Motion of suspension of the 1963 Fair was made by Clark, and stipulated that a five-man committee be appointed to close the functions of the Fair on Dec. Sgt. and Mrs. Billy Gene House 31. The committee will make prorangements. The group will then report to the annual meeting of the directors on Jan. 15, 1963. Suspension was caused by the decline of attendance during the past four years and the fact that the event this year cost $5,000 over income.

The Fair is suspending current operations in a complete debt-free condition after operating several years to overcome a deficit that occurred previously.

ZANZABUKU by Lewis Cotlow. Reviewed by Mrs. James A. Sewell

The author, an insurance man, disclaims the title of Explorer or Scientist. He says he is just a man with an insatiable curiosity who has traveled around the world to see strange and wonderful sights and to become acquainted with strange and wonderful people. Cotlow says, "Africa is a time machine that can carry you back along the world's lifeline as far s you want to go. You can un-wind the reel of history 500 years, a thousand, two thousand-even 20,000 years, but this primitive world is shrinking fast. I made up my mind to visit it before it was demolished by the steam roller of modernity."

The result is what must be priceless color pictures of animals in their habitat. The book, however, carries word pictures of the animals and of the natives which are entrancing.

Those who enjoy animal stories will like the description of the King of Beasts walking majestically toward the waterhole for a drink, while some of his lesser subjects cavort in derision-at a safe distance. Then there are description of snow-topped mountains on the equator. The ancients had described these mountains, but until 75 years ago their sto-ries were regarded as fantasy, which shows just how ignorant these people were. Zanzabuku is full of adventure and thrillingly designed for the adult armchair traveler who likes to know what is "on the other side of the mountain."

Other interesting books now in Wichita County Free Library are: Treasuries of the National Galleries by Hans Tietze.

Revive Your Rooms and Furniture, by Brostrom. The Passionate Playgoer, by Oppenheimer.

How to Make Origami (the art of paper folding), by Honda.

Nocona school board members will meet Sunday afternoon with Keith Swim and Charles Wrotenberry, representative of C. & W. Construction company, to inspect the Kidwell and Bradford elementary school buildings. One of the Nocona school buildings burned last week, and school trustees are inspecting other area schools to get ideas on rebuilding.

Mrs. W. C. Albright gave the devotional and Mrs. Carrol Crum sang the Lord's Prayer. Mrs. W. E. Stockton gave the closing prayer.

Twenty-four were present. Christmas program will be at 10:30 a.m. next Tuesday in the chapel followed by luncheon in Fellowship Hall. Bonny Denny circle will have charge of arrangements.

CARD OF THANKS

We are grateful to our many friends, both far and near, who in so many ways brought spiritual comfort to our hearts and homes. Greater solace came during the darkest hours and final loss of our Loved One.

The standard of your daily Christian lives reveals that you also, know that God is supreme; that He never takes away unjustly. Only time can tell.
