Fish net takers netted

Three young men could be facing stiff penalties for removing a fish net last week from Gordon Lake.

The police dispatcher received a call from an adult male at 11:54 a.m. Wednesday of last week, stating he had seen three males removing a net the previous evening.

Some two hours later, Officer Jimmy Eaton located the net, along with fishing equipment and tube in a carport in the 100 block of West Texas.

The net, valued at $150, belonged to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Dept.,

.and was being used to inventory fish in the lake. It was attached to floats which were clearly identified as TPW property and not to be removed.

The information was turned over to a TPW investigator, who said yesterday charges had been filed against the three males, a 14-year-old and two adults, ages 17 and 18.

Police are investigating the reported theft of eight guns from a home in the 300 block of East Crystal.

The owner said four shotguns and four rifles had been removed sometime between last November and Monday afternoon, when they were noticed as missing.

Another reported theft, filed Friday, is being investigated. A resident in the 400 block of West Magnolia said a gold and diamond tennis bracelet valued at $800 was missing.

When officers responded to a domestic disturbance at 12:54 p.m. Sunday in the 100 block of West Aldine, it resulted in the arrest of Steven Anthony Richey, 40, on a Class C assault

Richey was released about three hours later after posting a $130 bond, according to the police blotter.

A charge of harboring a runaway child was filed early last week against Melissa Collins, 17, and a 16-year-old female was referred to the juvenile probation department.

The two females had run away from home in August, and were found in Philadelphia, Pa., by officials and returned to Iowa Park, police said.

Baccalaureate is Sunday

Baccalaureate Service for Iowa Park High School graduating seniors will be held at 6 p.m. Sunday in the school auditorium.

The sermon will be by Dr. Derrell Monday of the First Baptist Church, and scripture read by Rev. Glen Blackmon of the First United Methodist Church.

Rev. Blackmon also will give the invocation and Rev. Paul Tomlinson of the First Presbyterian Church will give the benediction.

Debi Walters will play the processional and recessional music, and also lead the school choir in special music.

The commencement exercise will be held at 8 p.m. Friday of next week, in Hawk Stadium.

Two resignations were accepted, bids on a utility tractor were rejected, and new trustee, Jeff Watts, was administered the oath of office during a meeting of the school board Thursday night.

Watts, newly-elected trustee, was administered the oath of office. Outgoing board member, Max Henderson was presented a plaque for his service on the board by Keith Fisher, president.

The board held an election of officers, and Fisher was re-elected president, Dennis Yeager was named vice president, and Martha Dudley is secretary.

Action on the resignations came following a closed session of the board. Letters of resignation had been received from Gayle Cleghorn, a second grade teacher, and Ladena Welch, a secretary in the administration building.

No action was taken on the other replacement for Welch and proposed changes in the cafeteria, maintenance, custodial, and transportation salary schedules.

Bids for a maintenance utility tractor were rejected by a four- to- two vote, with some board members saying they wanted to solicit a wider selection of bids. Those voting for rejection were Watts, Yeager, Randy Catlin and Bert Williamson. Dudley and Larry Dutton voted against the motion.

Revision to the school calendar for the 1995-96 school year was tabled until Superintendent Glen Mitchell has a chance to study it. He will make recommendations at the next board meeting.

Mitchell reported that the current enrollment for the school district is 2,067, up 74 students from this time last year, when the number totaled 1993.

City has busy agenda

A lengthy agenda, including such topics as public appearances, ordinances, public hearings, an annexation and installation of elected officials faces the city council Monday night.

To begin at 7 p.m., the regularlyscheduled meeting will be held in council chambers.

One of the public appearances will be by Jimmy Duggins, president of Iowa Park Little League, who will seek a lease on the old Will Burnett Baseball Field, for use as a girls' softball field.

If approved, the agenda calls for a resolution authorizing the city administrator to work out the agreement.

The other public appearance will be by Mr. and Mrs. Larry Crumbliss, who are to request authorization to tap the city's raw water line and set a meter on it.

The first of two ordinances to be considered would, if approved, provide for a traffic stop sign at the intersection of Callie Lane and FM 368 North.

Annexation of three lots in the McCluskey Addition, in the southeast part of the city, is the subject of the other proposed ordinance.

Prior to the second ordinance, the third-required public hearing on the annexation request will be held.

Another public hearing, also involving a request for annexation, will be held on a home in Quail Valley Addition.

Newly-elected alderman Tracy Fears, along with Mark Raby and Bob Hamilton who were re-elected, will be sworn into office.

Following that, Mayor Wayne House is to appoint a Mayor Pro Tem, to serve the following year.

House also is to read a proclamation proclaiming Friday, May 26, as "Virgil I. Woodfin Day." Woodfin, who has served on the council since 1987, is succeeded by Fears on the council.

Price also will propose closing the 500 and 600 blocks of West Bank from 12 p.m. to 12 a.m. Saturday, May 27, for a country music concert at Wal-Mart, and also offer a tentative schedule of budget workshops for aldermen.

Sharisse Linette Horn and David Kennedy Pike

July wedding planned

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Horn of Wichita, Kans., are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Sharisse Linette, to David Kennedy Pike, son of Mr. and Mrs. Afton Pike, Sr., of Lindale, former Iowa Park residents.

Miss Horn is a 1984 graduate of Pratt High School, Pratt, Kans., and a 1987 graduate of Kansas State University. She is a flight attendant for Delta

The groom-to-be is a 1985 graduate of Iowa Park High School. He is a graduate of Len Morris College, Jacksonville, and the University of North Texas, Denton. He is employed by Blue Bell Creameries, Inc.,

A July 22 wedding is planned at St. Rita's Catholic Church in Dallas.

As the first year of the Iowa Park Genealogical and Historical Society is ending, some members have expressed a desire to continue meeting through the summer. They would like to have field trips and help with their genealogy research, and also have workshops to answer questions on documenting information.

Fillmore Spangler, who has been involved for many years with genealogy, will be going to the library in Dallas and also in Fort Worth.

No firm dates have been set yet, but one day in June and one day in July is planned. He has offered to take seven with him on each trip. He will leave early in the morning and this will allow several hours of research.

If interested call Fillmore Spangler or John Chapman. This is an opportunity to further our research.

The main project undertaken in the first year of the Society has been completed. The book compiled from the Centennial Edition of the Iowa Park Leader is finished and orders are being taken for the first printing.

This is an important addition to the Genealogy Section of the Tom Burnett Memorial Library and for the people of Iowa Park to have for their own reference.

One of the goals of the Society is to make the history of Iowa Park and local townships within the area available to other societies and genealogists. The Centennial Book is indexed and can be easily copied by family researchers.

John Chapman, first vice president, presided at the May 13 meeting. He read a letter of resignation from the presidency by Mila Capes-Altom. Health reasons force Mila to reduce her activities, and it is with regret that members present accepted her resignation.

Mrs. Mitch Williams and Nikki

Amanda (Mrs. Mitch) Williams moved to Kamay with her parents. Jackie and Sue Meadors, when she was in the eighth grade.

Cooking has always been fun for Amanda. "When we were small, my sister was always outside doing stuff with Dad, " she said, "and I liked to stay indoors and help Mom."

Amanda is a graduate of Iowa Park High School, where she took cosmotology. She is now a licensed beutician, and owns her own shop, The Cut Hut. She spends one day a week styling hair for residents of the local nursing home, and says she really enjoys working with them.

Amanda's husband, Mitch, is also a graduate of Iowa Park High School. He is employed at Ameron. They have a 16-month-old daughter, Nikki.

Amanda and Mitch like to work on crafts together. He cuts out wooden objects, and she does the painting on them. She also likes to do t-shirt painting. They enjoy yard work and are presently busy landscaping their yard. The Williams' are members of the Kamay Church of Christ.

The recipes Amanda is sharing this week are some of her favorites that she likes to prepare.

s I See It.

I made a personal promise years ago, that I would never place a wager on anything which I had no effect on the outcome.

That's one reason I'm so far ahead on the Texas Lotto game. I've not yet purchased a ticket. Thus saving lots and lots of money.

But there's one wager -- or it should be called an investment -- I didn't make a few years ago which would have paid big, big returns.

It has to do with the stock market. I can't remember the exact year, but it was a few, I read an article in the business section that Wal-Mart stock had been split.

It was a fraction above 21, when I looked it up in the New York Stock Exchange, which is published daily.

While I was in the section -- I had never looked at it previously -- I also sought to find Cryovac, because of the plant located here.

Not finding it, I then looked up Grace, for W.R. Grace & Co.

There it was. And would you believe it also was a fraction above 21? So, in the days, weeks, months and years following, I kept up with those two listings almost every day the report was published. I wanted to follow how our town's two major corporations were doing.

Wal-Mart often would jump ahead of Grace by three to as many as eight points. And I used that to give Cryovac official Jack Powers a hard time, whenever our paths crossed.

Jack dropped by the office yesterday morning for a short visit -- he's here for the big 20th anniversary celebration you've read about on other pages -- and I was ready for him.

He asked me how Grace was doing on the exchange, and I quickly responded, adding congratulations.

At the close of the exchange's business Tuesday, Grace stood at 61 5/ 8. Wal-Mart was 25 1/8.

We agreed that we both could probably retire had we bought a basket full of Grace back when it was at 21.

Watching that big, elongated plant building continuously being expanded over the years, and knowing a great number of Cryovac employees, has

Rotary selects youths for leadership award

The Iowa Park Rotary Club recently selected Ashli Thomas and James Kaspar as representatives to RYLA which is an acronym for Rotary Youth Leadership Award.

Alternates are Jennifer Heickman and Dustin Owen. The camp is to be held July 16-22 at Camp Briarwood in Argyle, near Lake Lewisville. RYLA is a camp to honor and teach outstanding youths who are interested in leadership rolls. The camp gives students the opportunity to develop leadership and communication skills. It teaches organization, and it give students the opportunity of coordinating people and responsibilities.

Ashli, the daughter of Verne and LuAn Thomas, is a junior at Iowa Park High School. She has received many academic achievements, including Who's Who in Health and English I as a freshman. As a sophomore she received Who's Who Awards in Biology II, Geometry, Algebra II, and English II.

She has also been listed on the AA Honor Roll and the Principal's Elite Honor Roll. She has received the National Math exam three years, and has been a Conservation Essay winner two years. She is a member of the National Honor Society.

Ashli is also involved in basketball and softball, has been in the marching band three years, and has been in the flag corp two years. She has received honors in State Solo and Ensemble three years. She has received honors in District Band and Region Band two years, and has been Flag Captain one year.

She has served as president for Methodist Youth Fellowship, her church group, three years and has received the Optimist Club Youth Award.

Her work experience includes babysitting, church mission work and choreographer for Rockin' Hawkette Drill Team.

In explaining why Rotary Youth Leadership Award Camp would be a good experience for her, Ashli stated, "It would be a great oppportunity to learn, gain direction in life, and meet new people. The skills I would learn from camp would help me touch the lives of other people."

James Kaspar, the son of Tim and Peggy Kaspar, also is a junior at Iowa Park High School. He is very active in the band program. He has been in the All-District Band three years, All-Region Band three years, All-Area Band two years, and All-State Band. He has also been in the Texas State Solo and Ensemble Contest two years.

James has received honors in UIL Number Sense two years and Science two years. He has been involved in District JV Tennis two years.

He won first place in the Wichita High School Chess Championship and received the Outstanding Youth Award and the Texas State Junior Chess Championship.

James completed the BSA Philmont trek during the summer of 1994. He has worked on the staff at Camp Perkins Boy Scout Camp during the summer.

In explaining why he felt the Rotary Youth Leadership Award Camp would be a good experience for him, James stated, "I love to be out in nature, camping and hiking. I would meet new friends, learn more about myself, and would be able to come back a better person and share my experiences with others."

A sincere thank you to all who voted for my re-election to City Council. I am honored to continue to serve you in this position. I will continue to represent you to the best of my ability.

given Iowa Park, and me, a great deal of pride over these past 20 years.

And watching how well Grace is doing on the stock market reminds me of what a major effect the Iowa Park plant has on Grace's growth.

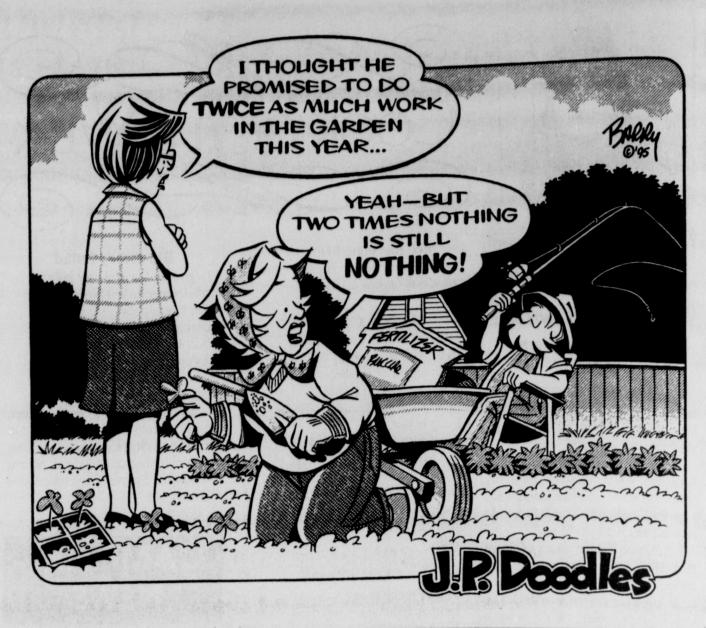

No, the local plant hasn't done it all by itself. But I can guarantee you, this local manufacturer has certainly done its part in the parent company's growth.

And, as a small business in our community, I realize our paper does very little commercially with the company.

But I'm fully aware that the plant's locating here, providing all the jobs for all these workers who do their business locally, is a major factor we're even still in business and prospering.

We probably don't tell Cryovac people often enough how proud we are to have them in Iowa Park.

Maybe we should begin.

Surprised chief honored

Iowa Park Police Chief Ray Smock was surprised during a brief ceremony in city council chambers Wednesday, when he was named recipient of a letter and certificate of commendation.

John Marlow, director of U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm's North Texas regional office, made the announcement, as part of National Police Week.

Smock was recognized for "...his daily effort in enforcing the law, and protecting the city and its people."

A personal letter signed by the senator and the certificate were handed over to Smock.

In his letter, Sen. Gramm said, "All too often, when we go to bed at night, we forget about the men and women who continue to patrol our streets, allowing us the feeling of security. They put their lives on the line for us daily, a fact many of us take for "This is truly the only profession that I know of where the employees are virtually on the job 24 hours a day. Police officers, many with families of their own, risk their lives to protect our's. It is for that reason that we should honor these men and women who have answered the call, unselfishly giving of themselves.

"The commitment and integrity of these officers is to be commended. They embody the true American spirit," Gramm said.

In the audience were other members of the police department, city officials and employees, and Chief Smock's family.

National Police Week, enacted by Congress and sponsored by the American Police Hall of Fame, will celebrate its 35th year of honoring those who protect and serve.

Chamber directors meet

A minor change in dues assessment, Cryovac's 20th anniversary celebration and the annual golf tournament were major topics of discussion during Monday's monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce board of Dues payments will no longer be accepted on a monthly basis, which has long been a practiced option by many members.

Because of the economics of monthly billing expenses, the board voted to permit payments to be made on a quarterly, semi-annual or annual basis only.

A series of events relating to Cryovac's anniversary celebration was described by Greig Moers.

The Fifth Annual All-Iowa Park Golf Tournament, sponsored by the Chamber, will be held Friday, June 2, at River Creek Golf Course near Burkburnett. Entry forms are being published in the Iowa Park Leader, to be turned in by May 30 at the Chamber office, along with the entry fee. Entry fee will be $25 for players who do not pay annual dues to River Creek, and $17 for members.

Prizes will be in the form of IP Bucks, as well as special prizes for events which will be explained at the tournament, which will begin in shotgun fashion.

Wal-Mart donated six shrubs that were used to replace dead plants, Secretary Susan Dillard told directors.

W.R. Grace names Costello new CEO

W.R. Grace & Co. last week announced that Albert J. Costello has been named president and chief executive officer.

Costello, 59, was chairman of the board and CEO of American Cyanamid the previous two years, when that company was acquired by American Home Products.

"Al Costello is the right person to lead the continued global growth of W.R. Grace," said Thomas A. Holmes, who headed the Board's CEO search committee and had served as acting CEO since Mar. 2. "He brings to Grace nearly four decades of management and leadership experience."

Grace is the parent company of Cryovac in Iowa Park.

Little League Auxiliary

I would like to thank the Coaches for their endless hours of dedication to the Little League Association. The Team Moms for their phone calls, organizing photo sessions, snacks and even keeping us parents in line for concession duty! I also want to bring to light some facts about an organization devoted to keeping the Little League Association Running. The Little League Auxiliary.

The Little League Auxiliary is not a "women's auxiliary". It's composed of men and women who volunteer their time and effort to ensure a little league for the community of Iowa Park. Without their support there would be no baseball. The auxiliary holds meetings along with the President of the Little League, Jimmy Duggins. Needs of the association are discussed such as new bleachers for the Senior and Little League fields, painting the concession stand, and the funding for uniforms as well as sending the All-Star teams to tournaments. Fund-raisers are discussed and carried out to accomplish the goals set by the association. This should be a community effort and I would like to strongly encourage everyone to participate. We have around 600 children participating in Little League and 16 members of the Auxiliary. Maybe this is partly due to being uninformed. I am guilty as charged. I've had my children involved in tee-ball, five-pitch, minor league, major league, and softball, only now did I bother to find out what the Little League Auxiliary is all about.

It's virtually painless to join --There's absolutely no fee, the only requirements are a desire to work for free and a concern for the youth. Who knows, you might even find yourself having fun! If you can't fit volunteering hours of free labor into your schedule, the Little League Auxiliary will accept donations. If you would like to make a donation or join the Auxiliary you may do so by calling the President of the Little League Auxiliary, Dee Tatom at 592-9632 or Jimmy Duggins at 592-5977. We will also be holding a meeting at the RAC May 21 at 2:00 p.m. Come join us.

Our next fund-raiser will be a car wash at the Mean Green Car Wash. Volunteers are needed and appreci-

Please slow down

When you have a softball park down the street from you, you learn to drive very slow past it. The parents all go slow when they pull out from down there, and that's great. Our problem is they try to make up time in front of our house. We have children who play and ride their bikes on East Bank, and when you go past our homes you are not looking out for them. The speed limit is 30 not 50, and our children are just as important as everyone else's.

We love to walk down and watch the games, and enjoy having the park so close that we can walk down and watch. Our only wish is for you to respect our street, and slow down. Sincerely,

Terri & Mike Mills Pamela E. Barfield

Cryovac observing 20th anniversary

Cryovac will celebrate the 20th anniversary of its Iowa Park manufacturing facility by honoring employees and community leaders with a series of celebrations this week.

Cryovac, a division of W.R. Grace & Co. with North American headquarters in Duncan, S.C., is a world leader in the manufacture of flexible plastic packaging materials and systems.

The Iowa Park facility, which opened in 1975 in a 160,000 square foot plant with 155 employees producing flexible plastic packaging materials, now covers over 487,000 square feet and has approximately 800 employees in its operations.

Cryovac is a world-wide innovator in flexible packaging technology and systems. The company specializes in advanced packaging systems for meat, poultry, cheese and other perishable food products, as well as shrink packaging materials for consumer and industrial products.

Cryovac's films, bags and laminantes use sophisticated multilayer coextrusion technology to preserve flavor and aroma and enhance the shelf life and appearance of packaged foods and improve the merchandising of consumer packaged goods.

The Iowa Park facility has an annual payroll in excess of $34 million and is the second largest W.R. Grace packaging facility in the world.

"We are happy to be in Iowa Park," said plant manager Ray Youngblood, who is one of the original employees transferred from other Cryovac facilities when the plant opened.

"This is a great community with an outstanding quality of life, dedicated workers who are interested in improving themselves, quality schools and universities, and a tremendous spirit of cooperation among elected and appointed officials and community leaders. We are proud that this is our home."

The Iowa Park facility has undergone nine plant expansions since it opened in 1975, the first in 1977 of over 70,000 square feet which nearly doubled the employment and the most recent in 1994 which expanded the plant by another 50,000 square feet.

Community leaders and employees, along with corporate officials include Cryovac President Bill Sturgis, will be present at a series of events on this weekend as the company shows its appreciation to employees and the community.

"We were impressed with the spirit of cooperation, the work ethic, and the quality of life in the community when Iowa Park was chosen to be the site of this manufacturing facility in 1974," said Sturgis. "We had high expectations at that time and they have been more than fulfilled in terms of quality products and services, the commitment of our employees, and our acceptance in the community. We are proud to be a part of the Iowa Park and Wichita Falls communities."

"The commitment to continuous improvement by Cryovac employees and ongoing investment by the company in research and development of state of the art packaging systems has benefited consumers, food and non-food processors and retailers," said Jack E. Powers, Cryovac's Corporate Director of Human Resources.

"Cryovac employees take special pride when they shop and see their packaging materials on display in a wide variety of products. Cryovac packaging materials add value to the customers and consumers in many ways."

During the weekend celebration, which will include a breakfast, by invitation only, for community leaders on Monday, Cryovac employees who are celebrating 20 years with the company will be honored, and the four persons who have served as managers of the Iowa Park facility will all be a part.

The plant's first manager,
Charlie Lee, who served as plant manager at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, was manager of the Iowa Park facility for the first eight years. When he retired in 1982, Frank Gossett was promoted from his post at the Simpsonville,
S.C. manufacturing facility to plant manager

Gossett was named manager of the Simpsonville facility in 1987 and was replaced by Sam Laird, who had worked for six and a half years at Iowa Park before being transferred back to South Carolina.

Laird was promoted to Cryovac's Vice President of Manufacturing in 1992 at the company's North American headquarters, and was replaced by current manager Ray Youngblood, who joined the Iowa Park staff as a part of the original management team.

The four men who have served as managers of the Cryovac plant will be present for the celebration. Gossett and Lee are now retired and are living in South Carolina and Iowa, respectively.

"The relationship between Cryovac and the Iowa Park and Wichita Falls communities has been the kind that companies and communities strive to achieve, but few are able to develop," said Laird.

"In addition to the financial benefits, Cryovac has brought a very high level of technical employees to this area from different parts of the country. They have participated in the community, blending their concepts and ideas and they have been a benefit to the community," said Ron Mertins, president of the Wichita Falls Board of Commerce and Industry. "And Cryovac has provided a high level of industrial employment for area residents. They have expanded the plant and these expansions have provided even more jobs."

"Cryovac is a good neighbor and good citizen," said Wayne House, Mayor of Iowa Park. "Cryovac has saved us as a community with their continuing expansions, providing jobs for our residents, and their contributions to the community. Not only does Cryovac have a large financial impact on our community, but there are probably 200 employee families who live in our community."

"Cryovac has had a tremendous impact on the quality of education that Iowa Park Consolidated Independent School District has been able to provide for our students," said Glen Mitchell, Superintendent of schools. "The employees of Cryovac are wonderful community people. They are involved in our schools, churches, and every part of the community life."

Cryovac, which played a key role in the establishment of the General Manufacturing Certificate program through the Continuing Education Department at Midwestern State University, has hired 344 of the 566 students who have completed the 36-hour program.

"Cryovac is a very, very important company to Midwestern State University," said Dr. Louis Rodriguez, President of Midwestern State. "We value the contributions they make to our school and our community. In addition to the training we provide through the Continuing Education Department, many of their employees attend Midwestern State as students. They have tremendous people who make real contributions to the community."

Henry Zimmer, head of the Wichita County United Way, also has praise for Cryovac. "Their management and employees are actively involved in our annual campaigns," said Zimmer. "The inplant campaign run by the employees is one we use as a model for other industries." Through corporate and employee contributions, Cryovac and its employees accounted for $69,517 in 1994.

Cryovac, which has never had a layoff at its Iowa Park plant, is on track for continued growth, with more than $138 million in capital expenditures by 1999 and a work force of approximately 950 employees.

The Iowa Park facility paid $968,000 in property taxes in 1994 and accounted for 22 percent of the operating budget of the Iowa Park school system.

ARCHITECT'S DRAWING OF ORIGINAL CRYOVAC PLANT THAT OPENED IN 1975

Local leaders helped attract plant here

Hershel Nipper, Wayne House, Bob Hamilton. They are all residents of Iowa Park. None was born here. However, the three all played key roles in encouraging Cryovac to build its manufacturing facility in Iowa Park.

Nipper, now retired, was executive vice president of State National Bank and chairman of the Iowa Park Industrial Development Corporation. House, also retired, was the local manager of Texas Utilities and is set to begin his fourth term as mayor of Iowa Park. Hamilton remains the editor and publisher of the Iowa Park Leader, and also is beginning his third term as a city alderman.

They are boosters of Iowa Park and Wichita County and of Cryovac, the town's largest employer and the third largest manufacturing employer in Wichita County. They play major roles in groups which continue to promote and to seek new development for the community of 6,100.

An interesting aspect of their continued active involvement in the community concerns the reason why. The answer is rather simple. "It's home," Nipper and House answer in unison. Hamilton gave a similar answer.

Since Cryovac's goal is to establish that same feeling as a corporate citizen in the areas where its facilities are located, Nipper, House, Hamilton and others were logical candidates to fill out the report card on how Cryovac is fulfilling its role as a corporate citizen in Iowa Park.

"The best way to describe Cryovac is that this plant saved us as a community," said House. "We could have looked the world over and not found a better corporate citizen for Iowa Park."

Many of the benefits that a company provides to a community are obvious. The financial benefits to a community in taxes play a key role in sustaining the growth of a town. But there are many other benefits in this two-way street of citizenship.

"Our goal as a company is to be a part of the community in which we operate," said Jack E. Powers, Cryovac's Corporate Director of Human Resources. "We want to participate in community affairs and to help to provide the best possible education for those in the communities where we operate."

"Cryovac has provided jobs that help our young people stay at home," said Hamilton. "The young people that we educate in our schools don't have to leave home to find good jobs. That is important in keeping our community viable and growing."

Iowa Park was heavily dependent on the oil industry when Cryovac began building its facility here in 1974.
"The oil industry slump in the 1970's destroyed some towns," said Hamilton.

"We became even stronger as a town because Cryovac has never had a layoff and they continue to grow."

As much as the financial aspects of the annual $34 million payroll at the Iowa Park facility has impacted the entire Wichita County economy, House and Nipper point to other benefits.

"We didn't have that Wal-Mart. We didn't have these housing developments," said Nipper. "And we're talking to some other companies that are interested in locating here because of the steady employment in Wichita Falls."

The IDC has been able to purchase other land in the area suitable for development and continues to solicit other businesses.

"Before Cryovac, people had nowhere to work except in the oil fields," said Nipper. "Just look at this subdivision. Probably 50 percent of the homes in there belong to Cryovac employees."

"There are at least 200 homes in this community that belong to Cryovac employees," said House. "That is a tremendous boost for the tax base in keeping our town alive and growing. Cryovac employees have steady jobs. That's been a benefit for everybody."

And as far as Hamilton is concerned, the human aspect outweighs the financial one for Iowa Park's growth.

"It is very important in any community to be able to provide opportunities for the graduates of the school system," said Hamilton. Many of the young people who have gone through our school system now work at Cryovac. They stay in the community. They participate in community activities, the schools, the youth recreational activities. They have a pride in their home community.

"I can look around and see Max Henderson, one of our graduates in the class of 1977, who just completed his first term on the school board. He is still here because there are jobs available. You can look around and see the impact Cryovac has in taxes, employment, donations, support and services. All of that is important. But providing jobs for people, allowing them to remain in the community where they grew up and seeing them grow into leadership roles is very important, too," continued Hamilton.

That is Cryovac's goal in all of the communities in which it is represented. The people who make the company successful are its employees. And that carries over into their roles as community participants as well.

Veterans like Iowa Park

Kennie Jones knew he had found a home back in 1974 when he was transferred from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, to the Cryovac facility under construction in Iowa Park.

"I knew when I got here that this was home for me," said Jones, now retired and comfortable in his jeans, boots, western hat, and planning a local rodeo. "I like to hunt and fish. I like horses. I even like to hunt rattlesnakes. I'm just kind of lucky to

Jones, Marion Wilkins and Dick Bennett all transferred to Iowa Park from Cedar Rapids, Alan Gilstrap and current plant manager Ray Youngblood transferred from Simpsonville, and John Conklin, a native New Yorker who still carries his accent, joined the early team from South Carolina also, where he was working with another company.

Now some of Iowa Park's biggest boosters, the early reactions to their new location was less than thrilling. "I was from the East Coast. When I came here I thought this was 20 years behind the times," Conklin laughs. Would he ever think of leaving as retirement approaches? "Are you kidding? Not on your life!"

"I can remember when I first came out and was living in an apartment;" said Gilstrap. "We were working all week, trying to get the plant ready to open. I remember one Saturday not long after I got here that I slept late and decided to get something to eat. The only restaurant in town closed at 2 o'clock and I couldn't get anything to eat. I learned a lesson from that, but I also knew that you couldn't beat the food at the City Cafe."

Jones, who immediately got involved in community activities with the MuleSkinners organization that enjoys cooking and now has its own meeting place and modern kitchen, cannot envision life anywhere else. "I'm just kind of lucky to be here," he says. "Thanks to the company my family has had everything they needed, and about 99 percent of what they wanted."

There were adjustments for the newcomers. "They say a traffic jam in Iowa Park is two cars lined up at the four-way stop sign," said Wilkins. "I kind of like that." "We were all so busy trying to get the plant going that we really didn't have time to worry about getting adjusted," said Bennett. "We didn't have any trouble. We all had specific responsibilities but we all were involved in everything. It was fun."

Not only was there an adjustment on the part of the newcomers, but the local people who were hired to work in the plant also had to make adjustments. "When we first moved here, people never thought about working at night," said Wilkins. "They were accustomed to working in the oilfields. Shift work was a new thing. But the people that came to work here liked it."

Those who joined Cryovac have excelled in their jobs. "There were adjustments for everybody," said Gilstrap. "Cryovac's reputation for not laying people off and the fact that production employees are salaried has been very positive for our employees. Those are things that are taken into consideration when our employees refer to Cryovac as being one big family."

The uncertainty of work in the oilfields made the new Cryovac plant an ideal location to consider for employment. "Cryovac really helped the oilfield people," said Wilkins. "Those people lined up at the door for jobs."

There was not only an adjustment for the new employces. The new management team was also stepping into a new role of its own.

"Back in South Carolina I was a junior member of the staff," said Gilstrap, now plant controller in lowa Park, "If I had a question there were probably 15 people I could ask. I didn't have anybody to ask when I got out here. It was a great learning experience."

And Conklin had similar situations. "Since I came out here from South Carolina everybody assumed that I had worked for Cryovac back there. I was always being asked questions about the way certain things should be done. Heck, I had the same questions."

The five men and their families who came to Iowa Park to open this new plant have trouble remembering their previous residences. They have had opportunities to move elsewhere but they have trouble understanding why a questioner would wonder if they ever plan to leave Iowa Park.

Ray Youngblood is the fourth

"We've raised our families here. This is home. It's a great area and it's got everything you would ever want," said Jones.

While they enjoy the lifestyle provided by their Texas homes, they can also take pride in the contributions which the Cryovac plant has made to this area.

"People may not have envisioned the impact Cryovac would have on this area when we came here, but they are certainly impressed," said Bennett. "The local people have really done a fantastic job in making this plant successful."

Wilkins will retire at the end of May and he has no intentions of ever leaving. "We brought this thing up from a pup. You don't ever want to let it go," said Bennett.

They are all proud of the accomplishments of the plant. "In the entire community, the company and employees have made contributions. You can feel good. We've never had a layoff and we have a very good reputation," said Gilstrap.

The Cryovac veterans take a lot of pride in the accomplishments of the company and their hometown. Bennett was telling of taking an employee on his shift home recently. Home is Randlett, Okla., a town of 300 people 35 miles from Iowa Park.

"There are eight people in this town working at the Iowa Park plant," said Bennett. "The superintendent of schools there was standing there pointing out the homes of the people who worked at Cryovac and telling me how much the graduates wanted to work here. That made me feel good."

They can take a great deal of pride on what has been developed in Iowa Park. "It's been real good for the town," said Wilkins. "It's kept people here." It has also won over some transplants who would never think of

Managers reflect on past

They came from different parts of the United States to start up the Cryovac plant in Iowa Park in 1974.

Charlie Lee, a native of Iowa, was a manager at Cryovac's Cedar Rapids, Iowa manufacturing plant when he was offered the job of plant manager at Iowa Park.

"When my wife and I came down to visit Iowa Park, the thing we noticed was that we didn't see a tree anywhere," Lee laughs now. "But everybody seemed nice and the town was nice and we figured we wouldn't let something like not having trees stop us from coming."

Lee accepted the job and when he and his wife built their home "we planted plenty of trees. When we come back to visit Iowa Park we notice all of those trees are still here."

During the start-up of a plant, trees aren't the most important part of life, however. Picking the management team took first priority.

Among those to join the important start-up team within the first five years was Sam Laird, who transferred from Simpsonville in 1979. He returned to Simpsonville in 1986, and later returned to Iowa Park as the third plant manager. He now is vice president of manufacturing at Cryovac's North American headquarters.

Ray Youngblood, current Iowa Park plant manager, was part of the original atart-up group.

Frank Gossett, who followed Lee as plant manager at Iowa Park when Lee retired, was later transferred to Cryovac's Simpsonville plant as plant manager and has since retired.

All of them will return to Iowa Park for the 20th anniversary celebrations this weekend. And they will enjoy renewing friendships and trading stories of their time in Iowa Park.

Lee, who served one term as mayor and one term on the city council in Iowa Park, lived here 13 years. Five of those years after his retirement from Cryovac, before returning to Iowa to be closer to family members.

"You don't find many towns where they accept industry like Iowa Park accepted Cryovac, said Gossett. "The landscape was different than what I was accustomed to in South Carolina, but I loved the open spaces. I loved the people. The y were so friendly and so nice. I never met a stranger out here."

"Once we got the plant up and running, people in the community were still asking what they could do. They thought they weren't doing enough to help us," Lee said.

One item that carries a common thread from Lee to Youngblood, is the quality of the employees.

"The employees we hired were all good workers," said Lee, who was putting together a management team from Cryovac plants in Cedar Rapids and Simpsonville. In addition, he was hiring workers from the Iowa Park and Wichita Falls areas, and overseeing the training process.

"I was real pleased that for the most part the people who came in from other Cryovac plants liked Iowa Park and have stayed, with a few exceptions," said Lee.

Both Gossett and Laird say they would be very happy to have remained in Iowa Park even after their assignments ended. Youngblood has passed up possible opportunities to transfer and has remained in the Iowa Park plant 20 years.

"It was a tremendous opportunity for me as a first time manager," said Lee. "The start-up experience is different from any other that you would go through. There were always little details that had been overlooked in the planning. But we were always able to come up with a solution and somebody in the community was always there to help us if we needed help."

Gossett remembers the people he met. Artist Jack Stephens is a favorite and Gossett is proud to own many of his sculptures. And, Gossett remembers the days spent hunting with Iowa Park friends.

"The thing I enjoyed about the friends of mine out here is when they went hunting they liked to talk just as much as they liked to hunt. That was the fun part of it, the friends and the storytelling."

And, the stories always came up about Kennie Jones, who came from Cedar Rapids as a part of that first management team and found a home

"Kennie had a dog that he trained to get a cold beverage out of the cooler in the back of his pickup truck. Kennie would tell that dog to get him a cold drink. The dog would jump in the back of the truck, open the cooler, get a cold drink, bring it back and lie down between Kennie's legs with that cold can.

"I kept telling that story and nobody would believe it," said Gossett. "I had four executives in white shirts and ties from Cryovac headquarters in Duncan, S.C. standing out in a filling station parking lot watching Kennie's dog do those tricks."

Those personal experiences were fun. But the work ethic of the employees and cooperation of local government bodies, and friendships developed among the residents, have made Cryovac's Iowa Park facility a real success.

"I found Iowa Park to be one of the most enjoyable personal experiences and most enjoyable work environments I've had at Cryovac," said Laird, a South Carolina native who spent 11 and one-half years in Iowa

"Because of the business growth and the capability of the Iowa Park workers to respond to the need, the Iowa Park plant has continued to grow," said Laird.

Those are similar to the sentiments held by Youngblood, the current plant manager.

Youngblood 4th manager plant manager in the 20 years the Cryovac manufacturing facility in Iowa Park has been operating. will enjoy the area. I really enjoy the

"I had someone tell me not long ago that I was the first local person who had been manager of the plant," Youngblood said with a smile. "I told them that I wasn't originally from this area, that I was from South Carolina. The person I was talking with corrected me and reminded me that I was regarded as a local person.

"I was proud that people felt that way, because that's the way I feel about this area," said Youngblood who was one of the first Cryovac employees to be transferred to the Iowa Park facility, even before construction was completed.

"Two-thirds of my working life have been spent here. I've been with Cryovac for 30 years and 20 of those years have been here," Youngblood pointed out.

"This is our home now. Our children have grown up here and my daughter teaches at Lamar Elementary School. Someone once told me that if you enjoy the people in the area you people here," Youngblood continued. That feeling about the people in Iowa Park and the Wichita Falls community has been developed by the social contacts, the business contacts, and most of all the relationships with the employees of the Iowa Park plant.

"The attitude toward work in this community is very positive. The people here approach what they do with pride," added Youngblood. "As a company, we are proud to be here and we work to be a good corporate citizen of the community. Our employees at the plant have a high level of interest and they participate in community activities."

Training and continuing education play important roles at all of Cryovac's facilities. Close ties with Midwestern State University where Cryovac and other area companies established a General Manufacturing Certification curriculum through the Continuing Education Department and where many Cryovac employees have earned degrees provide a major benefit to the company and its employees. "We don't have to encourage our employees to take advantage of the educational opportunities," said Youngblood. "People pursue these opportunities when they are made available."

The Iowa Park facility, which has undergone nine expansions since its opening in 1975, has grown from a 160,000 square foot facility employing 155 people to approximately 487,000 square feet with more than 750 employees.

"Things are happening here and the growth will continue," said Youngblood. "There is a lot of truth to the term growing pains. We are growing so fast we are having trouble expanding our parking area fast enough to keep up with the needs."

Youngblood, a native of Seneca, S.C., began work at Cryovac's manufacturing plant in Simpsonville, S.C. in 1965. When the Cryovac facility was being built in Iowa Park he accepted an assignment at the new plant instead of going to a plant in Camarillo, Ca. Since that time he has made further commitments to remain in Iowa Park over other possible assignments at other Cryovac locations.

Youngblood is one of four current Cryovac employees who transferred to Iowa Park from other Cryovac facilities when the plant was under construction. He and Allan Gilstrap transferred from the Simpsonville, S.C. facility, and Dick Bennett and Marion Wilkins transferred from the Cedar Rapids, Iowa, plant. Others from the original group of Cryovac transferees have either retired or have moved to other posts within the organization.

Youngblood, who earned his degree from Midwestern State Univesity in Wichita Falls, is completing work on his MBA from the University of North Texas in Denton.

"I have learned a lot about this community and I am proud to be a part of it," said Youngblood. "People here have a desire to do a good job. Their willingness and desire to continue their personal improvement is a very posi-

Youngblood is proud of the employees at Iowa Park. But he is just as proud of the community of which he is a part. He has enjoyed his community involvement as a member of the boards of the United Way, Wichita Falls Board of Commerce and Industry, the Iowa Park Chamber of Commerce and on other community committees.

And he continues to be amazed at the attitudes of the people of the community. "In the North Texas area people are always willing to lend a helping hand. When people transfer in they are amazed. We had one family which transferred here recently and I was asking what we could do to help. The answer was nothing. The people in their new neighborhood had already been over, welcomed them, answered their questions, and helped them out with everything they needed. That's what is so wonderful about this area."

Youngblood has found that to be true of other local organizations. "When you ask for something and a local authority agrees to it, they de-

Church youth win in competition

The annual Teen and Junior Talent Competition was held recently at the Lakeview Church of God, with the Lakeview Church having winners in both categories.

Churches from Borger, Pampa, Iowa Park, Wichita Falls, Henrietta, Vernon, Burkburnett, Olney and Graham, participated in the competition for a total of 81 entries.

Lakeview Juniors (ages 9-12): Large Ensemble, first place, was composed of Meagan Merrill, Derrick Hutson, Brandon Lane, Connie Gibbs, Brittany Taylor, Christine Nelson, Amanda Rayburn, Amanda Walh, Victoria Levell, Kyle Williams, Angel Antones.

Kyle Williams was runner-up for male vocal solo, and Connie Gibbs was runner-up for female vocal solo.

In the Teens division, Patrick Robertson won first place in percussion and runner-up in male vocal solo; Jennifer Cole won in the woodwinds category (woodwinds-flute); Louis Booth won male vocal solo.

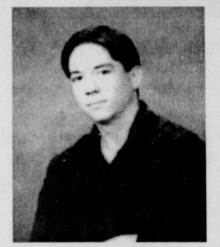

The Teen Large Ensemble received first place. The group was composed of Patrick Robertson, Louis Booth, Michael Gaitan, Lisa Arredondo, Melody Williams, Amber Wheeler, Heather Gilmore, Lani Gibbs and Melissa Johnson.

On alternating years the juniors or teens go to the state level, and this year the juniors will advance to state level May 20.

Barbie Johnston and Darla Olds were the directors for the juniors. Gina Auldridge and Jimmy Morgan were directors for the teens.

Refreshments were sold for the benefit of the National Youth World Evangelism Appeal mission project.

What it is and will it harm a pecan tree or the potential pecan crop are major questions we have received at the Wichita County Extension office.

These unusual galls are the result of several species of an insect called phylloxera. Phylloxera survive the winter as eggs in bark crevices. In the spring, the immature form of this pest emerges during budbreak and will feed on new growth.

These insects secrete a substance while feeding that stimulates plant tissue to develop abnormally, creating the unusual galls. Young phylloxera insects are then completely enclosed in the galls.

The phylloxera feed inside the gall and complete two generations. Galls will eventually crack open and winged, adult phylloxera emerge to lay eggs.

duction of pecans, however, these unusual galls will not directly kill a pecan There is no way to control pecan tree and in some cases even limit prophylloxera gall at this stage of tree Native trees and improved varieties vary in their susceptibility to phylloxera. Certain trees in an orchard or landscape will continue to have the gall problem while others are not affected. For this reason, you should make note of which pecan trees in your landscape are regular hosts for the galls. Only these individual trees will require treatment next year. Next spring after budbreak when young leaves are one to two inches long you can make control treatments.

Only at this time can we make an effective control applications.

Commercial growers use Lorsban and homeowners may use Malathion for control. Follow all label directions Phylloxera gall can stress a pecan when using any pesticide.

Hawks are champions

Take on Aledo Friday in bi-district

With three teams tied for first place heading into last Friday's games, it looked like the District 3-3A title would be decided by a coin flip and a pair of games between the three to determine who would finish first, second and left

All three teams, Iowa Park, Graham and Vernon, were playing the last place teams in the district and all three coaches were looking ahead when they met at Hoskins Field last Thursday, following a double header between Vernon and Jacksboro, for the coin flip that would give one team an automatic playoff berth and the other two teams would play each other with the loser being eliminated.

Iowa Park won the flip guaranteeing the Hawks a playoff spot with Graham and Vernon set to play at Hoskins Field Saturday.

But for all this to happen all three teams had to win on Friday. Graham had no problem with Jacksboro and Iowa Park blanked Bowie 8-0, but Bridgeport changed all the plans when the Bulls upset Vernon 5-3 knocking the Lions out of the playoff picture.

Both Iowa Park and Graham were in but the district title would come down to a single game at Hoskins Field on Saturday.

With the Steers' 3-2 win over Iowa Park Tuesday of last week still fresh on the minds of the Hawks, it seemed fitting that the two teams would have one more shot at each other.

What started out to be a great game, turned into a 5-0 blanking as Iowa Park laid claim to it's first District baseball title since 1991 and the sixth consecutive trip to the state playoffs.

"I'm real happy for the kids," head coach David Fuhrman said following the win. "We've been in the playoffs a lot but this is the first district title we've won since I've been here."

The Hawks got a solid pitching performance from starter Jason Young, who went six innings striking out seven and allowing only three hits while walking four to pick up his fourth win of the season against only one loss. Chris Norris came on in the top of the seventh and preserved the shutout by striking out one and allowing only

The Hawks got on the board in the top of the second when Rudy Hawkins led off with a sharp single to center and came around to score when the next batter, Casey Moser, laced a double to the gap in right-center giving Iowa Park a 1-0 lead. The Hawks failed to blow the game open in the inning as they left the bases loaded when Clint Scobce grounded out to second.

The game remained 1-0 into the top of the sixth. That's when things started to fall apart for the Steers who allowed four big runs on only two hits as they committed five costly errors leading to the 5-0 final score.

Hawkins, who finished the game going 2-for-3 with 2 runs scored, again led off with a single. Moser followed with a sacrifice bunt that turned out to be a base hit. David Waterbury's sacrifice bunt was dropped by Brett Belf, the Steer's first baseman, and Clancy Lalumia also reached base on an error by Belf. Graham's shortstop and catcher also committed errors in the sixth which allowed the Hawks to put the game away as Hawkins, Moser, Waterbury and Lalumia all came around to score

Parents invited to planning meeting

A planning session for the Iowa Park Schools' federal programs during the 1995-96 school year will be 3:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Iowa Park Junior High Library.

Parents and the public are invited to attend this session. Programs to be studied include Title One (formerly Chapter One), a program designed to provide for children with academic needs; Title Two (formerly Chapter 2), a program that provides supplemental funds for various programs; and Drug Free Schools and Communities, a program to provide an antidrug message to students.

Young allowed only two Graham base runners to get as far as second base and he picked one of those off. Norris came on in the bottom of the seventh and gave up a leadoff double to Rex Richie. The next batter, Tom Labbe, hit a sharp ground ball to Moser who was playing third, who caught Richie too far from second and after a rundown, Richie was called out at third for the first out. Labbe, who ended up at second after the rundown, went to third on a passed ball but was stranded after the next hitter grounded out to second and the final out came when Norris threw three straight curve balls to strike out Dan Robertson.

"I was a little worried at the first of the game," Fuhrman added. "We were getting men on base but we weren't getting the big hit to drive them in. And any time you're in a one-run game anything can happen. They made some mistakes late, but we put the ball in play and forced them to make the plays

The Hawks will square off against Aledo, District 4-3A runner-up, Friday at 4 p.m. at Hoskins Field in the first of a best two-out-of three series. Play will shift to Arlington Heights High School Saturday with the first game scheduled to get underway at 5 p.m. with the "if necessary" game to follow.

Graham will play Boyd, District 4-3A champion, following the Iowa Park-Aledo game Friday night at 7 p.m., also at Hoskins.

Heading into the playoffs, the Hawks are being led at the plate by Lalumia who is batting .455 in district, followed by Scobee at .385, Dusty Owen at .360 and Robert Klinkerman batting at an even .300.

Scobee leads the team in RBI's with 11 followed by Moser with 7. Both are tied for the team lead in homers with two apiece.

In the pitching department, both Young and Hawkins are heading into the playoffs with 4-1 marks while Norris stands at 5-5 for the season.

FRESHMAN LADY HAWK BRANDI BUTLER had an off day while competing in the state track and field meet in Austin. She finished eighth in the long jump with a best of 15-11 1/2, far below her qualifying measurement at the regional meet two weeks earlier. But her performance wasn't for lack of support. Most of the fans shown in the stands are Iowa Park fans and coaches.

Dean Kirkpatrick, long-time Hawk assistant coach who went with Len Williams to Waco Connally five years ago, is no longer coaching, according to Williams. Kirkpatrick is now the assistant principal at Connally High.

What is the most despised household task?

According to a Gallup poll, washing dishes far outweighs its closest competitors, cleaning the bathroom and ironing. Seventeen percent of those questioned listed doing the dishes first, only 8.8 percent named cleaning the bathroom and 8.5 percent named ironing, with 9.8 percent saying they didn't know what they didn't like.

BRADFORD

THURSDAY, MAY 25 IS THE LAST DAY OF SCHOOL

3rd Graders and the weather

Lee Ann Pope, KAUZ-TV meteorologist, spoke to third graders this week about the weather and forecasting.

The students gathered a lot of information about the turbulent spring weather we have experienced this spring.

Track & Field Day is coming Bradford's annual Track and Field

Day will be held tomorrow.

Homerooms from each grade will compete against each other to earn the most points. Each grade's winning homeroom earns a "travelling trophy."

Each student must participate in at least two events. The schedule of events include:

9 a.m. Sack Race 9:15 a.m. Three Legged Race 9:30 a.m. Hula Hoop Race

9:45 a.m. 50 yard dash

10 a.m. Tire Race

10:15 a.m. Ribbon Race 10:30 a.m. 100 yard dash

10:45 a.m. 220 yard dash

11:00 a.m. 440 yard dash

Lunch

12:15 - 1:15 Field Events- Softball Throw, Softball Relay, Chin Ups, Lung Jump and Frisbee.

1:15 p.m. 440 yard relay

1:30 p.m. 880 yard relay

1:55 p.m. Shuttle Relay

2:15 p.m. Tire Relay

Parents are welcome to attend Track and Field Day and watch their children participate.

Students may wear Track and Field T-shirts that day, which were sold by PTA as a fund-raiser.

Getting in character

Fifth graders are giving character book reports this weeks on the Newberry book they have read.

Each student will dress up as a character in the book he read and give a presentation.

Orientation Time

Second and fifth graders will have a chance to look over next year's surroundings this week.

Fifth graders will travel to the junior high campus to check over their new school and become familiar with the layout of the school. The junior high band and choir will perform for them while they are there.

Kidwell Elementary second graders will travel to Bradford today for their orientation. The fifth grade choir will give a performance for these students.

Students to perform play

Mrs. Parson's fifth grade language arts class will present the play, "Bradford Bad Boys" next week for each grade.

The play was written by Mrs. Parsons. Presentation times will be at 10 a.m. Tuesday and 8:45 a.m. Wednesday.

Awards day will be next Thursday, the last day of school.

Awards for academics and citizenship will be presented at the cer-

KIDWELL

PTA Officers elected

Debbie Brixey was elected President of Kidwell PTA during a meeting held Tuesday night.

Other officers elected to begin in the new school year are Beckie Wirmel, vice president; Cindy Lane, second vice president; Christi Blagg, secretary and Darla Inglish, parliamentar-

Marianne Jensen and Kari Collins will begin the second year of their twoyear terms as treasurer and historian, respectively.

It was also announced that the PTA-sponsored book fair last week was a success, and proceeds will net the S.H.A.R.K. (Super Happy Accelerated Reading Kids) program accelerated reading books.

Students to be recognized

Kidwell's Awards Day will be Monday, with each grade having separate ceremonies.

Students will receive recognition for conduct, attendance, S.H.A.R.K. participation and the 600 minutes reading program

First grade ceremony will be at 10:45 a.m., followed by Kindergartners at 11:45 a.m. Second graders will have their ceremony at 12:45 p.m.

Second graders to Bradford

Kidwell second graders will travel to Bradford today for third grade ori

While there, the students will get to look around the facilities, and will hear a concert by the fifth grade choir.

End of School parties

Kidwell students will end the year with a bang! Although the last day of school is not until Thursday, end of school parties will all be held on Wednesday.

Kindergartners will celebrate with a carnival on the playground from 8:30 -11:30 a.m.

First graders will take a field trip to Lucy Park for an all day nature walk. Second grade classes will have drive

Luaus and pizza parties.
