TOGO BECOMES A FIRE HERO

Hon. Dear Sir: Another place where I am habitually absent can be found at home of Hon. Mrs. & Mr. Susan J. Fogg, Turnverein, Conn. I was burnt away from that place because of my heroism. I tell you how was:

Yours truly. HASHIMURA TOGO. WHY AVERAGE FARM NEEDS LIVE STOCK

live stock is essential to sound agri-culture are set forth in an article by George M. Rommel in the 1916 year book of the U. S. department of agriculture. Briefly, Mr. Rommel's seven reasons are the maintenance of soil fertility, the utilization of raw material, the need of motive power on the farm, cash income, the added attractiveness of a farm on which there is live stock, the training in business sense obtained by keeping animals, and better and more economical liv-ing for the farm family.

To maintain soil fertility, says Mr. Rommel, humus is necessary. This can be obtained from two sources green crops plowed under, or barnyard manure. When green crops are plowed under, however, there is no direct revenue from them. By feeding these crops to live stock, valuable products that can be exchanged for cash are obtained. At the same time the ma-nure produced by the animals retains a very large percentage of the fertilizing value of the feed. For this reason it is more economical to feed than to plow under without feeding, and the most practical source of humus is stable manure.

Farmer a Manufacturer.

The farmer with live stock is from ne point of view a manufacturer. He takes lean, unfinished animals and grain or forage as his raw materials and by combining them produces beef, mutton, pork, and dairy products. Like all manufacturing, this process must be conducted with skill and intelligence if it is to pay, but if the farmer possesses these qualities he derives a larger profit than he could obtain in the raw state. Furthermore there are many products on the farm which bring little or nothing on the market. They can, however, by skillful management be made to assist in the production of meat. The thrifty farmer makes use in this way of all roughage on his farm that would otherwise be tion of meat. alable. The cornstalks go into the or into the shack as cut fodder. The straw and coarse hay are utilized to the last unit of energy value. Land that cannot produce marketable crops is made to yield a certain amount sustenance for hogs and sheep.

While in cities and factories me chanical power is coming into more and more general use, on the farms of the country the horse and the mule

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Seven reasons why the keeping of live stock is essential to sound agriculture are set forth in an article by:

Specialty Business.

As a source of cash income, the keeping of live stock in many sections is what is known as a specialty business. In dairy districts it is the main ness. In dairy districts it is the man activity, and every phase of farm man-agement is determined by its interests. Where the principal purpose of live stock feeding, however, is to maintain soil fertility, farms which rely on live stock for the main source of their in-come will tend to become breeding centers for purebred animals to be dis tributed through the surrounding country for breeding purposes on those farms on which only a limited amount of live stock is kept. The production of purebred animals is a highly specialized business, and only the most skilled animal husbandmen can make

The fifth function which Mr. Rommel ascribes to live stock on the farm is not so directly connected with problems of income but it is nevertheless of vital importance. Experience has shown that nothing tends more strongly to create and maintain an interest in farm life among boys and girls than the care of animals. It is essential to the continued prosperity of this country that young people should be encouraged to make farming their vocation in life. Those who have devoted themselves to this work have found that among their most effective aids are the poultry, calf, and pig clubs. High Cost of Living. That the neglect of live stock re-sults in increasing the cost of living on the farm and in lowering the standugh the sale of crops and animals ard of that living is a fact well known to all agricultural authorities. For example, the annual meat bill of farmers for some states is enormous. The meat purchases are made largely on credit, and the proceeds of the year's crop are mostly consumed in meeting debts incurred during its production. This practice is obviously antagonistic to thrift and proper prosperity. The production of home-grown food does not involve in the least the limitation of the crop output of the farm. It simply requires planning and a little more careful management. A cow or two to furnish the family with milk, butter and cheese, and a flock of chick-ens to furnish poultry and eggs, will do much to make farm fare more healthful and cheaper.

HERD OF DUAL-PURPOSE SHORTHORN COWS.

BALANCING RATIONS FOR A DAIRY HERD

Economy Demands Home-Grown Feeds, Especially Roughage, Be Fed to Cattle.

(By CHARLES I. BRAY, Colorado Agri-Economy in feeding usually demands that as much of the ration as possible be made up of home-grown feedstuffs, especially with regard to the roughage. First, provide for all the good, clean farm-grown roughage that the cow will eat up clean, as the nutrients in roughages are generally much cheaper than in concentrated feeds.

Now consider whether the grain on hand is such as to make a balanced ration with the roughage used. Concentrates must be used, because cows cannot consume enough coarse, bulky feed to supply all their own bodily requirements, and have enough left for a large flow of milk. If the dairyman has plenty of alfalfa hay he can practically balance his rations nicely with ordinary farm grains, such as corn, barley and oats. Five per cent of cottonseed meal or linseed meal added to this grain mixture will increase pro-If the roughage consists entirely of native hay, straw, cornfodder or corn silage, he can still use his home-grown grains, but it will be necessary to use bran, cottonseed meal, or linseed meal also to supply sufficient protein. good grain mixture in this case we consist of equal parts ground barley, ground oats and oil cake or oilmeal.

If the roughage ration is of a mixed nature, such as 10 pounds of alfalfa hay and 30 to 35 pounds corn silage, the dairyman might use a mixture of two parts corn chop, two parts bran or oats and one part cottonseed cake. These grain mixtures should be fed at the rate of one pound of grain for every three and one-half or four pounds of milk each cow is producing.

LESSON FOR JUNE 10

JESUS CRUCIFIED.

LESSON TEXT-John 19:16-22, 25-30, GOLDEN TEXT-Christ died for our ins.-I Cor. 15:3.

We are compelled to omit a consideration of that dark, despicable trial in Pilate's judgment hall. Pilate's weakkneed subservience to custom and the cry of the politician is one of the black-est pages in history. His scourging of the man whom he, himself, declared innocent, is practically without parallel. After the mocking and the scourging, Pilate said unto the people, Be-hold the man" (v. 5), and later in sarcasm he said to the same people, "Behold your king" (v. 14). Teachers should emphasize at the beginning and all through this lesson that Jesus suffered and died for the sins of all men, ours as well as those of his own day.

I. The Crucifixion of Jesus (vv.

16-22). It was about nine o'clock in the morning when Pilate gave his infamous order that Jesus should be crucified. It was indeed a sorrowful pro-cession which moved itself along the "Via Dolorosa" (the Sorrowful Way), consisting of the Roman soldiers, the consisting of the Roman soldiers, the tottering, physically exhausted man of Galilee, and, Luke adds, "sorrowing women." They took him to the place of a skull, a hill about sixty feet high, at the foot of which was the rock-hewn sepulcher in which his body was later laid. The place was called in Hebrew "Golgotha," the Aramaic for skull. Calvary is the Latin for the same. On either side of him were crucified the robbers, which was an evident effort to add to his shame as well as a salutary warning to the Pass over pilgrims. Over the cross Pilate wrote a title on a wooden tablet. Fol-lowing the usual custom, this was nailed at the head of Jesus, setting forth his crime. The words it bore were, "Jesus of Nazareth, King of the Jews," as though Pilate would take malicious revenge upon the mob which had made him perform a deed he had sought to avoid. Literally this sign meant "This man is the kingliest of all Jews, and see what they have done to him." In response to Pilate's questioning, Jesus said, "I am the King of the Jews." Pilate knew that he was innocent, and sought to let him go free, but, rather than incur the hatred of the Jewish authorities, he yielded to their demand for his blood, and became a party to the murder of the Son of God. Men today take a part in his cruci-fixion rather than surrender wholly to him, and pay the price of open confession. "They crucified him." How these words laid the pride of men in the dust. Human nature is the same today as it was two thousand years ago when the world's bitterest hate was wreaked not upon a bad man but upon the best man, the perfect man, the God-man. The pain Jesus suf-fered on Calvary was no imagination. He suffered it all for us (Isa. 53:6). but the physical suffering was not the most severe agony he bore (Ps. 69:20; Matt. 27:46). The crucifixion of Jesus was part of the eternal purposes of God's love and redemption.

II. The World's Darkest Hour (vv. 23-30). Each of the Gospel writers refers to the part the soldiers took in casting lots for his garments. They were unconsciously fulfilling the prophecy of Psalm 22:18, and it was from their number that one of the supreme testimonies to the character of Christ came (See Matt. 27:54). The first three evangelists tell us of the throng of pilgrims who passed along the highway from the north, close at hand, and who wagged their heads in imitation and mockery of the agony of the one who was being crucified, But there were others who were spectators of this event, a group of Christ lovers (v. 25). "It is finished." These are remarkwords. He had finished his suffering; he had finished that for which he came into the world when he began his ministry; he had finished the mission for which his father had sent him into the world; he had finished and fulfilled the prophecies concern-ing his suffering and death; he had completed the work of the redemption; the atonement was finished, and Sa tan's power was finished; the Mosaic law was finished as far as its claims upon the believer were concerned (Rom. 10:4; Col. 2:13; Eph. 2:15 and 16). Catwardly it seemed to be Satan's supreme hour. It was the world's

The seven last words. These would be an interesting study for any class.

(1) "Father forgive them for they know not what they do;" (2) "Today know not what they do;" (2) "Today thou shalt be with me in Paradise."

(3) "Woman, behold thy son; (4) "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" (5) "I thirst;" (6) "It is flushed;" (7) "Father into thy hands I commit my spirit." Christ had power to lay down his life. He had power to take it up again, but he laid it down, submitting to a burial in the tomb. At that moment note the effect upon submitting to a burial in the tomb. At that moment note the effect upon the malefactor, upon the centurion, upon the elements of cloud and sky, upon the veil of the temple, upon the people and upon his friends. What is the effect of this story upon yourself, teachers, and upon those *>ho are listening to your instruction?

CARING FOR CREAM ON FARM

Expert of University of Illinois Gives Ten Excellent Rules for Farmer to Follow.

(By H. A. RUEHE, Associate in Dairy Manufacturers, University of Illinois.)

Keep the cows clean.
 Use covered milk pails.

Milk with dry hands.

4. Remove milk from the barn im-nediately and separate it at once. 5. Set the separator so that it will skim cream that will test from 35 to 40 per cent in the winter and from

40 per cent in the winter and 1 40 to 45 per cent in the summer. 6. Wash, scald, and dry the separa-tor and all utensils immediately after using. The separator bowl may be dried in a warm oven, though the oven should not be so warm that it will melt the tin on the bowl parts. Setting utensils in the sun is a good practice, as the sunshine acts as a

9. Never mix warm cream with cold cream. Cool the cream before mixing with previous skimmings.

10. Do not allow the cream to freeze

in cold weather.

11. Stir the cream at least twice a day; this will keep it smooth and free from lumps. Do not use a wooden paddle for a stirrer, as it is unsanitary.

12. Deliver cream frequently, at least twice a week in winter and three times a week in warm weather.

PLANT ROUGHAGES FOR COWS

Every Farmer Is Advised to Grow Abundance of Alfalfa or Clover-Concentrates High.

Grow an abundance of feed for the cow this season, advises A. S. Neale, specialist in dairy husbandry, division of extension, Kansas State Agricultural "Already the price of concentrates is 'out of sight." Prices will continue high unless these concentrates are replaced by the cheaper roughages," said Mr. Neale. "Every farmer should plan to grow plenty of alfalfa or clover, and If alfalfa or clover cannot be grown in your section substitute another leguminous crop, such as cowpeas.

"During the next 12 months the production of dairy products will be due largely to the feeding of roughages instead of concentrates, as has formerly been the case.

"Dairy cows of quality receiving nothing but roughage can produce 200 to 250 pounds of butterfat annually, provided the roughage is fed in abundance and is composed of a combination of silage and a leguminous hay. Of course poor cows will not do so well on this ration."

sideration. A cow is not contented unless her stomach is full. She should always have all the roughness that she will clean up and then the amount of grain she receives should be regulated by the amount of milk produced.

A dry cow in good condition should be fed roughness only, and does not need any grain. In feeding grain to milk producing cows, the following rule may be used, and is found to work fairmay be used, and is found to work fair-ly well: Feed one pound of grain for each three pounds or pints of milk pro

I couldn't lift my six-months-old baby, and had to hire someone to wait on me and do my work. I was so nervous the least little thing dropping on the floor would startle me and my heart would almost stop beating. I couldn't eat any solid food at all and was in such run-down condition my baby fell off until it was just a little baby fell off until it was just a little skeleton and fretted and cried all the time. No kind of medicine did me any good and I was getting worse all the time.

MAKES TOWER AN ORNAMENT

Gatekeeper Transforms What Is Usual ly Unsightly Box Into a Thing of Beauty.

A blot upon the "City Beautiful," yet very necessary blot, is every gatekeeper's tower at a railroad crossing. It must be high and unsheltered, consequently sunbaked and windswept. But with the heart of a poet and the skill of a landscape artist, T. J. Jones, a South-ern Pacific gatetender, has trans-formed his conning tower at Pomona, Cal., into a town ornament.

The bare, bleak, stilts-perched box that must be his abode day after day through long hours of duty now looks like a vine-covered bird cage. sightly posts are completely hidden; on one side the road's initials appear in living green, while the other sides bear quaint designs, and vines outline each ledge. Inside he has window boxes and potted plants wherever they will not interfere with "business." The wee space around his castle between the tracks he has fenced with smooth, whitewashed stones, and within it has done such systematic, intensive farming that he has raised more tomatoes, potatoes, onlons, peas and carrots than he can use. The sturdy young man with the spade is a happy specimen of a thrifty American; certainly he is a standing rebuke to all lazy neighbors with weed-covered lots.

GLARING STREET LIGHTS BAD

Best Results Obtained From Globes Which Are Dense Enough to Soften the Rays.

"Illuminating engineers are now turning all their energies toward a system for the proper distribution of street lighting," writes Walter R. Howell, in Good Health. "They have unanimously agreed that the best light is that from a globe that is dense enough not to reveal the form of the actual light within, but to give the effective the control light within, but to give the effective light within such as the control light within a strength of the control light within the control actual light within, but to give the effect of light streaming forth from the globe."

The reason for this is that street lamps are necessarily against a dark background, and the amount of glare background, and the amount of glare upon the eyes depends to a great degree upon the background against which the light is seen. An electric light, unshaded, against a dark velvet wall covering, for instance, will be found much more trying to the eyes than would the same light with a white wall paper behind it.

Wood-Block Pavement.

An official inspection of wood-block pavement laid in Minneapolis during 1906 shows that in only two out of 13 sections were more than 5 per cent of the blocks depressed as much as one-half inch below the general level of the street. The two exceptions were in the heaviest traffic districts of the city, and one of them showed 13.5 per cent of the blocks depressed as compared with 16.5 per cent in the other section. Those sections of pavement made with long-leafed pine and birch showed only 2 per cent of the blocks depressed after ten years' service.

Patriotism and Business

Every good citizen at this time should do his share toward strengthening the Federal Reserve Banking System which our Government has created with its billion dollars of resources to stand back of its member banks and all their depositors.

You can contribute directly to the strength of this system, and at the same time secure its protection by depositing your money with us, since part of every dollar you deposit with us goes directly into the new system, where it is always ready for you when wanted. This is a suggestion for prompt action.

THE COLONIAL TWO FAMILY HOUSE NOW

This Type Becoming Popular in Small Cities and Towns All Over the Country.

Double House Described Here Gives Complete Privacy to Each Family and There's Plenty of Room Space in Both Sides.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

When the growth of towns and small When the growth of towns and small cities is discussed with reference to building activity, sooner or later the multi-family house will be mentioned. It is natural to associate the flat or apartment building with a thickly-settled community, the type being, at first thought, one of necessity rather than preference. It cannot be doubted, however, that there are conveniences in the state of the English thatched effect. people. An example of the eagerness with which apartment with which apartment rentals are tak-en up is found in a recent occurrence in a city of about 60,000 population in northern Illinois. This city, despite its size, has very few apartment buildings. Last year one of the real estate firms announced its intention to on a very well located piece of land, nine blocks from the center of the main business district. Rentals varied from $45 to $65 per month. Before a shovel of dirt had been turned the

Many cities considerably smaller dom attempted unless the investor is safe in assuming that the demand for them exists. For this reason, the apartis found when two branches of a family occupy the opposite sides. By sharing in the expense of construction, each family obtains a home which is considerably better from every standpoint than either could build alone for the same amount. This type of house of necessity requires a wide let house of necessity requires a wide lot, which makes its use more or less lim-ited in cities where land values are lied in cities where land values are high. On the other hand, the wide lot, when it can be obtained for a rea-sonable amount, is one of the real vir-tues of the home. It offers the pos-sibility of utilizing hature's decora-tions, and, what is more important at HELP TO COMMUNITY LOOKS this time, it gives the residents an opportunity to grow at least a part of vegetables required for their tables.

The accompanying perspective view and floor plan is sufficient to adequately establish the beauty and convenience which may be obtained in this doublehouse type. The basic virtue is found in the arrangement of the house as a whole. The floor plan shows that a U-shape is followed in the general lay-out. By this means the two parts of the house are sufficiently separated to provide for privacy and lack of disturbing transmission of sound from one part to the other of the house. This arrangement also facilitates the ven-tilation of bedrooms which face on the

The beauty of the exterior is plainly evident. Walls are finished with shin gles having a wide exposure to the weather. The roof design is distinc-tive, following somewhat after the lines roof could be made even more effecpreference. It cannot be doubted, how-ever, that there are conveniences in apartment life which appeal to many ers of stained wood shingles and com-position shingles. The colonial influ-ence is found in the design of windows stain the walls pure white and paint

There are several features of the build a modern 12-apartment building interior of this design which should be on a very well located piece of land, noticed. The arrangement is symmetrical about the center line of the house. There is a large living room, dining room and kitchen with pantry along the outer part of each side of firm had signed leases for every inch of space in the building.

Two bedrooms and a screened porch form Many cities considerably smaller the inner part of each side of the than this one have numerous aparthouse, facing the center court. The ment buildings which have proved to front porch is built under the main be satisfactory investments to their roof of the house and is used by both owners. These buildings are expensive to build and their construction is selends of this porch form the entrance building in which each floor is occupled by a separate family. For this reason, there is nearly always a demand for two-family houses in which both families occupy ground floor space, or in which the two-story building is divided after the manner of the duplex apartment, each family having space on two floors.

It would seem logical to suppose that a building of this kind would be popular in almost any small city or town, even in rather small towns, in case there is any demand for houses to rent. This type of double house may be made very artistic, as the example which we will presently describe will show. There is an independence in the two parts of such a building which compares very favorably with private houses built on the average lots of growing communities. A few of these houses in a well-kept town are impressive and give the appearance of progressiveness which is always noticed by strangers, especially those who have in raind the investment of their capital in industrial or other business projects.

For this reason, there is nearly always a detail open on one side and has a window open on one side and has a window in the opposite wall, so that ventilation is certain. The bedroom may be used, then, simply as a dressing room and may be kept warm for that purpose. French doors are placed between the bedroom and porch and small windows are placed on each side of the doors, in the full length of the doors. Although this bedroom has no

FIX HYPODERMIC FOR TREES

Trouble Experienced in Removing Plants From One Place to Another Overcome by New Device.

A very interesting method of water-A very interesting method of water-ing newly transplanted trees has re-cently been brought to the attention of orchardists. All who have had ex-perience in removing trees from one place to another, know that a large number die before the roots become settled in the new location. This simple device overcomes the difficulty.

Take an ordinary bucket, cut a hole in the bottom and solder in it a short in the bottom and solder in it a snort plece of three-fourth-inch gas pipe. A few feet of garden hose is then attached to the pipe and extended down to the roots. Now choose a root about the same size as the pipe and cut it off so as to fit tightly into, and form tight plug for the free end of the at tight plug for, the free end of the hose. The bucket may then be filled with water and hung from one of the lower limbs of the tree. The root will take sufficient moisture from the supply in the bucket to maintain life until the other roots are ready for work. the other roots are ready for work,

CENSUS REPORT ON CHERRIES

ose of Bearing Age Distributed in Every State in the Union—Commercial Interests Small.

(By H. P. GOULD, Pathologist, United States Department of Agriculture.)
Probably no tree fruit is grown more widely throughout the country than the sour cherry, or "ple" cherry, as it is often called. The distribution of sweet cherries is more restricted. The thirteenth census reports for the entire country a total of 11,822,044 cherry trees of bearing age, and about one-half as many not of bearing age. Those of bearing age are distributed in every state in the Union and range in number in the different states from 120 in Florida to more than 1,000,000 in each of the states of Pennsylvania and Ohio.

However, in most of the states in which many cherries are grown the commercial interests are relatively small compared with several others in which the number of trees is considerably less. In the latter the industry is largely centralized in certain locais largely centralized in certain loca-tions or regions where the commercial interests are extensive, while in the former the trees are distributed quite generally throughout the states, prin-cipally as small orchards, the fruit of which is rarely shipped, though in many cases it may be sold in local markets.

Climate is the most potent limiting influence in the distribution of fruits so far as the natural surroundings are concerned. Of the various elements of climate, temperature probably more often governs in this respect than any other single factor. This becomes evident in the distribution of cherries.
