Mike Hoover named principal at Kidwell

The school board, in a called meeting Thursday night, approved the hiring of an elementary principal and five teachers, three of whom are coaches, and approved a contract to be offered to City View ISD for transfer students.

Mike Hoover was hired to replace Ron Woods as principal of Kidwell Elementary.

Hoover has been an elementary principal at Hawley, just north of Abilene, and Woods recently submitted his resignation so he could retire.

The five teachers hired included: Stephen Stradley, to teach sophomore English at the high school; Susan Scott, a nine-year veteran in education to teach at Bradford Elementary; Larry Zachary, with eight years experience, as junior and senior high coach and teacher; Brett White, high school history teacher and coach, and Greg Biehl, high school math teacher and coach. White and Biehl both have three years experience.

Three staff resignations were accepted, including Trey and Shelli Morgan and Debbie Cain.

Jayna Case, who has been teaching in the fifth grade, was reassigned as elementary librarian.

Trustees, with a split vote, approved a proposed contract with the City View school to accept its transfer students, but at an increased annual fee of $1,700.

The proposed fee agreement must be approved by that district's board. The fee has been $1,500. There was no mention in the contract concerning any liability concerning litigation expenses involving any City View students, as had been included in a previously proposed agreement and rejected.

City View does not offer classes for its high school students, and those students have a choice of attending any school that is contiguous with that district.

Trustees voting for the revised contract were Sheri Kennedy, Martha Dudley, Max Henderson and Keith Fisher. Wendall House and Randy Catlin voted against it.

Supt. Glen Mitchell said 71 City View students attended school here during the 1992-93 year, and with 11 new transfers approved during Tuesday's meeting, it appeared 61 would be in classes starting in the fall.

Bids were opened for construction of a special education facility at the high school, were discussed by architect Don Daugherty, and all bids except three items on which no bids were received, were accepted.

Daugherty said the 1,584-square foot structure, which will be added on the south side of the main building, would cost approximately $90,000.

Bids also were accepted for two computers and related equipment for the high school, at a cost of $4,887.

Other bids, including the district's bank depository, which went to State National Bank, and various food service supplies, were approved.

George Brandt, who was hired to take on an additional non-classroom duty as energy manager for the district, gave a report to the board on the five months the energy-saving program has been in effect.

Explaining, first of all, that the ## Council to decide future of landfill

Landfill operations and related subjects are the only two items listed on a tentative agenda for Monday night's regularly-scheduled meeting of the city council.

Aldermen are to begin the meeting at 7 p.m. in council chambers.

Bids for a private contractor to either dispose of the city's garbage, or both collect and dispose of it, will be considered.

Then, armed with those possible costs, aldermen are to consider their options concerning the future of the city's trash collection operation.

Administrator Mike Price said he should have final response on a proposed tri-city landfill operation, which would include Iowa Park, Burkburnett and Vernon.

Price has been told that Vernon had already turned to a private contractor, but the possibility of that city joining the other two had never officially been ruled out.

Because of a federally-mandated program called Subtitle D, the cost of operating landfills is expected to increase to a point that few, if any, small cities will be able to continue operating their own trash disposal programs.

Regardless of who collects the trash and where it is taken, the city plans to offer a facility where motor oil and used oil filters can be deposited.

Those items cannot be put in landfills, regardless of who operates them.

The city has received a grant from the state for a facility to be constructed that will receive both the used oil and oil filters.

JULY 4TH AFTERMATH -- The southeast shoreline of Lake Iowa Park was littered with residue from thousands of fireworks Monday morning. Residents are encouraged to use the area both to cut down on rural grassfires and because they are illegal elsewhere inside the city limits. But not everyone used the area, according to records at the Iowa Park Police Department. Besides seven complaints filed of fireworks in the city, volunteer firemen from Iowa Park and West Wichita answered 13 rural fire calls Saturday and 26 Sunday.

Building permits top million

Iowa Park's building permit total vaulted over the million-dollar mark, when June's permits were figured at city hall.

Permits issued during June amounted to $96,717, which brought the first half of 1993 to $1,017,066.

But that likely is only the tip of the total for the year, if home construction breaks open as anticipated. At least two housing projects are known to be on the drawing board, and others are considered possible before the start of 1994.

Only one of June's permits was for construction of a new home. The others were for roofing, storage sheds and home improvements.

Permits issued by city hall during June included:

Three more ring theft cases are reported here

One week after two expensive woman's rings were reported stolen, three additional thefts of rings were reported, and all of those were from the same apartment complex, according to the police blotter.

Two rings were reported as stolen from a unit at Woodbriar Apartments. Police are investigating a reported "theft over $200," received Friday.

Tuesday, another occupant of the same complex said a gold panda coin ring was missing.

Then, at 3:08 a.m. Wednesday, a third occupant told police a gold diamond engagement ring was missing.

Shortly after midnight Saturday, police broke up a fight in which a "group" of adult men were involved at Lake Iowa Park. Though one was reportedly injured, none wanted to file a complaint.

Another report of fighting, this time between two men in the front yard of a home in the 900 block of East Washington, Monday afternoon.

Though both men received injuries -- one of the two had left that location and was found elsewhere -- neither wanted to file an official complaint.

FATAL SCENE -- Mark Shirley, 68, was found dead of an apparent heart attack Tuesday afternoon, in the middle of a plowed wheat field. Shirley, long-time service manager for Shaw Ford, apparently was driving on the west service road when his car went over an embankment, through a fence, and came to rest about 150 yards in the field, which is located directly across US 287 from Fourth Street. Though Shirley was last seen just before 10 a.m., he was not located until Randy Brown, who leases the land, found his car shortly before 5 p.m. The motor was still running and the transmission in gear.

Churches contributing to beautification project

By MYRNA SMITH

The early settlers who came to Iowa Park had a dream of a town with beautiful parks, flowers and trees.

There has always been those who have come after who have shared the dream of a beautiful town through the years. As happens with most towns, there are times they are more beautiful than at other times.

Now, there is a move on in Iowa Park to improve its appearance in a number of ways.

The town will be entered in the Governor's Community Achievement Award competition, which has already been won by Electra, Burkburnett and Wichita Falls in their population categories. Now, Iowa Park would like to follow suit.

Six sections are emphasized in the contest, including cleanup, education, public awareness, solid waste management, beautification, and illegal dumping/law enforcement.

Under the specifications of beautification is the planting of trees, landscaping, planting wildflowers, and improving parks and gardens.

In addition to the many beautiful yards at homes throughout the city, the churches are dotting the town with their own "beauty spots" and doing their part in the beautification of Iowa Park.

First Christian Church grounds have taken on a new look because what started as an idea became a dream and the dream became reality.

Through the cooperation of many of the members who have given of their money, time and talents, the grounds have been completely replanted with flowers and shrubs.

Donations given in memory, or to honor loved ones are responsible for the church being able to do all that has been done to the grounds. So much can be done through shared dreams!

And church families have adopted flower beds and are maintaining them as a part of their commitment.

There has been complete new landscaping around the building. Members worked many hours pulling up all of the old shrubs with a winch truck and rebedding the beds completely surrounding the building with shrubs and flowers.

The beds are now exhibiting a riot of color in yellow, red, purple, and pink low growing flowers backed by small shrubs.

At Lakeview Church of God some of the church women have planted flowers in planter boxes at the east entrance of the church and crape myrtle is blooming in some of the beds.

Also the men of the church have worked in a small park area located west of the building. They have cleared out some of the mesquites and mowed grass in the rolling site that is between the church building and the shores of Gordon Lake.

A few months ago First Presbyterian Church erected a sign in a brick planter in front of the two doors leading into the sanctuary as a memorial to John Wood who died in 1991. The planter has evergreens and seasonal blooming flowers in it.

A rose garden area is located in front of the educational building where shrubs and red caladiums and other annuals are planted in addition to the rose bushes.

Flowers have been planted in several areas around the Church of Christ building.

First United Methodist Church grounds look neat and trimmed and a bench and rock garden with flowers and shrubs surrounded by tiles inscribed with names of members is always a restful looking area on the grounds.

Grounds at the other churches in Iowa Park are always neatly manicured. Some have shrubs and some have flowers planted each season.

The churches of Iowa Park have always been a source of leadership and support, and now they are leading the way in the city's beautification project.

As I See It... By Bob Hamilton

You may by now be getting sick of me using this space, and space on the front page, talking about landfills.

But folks, reading it won't make you nearly as sick as paying for all the new regulations and changes that are almost upon us.

If I were a betting man, I'd give you odds that our city is going to get out of not only the disposal of trash, but also its collection, and hire a private firm to do it.

Whatever the cost will be if that happens won't be nearly as high as if the city continued as it has for these many years.

The city council has already decided it will close its landfill operation. Whether it stays with the deadline to take trash there will not be decided for another week or so.

As it stands now, the council's decision is to close the landfill, located southwest of the city off Smith Road, as of August 1. It was felt it would take from then until October 8 to close out the landfill site, to meet mandated specifications.

That August 1 date possibly could be moved a couple of weeks, but don't count on it.

I suggest that if you have a collection of trash or unwanted items you've been intending to throw away, like I have, you might want to get started with their disposal.

That's because of three points: you'll get done what you've wanted to;

it will help fill up space at the landfill pit that will just require more dirt fill to close it out; and if you wait until after the landfill is closed, the cost could be greater than you would want.

Wherever our trash is taken once our landfill is closed, the cost is going to be based on the amount we as citizens and businesses throw away. For that reason, if you feel as I do about how my money is spent, I'm expecting to begin a concerted effort to recycle everything I can.

I've already converted my lawnmower to chop up the blades of grass and leave it on the yard, rather than catching it and throwing it in the trash bin, and I began a few weeks ago bagging my aluminum cans which I plan to take to George Roy's and sell as scrap metal.

Additional recycling will have to come, as I adjust and consider how I want to do it. But at least, I've started.

On those regulations concerning landfills I've referred to so many times, let me explain how these all came about and why things are so tentative, as far as the city is concerned, this late in the game.

First of all, the Environmental Protection Agency -- not congress -- came up with the regulations, called Subtitle D.

Those regulations were handed down to the individual states. In Texas, it was turned over to the Texas Water Commission. The state groups were instructed they could make the regulations tougher, but not easier.

The Water Commission had the regulations a year, and only in the past few weeks, told cities and counties what the state's regulations would be. That's right, only weeks before those dreaded regulations come into effect.

The regulations are so strict that, according to the city's engineer, the cost of disposing of a ton of garbage that currently cost about $8 would rise to an estimated $118. And that doesn't include the $18 for its collection, which would take it up to $136!

The Water Commission encouraged each of the regional planning commissions to coordinate regional landfill organizing.

I don't know what happened in other areas, but Nortex didn't announce anything to the general public until just recently. You may remember I ran an article last week that said seminars would be held for anyone wanting to learn about the Subtitle D regulations.

Oh, there were a lot of meetings between city government leaders in the Nortex area, concerning a regional landfill. One such regional landfill was even discussed, to be located in Archer County.

Nothing ever came out of it because the municipal people couldn't get their act together. And I can't blame them. Their folks back home didn't know what was facing them, and therefore they put no pressure on their representatives to accomplish something.

I have my reservations about turning the city's trash collection and disposal to a private firm. I ask myself, what would happen if the city sells all its equipment, goes privatization, and the outfit is shut down by the government for non-compliance, or it should declare bankruptcy and quit, or if it should make price demands that the people couldn't afford to pay?

These are questions I can't answer. But they're the makers of nightmares.

With the knowledge that a vast majority of cities, and even counties, have contracted private firms for trash disposal, I feel there is legislation needed in Austin. And I'm disappointed nothing was done during the past regular session.

Privately-operated sanitary landfills must be declared a utility, just like all other services people can't live without. There's got to be a regulatory power to hold costs within reason.

We had enough Robin Hood affecting school financing. We don't need it in connection with throwing away trash.

Letter to the Editor

Responds to criticism

Little League Parents,
As manager of the Major League All-Star team, I feel that I should say something in response to the letter that was in the July 1st edition of the Leader.

I understand the disappointment felt by the kids and their parents at not being selected for the All-Star team. When you have to vote on 14 boys out of 72 that are eligible, there are tough decisions that have to be made and there is no way everyone is going to be satisfied. As far as coaches sons "having it made," this is just not true. Less than one half of this year's team are coaches sons. The players on the team were voted on by all the coaches, not just the dads of certain players. I feel that every player on the team deserves to be there, and I am proud and honored to coach them.

It is true that we don't have a perfect league and that we are going to make mistakes whether it be in All-Star selections or making other decisions regarding the league, but I encourage all parents to get involved and try to make the league a better one for the kids and parents alike.

Thanks,
Mike Duerson

We see but don't observe

Dear Bob,
I would like to add a post script to your timely editorial of two weeks ago on bicycle safety. It is a scientific fact that many drivers don't see a two-wheel vehicle, i.e., they are psychologically blind to a cyclist. This is because, in the case of vision, the brain can't deal with all the bits of information it receives so it suppresses or ignores some images unless it is trained not to. So a motorist may not really see a person on a bicycle. As Sherlock Holmes once said, "You see but you do not observe." So people who ride bicycles and motorcycles should be aware of this phenomena and not assume that a motorist sees them. When at an intersection the rider of a bicycle should try to make eye contact with the motorist before turning in front of a car.

Mrs. Ray Dillard

Vicki Dillard, who teaches English III and business courses at Iowa Park High School, is almost as knowledgeable about raising livestock as she is about prepositional phrases, dangling participles, and the proper use of nouns and verbs.

A contributing factor could be that her husband, Ray, is vocational agriculture teacher at the high school, and their two children, both members of the Junior FFA, raise steers, sheep and pigs. Vicki and Ray raise registered sheep.

Vicki is a graduate of Olney High School, and received her bachelor's degree from Tarleton State University in Stephenville. Tarleton is also where she met Ray, a native of Kamay and graduate of Iowa Park High School.

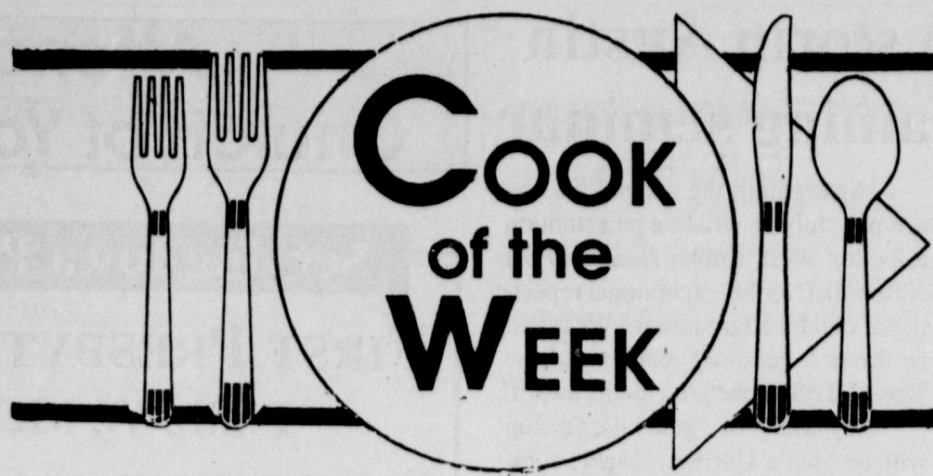

After their marriage, they lived in Texas City and Electra before moving to Iowa Park.

They have a son, Ross, who is 12, and a 10-year-old daughter, Robyn. Ross participates in all sports, and Robyn plays basketball and softball. They are both honor students, members of the Junior FFA, and 4-H Club.

The Dillard's are active in Little League, FFA Booster Club, and are members of First United Methodist Church. They maintain a busy schedule attending stock shows at the State Fair, Fort Worth and Houston, plus the local and county shows. The children place their earnings from the shows into an account set aside for their college educations.

Vicki lists sewing and painting as her hobbies, and presently, is in the middle of remodeling her kitchen.

She said that she comes from a long line of women who liked to cook, and would prepare a large meal for any occasion. Vicki admitted that she is not that fond of cooking, but she cooks at least one meal a day when school is in session, and two meals a day during the summer months.

One of her children's favorite desserts is "Ambrosia Cake," and for Mexican food enthusiasts, you've got to try "Chicken Quesadillas."

More than two thousand PTA members are expected to arrive in Austin for the annual Texas PTA Summer Leadership Seminar at The University of Texas on the Austin campus July 16-18.

More than 120 workshops will be offered for PTA leaders representing PTAs throughout Texas.

Workshop topics include legislative issues; site-based decision making; comprehensive school health; gangs; year-round school; HIV/AIDS; discipline challenges; the immunization crisis; drinking and driving; parents and teachers; workshops on PTA leadership skills, and more.

Workshops are scheduled from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and from 8:30 a.m. to noon Sunday in the University Teaching Center and the Graduate School of Business.

Highlighting the general session at 8 p.m. July 16 will be a presentation to Felton West, former Houston Post editorialist, for his exceptional reporting of child welfare issues. West will be the first honorary recipient of the Texas PTA Phoebe print media award.

Keynoting the general session will be Sheila Uselton, singer, composer, recording artist and founder of Songfest.

The Songfest presentation will not only highlight Uselton's singing talents, but also her talent in playing the guitar, the banjo, ukelele and a multitude of homemade instruments. Her performance objective is to provide music that children and parents can enjoy together.

PTA members may register on-site at Jester Center July 16 from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturday from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Registration fee is $45.

Where Jesus is Lord

JESUS IS LORD!

"Were the highest heavens my pulpit, multitudes of angels my audience, and eternity my time, Jesus Christ would always be my text," wrote an older preacher to a young evangelist. In Philipians 2:9-11, we learn why: "wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name: that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things on earth, and things under the earth; and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father." The word "Lord" actually means "Master." Peter preached on Pentecost, "God hath made that same Jesus, who ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ: (Acts 2:36).

Christ has all authority, "both in heaven and on earth" (Matthew 28:18). In Colossians 1:18, Paul writes concerning Jesus, "He is the head of the body, the church, who is the beginning, firstborn from the dead, that in all things he might have the preeminence." On the mount of transfiguration, the voice of God spoke these words: "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased. He ye him! (Matthew 17:5). Powerfully, Colossians 2:9, 10 informs us that "Christ is the fullness of the Godhead bodily" and that we are "complete in him." Jehovah now speaks "through his Son, who is the brightness of his glory" (Hebrews 1:1-3). Saul of Tarsus learned of the power and authority of the Son of God on the Damascus road many years ago. The natural loving response of his heart is recorded in Acts 9:6, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" In Acts 22:16 the answer is recorded from the words of the preacher Ananias, "arise, and be baptized and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord."

Next week we will conclude our thoughts on "JESUS IS LORD."

Cattlemen still helping Rehab Center

Twenty-five years ago, a small group of area cattlemen decided to have a livestock auction to benefit North Texas Rehabilitation Center. Funds were short at the non-profit Center and the needs were great.

Children and adults in North Texas and Southern Oklahoma suffered birth defects, accidents and illnesses that required professional therapy to help them reach their potentials. Some could never become totally healthy -- but they needed help to reach the highest level possible. Others, with appropriate therapy, could return to active, independent lives. Many of those infants, children and adults were in need of charitable services. So, the idea of the livestock auction was born out of need.

Since then, the Rehab Auction has grown and benefited the Center. Birth defects, illnesses and accidents still exist. People still need medical rehabilitation to help them achieve independence.

And the Center still services all of North Texas and Southern Oklahoma with quality care, charging families only what they can afford to pay.

Fund raisers such as the auction continue to take up the slack and meet the charitable needs.

This year, the Rehab Auction will feature five auctions.

On Friday, July 16, area ranchers and farmers will take their livestock to Arrowhead Livestock Sales -- or to their local sales arena, and generously give proceeds to the Rehab Center.

That same evening, the three-hour TV auction will be broadcast live by KFDX TV-3 from the Center.

Local and area merchants will contribute items for the TV auction, the silent auction and the big merchandise auction which will be held Saturday, July 17, at the Activities Center in Wichita Falls.

A new art auction will be produced by the Texas Wild Bunch, a group of independent, well-known, successful artists who join forces for benefits such as the Rehab Auction.

The art auction will also take place at the Activities Center that Saturday.

In addition to the opportunities to give and to purchase, good food, good music and good art will be there for all to enjoy.
