remain three more weeks.

Each month two members of the club have samples of their work on exhibit in a business institution in Iowa Park. They hope people will go by and look at some of the work they do, or learn to do, in club meetings.

Mrs. Luna has been a member of the club about a year and during the 1991-92 club year she will be serving as display chairman.

"I love to do any kind of craft," Mrs. Luna said. She likes to crossstitch, crochet, and do any kind of sewing.

She buys the porcelain dolls and makes clothes for them. The dolls she has on display this month were made into bride and groom dolls, significant of June being a traditional wedding month.

For the groom she crocheted a white suit and top hat and the bride's dress is white crochet with an overskirt of lace tiers. She wears an illusion veil.

"THE WAY TO HAPPINESS"

The above was the title of a booklet of unsolicited mail. It promised to show "a way toward a much safer and happier life for you and others." The thesis of this book is a "nonreligious moral code based wholly on common sense." In other words man's wisdom to obtain happiness. God states, "for as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways and my thoughts than your thoughts" (Isaiah 55:9). Let's compare God's wisdom with man's wisdom.

In this booklet the importance of survival is asserted. Survival is defined as "the act of remaining alive, of continuing to exist, of being alive." Later the book states, "if one does not survive, no joy, and no happiness are obtainable." A further statement is later made "any individual or group seeks to obtain from life what pleasure and freedom from pain that they can." Not only is remaining alive essential but the elimination of pain (physical and emotional) will also be necessary to find joy and happiness. This is a fair representation of most folks ideas about happiness. The only problem with them is that they are not God's.

God provides happiness in spite of pain and even in spite of not "surviving." It is impossible for man to eliminate all pain from life. To pursue happiness through the elimination of pain will be limited at best. Most certainly man will not be able to "survive" forever. The simple knowledge of certain death is enough to show the futility of pursuing happiness through survival.

God provides a way that "we can rejoice in the Lord always" (Philippians 4:4), not just when there is not pain. God provides a joy that can view death as "gain" (Philippians 1:21), and not the ultimate failure to find joy.

Truly God's ways are much higher than man's.

Jodi Corless

This week's featured cook, Jodi Corless, divides her time between her work as an adult probation officer for Wichita County, her family and her volunteer work with Big Brothers and Sisters.

Jodi graduated from Iowa Park High School and Midwestern State Univ., with a degree in criminal justice. She worked as a Wichita County Juvenile Probation Officer before taking her position.

Her future plans include obtaining a master's degree in criminal justice in order to reach her goal of becoming a federal probation officer.

Jodi is also active in the "Big Brothers and Sisters" program in Wichita Falls. She said she saw a segment featuring children of single parents on a local television station, and called, hoping to get matched with the child she saw featured.

After being interviewed by directors of the program, Jodi was matched to the 13-year-old Wichita Falls girl she saw featured. Now 14, Jackie, her "Little Sister" and she spend a lot of time together. Jodi is teaching her to play tennis, goes to Jackie's school functions, and Jackie goes to many of Jodi's family get-togethers and to softball games. The two also go to movies together, and attend the "Big Brothers and Sisters" functions.

Jodi said she enjoys her work with the program and would recommend it to anyone who had at least six hours a week to spend with their Little Brother or Sister, and could provide a good role model. She said adult volunteers are always needed and can be married or single.

Jodi's other interests include racquetball, arts & crafts and swimming.
