Hot weather puts heat on local water system

Eventhough water consumption is running high during the current extended hot, dry spell, Iowa Park's water department is not expecting any curtailment in the immediate future, according to Administrator Gary Jones.

As of presstime Wednesday, no measurable precipitation has fallen in 35 days.

Demand has been greater than the city's treatment plant's 1.3-million per day capacity, so additional water is being purchased from Wichita Falls, via a transmission line built in the early 1970s.

"We just can't keep up (with demand)," said Burl Yoder, foreman of the water and sewer department.

During the third week of July, the city produced 6,244,000 gallons of treated water, and at the same time received 4,780,100 gallons from Wichita Falls, for a total of 11,024,100 gallons.

That is two million gallons more than was provided by the city for its customers during the same week last year.

In the third week of July in 1990, 8,935,000 gallons were purchased by residents, according to the department's figures.

The two summers have been similar, in both temperatures and lack of precipitation. Last year, Iowa Park did not receive a measurable amount of rainfall from June 1 to July 12.

An indication of how much more water is being used by city residents is indicated by recorded sales to the Wichita Valley Water Supply Corp.

According to the records, the rural water supply group purchased only 4,670,000 gallons from May 31 to June 28 this year, down considerably from the 11,280,500 gallons taken during the same period in 1990, records show.

Buffalo Lake, the city's primary source of raw water, has held its level well, despite hot temperatures and strong winds. The lake's level dropped only one foot, 1,041 to 1,040, from June to July.

And temperatures have been seasonably high. The high for the period July 17-22 averaged a fraction below 102 degrees, ranging from 100 to 105.

To determine typical consumption inside the city, a study was made on one section, selected at random.

The north central area of Iowa Park, for its July consumption, was billed for $9,921.66. The same area's bill last year was $10,962.20, but that was before the city reduced its water price by 15 percent.

Under the current rate, last year's bill for the zone would have been $9,318.

Voter registration, education promoted

A concerted effort, the first of its kind in the state of Texas, is underway in Wichita County to not only register voters, but education of the need to cast their ballots.

The project was announced Monday during a press conference at the courthouse by Vernon Cannon, county clerk, and Ruth Ann Mercer, deputy county clerk.

An outline of the project included a series of advertisements to be run in each of the county's newspapers, as well as a project of four radio stations in Wichita Falls, and also voter registration booths in Iowa Park, Electra, DIGGING OUT THE PROBLEM - Texas Street was closed this week in front of the city's water treatment plant, as workers dug out a large line where a leak had developed. The problem was first noticed when the surface beside the bulk water pump began crumbling. Early attempts to shore up the problem with concrete failed, when it was determined the soil was saturated.

4-H, Home Demonstration at risk by senator's plan

Public reaction was both large and swift, when it was learned that part of the legislature's intent was to cut off Extension Service education programs in 49 "metropolitan" counties across Texas.

"I'd say the message has been conveyed," commented Mark Terning with the Wichita County Extension Service.

Hearings began Friday on Senate Bill 1, which included the cutback intended to save the state $36.5 million a year.

If approved, Wichita and 48 other large counties of the state would lose all educational programs, including 4-H Clubs and Home Demonstration.

Terning included other programs such as seminars, radio and television appearances, news articles, and demonstration plots would be eliminated.

An indication of local reaction was a meeting during the past week of the Valley View 4-H Club, where members each wrote five letters to legislators to protest the proposed cuts.

SEEKING $113,400

City's grant application would help sewer system

The city council Monday night adopted a resolution requesting a grant from the Texas Department of Commerce's Community Development Fund.

The application is for $113,400 to make sewer improvements in the southeastern part of the city.

The city would commit $30,000 toward the construction, which when completed is expected to correct numerous problems that burdened both homes and the school last spring.

A larger sewer line and new lift station is expected to stop sewer line backup into homes and Bradford Elementary School, such as occurred during a period of heavy rains in the spring.

Even though A.C. Miser was not at the meeting to make a public appearance supporting his request for water service outside the city, at South Gate Garden Road and Bradford Road, the council went ahead and approved the request.

Miser, Mayor Wayne House told aldermen, understands he will have to pay the $590.90 in expenses to lay the line, as well as the regular out-of-city water rates.

After numerous questions were answered concerning the Nortex 9-1-1 Communications District 1991-92 budget, aldermen voted approval.

Manager Sidney Smith offered explanations to questions concerning the district's $469,430 budget, which reflected a minor increase over the current year's $452,500.

Among the district's board members in the audience were Iowa Parkans Don Kirkham and former alderman Bud Burch.

Smith told the council the district plans this year to have installed at each of the radio dispatching facilities a tape recorder, designed to assist when emergency calls are difficult to comprehend and are then disconnected.

An informative personal appearance by personnel from the United Way of Greater Wichita Falls was held.

Included among the speakers were Bob Aulds, Jamie Henderson and executive director Henry Zimmer.

Annual approval of the city's retirement system, presented in ordinance form, was approved.

The council voted confirmation of two appointments, Charles Brown and Doyle Parks, by the mayor to three-year terms on the Planning and Zoning Board.

Also approved was a request from the Hotter'N Hell bicycle ride organization to set up a rest station on the west side of the Tom Burnett Memorial Library.

The vote of approval came after the council was assured no overtime pay for police officers would be necessary, and that the organization's workers would clean up the area at the end of the day.

As was the case last year, the rest station is to serve riders who choose not to complete the 100-mile ride and use Iowa Park as a "bail out" route back to Wichita Falls.

City Administrator Gary Jones presented members of the council copies of his proposed 1991-92 budget.

Aldermen decided to hold work sessions next Monday and Tuesday. To start at 6:30 p.m., the informal sessions will be held in the council's conference room, but are open to the public.

Vandals prompt chief to issue warning about unusual-hour walkers

If you're out walking around in Iowa Park between midnight and sunrise, be prepared to be checked out by the police.

Chief Wayne Parsons issued the warning this week, after a rash of late-night criminal mischief incidents.

Most of the 10 complaints were in a neighborhood west of Fourth Street, and are suspected to have been the effort of young juveniles.

Parsons said anyone seen walking after midnight will be asked by officers for identification and address of residence.

Iowa Park no longer has a curfew, but juveniles, especially if they are not in their immediate neighborhoods, may be taken to the police station and their parents contacted to pick them up.

Information cards will be completed during the interviews, and the police can refer to those names should any complaints of criminal mischief be received the next morning.

Almost all the mischief complaints in a neighborhood west of Fourth Street were received from residents over the weekend.

Two residents, in the 100 block of Wood Circle and 900 block of Cornelia, reported their yards being littered with bathroom tissue and cars marked on by bars of soap. One report was filed Friday morning and the second Saturday.

Residents in the 1100 block of Louisa and 300 block of Kathleen told police someone had put chlorine tablets in their fish ponds, killing the fish. The complaints were received Saturday morning.

Two residents in the 1100 block of Lincoln told police Saturday morning they found their bird baths had been attacked. One was broken and the other turned over.

Saturday night, a resident in the 900 block of Lincoln reported to police of having found a car tire had been slashed.

Vandals sometime over the weekend broke out glass doors in the north-west wing of the junior high school. The damage was discovered Monday morning, according to the police blotter.

Also discovered Monday morning by a resident, in the 100 block of East Poe, who told police a forklift was lying on its side in a ditch near Faith Baptist Church.

The tractor was determined to have been taken from Spruiell Drilling work shop.

The owner of a pickup in the 300 block of East Ruby told police at 3:58 a.m. Monday he had been awakened when the alarm on his pickup parked at the home was set off.

Three white males were seen running from the area, but police were unable to locate them for questioning.

Nothing was taken.

A 1973 Ford Pinto was reportedly stolen from the 800 block of North Colorado sometime Friday night. The vehicle was found abandoned Sunday evening in the 200 block of West Crystal and was returned to its owner, according to the blotter.

A resident in the 400 block of South Jackson called police at 11:28 p.m. Friday, saying someone had attempted for open the bedroom window.

Police were unable to find a suspect.

Three persons were arrested by city police during the past week.

Officers took Shannon Ray Long, 19, into custody in the 700 block of South Colorado at 2:42 a.m. Saturday on a charge of public intoxication. The suspect was released at 10:50 a.m. after signing a personal recognizance bond.

Two men were arrested when officers were summoned to a disturbance in the 200 block of West Pecan at 1:30 a.m. Wednesday, according to the blotter.

Charges of public intoxication and disorderly conduct were filed against Johnny Ray Duggins, 17, and Robert Charles Cargal, 19. Both were released on personal recognizance bonds.

Heritage Manor Activities

Hi, from Heritage Manor. Hope everyone is staying cool during this horrible weather.

I would like to thank a group of kids who brought our residents some homemade gifts on Friday just because they wanted to. Thanks to Brandy and Brad Phipps and Courtney Hancock. It was very sweet of you guys to take time to make our residents a gift from your hearts.

The Ladies of Faith Baptist Church brought their church members a small gift as a way to say they are being thought about.

The 4-H Club was kind enough to bring our residents some wonderful watermelons. They were greatly appreciated.

Oleta Pendergrass had a weekend home with family members visiting from out of town. She had a lot of grandkids stories to tell.

We will have the Red River Blue Grass band at our nursing home on the 29th of July at 7:00 p.m. Come hear some old fashioned good music.

Our winners of Bingo this week were: Dicie Taylor, Jessie Johnson, Betty Smith and Letha Kirkpatrick.

I am still in need of volunteers for our activity program and am willing to work around the hours that you can volunteer. Please contact me. Come by and see our newest residents.

We have just gotten a new aquarium and have tried to make it as attractive as possible. We used money that the residents earned from a project they had. If you have fish or money you would like to donate, feel free to contact me. The residents have really taken a liking to the aquarium.

See you at the nursing home or around town.

MEMBERS WRITE LETTERS

The Valley View 4-H Club met at the Valley View Mini Mart to write letters to get the Senate Bill 1 not to be passed.

Each person wrote five letters to Austin.

If this bill is passed, almost all 4-H counties in Texas will be eliminated from the 4-H program.

Tips On Dental Health

RICHARD CARVER, D.D.S.

THE GOLD ALLOY CROWN

History reveals that gold has been used to restore broken teeth for many, many years. It doesn't stain easily, can be rolled or cast very thin and still not have a hole in it or chip off. Gold can stand the tremendous pressures of chewing and can be precision cast to it. It doesn't have an odd taste, nor combine with other materials that are normally put in the mouth. Did you know that pure clean gold will actually weld itself by contact.

These characteristics make it almost ideal for the repair and replacement of teeth.

The dentist, when preparing a tooth to receive a crown ordinarily first numbs the tooth, then with slender shaped diamonds removes a portion of the outside of the tooth, as well as taking some off the top. A very accurate imprint is taken on which to make the crown. It is first carved and fitted by hand to get it just right, then cast with the alloy and polished. The contouring and fit must be much more precise than the casting of jewelry, which is done much the same way.

Usually, all the patient sees is just the shiny crown the dentist is going to fix the tooth with...but a lot of time and work went on behind the scenes.

If your dentist suggests a crown for your tooth, he will have a good reason and will be glad to explain.

Mrs. Joe Pleva and Jordan

Frequently, when families get together for meals and each one brings a favorite dish, recipes are exchanged. Our featured cook this week, Melissa (Mrs. Joe) Pleva, said that is how she has gotten a lot of her recipes. She has submitted recipes that are different and easy to prepare. A perfect choice for these hot, summer days. The former Melissa Wells grew up and attended school in Iowa Park. She graduated from high school in Oceanside, Calif., and attended Mira Costa College there. She has been back in Iowa Park almost two years and is an employee of the Olive Garden.

Her husband, Joe, is a native of Oceanside, where he graduated from high school and also attended Mira Costa College. He is a member of the United States Army, currently stationed at Fort Dix, New Jersey.

The couple has a one-year-old son, Jordan Christopher, and are expecting another child.

Melissa said that when she is able, she enjoys painting.

Thinking skills encouraged

Preparing children for survival in the next century should include teaching them thinking skills, according to a Texas Christian Univ. education professor.

Dr. Cathy Collins has conducted extensive research in cogitation instruction and predicts the United States will lose its leadership role in the international community unless American children learn to create new ideas.

"We need to get them ready for the 21st Century by teaching them how to think more effectively," she said.

Although Collins concedes funding and time constraints would limit the teaching of thinking skills, she sees opportunities to integrate such instruction into daily curriculum.

The educator indicated a preference for a combined effort over the creation of separate studies, which she believes would defeat the purpose of teaching child thinking skills.

"One reason we can't add thinking as another subject is because it's philosophically wrong," Collins explained. "What we want to do in our schools is to really transform the entire structure. We want children to come to school to learn how to think about reading, writing, math, science and problems in the world and about themselves and other people."

While Collins stressed the future benefit of such skills, she said her research shows that enhanced thinking skills also can help children boost exam scores now.

"Students become better processors of information, better decision makers, better thinking and problem solvers," Collins said. "Therefore, they do much better on standardized testing."

"We have to teach children to think -- not teach children to read, write and work the computer," she said. "What is going to sustain is the creative idea that solves the problems."

Delinquent tax removal allowed

Tax collectors in Texas are now allowed to cancel delinquent taxes that have not been paid after a prescribed period of time.

Beginning Friday, real property delinquent 20 or more years and personal property delinquent 10 or more years can be removed from the delinquent tax rolls.

The change was written into law during the 72nd legislative session, according to Monette Pemberton, chief deputy for the Wichita County Tax Assessor/Collector's office.

The delinquent taxes cannot, however, be removed if litigation concerning the taxes is pending at the time for cancellation and removal.

As I See It... By Bob Hamilton

You'll be doing yourself a favor if you vote "NO" on all five issues listed on the ballot in the Aug. 10 election.

I'll swear, no one can mess up a good thing worse than our legislature, unless it's judges. Both of them got into the act this time, and what is proposed is not good.

Because voters in Wichita County will be using the same voting machines, the ballots will include two amendments to the state's constitution, and three issues for the state-mandated County Education District (CED).

All five issues relate to education. It is still undecided by the courts whether the CED is constitutional. There is a large number of lawyers over the state who say it's not.

But the first issue on the state ballot appears to justify the CED by dangling an offer "to allow exemptions from the district's ad valorem taxation for residence homesteads and to provide for the taxation of certain tangible personal property."

Both those issues also are on the CED's ballot. So, apparently, if the constitutional amendment fails to pass it is apparent whatever happens on the CED's ballot will be moot.

The second amendment, if approved, would allow the state to issue obligation bonds to provide educational loans to college students.

Folks, we're being told by our legislators that we're billions and billions of dollars short already, and they are wanting to borrow more to loan out? Come on now!

The CED ballot would allow for exemptions for homesteads. Heck, we've already got that in our own district. But, if the CED is declared constitutional, and the constitution's amendment is not approved, then we apparently would not be allowed exemptions.

Confusing? You bet! And anything that's confusing should not be approved by voters.

Another issue would allow homestead exemptions for elderly and disabled. Apparently that's atop the regular exemption.

Okay, if the exemptions are approved, where is the money going to come from to make up for the lost funds?

Well, it will be from those who do not own homes. But taking the biggest hit will be businesses.

And hold onto your hat if personal property tax is charged to everyone!

I saw what happened in the early 1960s to one school district. I believe it was the Floydada school, as I recall.

Not only are owners of fishing boats, campers, automobiles and things like that taxed. How about your safety deposit box, your household furniture, cookware, lawn mowers, garden hose, reference books, jewelry and things like that.

Other than mobile homes, all personal property that is not used to generate income will be taxed ... if that thing passes.

And you better believe that those who don't have will be wanting those who do have to pay more taxes.

When the tax people at Floydada began inventorying women's furs that were in summer storage, going into the homes to count the television sets, and opening safety deposit boxes at the banks, the people of that school district began moving out their possessions to neighboring school districts.

The practice came to a sudden halt.

Elsewhere in this issue, I've printed the complete text of the ballots, along with pros and cons on each. It's worth your while to read it thoroughly.

There has got to be a better way to finance public education in Texas. But right now, it's not in the works.

The issues proposed on both the ballots are just like drugs ... and we should all "Just Say No!"

election issues.

"A lot of time, someone will begin by saying, 'This is a stupid question, but...'," said Mercer.

"No question is stupid unless it's not asked."

A voter registration booth will be set up in Iowa Park on Saturday, Sept. 7. It will be at the Wal-Mart store from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Following that, booths will be at the Lone Star Gas building in Electra on Sept. 13; Martin Luther King Center and Wal-Mart in Wichita Falls, both on Sept. 14, and at Wal-Mart in Burkburnett on Sept. 21.

The four participating radio stations are KTLT-FM 106; KYI-FM Y104; KWFS-FM 103, and KLLF-AM 1290.

A voter must be registered at least 60 days prior to any election in which he/she might want to vote.

The project will still be promoting participation in the Aug. 10 election, even though many residents in the county are not yet registered.

Iowa Park's two voting precincts, 32 and 33, have a total of 3,797 registered voters, according to the clerk's office. There are 2,871 in precinct 32 and 926 in precinct 33.

The county's registered voter tally is 57,240, of which only 17 percent cast ballots in the last constitutional amendment election, which was last year.

Letters to Editor policy explained

The Leader receives numerous letters which cannot, for one reason or another, be published.

Letters will not be printed unless they are signed. A typed name will not do. And, for the sake of verification, the writer's telephone should be included.

Should the writer not wish his/her name printed, it will be omitted upon request. However, the letter will be kept on file to be read upon request.

Letters also must be free of libel. If not, they will not be published, because we will not edit their content.

Corrections will not be made if they change the message in any way, but will be edited to enhance their content.

In letters supporting political candidates or issues, the Leader reserves the right to limit their lengths.

We encourage your Letters to the Editor, and offer the paper as your forum for discussions of ideas and observations.

IT'S MY TURN... By DOLORES HAMILTON

Maybe I have missed something, but I thought the question for lawmakers in Austin on a lottery was whether or not the voters could have the privilege of voting on it.

I don't understand the hassle the legislature is having over whether or not voters should have something to say about how state funds are raised.

Whether you are for or against a lottery, shouldn't you have the right to say so? And, why are the people we voted into office having such a hard time letting us voice an opinion?

A front page article, Wednesday, of the Dallas Morning News, says that Gov. Ann Richards has asked her two appointees on the Texas Racing Commission to persuade horse and track owners to stay out of her battle for a state lottery.

"The Dallas Morning News has learned that track owners told her they would seek to block passage of a lottery in the state House if she didn't help them get a tax break."

Have things disintegrated to the point where special interest groups are interfering with the rights of the citizens?

When is the last time voters were promised a tax break if they didn't interfere with something the lobbyists wanted?

I think it is time for voters to form their own "special interest" group. Let our representatives in Austin know what we want. Use the telephone, write letters, whatever it takes, to let them know that you are watching how they are representing you.

And if you like, or don't like what they are doing, there is no special interest group to keep you from voting when your state representative or senator comes up for re-election.

Worth Quoting

It's gonna be a long, hot summer in Austin and evidently a good place not to visit.

John Sharp has come with his long-awaited report on restructuring the government of Texas with a savings of $4 billion and in the process managed to squelch, at least for the time being, any talk of new taxes.

In delivering the report prepared by 100 auditors and the results of 54,000 hours of meetings and poring over government records, Sharp said his task force found relics, duplications, and inconsistencies that cost Texas taxpayers billions of dollars every year.

The two-volume 1,200 page report includes approximately 975 recommendations in 200 different areas on ways to cut costs and improve state services.

Key recommendations of Sharp's report call for the reorganization of the Texas Education Agency, the merger of all health and human service agencies, the creation of a Natural Resources Council, a 25% cap on school district administrative costs, the consolidation of 262 state funds, and the installation of better debt management.

Other key proposals call for the privatization of certain state services, implementation of incentives for innovation and efficiency for state employees, using new technology to administer the food stamp program, obtain more federal funds for Medicaid, and upping user fees.

Taxpayers in general will hail the report as a long-needed overhaul of a outdated, unwieldy state government while most state agencies, state associations, and guardians of state funds, will scream like banshees and descend this summer on Austin like locusts as the legislature takes up the proposals during the special session.

And if you don't think out state government needs overhauling, you might consider some of these little known facts:

* California has two health and human services agencies, Pennsylvania has four, Illinois eight, Ohio nine, and New York 10. Texas has 14.

* During 1990, the State of Texas spent $630,000 for employees traveling to foreign countries.

* The 26 largest state agencies have 338 advisory committees with more than 4,000 members, costing the State more than $5 million each year.

* The State spends about $49 million a year for legal services, all but $3 million of it for in-house attorneys.

* As of Feb. 28th of this year, Texas had the equivalent of 226,000 full-time state employees -- 125 per each 10,000 residents.

* Last year, Texas received $5.9 billion in federal funding, putting us 47th among the states in the amount of federal money received per capita.

* The state owns more than 25,000 vehicles which are maintained by 167 state-run shops. The vehicles include 7,861 pickups, 5,572 trucks, 5,178 sedans, 2,433 vans, 1,566 station wagons, 372 buses, 154 motorcycles and 62 ambulances.

* A whopping 1,950 state employees have salaries higher than the governor's $93,432 annual salary.

* Last year, the state reimbursed employees $29.1 million for using their personal vehicles while conducting state business. At the current per-mile rate, this comes to about 116 million miles -- the equivalent of 243 round trips to the moon and 4,640 times around the planet.

* State colleges and universities in Texas cost an average of $973 a year in tuition and fees for a Texas undergraduate student enrolled for 30 semester hours per year. "The equivalent tuition and fees at state colleges in Vermont average $2,843 per year, highest in the nation. The national average is $1,603. Only two states, New Mexico and California -- are lower than Texas.

* The State of Texas owns 40 aircraft valued at $23.9 million.

* Last year, the state government leased 9 million square feet of building space, up from 5.9 million in 1980. The attorney general's office leases the most space -- nearly 600,000 square feet. Currently, 73 agencies lease 2.6 million square feet in Travis county alone.

* And finally, Texas has 14 primary agencies providing health and human services through 303 different programs in 12 broad function areas. There are never fewer than four agencies involved in providing any major human service program. Twelve of the 14 primary agencies, for example, are involved in job training and placement programs.

As you can readily see, our state government has grown topsy-turvy. It's time to cut out either topsy or turvy!

While the Texas Legislature reconvening in special session Monday, it is time for a refresher course in legislative terminology. Here are a few examples to help you survive the long summer in Austin.

"My committee has decided..." really means: I managed to chat with one committee member just before the meeting.

"A great deal of additional work will be necessary before the proposal can be acted upon:" No one understands it.

"I will report on the matter more fully at the next meeting:" I forgot that I should have done something about it before today.

"The results were inconclusive:" Nothing was accomplished.

"While no agreement was reached, we feel that definite progress was made:" No one budged an inch.

"It is suggested that the wisest course..." Here's what I think.

"It is widely accepted that..." At least one other person agrees with me.

"Therefore the consensus is..." And a couple of others think so, too.

"This concludes the appraisal of the problem:" We absolve ourselves of all future responsibility.

"It is hoped that this will stimulate increased interest in the problem:" Let somebody else do it next time.

County welfare expenditures told

The state spent a total of $30,156,092 last year for major welfare programs in Wichita County, according to Ray Dunavant, regional administrator for the Texas Department of Human Services.

Medical assistance had the biggest impact, with $8,836,390 spent for hospitals, physicians, laboratory, X-ray and other services. Also, $1,295,151 was spent in Wichita County for prescribed medicines. Nursing home costs of approximately $9,888,489 were paid for aged and disabled residents," Dunavant said.

Food stamps worth $8,001,267 were issued for the fiscal year which ended Aug. 31, while Aide to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) totaled $2,134,795.

Food stamps are funded entirely by the federal government, while the department determines eligibility of applicants and issues the food coupons.

In addition to services and assistance to low-income residents of the county, the department extended protective services to 463 abused and neglected children and their parents or caretakers.

STATE CAPITAL

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN - Hardliners from both political parties might choke at hints of similarities between Democrat Gov. Ann Richards and her predecessor, Republican Gov. Bill Clements.

But now both leaders know what it's like to face a stubborn Legislature with no state budget and time running out.

The 1992-93 fiscal year begins Sept. 1, just five weeks away.

The governor lobbied lawmakers hard last week to balance the budget without new taxes, calling state government "a sprawling, flabby monster."

The Senate responded by running out a $58.2 billion budget draft that is $1 billion short of being in the black.

But stubborn House leaders gave little public indication of the shape of their draft, except to pooh-poo many budget cuts proposed by Comptroller John Sharp.

Mind-Boggling Labyrinth

Richards likes the Sharp plan, the concept of merging state agencies. It sidesteps a tax hike this year and it might keep Democrats from having to pass a state income tax for several years, maybe two of her terms.

The governor walks Capitol halls with Sharp seeking allies to get his plan passed.

And she threatened last week to call a second 30-day special session on the heels of this one if lawmakers fail to "reduce the mind-boggling labyrinth we force Texans to try to negotiate."

Richards' mind also is probably boggled by lawmakers' resistance, but as state Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, said, "a lot of the agencies are in the Constitution and have been in existence since the early 1900s."

Clements Forced to Sign

Ironically, the prospect of Gov. Richards having to call a second special session to balance the budget before time runs out is similar to what Clements went through a couple of years ago.

Clements had campaigned on a no new taxes theme, but the Democrat-dominated Legislature wanted a sales tax hike to balance the budget.

A couple of vetoes later, Clements found himself in a classic Texas standoff with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and a grinning Texas Senate.

With a new tax bill on his desk and the deadline just hours away, Clements knew his veto would throw state government into a chaos of inactivity and red ink.

He signed it, and the Democrats who had forced his feet to the fire, making him break the supreme Republican vow, reveled in the victory.

Will History Repeat

Such history is not likely to be repeated this summer, for surely Democrats won't turn on their own governor.

But parallel circumstances, or close enough, between Richards and Clements make the scenario interesting.

Clements enjoyed good cooperation from the conservative House under Speaker Gib Lewis, where Republicans held more than one-third of the seats, but he had few allies in the liberal Senate.

Richards, on the other hand, has great rapport with the Senate, but there is little love lost between her team and the House conservatives.

While Clements had to contend with the long-tenured, master politician Hobby, Richards faces an equally adept Lewis, the longest-serving speaker in Texas history.

Bone of Contention

And in the end-game, Richards, like Clements, may find that the bone of contention is a small sales tax hike, probably less than a cent.

The Ann Richards of a year ago would likely have signed a tax bill without a second thought.

But she has since been toughened on the campaign trail like no other Texas Democrat, except perhaps Sharp, who was Texas campaign manager for Michael Dukakis.

Other Highlights

The House redistricting chairman, Rep. Tom Uher, D-Bay City, said he agreed with U.S. Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher's decision not to revise the census count with a statistical adjustment.

However, Attorney General Dan Morales called it a gross injustice and directed state lawyers to draw up a billion dollar lawsuit against the Department of Commerce.

State Treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchison shipped 165 pounds of rare gold and silver coins by armored car to a Houston doctor (at his expense) who had forgotten them in a bank safe deposit box.

Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry announced a $1.3 million deal that sent more than 600 head of Texas-grown Brahman to Thailand by airplane last week, the largest single sale of Texas cattle to a foreign country in 20 years.

New figures indicate women own or co-own about two-thirds of the 1,680 ranches in Texas and play important roles in running them.

Seven dairy companies accused of driving up milk prices for Texas schoolchildren agreed to pay $14.9 million to settle an antitrust lawsuit brought by Attorney General Morales.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS FOR TRUTHSEEKERS #2

4. MUST ONE BE A MEMBER OF THE CHURCH TO BE SAVED? All the saved are in the church (Acts 2:47). The church will be presented to Christ (Ephesians 5:25-27). Christ purchased the church with his own blood (Acts 20:28). Did Jesus give Himself up for a non-essential? Christ built the church (Matthew 16:18). Did Jesus build a non-essential? If some are saved in it, and some out of the church, there are two ways. Read Matthew 7:13, 14). The reconciled are in the body (Ephesians 2:16). The body is the church (Colossians 1:18).

5. WHAT WERE THE CHURCH MEMBERS CALLED IN THE NEW TESTAMENT? As followers of Christ - disciples (Acts 20:7). As concerning purity of life - saints (1 Cor. 1:2). As related to the Father - children of God (Galatians 3:26; Romans 8:16). As related to each other - brethren (1 Cor. 15:1-6). Christians (Acts 11:26; Acts 26:28; 1 Peter 4:16).

6. I KNOW I NEED TO MAKE A CHANGE IN MY LIFE. CAN I GET MY LIFE RIGHT FIRST AND THEN COME TO JESUS? How can you make your life right without Jesus? (Hebrews 5:9) You may feel you have so many changes to make you find it difficult to believe Jesus can forgive you of your sins. Read 1 Timothy 1:12-16; Acts 22:7-16. God will help you find an escape from sin. (1 Cor. 10:13). You have lived in sin long enough. Now it's time to make a change and live for Christ all the days of your life. (2 Cor. 6:2).

Next week we will conclude our series on questions for truthseekers #3. Continue to search the Scriptures and see if these things are true. (Acts 17:11). We would be happy to study with you more concerning the will of God for you life.

Social Security hours changed

The Wichita Falls district office for Social Security has changed its hours.

As of Aug. 1, the office will be open to the public from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekdays, according to Glenna Mullins, district manager.

The office is located at 10th and Burnett St.

Mullins emphasized, however, that while walk-in service will continue to be available, it is advisable to call in advance to set an appointment, particularly if filing claims for retirement, disability, survivors and medicare benefits, as well as the supplemental security income program.

Mullins also explained that most social security business can be conducted by telephone, including application for the benefit programs.

A toll-free number, 1-800-234-5772, is available from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. weekdays to handle calls.

"Many constituents have found this to be a quick and easy way to take care of such routine matters as arranging direct deposit of benefits, changing address, obtaining personal earnings and benefit estimate statements, and applying for social security numbers," Mullins said.

ATTEND TEACHING CONFERENCE - Ray Dillard and George Martin, Vocational Agriculture teachers at Iowa Park High School, recently attended the Department of Agriculture Services and Development program at Tarleton State Univ. With them, on the left, at the one-day seminar is Associate Professor Dr. David Drueckhammer.

The entire political system could change within any given community if everyone who thinks their vote doesn't count would register and do just that -- VOTE! Just think what 31,569 additional voters would do for the clout of North Central Texas. Active participation is better than a coin tossed decision any day.

Keloids are explained

That unsightly, dark lump lodged behind your earlobe or on your jaw may not be hazardous to your health. But for millions of keloid sufferers, the disfigurement can be embarrassing.

The good news is there are ways to rid the skin of these hard, itchy, raised scars.

"Keloids result from a defective healing process," said Dr. Ted Rosen, an associate professor of dermatology at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "Injured skin normally heals with a flat, slightly discolored spot, but keloids are the skin's exaggerated response to trauma."

Tightly bound collagen fibers composed of protein appear at the site of the scar. Cells that produce excess collagen are "turned on," replacing the defect and eventually extending above the skin surface. The shoulders, upper arms, breastbone and jawline are common keloid sites.

Penetrating or shearing injuries such as ear-piercing, nicking the skin while shaving and scalding the skin with boiling water or hot oil are keloid culprits.

Although it is prevalent in blacks, keloids are not race exclusive, and they can occur at any age, Rosen said.

Children who skin their knees while falling off a bicycle and teenagers who suffer from acne on the upper arms, chest and back are especially susceptible. Keloids can also be hereditary.

If surgery is expected, Rosen says the surgeon should be told of the potential for keloid formation. Surgical scars may be controlled with antibiotics and other drugs.

A widely used treatment involves potent corticosteroid drugs applied topically, or injected into the keloid. The drugs inhibit collagen formation, reduce the pain and cause shrinkage. In some cases, repeated freezing with liquid nitrogen followed by corticosteroid injections is more effective.

If other treatments fail, surgical removal may be considered. During the skin's healing process, periodic corticosteroid injections can prevent recurrence.

"Take extra care of injured skin by using first aid immediately," Rosen said. "At the first sign of keloid formation, see a dermatologist before the scar becomes enlarged and uncontrollable."

Home from gallbladder surgery in just one day?

Traditionally, gallbladder surgery meant several days in the hospital and weeks of recovery at home before you were back on your feet.

Thanks to a procedure at Wichita General Hospital called Laparoscopic Cholecystectomy, many gallbladder patients can have their gallbladders removed one day and be home the next. This means you can be back to your daily routine in just a week or so...instead of the six weeks it takes to recover from traditional gallbladder surgery.

This innovative procedure is less painful and, because you're in the hospital for a shorter period of time, you and your insurance company won't have to pay for those extra days of recuperation.

August 10 ballot issues explained

(Editor's note: Two proposed constitutional amendments, and three county education district propositions, will be on the Aug. 10 statewide ballot. The League of Women Voters of Texas Education Fund has prepared pro/con material on the propositions, with the assistance of the House Research Organization. As a community service, the Iowa Park Leader is reprinting the material.

C1991 League of Women Voters of Texas Education Fund

PROPOSITION NO. 1 (SJR 42)
WORDING ON BALLOT: The constitutional amendment to allow the voters of a county education district to adopt certain exemptions from the district's ad valorem taxation for residence homesteads and to provide for the taxation of certain tangible personal property.

EXPLANATION

The school finance law approved by the 72nd Legislature created 188 new county education districts, composed of single counties or groups of counties. These districts have the limited purpose of levying the required first-tier tax to raise the equivalent of 72 cents per $100 of assessed market value and redistributing the proceeds among local school districts within the county education district.

This proposed amendment would authorize the new districts to hold elections to allow voters within the districts to decide whether to grant an exemption on a percentage of the assessed value of residence homesteads; whether to grant an additional exemption on the homesteads of elderly and disabled persons; and whether to impose taxes on certain types of personal property. In the enabling legislation that was passed during the regular session of the legislature, the amount of the homestead exemption was specified as 20 percent, and the exemption for elderly and disabled persons was set at $10,000 exemption on homesteads of elderly and disabled persons and the freeze on property taxes for elderly and disabled persons.

The enabling legislation also directed the county education districts to present the propositions to their voters in an election to be held on Aug. 10, 1991. The wording of the proposals on local ballots will be identical across the state, but the order may vary. Decisions made by voters in a district would apply in that district only, contingent upon the decision of voters statewide on the proposed constitutional amendment which authorizes these elections.

Thus, voters who go to the polls on Aug. 10 will be asked to vote simultaneously on a constitutional amendment and to vote on the local tax options authorized by the proposed amendment. If voters approve the proposed amendment statewide, the locally adopted options would go into effect without delay. This is being done in order to enable the new taxing districts to implement voter decisions in the property tax bills scheduled to go out in October.

PROS AND CONS OF PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT FOR

FOR
1. Trustees of the new county education districts are appointed by local school boards rather than being elected by voters, and thus do not have the discretionary authority to decide whether or not to grant these exemptions or impose these taxes on personal property. Therefore, the power to make these decisions must rest with voters in the county education districts.

2. This amendment would make it possible for homestead exemptions and personal property taxes to be continued but at the option of voters rather than by action of the county education district board.

AGAINST

1. Passage of this proposed amendment would shift the tax burden from residential property to businesses. It would affect county education districts across the state very differently. Those that are dependent primarily upon residential property would be forced to raise residential property taxes more than those that rely on commercial property.

2. Tax exemptions for some property owners would result in higher taxes for others. Only 259 of the more than 1,050 school districts in Texas currently grant the homestead exemption. This amendment could result in a large increase in property tax exemptions statewide, narrowing the property base that must provide the local share of public school funding, which contributes approximately half of all school funding. This would mean higher taxes for the remaining taxpayers in order to maintain the required local funding.

PROPOSITION NO. 2 (SJR 5)
WORDING ON BALLOT: The constitutional amendment providing for the issuance of general obligation bonds to provide educational loans to students

EXPLANATION

This proposed amendment would authorize the legislature to allow the Higher Education Coordinating Board to issue up to $300 million in general obligation bonds to finance educational loans to Texas students attending Texas colleges and universities. The maximum interest rate would be set by law. An interest and sinking fund would be established to pay the principal of and interest on the bonds as they mature. The legislature could provide for the investment of bond proceeds and establish the interest and sinking fund. The state cannot issue bonds to finance student loans without this constitutional amendment because the Texas Constitution prohibits the legislature from lending the credit of the state without specific authorization in the constitution and prohibits use of public funds for grants and loans to individuals. Previous amendments authorized issuance of $85 million for student loans in 1965, $200 million in 1969, and $75 million in 1989.

Helpful Facts

Live traps are available at no charge from the city's animal control officer, with the stipulation the property owner sign a form being responsible for the trap while it is on their property.

Helpful Facts

Persons other than the property owner doing work on a residence must be a licensed building contractor, plumber, electrician, or heating and air conditioning contractor with the City of Iowa Park, and carry a performance bond.

FOR

1. These loans are urgently needed to meet the fall 1991 demand or loans to financially-needy students. If this amendment is not approved, approximately 15,000 Texas students (the number who received loans last year) may be unable to attend Texas colleges and universities this year. These loans go only to financially needy students who otherwise could not afford to attend college.

2. The student loan program usually generates as a revolving, self-supporting fund. Because changes in federal loan programs have created large increases in demands for state loans, and because most of the many loans made in recent years are not yet due, the bonds to be issued are necessary to fund the program until payment on recent loans begin to come in. The bonds will be paid back, plus interest, by borrowers, not taxpayers.

AGAINST

1. The state does not need to incur any more debt. The bonded indebtedness of the state now totals $7.5 billion. General obligation bonds, which accounted for $2.3 billion in debt at the end of fiscal 1989, reached $2.8 billion at the end of 1990.

2. This proposed $300 million debt will not stand alone. The legislature should undertake a comprehensive evaluation of overall state debt before voters are asked to add to it.

PROS AND CONS OF COUNTY EDUCATION DISTRICT PROPOSITIONS

The propositions below will be presented to voters at the same time as the proposed constitutional amendment

Jimmy's Barber Shop

9 a.m. - 1 p.m., Saturday

above. Although the language of the propositions will be identical statewide, the order in which they appear on the ballot may vary.

WORDING ON BALLOT: The taxation of all tangible personal property, other than manufactured homes, in (name of the county education district) that is not held for use for the production of income.

FOR

This would spread the tax burden over a wider base by generating revenue from non-income producing personal property such as boats, cars and motorcycles.

AGAINST

Appraisals, verification of property, and collection of the tax creates costs to taxpayers that may offer the income generated. Many local governing bodies do not collect this tax because it has a high delinquency rate and is difficult to enforce equitably.

WORDING ON BALLOT: The exemption of 20 percent of the market value of the residence homestead from ad valorem taxation in (name of the county education district).

FOR

If locally-granted homestead exemptions are completely eliminated, homeowners in the local school districts that have been granting homestead exemptions are likely to face large property tax increases. This proposed exemption could cushion the impact of expected increases.

AGAINST

In districts with substantial commercial property, this proposal would shift the tax burden from residential property to business. Districts that are largely residential would suffer losses of tax revenue and would have to raise tax rates to generate the required amount of local funding.

WORDING ON BALLOT: The exemption of $10,000 of the market value of the residence homestead of an individual who is disabled and of $10,000 of the market value of the residence homestead of an individual who is 65 or older from ad valorem taxation in (name of county education district).

FOR

The proposal would alleviate the impact of higher school taxes on those most likely to be adversely affected by them.

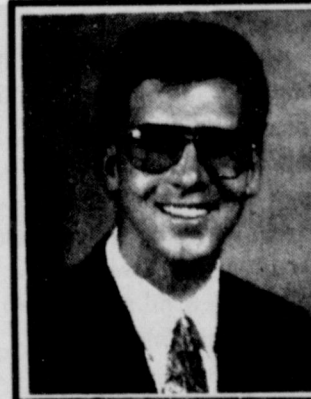

AGAINST

Property taxes are already frozen for individuals 65 or older and for disabled persons; this proposal would create an even larger exemption. This proposal is not need-based and would exempt many individuals who can afford to pay the higher taxes, increasing the burden on other taxpayers.

Willard Weaver
Distribution Coordinator

Hi, I'm Willard Weaver, and I work for TU Electric. You may not know, but often there are power lines buried underground, as well as overhead... sometimes even in your own yard! I'm telling you this because every year a number of serious injuries or deaths are caused by people accidentally digging into buried power lines.

Electrical safety is a priority.

These types of accidents can easily be avoided. If people would just think before they dig. Know the location of underground electric lines before you dig. If you're not sure, call us at TU Electric.

We care about your safety.

VOTER REGISTRATION
DO YOU KNOW?
from your Voter Registrar

- Why can't the Voter Registrar accept any changes in voter registration information over the phone?
- Why must a signature of verification accompany any changes in voter registration information?
- Whose signature is acceptable?
- When can someone else not sign for you?

ANSWERS

- We cannot accept a phone call because over the phone we could be talking to anyone. For example: a divorced person could cause their ex-spouse problems by saying they moved out of the county. Having these changes in writing actually protects your voter registration records.
- Any change we receive must have a signature affirming the changes. In most cases we match your signature to your original application (see answer 3).
- Only immediate kin are allowed to make a change to your registration or register for you in your behalf. To have someone make a change or register for you, you must appoint them either orally or in writing. The following people are considered immediate kin: your spouse, your parents, or your children. Remember, the person you appoint as your agent must be a registered voter of the county.
- There is only one form that cannot be signed by anyone but you. An application for Replacement Certificate (if your voter registration certificate is lost or stolen.)

Tournaments

Reports on All-Star teams

At least two local All-Star teams were still in the running in their respective tournaments, another has been eliminated and no information was available on the fourth.

The Junior Little League All-Stars

playing in the regional tournament at Midland won its first two games, and was scheduled to play Wednesday afternoon.

Iowa Park defeated Stanford-Fritch 6-1 Monday with Cory Thompson on the mound, and Tuesday knocked off a strong club from Pecos by a 7-4 margin.

Besides beating a perennial power, Iowa Park had to come from behind to beat Pecos, and then wound up the contest in dramatic fashion.

The locals were down 4-1 going into the sixth inning, and scored six runs for the final score.

But Pecos, in the final frame, had two runners on base, the team's leading hitter at the plate and only one out. But Iowa Park pulled off a double play and sent Pecos into the losers' bracket.

The locals were to meet Midland American Wednesday afternoon in the double-elimination tourney. A win would send the team into the finals Friday. A loss would put the club back on the field today.

The Junior League's state tournament is slated to get underway Monday at Waco.

Iowa Park's Senior Girls' Softball All-Star club lost their first tournament game this season Monday in the opener of the state tourney at Waco.

Weatherford won the contest 7-4. Iowa Park rebounded Tuesday, however, with a 30-13 decision over The Colony.

The tournament's scheduling was not known.

The Girls' Major League Softball All-Stars came home Tuesday night after dropping two games at the regional meet in Dumas.

Iowa Park fell 14-5 to Weatherford Monday, and Tuesday, with a threatening storm that produced lightening, lost 24-4 to the host team, Dumas.

No information was available from Abilene, where the Senior Little League club team began play Monday.

Optical physics research promises advancement

Today's fastest computers may look pale in comparison to future ones, according to a Texas Christian Univ. physicist.

Using lasers and optical switches, tomorrow's computers have the potential to be almost a million times faster than today's most powerful machines, explained Dr. Waldek Zerda. His U.S. Air Force-funded research in an area called optical physics someday may contribute to making such computers a reality.

Zerda specializes in creating a unique glass from liquid. Slowly drying silicon dioxide yields a glass with unique characteristics.

It's unlikely Zerda's glass will be used as a window pane or automobile windshield, but it may supply an element critical to the development of tomorrow's computers -- optical switches.

The special glass serves as a matrix or host with almost half of its volume in its pores. Different liquids can be placed into the interconnected pores.

When a laser beam passes through the glass, the liquid within the pores can prevent light from escaping, thus creating an on/off switch, which is a key tool in building computers.

Prototype optical switch computers have been created in laboratories, but the question of such devices' commercial potential remains unanswered, according to Zerda. "That does not mean they would be practical," he said.

As a pure research scientist, Zerda explores scientific possibilities and make discoveries which later may be used to build commercial products.

"I'm not an engineer," Zerda commented. "I'll never do anything practical."
