A DARING RAIDER.

GRACEFUL THIEF OF GAIL-LANT FOR TO GENERAL JOHN H. MORGAN.

Dash into Ohio and Indiana—Twenty Days' Ride Through Enemy's Country—100,000 Mules, Cattle, etc., Taken—2,000 Confederates Under Morgan and Duke.

[Copyrighted, 1898, by American Press Association.]
The rain was pouring in torrents as night fell over our camp at Somerset, Ky., July 1, 1862. We were engaged in our usual duties when we were aroused by the sound of firing over the fence that we had a goodly camp, and pulled leaving the camp and started on our march northward, with our pursuing force "pushing him along." We expected Morgan to turn east before striking the Ohio river, but in this we were mistaken, as upon arriving at Brandenburg, some 40 miles below Louisville, he seized passing steamboats and landed his force in Indiana. Following his trail, we reached Brandenburg just in time to see Morgan's rear guard disappear over the river bank, only a single boat remaining. The boats were long enough to wave their hats at us and bid us goodbye. The steamboats they had used in crossing were at that moment bursting into flames and burned to the water's edge, tied fast to the Indiana shore.

Other steamboats were hurriedly obtained, and our pursuing force hastily transferred across the river, men and horses being tumbled aboard the boats in quick order and tumbled off the boats as quickly as on the other side.
The appearance of Morgan's men on the north bank of the Ohio river created consternation in Indiana and Ohio. The governor of Indiana called out his home guard to the number of 50,000, and Morgan's advance turned toward Ohio, the governor of the Buckeye State called 60,000 "squirrel hunters" into the field.

It must be borne in mind that in Morgan's ride across three states in 15 days he swept his line of march, and for some distance on each side, absolutely clean of horses, giving his own command frequent remounts, but leaving his pursuers, entirely without remount for the whole distance. Boiled down to few words, Morgan's force had two horses for every man, while the pursuers, on the Ohio side, were left with no horses. Morgan's force when it started from the Cumberland river was exceeding well mounted, having some of the best blooded horses from Kentucky—long haired, long and rapid marchers. He set the "pegs" for us and set them high every day. The longest march made by Morgan's command at "start to finish" was 90 miles in 36 hours, this being the longest march of the trip in Indiana west of Cincinnati to Williamsburg, O., on the east of Cincinnati.

Morgan's force did not exceed 2,500 troopers when he invaded the states north of the Ohio river, possibly 500 less. I think 2,000 would be a fair figure to name for the number of troops he led into Indiana.

On the 18th of July, our regiment, with the Second Ohio cavalry and the Eighth Michigan cavalry, all under the command of Colonel A. V. Knaut, was put aboard a rail, and started on its march at daylight of July 19 struck Morgan's command in the valley of the Ohio river near Buffington Island, where the enemy had been delayed for days, waiting for daylight to cross the Ohio river, and get them into line and I would look them over. When I went to the parade ground he stood before a rabble of men and was scratching his head, trying to think of the necessary order. At last he shouted, with considerable interlard profanity:

"Get into rows! Get into rows! Ain't they anything military about it?"
"That fellow afterward became one of the best drillmasters in the army."
—Exchange.

We were ordered to attack immediately, and under Colonel Garrard's direction I rode back along the line of the Seventh Ohio cavalry, ordering the companies formed into columns of fours. Our numbers were few, and I remember Lieutenant Sam B. Johnson, who commanded Company M of our regiment, told me that he had only one set of fours. Captain William T. Herten of Company B had four or five sets of fours. Of our entire regiment, 800 or 900 strong when we started from the Cumberland river, we did not now show up over 200 men, the remainder having been discontinued by reason of disabled horses and scattered along our trail for a distance of 500 miles.
When the "guidons" of General Hobson's advance fluttered in the breeze of the Ohio valley that July morning, General Morgan and Duke knew that the jig was up. We formed with plain sight of Morgan's force, and with but slight resistance to the Federal attack Morgan's entire force fled in disorder. We pursued as rapidly as the condition of our poor horses would permit and many of the enemy seeing that further effort was useless, their supply of ammunition being nearly exhausted, surrendered then and there.
After our pursuit at this point had ceased a flag of truce was brought to Colonel Morgan by a Confederate officer, who stated that Colonel Howard Smith and a few other officers and men of Morgan's command were in the woods near by, having been cut off from their command, and knowing the uselessness of further effort would surrender if an officer was sent to receive them. Adjutant Alben and Lieutenant McCole of the Seventh Ohio cavalry were sent to receive them and escort them to our lines.

On the way to receive these Confederates they were not coming to our lines under escort of a sergeant of the Eighth Michigan cavalry whom they accidentally met in the woods. These prisoners were received by the writer of these lines, who was greatly surprised to learn that General Basil Duke, Morgan's chief lieutenant, was in company with Colonel Howard Smith. General Duke bore himself with dignity, and I would not have known that I had him with the other prisoners if one of his own men had not accidentally disclosed his identity to me. One of the Confederate officers with General Duke gave me a little Confederate flag about the size of two hands. I accepted this little flag and asked the officer his name. He replied, "Captain Hines." I have the little flag yet. "He jests at scars that never felt a wound." This quotation suggests itself by reason of the fact that under the varying fortunes of war, some months after the events written of in the foregoing, in a sharp cavalry engagement at East Tennessee, I found myself a prisoner of war in the hands of the Fourth Kentucky cavalry, one of Morgan's regiments.
The prisoners captured by the Seventh Ohio cavalry near Buffington Island were turned over to the Federal officer in charge of prisoners at Cheshire, O., and with this our connection with the Morgan raid ended. General Morgan himself was not captured until some days later, but the raid ended at Buffington Island, and the subsequent flight of Morgan with his detachment of a few hundred men did not avail him anything.
From the time of Morgan's landing on the Indiana side of the Ohio river until the surrender at Buffington Island not less than 100,000 militia comprising the "Home Guard" were called into the field to "express him." The force of veterans under General Hobson who pursued Morgan from "start to finish" numbered 3,000 cavalry. Morgan gave us "a good run for our money," but we got there in spite of all his efforts to prevent us.
One can but admire the dash, skill and courage of Morgan and Duke, which enabled them to lead their 2,000 troopers on such a raid.
THEODORE F. ALLEN,
Brevet Colonel U. S. Volunteers.

ARRIVING at the Cumberland river above Barksville, we found Morgan with his division of cavalry occupying the south bank of the river. For a day or two we had skirmishing, "give and take." The river was fordable in many places, and we did not expect to hold Morgan on the south bank of the river if it was his desire to come over to our side. In fact, we rather preferred that he should come over. About July 4 Morgan had found it possible to cross the river at numerous fords, and we were called in from our picket duty to join in the pursuit.
This was the start of Morgan's famous raid, which extended across the states of Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio.
As Morgan proceeded northward across the state of Kentucky he came across small garrisons of Federal troops guarding important places. At Green River he called upon Colonel Moore of Michigan regiment to surrender his force to him on the condition of blood. This Morgan desired, Morgan accepted the challenge and made the attack, and one of his own brothers was killed at this point. Morgan did not have time to continue the attack and withdrew, con-

A GRATEFUL ENEMY.

On Memorial Day in 1895 Mrs. Sarah Bowen of Hoboken paid her annual visit to Cypress Hills cemetery to decorate her husband's grave. Mrs. Bowen was in such poor, almost indigent circumstances that even the trip to Brooklyn, not reckoning the money expended for flowers, was a strain on her slender resources. She was a veteran's widow, and the $8 a month pension allowed her on that account by the national government was all she had to support herself and an invalid daughter. Nevertheless, she had performed her obligations to the memory of the brave for 13 consecutive years with religious devotion. When she arrived on the ground on this occasion, her nervous system received such a shock that she was obliged to lean against a railing adjacent to save herself from falling.

ch, such a sweet sleep! I thought I had been in slumber; two or three minutes, while in reality I had slept an hour, when Ned Bowen roused me by throwing some water from his canteen down my neck.
"Get up, get up, Johnny," he said, "my relief is coming. You are all right, for I received your officer of the guard going his rounds and he gave me the counterpane without a word. I guess all the poor fellows like you are half asleep or they would have discovered the trick. Now don't go to sleep again, old man, Good-by."
"It appears," said the Confederate night officer as he approached, Ned Bowen, heaven rest him, jumped over the fence and, falling to wake me up, took my rifle and challenged, thus placing his life in imminent peril. When half an hour later I got back to the guard tent I learned that two other sentinels had been found asleep on their posts. They were shot next morning and now, ma'am, you will, I trust, be no longer surprised at this monument to the day's lost preservation."

The widow extended her hand, while tears of pride and emotion rolled down her face.
"God bless you," she said; "you have a noble heart, and that would not be in your head. I enclose a letter, including a treasury note for $1,000, and send them on the first day of every month for the check on the First National bank of Atlanta for $500."

A SOLDIER'S WARNING.

He Prophesied His Own Death on the Day Before the Battle.

Many an old soldier can tell tales of prevention and portents that would convert the stoutest seaman to a belief in the existence of what is indefinitely termed by psychologists "the sixth sense." The following reminiscence of the civil war, delivered by a white haired Ohio veteran, is a case in point: "When the war broke out," said he, "I was clerking in a store over in Greene county, and Charles Shaver, who afterward became one of our circuit judges, was employed in the same store. His brother Frank and I were nearly of the same age. One day I went across the street and enlisted. It was only 19 years old at the time, but I was sworn in. ANTITRUST BILL IS POSTPONED.

Goes Over to See How the Arkansas Court Will Decide on the Bill.

WILL BE TAKEN UP ON FRIDAY.

Numerous Petitions Presented in the Senate For and Against the Measure.

BILL TO CONSOLIDATE TEXAS RAILROADS.

They Are Receiving Much Attention in Both Houses and One Passes the Senate—Other Bills Finally Disposed.

Austin, Tex., April 25.—The special feature of the senate yesterday, was the antitrust bill introduced in that body and known as the Davidson antitrust bill, which was up before the senate on second reading.

The usual number of petitions for and against the antitrust bill were received and read. Mr. Davidson offered an amendment to make the bill effective after Jan. 1, 1900. Mr. Stafford wanted more time to consider the bill and moved that it be postponed until today.

Mr. Buras stated that he wanted this amendment adopted. He said the Arkansas law is being tested in the court of Arkansas and that as a decision on the constitutionality of the law will be handed down in a day or so, he moved as a substitute, that the bill be made a special order for Friday, in order to await the Arkansas decision.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

All local, or all matter intended to go among reading matter will be charged for at the regular rate of 5 cents a line, no matter how short or how long said articles may be. No discount on this class of ads.

All ads and local to run until ordered out, unless time is specified when ad is inserted.

All transient ads must be paid for in advance. All such ads hereafter will be refused unless this rule is complied with.

Cards of thanks and all other matter of a personal nature will be charged for at regular rates hereafter, except where parties are unable to pay for such notices.

Correspondents and others who report weddings for publication in THIS STAR are requested to be reasonably brief. Do not send list of wedding presents for publication as all such matter will be refused unless paid for at regular advertising rates.

Subscription—The subscription price of THIS STAR is one dollar, and must be paid in advance. The price is too low to allow credit. All subscribers in county will find date of expiration of their subscription printed on their paper. If any do not wish to renew please notify us promptly and not let paper run over time two or three months and then refuse it at postoffice as so many are in the habit of doing.

Advertisers who want space on 1st and 4th page of THE STAR or day change in ads on these two pages must notify us on Tuesday. Orders for ads or change for ads on 2d and 3d pages must be given not later than Wednesday evening each week.

No change will be made in ad, nor will any ad be discontinued for the current week unless this rule is complied with.

We must have sometime to make up forms, and to wait until the very last minute to order a large ad out or a change in same not only works an unnecessary hardship on the foreman, but often delays the press work for several hours and frequently we are forced to run the press after night because some advertiser delayed sending copy for his ad until the paper was up or took a notion at the last moment to order his ad out. A little forethought on the part of advertisers will save us unnecessary work and enable us to give them better service.

EXTRA COPIES.—Persons who desire extra copies of THE STAR must give us their order by 12 o'clock on Wednesday. We print only sufficient number of copies for our regular subscribers and exchanges. No more free copies will be distributed. If the paper is not worth paying for it is not worth having. Single copies 5 cts. Retail discount on all large orders for extra copies.

We will furnish any subscriber who fails to get his paper an extra copy free, if notified within ten days that his copy has not been received.

Mr. Gough called up his new Missouri, Kansas and Texas-Sherman, Shreveport and Southern railway consolidation bill and it was ordered engrossed and passed finally.

Mr. Turner secured final passage of his bill providing for the better preservation of personal property belonging to the state.

On motion of Mr. Greer the senate concurred in house amendments to his bill amending the law relating to the sale of timbered lands.

Dibrell secured final passage of his bill allowing Will S. Gabriel to sue the state on account of services rendered as a legislator to the senate.

On motion of Davidson the antitrust bill was made special order for today after the morning call.

The general appropriation bill was laid before the house at the beginning of the morning session, with the portion of the bill relating to the supreme court being first under consideration. Various amendments were proposed and adopted.

The bill was laid aside when the morning session ended.

The house bill to define and regulate fraternal beneficiary societies, orders or associations, to prescribe the terms and conditions on which such societies or organizations under the laws of other states or those doing business in other states may be permitted to do business in Texas, was slightly amended and passed.

Mr. Greenwood called up the peddlers' occupation tax bill and moved to concur in the senate amendments striking out the portion of the bill exempting from the provisions of the bill peddlers who exchange goods and wares for poultry and country produce exclusively.

The speaker laid before the house on its third reading the bill to levy an occupation tax upon the gross earnings or royalty accruing to persons, firms, or corporations in the business of renting or leasing cotton presses, compresses or gin machinery and to require licenses, their returns and to require the return of agents or messengers.
