FIRSTS FOR IOWA PARK -- Melinda Bradshaw, left, and Amanda Stephens became the first known Iowa Parkans to ever win championships in national competition of any kind.

They are shown here with Coach Steve Stewart. For full details of their accomplishments, please turn to page 8 of this edition.

Turnout of early voters is minimal

"They are staying away by the droves," was a comment made by one election official, when asked how many votes had been cast thus far in the school and city elections.

Early voting officially began Monday, and will conclude Tuesday, April 29.

Only five early voting ballots had been cast by noon on the third day of voting in the city election.

None was reported in the school's ballot box.

The early voting poll for the school's election is at the district's tax office, 1303 North Fourth. It is open from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. on week days.

The city's early voting poll is at the city hall, and it is open from 8:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. on week days.

The turnout of voters -- or lack of -- could be caused by the fact that only one position on the school board and one on the city council are contested.

Jeff Nolen and Wendell House are vying for a seat at the school board's table, while Martha Dudley and Larry Dutton are both unopposed.

The lone contested city alderman position is between incumbent Mark Raby and former alderman Bud Mercer.

Unopposed in their bids seeking re-election to the council are Tracy Fears and Bob Hamilton.

Election day for both the school and city will be Saturday, May 3.

Two dates set by city council

Two dates for important events were set during Monday night's regularly-scheduled meeting of the city council.

One will be observance of National Arbor Day on April 26, and the other is a dedication ceremony for an historical marker on May 5.

Mayor Tim Hunter read a proclamation establishing Saturday, April 26, as National Arbor Day in Iowa Park.

Hunter pointed out that the city and its residents have planted hundreds of trees in past years, and will continue that effort in the future, in an effort to gain recognition as a "Tree City USA."

The historical marker, recognizing the city's early-day refinery and later site of the Texas-Oklahoma Fair, is to be erected at the corner of Colorado and West Park.

An area has already been prepared for the marker's location, near B&R Thriftway, with a concrete outlining, and soil for grass will be filled in before the marker is set, Administrator Mike Price told aldermen.

The city administrator was also involved in the dedication ceremony, which are located next to the southern water tower.

The lots were purchased from Mrs. Peggy Blanchard, after she pointed out that there was no roadway access to the lots because of the tower's location.

Aldermen were informed that at least one of three neighboring property owners has expressed an interest in obtaining the property.

Council members unanimously approved a resolution which opposes passage of legislation sponsored by Rep. Ron Lewis of Mauriceville.

If approved by the legislature, all public water supply systems throughout the state would be required to pay $1 per month per customer to the Texas Natural Resource

Trustees consider proposal on pool

City Administrator Mike Price appeared before the school board Thursday night to discuss the city's proposal to take over control of the swimming pool. The pool, which is jointly-owned by the city and school district, is located on the high school campus.

Iowa Park Mayor Tim Hunter had told school trustees at their meeting March 24, that he realized the school was on a tight budget, and this arrangement could save the school district a considerable amount of money.

Representatives of the city and school had planned to meet prior to the board meeting to discuss the proposal. Because of busy schedules, the meeting did not take place.

Price said the city council was receptive to the proposal and willing to take over the operation. When asked if the city would be contracting out the management of the pool, Price said no.

One of the board members said as late as it is this year, control might need to stay the same because of the workers.

Price said city representatives sat in on the meeting when the current workers were hired, and it would probably remain the same.

Board president Keith Fisher said it was the consensus of the board to go along with the proposal, but they wanted to check with an attorney, and also find out how the insurance would be handled.

Price said he could have the city's attorney draw up a lease agreement and present it to school trustees for approval.

Board members agreed and said they might possibly take action on the proposal in a called meeting.

The YMCA's proposal to provide after school child care was tabled until a later meeting when a representative could be present to answer questions.

Trustees decided to have a special called meeting on April 22, to discuss recommendations of the Task Force Committee.

Following a closed session, trustees hired auxiliary personnel for the 1997-98 school year, and accepted a letter of resignation from Johnie

Brown, high school cafeteria manager.

Auxiliary personnel employed for next year include:

High School: Susan Bidy, Elaine Wineinger, Nancy Young, Vicki Merrell, Donnal Williams, Donna Wells, Tammy Hoover, Debbie Green, Renato Pedon, and Julie Dozier.

Junior High School: Penny Atchley, Freda Benda, Jimmy Htcher, Fern Roberts, and Linda Springer.

Bradford Elementary: Brenda Curtin, Amber David, Sheri Kennedy, Gayle Lyles, Patsy Jordan, Pat Rby, Patricia Smith, and Linda Taylor.

Kidwell Elementary: Mark Baka,

SPANGLERS

Family of volunteers moving

By MYRNA SMITH

"We won't be moving until some time in June. Certainly, not until Vicki and I have fulfilled all the commitments we've made here," Fillmore Spangler answered my question, "When will you be moving to San Antonio?"

To me, this says a lot about this couple. But this attitude is typical of the Spanglers. It has been said by several who know them well that the Spanglers are always willing to help. Spangler volunteers his services when he is needed, and he often sees ways he can be of help in many different situations.

This is the second time the Spanglers have lived in this area. They lived in Wichita Falls in the 1970s. He worked at Sheppard Air Force Base in electronics, communications and as registrar. He possesses a variety of skills. At SAFB from 1974-1980 he was Training Manager for the United States Air Force Air Training Command, using various computer systems to forecast, analyze and produce real-time reporting for system users.

He also managed both a batch and an on-line real-time computer system and supervised eight employees performing data input and software services to meet customer requirements and operation needs.

As training instructor his duties included writing and reviewing plans of instruction, training literature, technical data, preparation of lesson plans, and conducting classroom counseling, supervision training and related counseling, testing and evaluation, and producing audio-visual packages.

Most of the time he taught through a translator. As manager-registrar, Spangler was the only one to meet with the General. He kept him abreast of how many students were in training, how many had been trained, and other details of the training program.

"Actually, mathematics is my field," Spangler said.

Spangler was reared in San Antonio. He says his wife, Vicki was an "oil field brat". When her family moved to San Antonio, she and Fillmore met in high school.

Spangler received the BA degree from Trinity University in San Antonio, with a major in Mathematics and a minor in Education in 1968. He then majored in Education and minored in Math and received his Masters degree in Education in 1971.

He took graduate courses at Texas A&M University in Computer Science, and management courses at Midwestern State University while working at SAFB.

Early on in his career, Spangler was a classroom instructor in the San Antonio Independent School District. He taught classes in Algebra, Calculus, pre-Calculus, Geometry, Related Math, and Consumer Math. He served on the curriculum, textbook and computer committees.

Later he was part-time instructor in the math field at College of Mainland in Houston and also at San Antonio Junior College. While at SAFB he served as part-time mathematics instructor in Algebra, and Computer Science at Midwestern State University and part-time mathematics instructor in Algebra, Probability and Statistics at Vernon Regional Junior College.

Spangler left SAFB in 1980 to go into an even more sophisticated and technical work... training astronauts. From 1980-1985, he was Training Requirements Specialist for Ford Aerospace and Communications Corp., at Johnson Space Center in Houston.

He developed training materials and connect training for space shuttle astronauts and flight controllers. He developed training and wrote related workbooks for Strip Chart Recorder equipment, Telemetry Applications, POCC Basis Terminal Operations and Telemetry Operations.

He also taught the operation of digital television equipment, Manual Select and Summary Message Enable keyboards, Opaque televisor, Voice Keyset, POCC and Megadata terminals operations.

1985-1986 Spangler was lead Instructional Designer for McDonnell Douglas Inc. in Houston. There he was lead for a group of eight courseware writers for a health care computer network program.

Duties included development of a training program to train personnel on the Instructional System Development (ISD) process and acted as subject matter expert

Mrs. Noe Israel Almendarez
(Amanda Rana Routh)

Couple exchange vows in Saturday ceremony

Amanda Rana Routh, daughter of Eugene and Connie Routh of Iowa Park, became the bride of Noe Israel Almendarez of Wichita Falls Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

The groom is the son of Benita Almendarez of Austin.

Double ring vows were read in United Pentecostal Church with John Howard, pastor of the United Pentecostal Church of Temple directing the vows. He was assisted by Marney Turpin of Iowa Park.

The nuptial area was decorated with colors of burgundy and teal accented by rosebuds and baby's breath.

Music before the wedding was provided by Sharon Turpin of Iowa Park who sang "Your Love Amazes Me". During the wedding Tara Howard of Temple sang "Because You Loved Me".

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a gown of white satin enhanced by white lace trim and white pearl buttons outlining the front of the dress. Her veil of illusion was attached to a band of white rosebuds.

She carried a bouquet of burgundy and teal roses interspersed with babies breath.

Heather Enns of Wichita Falls was the bride's matron of honor. She wore an ivory dress with gold button trim and carried a bouquet that matched the brides.

Ring bearer was the bride's son, Sheldon Routh of Iowa Park. He wore a navy blue vest and slacks with a white shirt.

Best man was Matthew Enns of Wichita Falls. Groomsman and ushers were Jason Routh, brother of the bride, and Josh Thompson both of Iowa Park.

The bride graduated Iowa Park High School. The groom is a graduate of a Houston high school. He is employed in Wichita Falls by Fuller-Vanek Well Service.

The reception was held at the church. Burgundy and teal appointments decorated the reception area.

The bride's table featured a white double tiered wedding cake topped with a bride and groom figurine and burgundy and teal decorations. Presiding at the table were aunts of the bride, Janet Gould and Cynthia Travis, and sister of the groom, Claudia Almendarez.

The couple had a brief honeymoon in the Dallas area and are making their home in Wichita Falls.

Out of town guests here for the wedding were the groom's mother and sister and the bride's uncles and aunts, Donovan and Janet Gould of Mineral Wells and Phillip and Cynthia Travis of Fort Worth.

One-act play Monday night at high school

A one-act play, "The Rivers and the Ravines," will be presented Monday night by the high school drama department.

The students received 4th place with their presentation of the play in UIL competition. Sarah Trotter and Stacy Robey received honorable mention all star cast, and Justin Galliton received all star cast.

The all star cast is one of the highest awards received in competition. One actor/actress from each school is chosen for this honor. Iowa Park received the best cast and crew. The crew consisted of Ashley Todd, Mellissa Marrs, Jacqueline Widlake and Shelly Evans.

The cast this year includes many of the same actors who were in last year's play, "Meet Me in St. Louis." They are Jessica Shaw, Martin Shaw, Justin Galliton, Sarah Trotter, Ben Carr, Daniell Clynych, and Ronna Stowers. The new actors are Stacy Robey, Shelly Evans, Corrie Lee, Jason Sokora, and Aubrey Ehling.

"The Rivers and the Ravines, is a tragedy about losing land and life as you know it.

The play will begin at 7 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Tickets are available by calling the school at 592-2144 and asking for Mrs. Young, or they can be purchased at the door.

Students to compete in Region UIL meet

Three students at Iowa Park High School have qualified to compete Friday and Saturday at the Region One UIL literary contest.

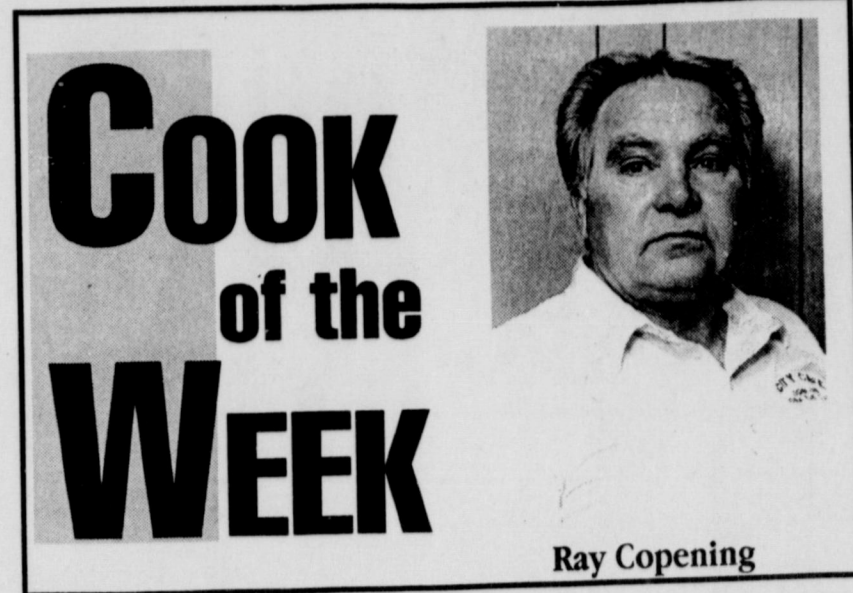

They are Ronna Stowers, news writing; Amy Smith, feature writing, and Melissa Allen, computer application.

In order to qualify to advance to region, a student must place either first or second in district competition.

Yoder completes training

Fireman Randy T. Yoder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Yoder of Iowa Park, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

Yoder is a 1992 graduate of Carroll High School of Corpus Christi.

Ray Copening

Cook of the Week

Ray Copening, owner of City Cafe, has kindly agreed to share his favorite steak recipes with the Leader readers this week.

Ray was born in Honey Grove. His father was a Church of Christ minister, and the family lived in several different places while Ray was growing up. He graduated high school in O'Donnell.

Ray retired from the military in 1975, with the last four years spent teaching Military Science and Physical Training at Midwestern State University.

He opened the Iowa Park Dairy Queen in 1975, and took over ownership of City Cafe in 1993.

Ray and his wife Nell are both sports enthusiasts and participate in several athletic activities such as volleyball and golf. They also like to fish and spend a lot of time at their lake cabin.

In this part of the country - Texas in particular - the favorite food of most men (and a lot of women) is chicken fried steak.

So, for those cooks who don't have a tried and true method for preparing this delicacy, the following recipes (in Ray's own words) are for you.

Country-Fried Steak

vs.

Chicken-Fried Steak

"This was as Mother's milk to me." My favorite food for any meal on any day is a delicacy that can be done simply or elaborately.

Start with round steak, cut in serving pieces - in the day's nostalgia, it was "get a dollar's worth of steak." Bring the steak to room temperature, season it with salt, pepper, maybe garlic powder, and flour it. With the edge of a saucer or a meat mallet, beat the flour into the meat and snip the fatty edges. The grease in the iron skillet should be hot. Now introduce the steak to the skillet. Turn it frequently, and when the steak is lusciously browned, remove it to a platter. Pour off the excess grease; add flour, then milk, then salt and pepper for the cream gravy.

I sometimes veer into smothered steak and onions, an equally toothsome idea, simply done by adding lots of thinly sliced onion rings to the first skillet step of frying. Later when the steak approaches doneness, drain off the excess grease and add at least a cupful of water. Cover the skillet and put it on a low heat. Check to see that it is always wet. At serving time, remove the steak and onion to a platter. Make a roux with flour, water and the skillet contents. When smooth, add more water and check to be sure there is adequate seasoning with salt and pepper. You are now flushed with pride, so serve with love.

Chicken-fried steak was not as much a home product in Vernon as it was a restaurant item for banquets.

For this method the steak is done in batter and cooked in deep, hot fat. The steak pieces are dipped in flour after they have been salted and peppered. They are dipped in egg batter - one egg whipped with one cup milk - and then again in flour.

Place in 400 degree deep fat and when done serve with a basic white sauce or Sauce Bechamel.

Steak in this manner seems perfectly at home with pretty green peas. When we ate out at the Faith Cafe, the Liberty Cafe, or the even older City Cafe, this was a great favorite.

Grilled Stuffed Onions

Take as many onions as you desire and cut each in half. Take out center, leaving a shell, and put the center to the side.

In bowl, mix desired amount of Cheddar cheese and picante sauce.

Put some of the cheese mixture in each of the onion halves and replace the center. Wrap each half in aluminum foil and grill.

Health Notes

Chromium for Diabetes?

by Joe Hughes, R.P.H.

At a recent meeting of the American Diabetes Association, American and Chinese researchers reported impressive findings on the benefits of chromium in treating type II diabetes. A four month study of 180 Chinese men and women demonstrated that patients taking chromium showed a significant drop in glycated hemoglobin levels, which are very sensitive indicators of diabetes control. In his presentation, Barry Mennen, M.D. noted that if these results can be replicated in the American population, the findings "could have significant implications for the therapy - and perhaps even the prevention - of adult-onset diabetes. . . . However, caution is urged in interpreting these results. It must be emphasized that chromium is not a cure for diabetes and is not a license to stop taking prescription medications or to indulge in sweets, as some media reports have suggested."

Pretty yards topic of Garden Club program

"Planning, Planting and Attaining that Beautiful Yard You Want," was the subject of a program, presented by Tim Hunter, for the Iowa Park Garden Club.

Hunter, an agronomist at Sheppard Air Force Base, and the current mayor of Iowa Park, stressed using more drought-resistant plants, thereby reducing the use of herbicides.

Hunter said that yards have gone through several stages. Beginning with the "Victory Gardens" of the 1940's, to the hybrid grasses of the late 1950's, to the present time of "mixed greens." "If it's green, mow it!" he said. He believes "weeds get a bad rap," and stated that "a weed is nothing but a flower out of place."

He suggested using shrubs outside of windows for security reasons.

For aroma, Hunter encouraged using the original type rose, not the hybrid. He likes Rose of Sharon and Altheas. For aphids on the roses, he suggested spraying them with dishwashing detergent mixed with water.

Hunter urged the group to show their personalities in landscaping their yards.

Bonnie Illingworth, president, conducted the business session, in which members were reminded of Volunteer Week at the local nursing home.

Aretas Spruiell furnished a Tuberosus Begonia, displayed by Jimmie Aston, for the horticulture display.

Carolyn Cookingham was hostess for the meeting, assisted by Reba Snow.

SPANGLER WITH WALL OF MEMORIES COLLECTED WHILE WITH NASA

Spangler family moving

in the development of job tasks and learning hierarchies utilizing the ISD Methodology. Development of a training support plan for the Air Force Shuttle Program.

He explained that persons who work at NASA are given to talking in acronyms, because of the long technical terms.

Spangler wrote five books on satellites and several workbooks on Mission Control. He met with engineers from other countries and showed them and the astronauts how to use his developed materials.

Spangler was privy to much top secret information. He also was there at the fatal flight of the Challenger.

From 1986 to 1990 he worked as senior engineer for Link Flight Simulation Corp., in Houston and developed training materials for use by the Air Force in the F-16 aircraft training program, utilizing various software programs, both commercial and locally written to track and organize the training requirements.

The following three years Spangler was Systems Engineering Specialist for Loral Space Information Systems in Houston

There he evaluated and prioritized equipment replacement, designed alternative training approaches and suggested current technologies to be used, coordinated with customers and prepared technical manuals to document the training materials to support the design effort.

In 1994 he worked for Solvey Polymers of Deer Park as Instructional Designer. He developed training programs for plant personnel, as well as reviewed production and training documents produced by other plant personnel. He wrote new operational manuals and produced standardized testing materials for employee certification.

The Spanglers enjoyed their 14 years that Fillmore worked for NASA. They lived in Clear Lake, about 20 miles from there. Spangler said, "It was a virtual cultural melting pot. There were people living there from many states and countries."

He said thousands apply to become an astronaut, but for many the training is too stressful and many have motion sickness. Not all astronauts are pilots as many think of them. Most of them are scientists, according to Spangler.

Would-be astronauts have to be taught how to use new materials and equipment for training in a simulated environment.

Spangler said all kinds of problems were used in simulation for they astronauts to see how they could handle the situation in flight. Spangler said his job was stressful also. He subscribed to 73 magazines on computers to help him keep up with new technology, in order for him to keep NASA apprised.

Spangler said his wife, who also is a teacher, was Education Director for Friendswood First United Methodist Church, a 2,000-member congregation, while they lived at Clear Lake.

But, the Spanglers were ready for a change and came back to this area in 1994 and Spangler returned to the classroom. He taught classes in Calculus, Algebra I and II, Geometry, seventh and eighth grade math and World Geography in the Byers school system.

Since 1995 Spangler has taught Computer Science in Iowa Park High School. He teaches Beginning, Advanced, and Internet. He also serves as administrator for Windows NT based computer network with more than 100 Windows 95 users, and installs troubleshooters and repairs computer hardware and software as required.

Vicki teaches special education at Ben Milam Elementary School in Wichita Falls, where she taught when they lived here before.

Both Fillmore and Vicki were reared in First United Methodist Church and have remained true to their raising.

He sings in the Church Choir, represented the Iowa Park First United Methodist Church at the North Texas Conference, serves on the board of trustees and the official church board, and on the Pastoral Relationship Committee.

Both Fillmore and Vicki teach a Sunday School class, and they both teach in Vacation Bible School, which is one of their commitments they have to fulfill before they move.

Spangler has been involved in a variety of mission projects with the church in East Texas and some in this general area.

They have three children and all are active in church. Lori, 21, lives in Randleit, Rodney, 18, who graduated last year, and Brittany, 4.

Spangler is currently serving as president of the Iowa Park Genealogy and Historical Society

As I See It...By Bob Hamilton

Mother Nature just had to let us know she's still in charge of weather.

Boy howdy! I had my drawer of shorts unpacked, all my summer shirts brought from storage displacing my heavy ones, and even had my lawn mower's gasoline can filled.

I was ready for spring and summer, and then we had a week that felt more like January than April.

It should be obvious to you by now, that I've had a belly full of cold weather.

I don't like cold weather anyway, but when I trusted the calendar and made both physical and mental readiness for warm climes, you can imagine my disappointment.

Folks, it was colder here than in the two larger Alaskan cities of Fairbanks and Anchorage, on a couple of those days!

I'm sure many gardeners lost their young crops, if they didn't have them covered in order to survive the freezing temperatures.

And it'll be a few weeks before we know for sure how badly the wheat crop was damaged, if any. Some friends assure me that there was damage to some extent.

Since I don't have a peach tree, my only concern will be if my pecan crop was hampered any. I have learned to never expect any fruit off a apricot tree that volunteered to live in our back yard. It's never produced anything except leaves to be raked and hauled away.

Mother Nature did favor us, in one big way, however. We didn't have a tornado or driving hail storm. And the situation was about right for one or either of those.

So I guess we have something to be thankful for.

But, as I'm writing this, the forecast is for warmer weather. And it's supposed to be that, or hot, for months to come.

With that in mind, I've got my golf clubs out and cleaned, a new supply of balls and tees inventories, and I'm ready to play some cow pasture pool!

February bad for business

February was apparently a bum month for businesses throughout Wichita County.

According to this month's sales tax report from the state comptroller's office, every city in the county had less sales tax collections than the same month in 1996.

Iowa Park was the hardest hit. Its sales taxes collected on February sales was 19.8 percent lower than the previous year.

The city's rebate check, based on sales taxes collected in February and reported by businesses filing monthly returns in March, was only $15,360.45. A year ago the city's check was for $19,154.32.

Burkburnett's rebate was 8.11 percent lower than in April of last year, Electra was down 7.13 percent and Wichita Falls a minus 3.71 percent.

For the year, Iowa Park has received $85,655.63 in sales tax rebates, down 3.99 percent.

Card of Thanks

David was a complex and compelling man. As a child he made his parents afraid to exhale; that never changed. To his family he was simply our David; loving brother and son; dream-maker and chance-taker. David met every challenge with an impish smile and promptly beat it into submission. He made us laugh at ourselves (mostly unwillingly) and at his never-ending antics as well. David was exasperating and charismatic. His loss has changed us forever. The Kerr clan blesses all of you who selflessly shared his life and our grief. Some of you sent food, flowers or cards; others simply stood by or held us and wept. Whatever gifts of faith and love given us, we accept with profound gratitude.

Card of Thanks

To the Faith Baptist Church Clergy and Members - You helped us through a very difficult time by sharing everything you have with us. Your compassion and helping hands will never be forgotten.

Blessings to you,

NEWS OF THE IOWA PARK GENEALOGICAL & HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The examination of deed books, found in the office of the clerk of a county, is of great importance in the search for family information.

These books constitute a complete record of all conveyances of property within the county from the time it was formed.

A title search as instituted by the purchaser, to determine whether the title was good, often recite the chain of ownership to the original deed from the likes of the Monarchy of England, William Penn, the government of Mexico, etc.

Purchase of land may have been recorded originally in a land office and later in the clerks' office. Photostat copies can be secured which will generally show the locality, give a description of the plot, and name the adjacent landowners.

These original titles are known as Warrants of Land and are published in many different forms. The purchaser sometimes used fictitious names in order to secure rights to more land than allowed by law to each person.

The deed books preserved in the county courthouses show the date of transfer, names of grantors and grantees and their places of residence, location and description of property.

Previous owner or owners, terms and condition of sale, date recorded, witnesses and the signatures of grantors or their mark, when they were unable to write, might be included. It is important to examine the signature, as often they are different than in the body of the deed, being spelled in another manner or the given names spelled out in full.

Generally two indexes to county deeds are maintained, one for the Grantee and one for the Grantor. The grantee index records the names of the purchasers in alphabetical order and are valuable in determining when the family first acquired property in that county, which is often the year of their arrival and sometimes the year of marriage.

The grantor index shows the name of those conveying title and the deed included the names of the husband and his spouse, as all persons holding rights in the property were required to sign off such rights.

In the settlement of an estate the signatures of all heirs were required. Where the purchase of a property is of record and there is no record of its transfer the conveyance many have been by Will or the locality may have been in an area included in the formation of a new county.

Local educators attend convention

Three educators from Iowa Park joined more than 1,200 in attendance of the Association of Texas Professional Educators convention Saturday in Austin.

They were Debbie Lytle, Barbara Padgett and Betty Cash.

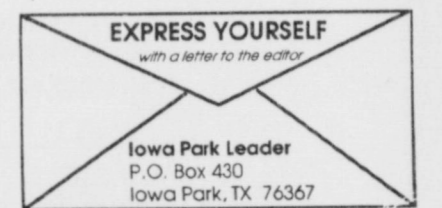

A rally was held at the state capitol, where the group voiced its opposition to House Bill 4, the tax relief bill currently before the House of Representatives.

Among the concerns with the bill, as presented to committee, if passed it would freeze teacher salaries two years.

"As many of us are homeowners, we appreciate anything that lawmakers can do to lighten that burden," said Shari Emmons, president of the 80,000-member group. "However, we cannot support tax relief at the expense of teacher salaries."

Convention delegates also passed several resolutions that will be incorporated in the group's legislative agenda for the coming year. Among the positions passed was for the State Board of Educator Certification to require course work in the area of special education for all teacher trainees.

Delegates also debated several other proposals, including whether to seek a mandate that would not allow students to enter kindergarten who were not five years old before June 1. That measure was defeated.

GARDENING HINTS

By MARK TERNING

Q. I live in Iowa Park. Is it still time to apply zinc to our pecan trees?

A. Now is an excellent time to begin making foliar spray applications of zinc to young developing pecan leaves. You can actually begin now and make several applications at two-week intervals. Zinc helps pecan trees develop healthy dark green foliage and reduces rosetting of the leaves.

Q. My onions planted in early February in Wichita Falls are flowering. What happened and what should I do?

A. Go ahead and harvest your onions as soon as possible. Since they have bolted (flowered) they will not store well. Changes in weather from cold to hot and dry conditions will trigger flowering in onions.
