As I See It... "Ghost from Christmas Past"

By Bob Hamilton

Ho! Ho! Ho! ... and all that sort of thing!

Yep, you guessed it. We finally got this Christmas edition to the printer, and now I'm ready to observe Christmas.

I've explained over past years that I never get the Christmas spirit until the issue is put to bed. Sorry, but after 39 years in the business, that's just the way it is.

Oh, in case you noticed the picture in my column head, you're right, that's me. It was taken a few years ago, when I wore a full beard.

Daughter Kari thought it might give this space a little more of the Yule appearance, for some reason.

One would think that after 64

Christmases, this sort of thing would begin to grow old and lose its appeal. Not so! If anything, I think I look forward to Christmas more now than I did when I was a youngster.

Of course, there wasn't much to look forward to, in those days. Maybe a fresh apple and orange, with a few nuts in the stocking ... and possibly a real present on the dining room table.

But these days, with family and real presents ... and maybe a more mature understanding of the real reason we celebrate Christ's birth ... Christmas is an event toward which I look forward all year long.

I hope and pray each of you enjoy your Christmas as much as our family.

One damper, however. I just received word that one of my favorite personal and business acquaintances was retiring.

Jack Powers, Cryovac's director of human resources the past 15 years and a 36-year employee of the firm, will turn in his office key March 31.

Jack, in case you don't remember the name, has twice been the guest speaker at our Chamber of Commerce banquet, including last year's event.

He's been a good friend of mine and of Iowa Park, and I hate losing him.

WORTH QUOTING

Any gardener will tell you, one of the true pleasures of the hobby is sampling its fruits. Good gardeners can go on for hours about how a home-grown tomato or carrot is just so much better than a store-bought vegetable.

As I have confessed before, I am not a good gardener. I measure the life span of my plants in days, not weeks or months. In fact, only two attempts have had any success -- tomatoes and peppers.

My wife Lina Kay is in charge of the tomatoes. Since she likes the things, she gets to pick them from the vine and eat them raw.

Just to make me feel that I am involved in this project of killing young plants, I was assigned the pepper plants. Surprisingly, they have done well and were actually alive, the last time I checked.

One day Lina Kay and I were out in our "garden" (it is now down to two big pots) and she was inspecting the pepper plants. She was fiddling with the leaves, then suddenly exclaimed, "This is not a jalapeno pepper!"

Using all my horticultural powers, I closely examined the pepper. She was right. It did not have the long banana shape of a jalapeno, instead it looked crinkled on the end.

"What is it?" she asked.

Again, I thoughtfully peered at the pepper and gave her my best guess. "I don't have any idea," I said.

"I bet that they got the pepper plants mixed up at the store," she said. "It looks like it will be just a sweet bell pepper. Instead of wasting our time on it, let's pick it and see."

With that she snapped the malformed pepper off the plant and headed into the house. By the time I had got there, Lina Kay had the knife and the cutting board ready.

She quickly sliced the end off of the pepper and popped it into her mouth. It was the fastest transformation I had ever seen.

Instantly, her eyes flew wide open, her mouth opened wide and a dark red color flushed across her face. I knew she was trying to speak, but the words just would not come across the flame in her throat.

She grabbed the sink sprayer, turned the faucet on full cold and doused the inside of her mouth. Next, she stumbled to the refrigerator and sucked down about a half a quart of milk.

Finally, when her powers of speech returned, she uttered the immortal words, "That is the hottest thing I have ever put in my mouth."

All the belly laughing at her antics must have left my mind addled, because I said, "Guess it isn't a bell pepper."

I stayed out of reach until the murderous urges had passed.

A few days later, my brother-in-law, Bill Dudley stopped by our house. Somehow the conversation got around to gardens and gardening. He inquired how our's was going.

I saw the mischievous thought pass through Lina Kay's mind. She darted to the refrigerator and pulled out the other half of our pepper.

"Do you like peppers, Bill?" she cooly asked.

Being raised in New Mexico, Bill prides himself on his love of hot food. "Sure, the hotter the better," he replied and popped the pepper into his mouth.

That sure ended his end of the conversation. Slowly, beads of sweat popped out on his forehead and a nice rosy glow rose from his collar to the top of his head, as Bill manfully tried to take the heat.

He motioned for another can of refreshment and drank the whole thing. When his vocal cords loosened, he said, "That is the hottest thing I have ever put in my mouth."

From then on, we handled those funny shaped peppers with extreme care. We still don't have the foggiest idea what they are, but they can sure light up a life.

JIM HUDSON
Perryton Herald

While glancing through the papers last Friday, I found the following little gem in USA Today. Please note the wording.

"A budget crunch due to slashed federal funding is forcing the state Dept. of Protective and Regulatory Services to cut 11% of its workforce, 689 jobs, effective Oct. 31."

Budget "crunch" and "slashed" federal funding? Hold on a minute there.

I'm not good at math, but I think we're talking about a bureaucracy that has somewhere around 7,000 employees. What are they doing?

They would have us believe they are riding herd on child abusers and giving aid and comfort to battered women and children. Noble causes, I admit, but have any of you noticed these offenses going down in the recent past? It appears they are on the increase.

Now the cries are going out that without money, more and more people are going to be hurt, and the mean old fiscal conservatives are anti-children and anti-women.

Two facts need to be considered. One, if the agency was doing its job with 7,000 employees in Texas it wouldn't take them long to clean up the situation, would it? Two, this is a sample of what the people get with bigger and more government -- less and less service.

Big government -- with its millions and billions in spending -- never solved one single, solitary problem I can name. Unless it would be providing employment for people who can't get jobs anywhere else.

DAVE LEWIS
Little Elm Journal

I've gotten a lot of "frequent teller" miles out of a story told by Bob White of Plano, former Eastern Airlines pilot who lived in Plainview for several years.

A native of Kress, Bob tells about a pilot who comes on the intercom and says, "Good morning, ladies and gentlemen, we're flying this morning at 30,000AAAAAHHHHHHHHH!"

The piercing shriek is followed by dead silence. Wide-eyed passengers crane forward in fear or look around wildly for someone to explain what has happened. An attendant dashes toward the front of the plane.

Presently, an obviously embarrassed voice comes back on the cabin P.A.

"Ladies and gentlemen, this is the captain speaking. I'm sorry, but a moment ago when I started to welcome you aboard, a stewardess brought in some coffee and spilled it in my lap and ruined my pants."

"Yeah . . ." said a loud and irritated male voice from the back of the plane, "well, she ruined mine too!"

The plane fairly shook with laughter.

Bob White says the other day a woman was spotted sitting in her car at a convenience store in Dallas.

It was a very warm day and she was sitting rigid, holding her hand to the back of her head.

A customer noticed her when he went into the store and observed on his way out that she hadn't moved. A bit concerned, he called the police.

When they arrived and began talking with the woman, she never moved, explaining that "I've been shot and my brains are coming out."

Fortunately, she hadn't been shot.

However, a can of biscuits had exploded in the back seat of the hot car and the gooey substance stuck to the back of her head.

Startled at the loud noise and feeling the biscuit dough, she drew a rather logical conclusion.

There was no report as to whether her pants were ruined by the incident.

DANNY ANDREWS
Plainview Daily Herald

You're beginning to see what's ahead if the liberals control of the courts and the bureaucracy gains any more strength.

Even though voters in California voted by a big majority to deny welfare money to illegal immigrants, a federal judge has ruled that they cannot do that. She says it's unconstitutional.

If they're illegal immigrants, that means it is against the law for them to even be in this country. How can a judge rule that we have to give welfare money to people who are not even legally allowed to be here?

If you or I were to do something like that, we would probably be arrested and charged with aiding and abetting a law violator.

ABOUT THE LAW
Sponsored by Iowa Park Police Dept.
592-2181

Christmas time is a profitable time for a thief, and we are all potential victims.

You may be a victim in your home, your car, or in person. Thieves are always watching for an opportunity, but at Christmas time many of us are caught off guard!

Always be aware of the security of your home and vehicles, especially this time of year. More theft crimes such as purse snatching and money scams are reported during the holiday season. Always stay alert to your personal surroundings.

The Iowa Park Police Department wants to wish all of you a Merry Christmas and a Safe and Happy New Year!

Blair, Joyner vows read Saturday in double-ring ceremony

First Baptist Church in Wichita Falls was the setting Saturday for the noon wedding of Jeanine Sue Blair and Kyle Steven Joyner.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jason Blair of Iowa Park, and Joyner is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Joyner of Tyler.

Don Heath, minister of Sugar Creek Baptist Church in Sugarland, officiated the double-ring vows.

The couple chose Christmas colors for their wedding, utilizing Christmas plaid, gold and red throughout the sanctuary decorations.

Potted poinsettias were placed around the altar area, which was flanked by matching pairs of arch, spiral and tree candelabras.

Bows of red, gold and Christmas plaid marked the pews.

Given in marriage by her mother and father, Miss Blair was radiant in a formal white gown. The fitted bodice was accented with lace, pearls and sequins and featured a scalloped "V" neckline. The long sleeves were resplendent with lace, pearls and sequins and ended at a point over the fingers.

A large candybox bow at the back of the waist flowed to a chapel length train, which was accented with lace, pearls and sequins, and featured a lace applique scalloped hem.

To complete her wedding day attire, she carried an arm bouquet formed of red roses, stephanotis, red berries, dried baby's breath and plumosis fern, gathered with white tulle, red ribbon and gold cording. Tucked into her bouquet was a crocheted baby cap and heart-shaped pin that belonged to her maternal grandparents. This also served as the "something old" tradition.

The bride's gown was the "something new," and the "something borrowed" and "something blue" was a garter that was worn by the groom's sister-in-law, Jackie Joyner, at her marriage to the groom's brother on the same date six years ago.

Mrs. Kyle Steven Joyner

The bride was attended by Tracie Wise of Mankins as matron of honor, and Beth Goodgion of Wichita Falls, Andrea Freeman of Iowa Park, Kelley Cagle of Archer City and Jody Yarbrough of Wichita Falls were bridesmaids.

The bridal attendants were dressed identically in tea-length gowns of green velvet and satin. The velvet bodice featured a scalloped neckline and three-quarter length sleeves. The green satin skirt was accented with two velvet bows at the back of the waist. Each carried a bouquet styled as a smaller version of the bride's bouquet.

Victoria Joyner of Colorado Spring, Colo., niece of the groom was flower girl.

She wore a tea length dress designed with a green velvet bodice and Christmas plaid taffeta skirt, tied in the back with a sash. She carried a white basket filled with red poinsettias, pine and pine cones.

The groom was attended by his brother, Todd Joyner of Colorado Springs, Colo., as best man. Groomsmen were Walter Barr of Dayton, Ohio, Mike Myers and Mark Myers of Dallas, cousins of the groom, Eric Rapley of Kansas City, and Brent Warren of Wichita Falls.

Ushers were Jason Blair of Iowa Park, brother of the bride, and Jay Rapley of Kansas City.

All male members of the wedding party were attired in black tuxedos with black bow ties and cummerbunds.

Prelude music was provided by Karen Bacus, pianist. Soloist Monte Clearman offered "I Just Want to Live My Life in Love With You" and "Moment by Moment," both written by him. Soloist Larry Sowell sang "Flesh of My Flesh."

For the processional, Pachelbel's "Canon in D" and "The Bridal Chorus" were played. During the ceremony Chuck Hickman played guitar and sang "Here and Now." Beth Goodgion and Brent Warren sang a duet of "Shine on Us." "Majesty" was played for the recessional.

Following the ceremony, a reception in honor of the couple was held at the University Club in Wichita Falls.

The table holding the cakes was centered with a red poinsettia candle ring around a brass candelabra with plaid ribbon accents.

The bride's cake was a three-tiered confection decorated with poinsettias and holly. The groom's cakes featured two interlocking chocolate rose hearts with the couple's names inscribed in the center.

Jaime Hunter and Michelle Robbins of Iowa Park, both cousins of the bride, presided at the refreshment table.

Guests registered in a white bridal book accented with pastel roses. An easel holding framed portrait of the bride in her wedding gown was placed next to the registration table.

Special guest at the wedding were Pauline Blair, grandmother of the bride.

Out-of-town guests included John and Maryann Hawley, Dr. and Mrs. John Rapley, Steve and Bev Rumpf, and Matthew and Shari Pickell.

The rehearsal dinner, hosted by the groom's parents, was held at Bogart's Deli in Wichita Falls Friday night.

Following a honeymoon trip to Branson, Mo., the couple are at home in Wichita Falls.

The bride is a graduate of Iowa Park High School and attended Midwestern State Univ. She is employed at Midwestern Optical in Wichita Falls.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Beaver Creek High School in Ohio and is a senior at Midwestern State Univ. He is employed by AC Delphi.
